They return the maximum profit. There is no doubling up on them. No one asks or expects to get two packages for a quarter. They are standard at 15c a package.

Then there's that big feature of satisfying your customer—giving him something he will come back for. There never was a cigarette like Fatima for repeat sales. It's the steady customer maker.

JANUARY.

Tampa manufacturers plan to strengthen the efficency of their guarantee stamp—Theobald & Oppenheimer, of Philadelphia, merge with the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company—Seattle cigar dealers form state association.

FEBRUARY.

Percival S. Hill succeeds James B. Duke as president of the American Tobacco Company, Mr. Hill having been vice-president under Mr. Duke for a number of years.

United Cigar Manufacturers' Company buy Lancaster factory of the Union American Company—Tobacco Trade Association formed in Boston by the wholesale cigar and tobacco dealers.

MARCH.

Reports from Havana prove that new Cuban crop is close to being a record breaker—Two well known New York cigar manufacturing firms, Heyman Brothers & Loewenstein and T. J. Dunn & Company, consolidated—Report of the American Tobacco Company shows increase in the net earnings—Liggett & Myers adopt bonus plan in which officers share in increased profits—R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co., removes part of its business from Richmond to Louisville—Abraham Oppenheimer, member of the Philadelphia cigar manufacturing firm of Sulzberger & Oppenheimer, Limited, dies in that city—Samuel Kaufmann, of the lithographic firm of Kaufmann, Pasbach & Voice, dies at his home in New York City.

APRIL.

Baum-Jaffe Company formed in Philadelphia, where they prepare to manufacture high-grade cigars—Henry Meyer, pioneer Ohio leaf tobacco dealer killed in auto accident—Solomon Monday dies at his home in Brooklyn—R. A. Patterson, founder of R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company, passes away at his home near Richmond.

Michael J. Dalton, head of M. J. Dalton & Company, of Philadelphia, and W. Frederick Worthington, manager of one of the Dalton stores, die within four days of each other—Announcement made of the forming of an organization to be known as the United Retail Realty Company, which will buy locations for cigar stores—R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company loses three and one-half million pounds of tobacco in fire in Winston-Salem, N. C., entailing loss of about $425,000.

MAY.

At the annual meeting of National Leaf Tobacco Association, in New York City, delegates condemn Taft administration and wire endorsement to Colonel Roosevelt; also defeat resolution to lower wrapper duty—The Clear Havana Cigar Manufacturers Association, of Tampa, forms an agreement with its employees, in which system of inspection is adopted—George E. Advantages to be Derived by the Tobacconist From "Mixin'"

A group of college presidents, well known in the East, were in the habit of going on an annual camping trip. They had gone one summer to the mountains of South Carolina. One evening they gathered around the fireplace in an old mountaineer's cabin for a conference.

Before the discussion began, the old man said: "I reckon you'uns know a lot that we'uns don't know nothin' about."

The college presidents allowed that that "might" be true. The old man then remarked: "Perhaps we'uns know a lot that you'uns know nothin' about."

The educators allowed that that "was" true.

"Well, then," the old mountaineer observed, "this mixin' will learn us all a bit of knowledge."

THE foregoing brings to mind the necessity of mixin' by business people. While there has been more or less of this done among the members of the tobacco trade, the percentage of mixers is still lamentably small. It seems that it requires a pretty urgent case before they waken up. They only get together after their rights have been trampled upon. Had they been prepared for any unfavorable action against them, by having co-operative associations, the possibility is that they would not have been compelled to be exercised over the wrongs they now claim threaten their existence.

The forming of associations of retail and wholesale tobacconists throughout the country within the past year shows pretty clearly that dealers are beginning to see the advantage of mixing. The results accruing from these meetings lies with the members entirely. It depends upon what object they have in joining and their attitude toward the other members. In some localities efforts have been made to form clubs of business men. The idea was to get together, to exchange opinions, and to boost the town. Many of those approached hailed the scheme as the identical thing needed to get the business interests to working together for a greater city. Here, as in almost every other town of that size, several men insisted upon running things. They all wanted to be the "main squeeze." Their actions so antagonized other dealers that the scheme was a dead one before it was started.

Had the disgruntled absentees come to the first meeting and let the majority rule, which would probably have been the better element, the association would be prospering to this day. Why any right-minded business man permits the actions of another man to keep him away from such a meeting is beyond me. Those fellows should have taken the stand that no one, not even the crowd which was trying to start the plan, could keep them away. If they so desired, after the association was well under way, and was not being operated for the good of all concerned, they had the privilege of dropping out.

In a neighboring city the same idea was carried out to a successful conclusion. This body naturally had its troubles at first, but the get-together spirit was there. Through their efforts these business men have brought a number of enterprises to the city, establishments which have increased the population and ultimately materially increased the business of all these men.

There are, at this writing, a number of retail tobacco dealers' associations in the country. In some instances they were formed years ago. They prospered for a time, then when the members attended no longer, they died a natural death. Within a comparatively recent period they have been revived and are again prospering. In other cases efforts were made several times before the members could be made to realize the advantages of getting together. Whether they are now here to stay is for the members themselves to decide.

When approached a short time ago and asked why there was no body of this kind in his city, a prominent tobacconist in one of the larger cities remarked, "What is the advantage of having such an association as that? What good would it accomplish? Every fellow in this 'burg' is jealous of the other, and the man who gets them together must 'go some.' I believe such an organization could be formed by a disinterested party, one not a tobacco man, but if any of the larger dealers suggested such a thing here there would be about a dozen of his competitors who would knife the scheme as soon as they got the chance. They are all jealous of each other."

This fellow knew pretty well what he was talking about. Yet he was like all the others. He was as willing to use the knife on any scheme as well as the next one. He pointed out the reasons why no association had as yet been formed, but was not even willing to inquire and find out the advantages of such a body.

As an illustration of what latent power lies with the retailers of this country, let me give an instance which came to my notice recently.

The dealers in a certain line of business in one of our large cities had been fighting each other for a number of years. Conditions had reached such a stage where something had to be done. Fortunately many of these dealers realized this fact and they formed an association. This accomplished all, and more, than they had ever planned in their wildest dreams. But they did not stop when they had gotten together and were prospering. Many of them were branching out and finally became large jobbing houses.

They were in such a position before long where they could dictate to the manufacturer entering that market, as well as to the small retailer who did not belong to the organization. They had begun to taste their power and used it so freely in dictating just what the small retailer had to do, and what the manufacturer had to do to get his wares in that market, that their activities were called to the attention of the authorities at Washington and prosecutions began under the Sherman Law.

So when a dealer tells me that the business men in his line cannot be brought together to discuss their needs and swap experiences, thus benefiting all concerned, I am inclined to believe that the fault lies largely with the dealer. If he will not overlook any differences, business or otherwise, he may have with his competitor across the street, in order to build up his trade and work for the good of all concerned, he has no one to blame but himself if he fails to keep his head above water.

Why Do They Fail?

SOMETIMES men fail because they are rascals, but more often because of one or more of these reasons: Oversmartness; unwillingness to labor and wait; acting from policy instead of principle; too much haste to get rich; want of punctuality; wrong views of the great end and aim of life; idleness; shrinking hard work; giving too much attention to affairs outside of the regular business; lack of enterprise; living beyond one's means; going into business too young; fast living—bodily, mentally and spiritually; dishonesty in little things as well as great; lack of attention to details; having no definite object; disposition to float down stream rather than row up; too many irons in the fire; lack of judgment in giving credit; unwillingness to begin at the bottom and climb.

Took Advice of Late King Edward

More than fifty years ago a man, who made Turkish cigarettes in a little garret in Picadilly, London, received a call from a stranger, who had heard of his cigarettes from a club friend. They had a chat, and the stranger, as he was about to leave, said: "Very good cigarettes, but why don't you take a shop? Take a shop! Take a shop!" "I have no money to take a shop," said the man, who was only making a small living at his trade which was new in London.

"Oh, that don't matter, "said the stranger, cheerfully, "Here's my card, and you go and take a shop." Then he turned around and walked out.

The poor cigarette maker shook his head and smiled at the stranger's advice. Then glancing at the card in his hand, he saw that his visitor had been the Prince of Wales. He, however, went around London, with no money, but with the Prince of Wales' card as a reference, and soon had his shop and everything necessary to start in business. Up until the time of his death King Edward of England is said to have remained one of his customers. During the course of his business carreer, the cigarette maker sold his goods to many of the crowned heads of Europe, and to this day caters to only the most discriminating smokers.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Businesses

If your show window is large enough, why not try a cigarmaking demonstration? There have probably been a number of them in your city at other times. Perhaps you have had one before? This is something that always attracts the people on the street and is always good advertising. I was standing in a store in Philadelphia a few days before Christmas, where the proprietor had three cigarmakers in the window, making his five-cent cigars. All the men had on white duck suits, and the cards in the window laid great stress upon the sanitary conditions under which these cigars were being made. It was surprising the number of men who stopped there and looked on for a while. Many of them were smoking, but came in anyway and bought a few cigars, and stuck them in their pockets, evidently intending to make sure of having some when they wanted to smoke again.

The Cigar Making Display Always Attracts People

It is a sure guess that very few of these men would have stopped at an ordinary store, since they were smoking at the time. But the store "out of the ordinary" called to them and they responded. Women, evidently on the lookout for Christmas cigars, stopped, were evidently impressed with the cleanliness of the manufacturing operations, and came in, buying the cigars by the box. They would probably have stopped at another store, but this display jogged their memories, and they bought on the spot.

Don't forget, Mr. Retailer, that your show window is one of your best salesmen. What the traveling man is to the manufacturer, the show window is to the retailer. And since the salesmen with the best line of talk and the best selling points are the ones doing the best trade, just so is the window with the best display and selling arguments the only paying one to have.

Inject Personality In Your Business

When you write those window cards, try to put a little personality in them, as though you were talking directly to that fellow looking in the window who is wondering whether those pipes you are showing are good ones. By using that chatty line of talk, he will feel more inclined to come in and look them over. Instead of a general statement of their quality, he feels that there is a fellow inside who stands back of those pipes, not simply an ordinary cigar store, of which there are hundreds. Inject your personality in the cards and all advertising matter you use. Some time ago the writer bought a small can of tobacco in a store. Upon opening it he found that the top of the contents of the can were musty. He took it back and after the proprietor had been called by the clerk, he carefully explained that the musty tobacco was due to the weather we had been having and that I should come back at any time my purchase didn't come up to the usual standard. I found out that the proprietor always took care of these complaints and the tactful way he handled them proved that he realized the importance of attending to these people himself. He didn't delegate the task to a clerk. That made a mighty good impression on me. I always associated that man with the store after that. His personality made a friend for the business.

I had a different experience later in another city while traveling. I bought smoking tobacco, with the same result. I took it back. The clerk took it, looked at me suspiciously, and went to the back of the store, where he evidently showed it to the proprietor. After a time he brought it back and gave me another can. But I could tell by the way the whole thing had been handled that they didn't like the idea of giving another can. At least the reluctant manner it had been done gave that impression. The can should have been given without any hesitation. That was a good chance for the owner of the store to prove to the customer that he was on the square and wanted nothing but the best goods to leave the place.

Walk about any city or town during shopping hours and you will see a group of people standing before some free show or novelty window attraction—something probably in motion, but something that is unusual, a thing that will attract either by its motion, its neatness, or its originality. That crowd is taken before that display out of Human Curiosity.

Use Current Events in Window Displays

Do you as a merchant, or does the man you are working for, appreciate that crowd? Are you using any plan to utilize that curiosity, and profit by it? Do you realize the possibilitiess of the crowd that passes your place every day? Are you going to get them inside your store or to attract their attention?

Current events suggest the majority of good educational window displays. My advice to the window trimmer is to allow the people of your locality to learn that something new can be found at Jones' store. You can get them in the habit of looking in your window every time they pass. Take for instance the war in the Balkans. As far as I could see, in a number of the larger cities of the country little attempt was made to use the events, like pictures of Turkish soldiers or the country, to show the passers by where most of the tobacco they use in their cigarettes came from. Neither was any Turkish tobacco displayed. Perhaps a man may say: "I don't try for the cigarette trade." Possibly he does not, but it interests the cigar smoker just as well. It focuses his attention on the store.

The H. Sutliff Pipe Shop, of San Francisco, as its name implies, confines its business pretty closely to pipes, which are almost exclusively used in the display work. Mr. Sutliff took advantage of the holiday opportunities by making a large and varied display of high-class goods, supplemented by Indian jars of his special "Pipe Shop" mixture. The central background was occupied by a large window card, red with white lettering, calling attention to pipes as "The Home Gift." He also showed a number of "Sutliff Pipe Shop" merchandise orders, many of which are purchased by those who do not feel themselves competent to make a selection. Mr. Sutliff makes a strong bid for repair work, and one of his window displays, which recently drew a lot of attention, included an expert pipe repairer at work.

Pipe Dealers Sells Xmas Merchandise Orders

Did you ever use any catchy schemes to attract the attention of that smoker who passes your door every day, Mr. Tobacco Dealer? If you have let us hear from you.

Four Large Tampa and Havana Cigar Manufacturing Firms Sign Contracts to Consolidate Interests

Bustillo Bros. and Diaz, Calixto, Lopez & Co., Lopez, Hermanos & Co., and V. Verplanck & Co. in the Merger—Combined Output of Factory About 4,000,000 Cigars

STEPS were taken, last Thursday, looking toward the consolidation of four of the largest independent manufacturers of high-grade Havana cigars in Tampa and Havana. The contract was signed, and the papers of incorporation will be filed at Wilmington, Delaware, within a week. The corporation, which will be a merger of Bustillo Brothers and Diaz, Calixto, Lopez & Company, Lopez, Hermanos & Company and P. Verplanck & Company, will have a capitalization of $2,000,000. Part of the stock is to be offered for subscription.

The combined output of these factories is close to the 4,000,000-mark, and comprises several of the best known of the higher grade Havana cigars. Among the brands are "Henry the Fourth," made by Bustillo Brothers and Diaz in Tampa, "Eden," by Calixto, Lopez & Company, in Havana, and "Los Reyes de Espana," the product of Lopez, Hermanos & Company, of Tampa.

The four factories now operated will be continued by the new organization. The largest of the four, the factory of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, at Tampa, will be the manufacturing headquarters, and its shipping and other facilities will be enlarged to combine with its present work, the duties of the same departments of P. Verplanck & Company and Lopez, Hermanos & Company. This will reduce overhead charges, while continuing the operation of the three plants along the lines they have been conducted. It will also avoid interference with the methods of selection, manufacture and factory operation which in the past have contributed to the individuality of each concern. Calixto, Lopez & Company's control of Bances & Lopez, of Havana, also will pass to the new combine.

A New York headquarters has not been selected, but will be secured shortly. Overhead charges in New York will be lowered by the consolidation of the different distributing departments and the establishment of but one executive and administration department in place of the four now necessarily maintained. The establishment of Calixto, Lopez & Company, at 180 Water Street, where the New York office of Lopez, Hermanos & Company also is located, will be discontinued as will the offices of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, at No. 58 Warren Street.

All of the brands owned by the consolidating concerns will pass to the new organization. There is no intention, as far as is known, of dropping the manufacture of any of them or of making any one of them a "leader." With competition among themselves removed and manufacturing and distributing costs lessened it is intended to push their brands aggressively.

The John K. Lynch Cigar Company, with a capital of $15,000, has been organized in Chicago, to do a general cigar and tobacco business. The incorporators are L. R. Boudreaux, Samuel M. Sullivan and Jacob Fairman.

Bobrow Bros. Bring Suit Against Balis Bros., Claiming Infringement on Label of "Bold" Cigar

Philadelphia Cigar Manufacturing Firm Brings Injunction Against Makers of "Balo" Brand, in United States District Court—Assert That Defendants Traded on Reputation Made by Them on Their Brand

SUIT has been brought in the United States District Court in Philadelphia by Bobrow Brothers, cigar manufacturers, against Balis Brothers, cigar manufacturers of that city, claiming infringement of the label and copying the design of the "Bold" cigar so as to create the impression that the dealer was purchasing that brand.

It is contended by the complainants that a nickel cigar put on the market within the past year by Balis Brothers, was done deliberately, with the intention of trading on the reputation the manufacturers of the "Bold" had made on their product. It is asserted that in using the word "Balo" for the defendant's cigar they approached the name "Bold" as closely as possible. They also contend that the design was copied, and is an exact replica of that used on "Bold" boxes with the exception of a slight change in the color of the background of the label.

The bill of complaint was filed on December 23 in the United States District Court by Hector T. Fenton, attorney for Bobrow Brothers. The court granted an order on the defendants to appear before him on December 30 to answer motion for an injunction. This was done and the injunction filed, which prohibits the defendants from using the design or name "Balo" for their cigar in the future.

Important Change Reported in Spietz & Worch Business

DETROIT, MICH., December 28.

It is persistently reported in trade circles here that Messrs. Spietz and Worch, of the Spietz-Worch branch of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, are about to withdraw from the company and open another factory in this city. It is understood that they have secured an option and purchased the property formerly occupied by the Catholic Seminary, located at Forrest Avenue and Staubin Street, which they will occupy as their new factory some time in January.

Your correspondent has been unable to confirm this report personally, but the source of information comes from very reliable parties. Whether the newly-organized Tobacco Products Corporation has an interest behind this proposed move, is not known as yet. Some definite announcement is expected within the next few days.

U. M. C. Co., to Have New Factory in Seven Valleys, Pa.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company has acquired a plot of ground at Seven Valleys, York County, Pennsylvania, upon which they will shortly erect a factory. The plant at that place has become too small and the present move is made so as to increase the force of cigarmakers, eventually employing several hundred hands.

Philadelphia, New York and Connecticut Leaf Men Plan For Tariff Hearing

That the leaf tobacco interests of the East are going to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them on January 17, was clearly shown by the meetings held in New York and Philadelphia the past two weeks. The proceedings at these meetings are given below.

Philadelphia Leaf Dealers' to Attend Tariff Hearing

THAT the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade will leave no stone unturned in their efforts to have the duty on imported tobacco reduced was conclusively proven in a meeting held in the Harris Club, 308 New Street, on December 20. The meeting was called by Julius Vetterlein, president of the board, who presided. There were representatives present from all the larger leaf tobacco houses of the city.

Soon after the meeting was called to order, resolutions were introduced by E. A. Calves and John R. Young. The resolutions were substantially the same, with the exception of an amendment Mr. Young had added to his. After much discussion the resolutions were passed. They ask for a reduction of the duty on wrapper tobacco to one dollar. The resolutions are to be printed and sent to the Boards of Trade throughout the country, and to cigar manufacturers of Pennsylvania, Tampa and Key West.

Although a number of cigar manufacturers had been requested to take part in the proceedings, there were only a few present. This was said to be due more to the fact that the time selected was inopportune for them, than to any disinclination to attend.

John R. Young, in a short address, presented some arguments, which should go far toward laying the true facts of the imported tobacco situation before the proper legislators at Washington. He asserted that the imported wrapper duty as it was now constituted was an injustice to the majority of the interests in the trade, and also to the majority of the manufacturers. He claimed that the acreage of the Connecticut growers was only two and five-eighths per cent. of the acreage of the country and that the majority were suffering from the protection this small percentage was receiving. He also showed by statistics that the production from this district was but thirty per cent. of the entire wrapper and filler crops. These facts will be embodied in the arguments the committee of eight will present before the Ways and Means Committee on January 17.

This committee is to be composed of four leaf tobacco men and four cigar manufacturers. The committee, which Julius Vetterlein, president of the Board, was empowered to appoint, is to date, as follows: John R. Young, Harry Bremer, Charles Hipple, E. A. Calves, leaf tobacco representatives and A. B. Pent, Joseph Vetterlein, William H. Dohan, cigar manufacturers' representatives. Mr. Vetterlein is an ex-officio member of the committee.

The resolution asks for a duty of one dollar per pound on wrapper tobacco and twenty cents a pound on filler. If a bale contains more than twenty-five per cent. of wrappers, it is to be classed with wrapper tobacco. If the bale contains less than twenty-five per cent. of wrappers, the tobacco is to be classed as fillers.

A committee, which is to lay the matter before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, was appointed and included the following: Messrs. Charles Fox, H. Anton Bock, Charles Vogt, and J. W. Merriam, of New York; Matt Wengler of Chicago, and E. A. Calves, of Philadelphia.

Havana Importers' Association Wants $1 Wrapper Duty

AT a meeting of the Havana Tobacco Importers' Association, of New York, on December 19, in the rooms of the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, Maiden Lane, the members took up the subject of a reduction of the duty on tobacco. After much discussion a resolution was passed to be presented at the hearing of the tobacco men in Washington, January 17. The figures finally agreed upon were a compromise among the differing members.

New England Growers to Send Delegation

HARTFORD, CONN., Dec. 24.

AT a meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association, held in the Capitol yesterday morning, it was decided to send a delegation to Washington to represent the association on January 17, when, there is a hearing before the committee on Ways and Means in relation to the duty on tobacco. Congressman-elect Augustine Lonergan said that he would be glad to accompany the members of the association on the trip and introduce them to the congressional committee.

Assurance was given the directors that the duty on tobacco would remain unchanged through a pre-election statement by Congressman O. W. Underwood that the duty on tobacco and whisky would not be disturbed. This statement came to Senator Joseph W. Alsop, of the tobacco growers from Mr. Lonergan who had in turn heard the remark direct from Congressman Underwood.

The delegation to go to Washington will be appointed by the executive committee of the organization. The work of the delegation will be to remind Congressman Underwood of his promise as to the tobacco duty. It was pointed out that it would be advisable that the delegation be representative of the growers and not the dealers.

A committee to prepare suitable resolutions on the death of Thaddeus Graves, of Hatfield, Massachusetts, a former president of the association, was appointed as follows: George Mitchelson, of Bloomfield; Owen E. Case, of Barkhamsted, and Nathaniel Jones, of South Windsor.

Martin Cigar Company Opens Fourth Store

George Martin, of the Martin Cigar Company, Davenport, Iowa, is celebrating the birth of the New Year by the opening of his fourth cigar store. The store, which is on Main Street, is located in the business district of Davenport, and is up to date in every detail. The interior is fitted up with woodwork of solid mahogany and the showcases are of heavy plate glass, with a new composition known as Cararra glass around the bottom, said to surpass marble in its beauty. An electric sign will be an attractive feature of the exterior of the new store. It is the intention of Mr. Martin, who is a progressive, to make this store one of the finest in the city. All the best brands of cigars, cigarettes, etc., will be carried, and if former prosperity is a criterion, then the success of the new venture is assured.

Tampa, the Queen City of Cigardom

Tampa's progress as a cigar manufacturing centre is set forth strikingly by the latest statistics, which show that the production has leaped from 90,408,000 in 1897 to 310,000,000 for 1912. The year just closing shows a gain of nearly 17,000,000 over the year previous.

At first glance, these figures cannot be comprehended. One used to thinking in hundreds or thousands finds it difficult to gauge millions. But every one connected with the cigar trade will gather from them that Tampa's supremacy as a clear Havana cigar producer can no longer be challenged.

Every year since 1897, with the exception of 1910, which was marred by the great strike, has seen an increase in Tampa's output, until today the production is valued in round figures at $26,350,000. So it will be seen that this busy Florida city's rise has not been of the mushroom type, but a steady, consistent and virile development.

There are many reasons for Tampa's leadership. The climate is ideal for the handling and preservation of tobaccos; its proximity to Cuba facilitates the shipment of supplies from the parent isle of cigardom; the workmen are chiefly expert Cubans or their descendants, who know the art of rolling and blending better than any other class; the city lends itself admirably to factory sites and provides good homes to its workers; but climate or location, workmen or facilities would be naught were it not for the spirit of the Tampa manufacturers. To their unflagging progressiveness, their aggressive salesmanship and enterprise, not only in making the best cigars, but in placing them in the world's best markets, is due more than to these natural advantages, the magnificent progress that this city has achieved.

May Tampa continue to thrive and make 1913 its very best record-breaking year.

Price Cutting—The Trade's Worst Enemy

One of the most forceful statements made by President Percival S. Hill in his recent review of the conditions since the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, and one which every wholesaler and retailer should take to heart, was his comment on price-cutting. He said:

"The history of the tobacco business proves that price-cutting is not a desirable weapon to use against competitors. About the only effect of price-cutting is to remove the product from one class and put it into another, even with the result of destroying its value. Thus, persistent price-cutting, even by retailers on various well known five cent cigars, has driven them out of the five cent class and into the three cent class. Just as soon as they reached the three cent class, the five cent smoker abandoned them and they died."

Anyone in the trade who has followed the trend of demand among cigar smokers knows that price-cutting is one of the ways to kill a brand. It not only robs the dealer of his profits, but it robs the smoker of his confidence in the brand. Cigars on which prices are uniformly maintained acquire a prestige and a reputation that goes far towards explaining their success.

One of the most notable examples of a consistent policy of price maintenance is the "Cinco" cigar, manufactured by Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, of Philadelphia, who have a uniform and irrevocable scale of prices to jobbers and retailers, and who, probably more than any other individual cigar manufacturing firm in this country, have minimized the cutting of the retail price.

Numerous other examples of cigars succeeding through the same policy could be quoted, and all would tend to prove the facts which President Hill so potently emphasizes.

New Year Resolutions for 1913

BY THE RETAILER—

—I promise to dress my windows with fresh goods every week, and to keep my showcases glistening, featuring only good goods and cutting out price-cutting. I will make my store a business place, not a loafing place.

BY THE WHOLESALER—

—I will refrain from warring against my competitors by price-cutting methods. I will not allow myself to be loaded up nor in turn load up any retailer with an over-supply of goods. I will make every effort to sell him just as much as he needs and as often as he needs it. By devoting my attention to fewer brands, I will give the manufacturer a square deal and will not be over-greedy in demanding expensive missionary work.

BY THE MANUFACTURER—

—I will encourage my salesmen this year by paving the way for them into live wholesale and retail stores, through advertising my brands in THE TOBACCO WORLD, and allow them expense accounts that will enable them to live on the road as I do at home.

BY "THE TOBACCO WORLD"—

—The editors and owners hereby pledge themselves not only to maintain the high standard set for this publication at its birth, but by hard work, brains and an intelligent expenditure of capital, to make this publication the foremost in the trade, unbiased and unpurchasable.

"Pandora" a New High-Class Cigarette

Being Put on the Market by the Oriental Tobacconist's Association

New to the trade in this country is the "Pandora," hand-made Egyptian cigarette for women, manufactured by the Oriental Tobacconists' Association, 29 Lafayette Street, New York.

The cigarette above referred to, is manufactured solely for women, but can be thoroughly enjoyed by the most fastidious and discriminating smoker. It contains without doubt, the greatest luxury procurable in a cigarette, packed in attractive boxes of tens and hundreds. The cigarette should meet the demand for a ladies' cigarette of this caliber.

The cigarette is manufactured solely with a twenty-two-carat gold embossed mouth-piece. It appears more than likely that it will meet the favor of the American public, as it has throughout foreign cities.

New Plant in New York for Liggett & Myers

The cigarette factories which the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company now have in full operation at Richmond, Va., Durham, N. C., New Orleans, La., and San Francisco, Cal., have been pushed so hard within the past few months that the company has been compelled to open an additional establishment in New York City, located on the corner of Seventh Avenue and Sixteenth Street.

The entire second floor of this factory will be utilized for the offices. The concern moved to the new plant on December 23. It has been said that the enormous sales that the "Fatima" and "Piedmont" cigarettes have been enjoying the past year, by reason of the heavy advertising campaign Liggett & Myers have given them, are the main cause of the opening of the new plant.

Dave Eschmendia to Continue As Agent for "Casteneda"

The agency of the well-known popular Casteneda cigars, which was reported to have passed into the hands of other representatives, is emphatically denied. Dave Eschmendia will continue as the United States representative of the cigars which he has made extraordinarily popular throughout the country. While this report was in the air it caused great consternation, although it was not taken seriously. The name of Casteneda will for some time to come mean Dave-Eschmendia, "that's all."

For the past few months, Mr. Eschmendia has had the pleasure of entertaining his mother in the city, and while it had been her intention to depart long before the holidays, she willingly agreed to remain in New York City for Christmas with her son, which, needless to say, affords great pleasure to all. It was with reluctance and regret to Dave that Mrs. Eschmendia departed for Havana yesterday.

H. Duys & Company's New Year Prospects

Well satisfied with the volume of their year's business, which exceeded 6300 bales of Sumatra and Java tobaccos, H. Duys & Company, the New York Sumatra specialty house, are turning over a new leaf to 1913 in a very optimistic frame of mind.

Their connections both abroad and in this country have proved quite effective in placing before the cigar manufacturers a high-class lot of leaf which has universally given satisfaction.

For the coming year, the house of Duys will be represented on the road by a very able staff of salesmen, including the following, many of whom have been with the house for many years: Howard L. and Harry R. Kinney, who will cover the Western market; A. Levine, Reading, New York State and Canada; Ralph Levine, Philadelphia and Baltimore; Fred L. Menge, in the East; William L. Uhler, Pennsylvania, and B. Stranders, Greater New York.

The "La Mega" Big Seller in Clubs and Cafes

Roman Dobler, the representative of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, of Tampa, Florida, with offices at 54 Broad Street, has just closed one of the best seasons he ever experienced on the cigars of this firm. Sales on the "La Mega" have been especially gratifying, particularly so in the high-class hotels, clubs and cafes. The Tampa factory is one of the best known in that hustling cigar city and in the year just closed has made a new record for production.

Pronounced Success on "Columbus" Cigar

Macy & Jenkins, importers of fine wines and Havana cigars, 67 Liberty Street, New York, are very enthusiastic over the results of last year's output of their "Columbus" imported Havana cigars, which met with far greater success than they anticipated in so short a time. Manufactured in nineteen sizes, this cigar has met with the approval of retailers and consumers throughout the country, and there is no doubt that it will still continue to prove a wonderful asset to the many imported brands controlled by Macy & Jenkins.

Large January Output for Melachrino's

While it is generally understood among the trade that stock-taking does not take place until the first of the year, it is surprising to note the orders throughout the country that are pouring in the Melachrino office, at the present time, which follows the prediction that the January output, even estimated at this early date, will be one of the best in the history of this house.

Tobacco Dividends Fall Since Dissolution Decree

NEW YORK, December 27.

COMPARISON of the dividends, declared in the past few days by the companies which have been formed since the disintegration of the American Tobacco Company with the sums distributed by the parent company before its holdings were broken up, shows that the new dividends fall far below the previous ones.

Taking all the dividends declared by the former subsidiaries, it was found that less than $10,000,000 will be distributed of the 1912 earnings, compared with $16,072,960 in 1910, when the rate of dividend was 40 per cent. However, in making these calculations, it must be taken into consideration that many of the companies resulting from the disintegration were really not under way until the last half of this year, and some began even later. The prospect is that the earnings for 1913 will be increased rather than diminished.

The tobacco dissolution did not go into effect until February 28th of this year, and some companies did not begin dividends for several months. Three made distributions in March, four in April, four in June, nine in July, four in September, seven in October, and twelve in December. The Corporation of United Cigar Stores paid dividends in the first three quarters, and then suspended them because of the reorganization, since which it has paid only on the new preferred stock. The Cigar Stores Company, too, is bent on accumulating a larger capital.

The following table shows the par value of the stocks held by the American Tobacco Company and distributed to its shareholders, the total dividends declared, and the aggregate distributions on the stocks formerly held by the trust. These amount to $6,732,655. To them must be added the $3,013,680 distributed by the American itself, making a total of $9,746,335.

Company.	Par Value of Stocks Distributed.	Rate.	Distribution.
Am. Snuff Com.	$7,590,800	14½	$1,100,666
Am. Snuff Pref.	2,376,400	6	142,584
G. W. Helme Com.	2,760,200	7½	207,015
Weyman-Brut. Com.	2,760,200	7½	207,015
MacA. & F. Com.	2,112,900	10	211,290
J. S. Young Com.	704,300	10	70,430
Conley Foil	495,000	20	99,000
Johnston T. F. & M.	180,000	12	21,600
R. J. Reynolds	5,000,000	10	500,000
United Cigar Stores	6,000,000	6	360,000
Porto Rican-Am.	1,323,600	16	211,776
British-American	11,080,858	32½	3,601,279
Total Dividends on Dist. Stocks			$6,732,655
American Tobacco Common, Dividends			3,013,680
Total			$9,746,335

Besides these the Porto Rico-American Tobacco Company has paid a scrip dividend of 20 per cent., which bears interest at 6 per cent., and is payable in three years in cash or stock, at the option of the company. Its present cash value is, therefore, indeterminable.

The P. Lorillard Company has paid dividends of 10 per cent., amounting to $1,515,560, on its common stock. Liggett & Myers common has paid this month a dividend of 3 per cent., or $644,892. These are not included in the table, for the reason that the stock of these two companies was not distributed to the American shareholders, but was paid for by them in cash at par at an expense of $36,651,925.

As against this the American Tobacco Company made a special distribution of cash in September at the rate of 20 per cent. on its stock. This amounted to $8,048,480. This cannot be included among the dividends because it represented a distribution of property, just as the distribution of stock did.

The American Tobacco Company also distributed in September, not under the decree, but voluntarily, the 12,000 shares of the American Machine and Foundry Company.

Taking the dividends as given in the table and adding 2 per cent. for four months' interest on the cash distribution of $8,048,480 gives a total of $9,907,305, which may fairly be compared with dividends of the American in past years.

These dividends ran as follows: 1905, 20 per cent.; 1906, 22½ per cent.; 1907, 25 per cent.; 1908, 32½ per cent.; 1909, 35 per cent.; 1910, 40 per cent., and 1911, 20 per cent. The last was for six months, after which dividends were suspended because of the disintegration process. The 1910 dividends, therefore, amounted to $16,072,960, as against less than $10,000,000 for all the property this year.

Fernando Rodriguez Leaves for Tampa

Mr. Fernando Rodriguez, of the firm of Salvador Rodriguez, manufacturers of the "Charles the Great" cigar, Tampa, Florida, departed for that city, on December 25, on his annual trip, to remain a week or ten days at the beginning of the new year.

It is learned that the early trip this season was essential by reason of the increased business during the past year, especially in the East and particularly in New York City, where the demand for this cigar has been most phenomenal. It is difficult to predict the results for the ensuing year, as to the output of the "Charles the Great" factory, but judging from the increase in this past year's output, there will be tall hustling in Tampa, to meet the demand of the trade for the cigar.

"Allie" Sylvester Gives Dinner to Department Heads

A dinner, out of the ordinary, has been planned in the Waldorf-Astoria on Monday evening, December 30, by "Allie" Sylvester, the well-known president of the American Cigar Company, for the heads of the departments of the concern. From all reports the banquet will be one to be talked about for some time. Vaudeville talent has been engaged for the occasion and that the diners will have one fine time goes without saying. The preparations that have already been made prophesy great things.

Trade Receives Gifts From H. Upmann

H. Upmann, manufacturers of the celebrated "H. Upmann" Havana cigars, through their New York agent, Charles Landau, are distributing throughout their trade in New York City, a beautiful and appropriate gift of a gold pencil. This is not an advertising medium for obtaining new business, but simply an expression of the thoughtfulness of this house.

Frank P. Lewis, a well-known cigar manufacturer of Peoria, Illinois, died at his residence, in that city, on December 24, after a short illness. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Mr. Lewis was one of the best known of the Middle West cigar manufacturers. He was located at 326 Main Street, Peoria, and in the last year is reported to have had an output of over ten million cigars, employing several hundred hands. He has many other business interests, being a director and stockholder in several banks.

New Representative for T. & O. in Chicago

William Simpson Succeeds Walter H. Clark—Traveling Men Home for Holidays

WILLIAM SIMPSON, for thirty years with the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, has been appointed to represent the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company in Chicago and part of the Middle West, formerly covered by Walter H. Clark, recently resigned. Mr. Simpson is well known throughout the Middle West and will prove a valuable acquisition to the selling force.

Mr. Clark, who has represented Theobald & Oppenheimer for five years in Chicago, will become associated with the H. D. Lee Mercantile Company, of Salina, Kansas, becoming the manager of the cigar department. The firm is a large drug and cigar jobbing concern.

Preparations have been made for the annual banquet of the travelers of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, which will be held in the Hotel Majestic, on January 1. Among the representatives who have arrived at local headquarters within the past week were: Joseph M. Langfield, from the South; W. E. Gumpert, Southeastern representative; and Charles H. Knubel, who covers the Pacific Coast.

"Havana Ribbon" Boosters Report at Headquarters

BAYUK BROTHERS COMPANY report closing their most successful year on "Havana Ribbons," the figures at the present time being largely in excess of the expected increase. All of the out-of-town representatives are at the Philadelphia headquarters and will remain guests of the firm until they start for their respective territories after January 1.

Lack of sufficient production to meet the increased business has been the most unpleasant feature of 1912, but the necessary arrangements are being concluded to increase the output starting January 1. The firm, however, guarantees their distributors that all orders on "Havana Ribbons" will be shipped with a fair degree of promptness.

Baum-Jaffe to Increase Their Sales Force

The Baum-Jaffe Company, who have at present a sales force of ten live men representing them in Philadelphia and out-of-town territory, expect to put three additional salesmen on early in January, to extend the sale of their "A. J. Cassatt" and "Coiner" brands, throughout the country. The success which has marked their efforts in the Philadelphia market, has encouraged them to introduce this brand on a national basis.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

THE Christmas holiday week finds the cigar and tobacco dealers congratulating themselves on a most prosperous season. Stocks are pretty well depleted. The imported cigars more than held their own this Christmas, a number of the dealers stating that the last few days before the holiday kept many of them wrapping special shippings. Saturday was the best day, the sales on Monday and Tuesday being smaller in volume.

The wholesale trade was all that could be desired. Orders on some of the better known cigars came in thick and fast, the last minute hurry calls necessitating working overtime. On several highly-advertised cigars, dealers around town said they were unable to get all they wished.

The leaf market is at a standstill. Sales are going on in a fashion, but manufacturers show no inclination to do any purchasing until after stock-taking, which is going along merrily at a number of the factories. The travelers for these firms are now at headquarters, preparing for the new year. Dinners will be tendered them at hotels and cafes before they again migrate for new fields to conquer.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company to Push "Portuondo" Cigars

The Portuondo factory is now preparing for the new year. The old established house did an excellent holiday trade, the "Portuondo" cigar lending itself well as a fine Christmas gift. This brand will be carried in Southern California by the Klauber-Wangenheim Company, where it has a big sale. This wholesale firm has been one of the large houses in that state since 1869, at which time it was founded. They have a first-class force of salesmen and should materially increase the sales of the "Juan Portuondo" among Western smokers.

Duff Brothers Secure New Building

Duff Brothers, manufacturers of the "Vesper" cigar, at 435 Market Street, are making preparations to move to a new location in the near future. A building at 40 South Third Street has been selected, and will be occupied after the necessary alterations have been made.

B. E. Merwin, manager of the cigar department of John H. Fitch Company, Youngstown, Ohio, was in Philadelphia during Christmas week, conferring with some of the prominent cigar manufacturers.

Sig. C. Mayer & Company Take Another Step Forward

Progressive Manufacturing Concern Moving Into Larger Quarters to Increase Their Capacity

ANOTHER step forward, in unison with the spirit of progress that has been marked from the foundation of the firm, will be taken this week by Sig. C. Mayer & Company, when they will remove into their handsome new factory building at 306-308 Cherry Street, Philadelphia.

This new factory will be the main home of the "El Wadora" and "Rey Oma" cigars and will provide facilities that are unsurpassed in Philadelphia. Work of removing from the old factory at 515-521 Lombard Street, is now in progress and the firm hope to be comfortably settled in their new home by the middle of this month.

The new quarters are located in a modern four-story brick building, which provides twenty-eight thousand square feet of floor space—an increase of twelve thousand over their former quarters. The building is well lighted and ventilated and in every respect ideal for the manufacture of high-class goods.

The first floor will be fitted up as offices and shipping department. In the offices will be installed new quartered oak furniture and fixtures, and the shipping department will be so arranged as to provide quick handling of all shipments. An alleyway leading in from Cherry Street will provide easy egress for teams hauling freight.

The second floor will be used for the stripping and drying of leaf tobacco and the third floor, which is especially well lighted and arranged, will provide seating room for three hundred and fifty cigarmakers. The fourth floor will be devoted to the packing and banding of cigars. A huge brick humidor equipped with humidity regulators manufactured by the Humidity Regulation Company, of Traverse City, Michigan, will keep the cigars in perfect condition as well as giving them an opportunity of seasoning well before shipment.

The basement, which has a cement floor, will be used for the storage of leaf tobacco and for the curing and sweating of it.

The building is equipped with two speedy elevators, a passenger elevator being in front and one for freight in the rear.

In their new quarters, the firm will have a factory that is modern in every particular and laid out according to the advanced ideas of experts.

The firm of Sig. C. Mayer was founded in 1905 and their first factory was at 417 Locust Street. Within three years their business had grown to such an extent that they were compelled to remove to larger quarters at 515-521 Lombard Street, which up to the present time has been the main factory, although they have factories in a number of other nearby towns, adjoining Philadelphia.

The officers of the firm are Sig. C. Mayer, president; George I. Watson, treasurer, and Henry Doerr, secretary. Mr. Mayer, personally, is well known to the cigar trade throughout the country, having been on the road for many years, representing other factories prior to starting in business for himself. It was due largely to his personal efforts that the "El Wadora" has achieved such remarkable success. He is a natural salesman of persuasive personality and aggressiveness which have opened the doors of many stores to him. He has a very able lieutenant in Mr. Watson, who looks after the details of the office management.

Increases in Every Line With Exception of Little Cigars, Which Declined 1,108,800 Over November of 1911

THE production of cigars, cigarettes, snuff and tobacco of the country for the month of November, as compiled from the Internal Revenue receipts, show gains in all lines over the same period last year, with the exception of little cigars. They have shown a consistent decline. The increases are most noticeable on cigarettes and manufactured tobacco. The figures follow:

Little Cigars	83,476,000	82,367,200	*1,108,800
Cigarettes at $3.60	1,416,858	1,487,350	70,492
Cigarettes	908,306,664	1,168,194,240	259,887,576
Snuff, lbs.,	2,195,500	2,520,810	325,310
Tobacco, manufactured, lbs.	31,369,275	38,368,348	6,999,073

The total output for the first eleven months of the year, as compared with the same period in 1911, shows increases in everything but little cigars. They are as follows:

Little Cigars	1,169,350,745	983,932,786
Cigarettes at $3.60	17,455,741	17,735,816
Cigarettes	9,062,057,978	12,207,375,026
Manufactured Tobacco, lbs.	361,020,159	404,349,579

Quaker City Items

The T. H. Hart Company report the year just closed as having been the best by far that they have ever experienced. Sales on the "Five of Harts" and "Heartsease" had been increasing all year and although preparations had been made for a good holiday trade the orders on these brands kept the makers working to the limit.

Colonel Robinson, manager of the cigar department of Thomas Martindale & Company, was most enthusiastic when asked about sales for the past week. The "Regensberg" cigars were among his big sellers. "Cuesta-Reys" increased also, the box trade on these brands being excellent.

"Jack" Fowler, the aggressive representative of the United States Tobacco Company, Richmond, Virginia, with headquarters in Philadelphia, has been ill at his home in Philadelphia during the past ten days, suffering from an attack of grippe. He expects to be "on the job" again this week, boosting Hugh Campbell's "Shag."

The "Counsellor," one of the sterling nickel cigars coming out of this market, and made by Allen R. Cressman's Sons, will be pushed harder than ever during the following year. The increase in sales over those of 1911 were excellent, showing a steady growth. When questioned as to any new plans, they stated that the same methods as had been used heretofore in popularizing this brand would prevail in 1913, the utmost value consistent with the price.

Godfrey S. Mahn, Philadelphia and New York importer and retailer, distributed among his friends in the trade an attractive leather cigar case gotten up in the form of an envelope, bearing the name and address of the recipient written in ink across the face. The cases were made of the best grade of leather and the recipients will find that they will last out the year.

all that's new with JOBBERS and DISTRIBUTORS

W. A. Hall Secures Desirable Location

W. A. HALL, the well-known cigar and tobacco wholesaler, of Washington, D. C., has leased a building at Pennsylvania Avenue and Seventh Street, that city, where he will shortly move his jobbing business. Mr. Hall is distributer for the "Hall Star" cigar, a brand made for him by the C. H. Plitt Cigar Company, of York, Pennsylvania. Mr. Hall has made this brand his five-cent leader, and does an enormous trade on it.

The new location he has secured is considered one of the best in Washington, it being at the intersection of three streets, the building itself having windows on three streets. The retail stand of Mr. Hall at 601 Pennsylvania Avenue, will be continued.

Mr. Hall is also distributer in Washington for the "Twentieth Century" cigar, a small Havana filled, Sumatra wrapped, nickel brand, made by the C. H. Plitt Cigar Company.

Midway Tobacco Company, of Shenandoah, Pa., Fails

THE Midway Tobacco Company of Shenandoah, Pennsylvania, one of the best known cigar and tobacco jobbing houses in that section of the state, has been reported to be in financial difficulties. The proprietor of the concern is Louis Friedberg. It is not yet known what the liabilities are, but it has been stated by one of the largest creditors, a cigar manufacturing firm of Philadelphia, that they will possibly be $25,000.

The creditors of the firm include some of the largest cigar manufacturers of Philadelphia, the latest reports including about six of them. In addition to the manufacturers, the larger jobbing houses of Philadelphia will lose by the failure.

Myer Bloom, New York Jobber, Fails

Myer Bloom, a New York cigar and tobacco wholesaler, filed a petition in bankruptcy recently. His liabilities were placed at $13,000, with assets of $3500. Upon an inventory of the assets, it was ascertained by creditors that they would probably amount to $6000. After a meeting of the creditors, it was found that he would probably be able to pay thirty cents on the dollar.

Pushing "44" in New Jersey

The Morristown Tobacco Company, of Morristown, New Jersey, a well-known wholesale house in that part of the state, reports having done an enormous business the past year on the "44" cigar, made by the 44 Cigar Company, of Philadelphia. They are the sole distributers of this brand, and have been pushing it hard, with the assistance of J. P. Linn, the representative of the factory.

Alfred Ehrman, of the San Francisco wholesale house of Ehrman Brothers & Company, sailed a short time ago for Manila, where he will inspect a number of cigar and cigarette factories. Ehrman Brothers & Company are now jobbing the "Alejandria" Manila cigar.

San Francisco Jobbers Plan For 1913

SAN FRANCISCO, December 20.

WHOLESALE business for the year is now practically at an end, except with city dealers, who can get anything they need at short notice, and a few orders rushed in by country dealers for lines on which they are short. Most of the large houses have called in their traveling men for the holidays, and for the next two weeks most of the real work done by the wholesalers will be along the line of plans for next year's campaign. Retail business has been fairly rushing this week, and while there is still plenty of holiday stock left in most lines, the dealers expect to be pretty well cleaned out by Christmas. The box trade is of course a very strong feature at present, and at the same time the demand for pipes, cigar lighters, etc., has grown to large proportions. It is possible that some of this stock may be left over, as the displays made all over town indicate that a very large number of dealers have bought quite largely in these lines, but great reliance is placed in the increased popularity of pipe smoking. Country dealers have been feeling a little dubious over the outlook, owing to lack of rain, but a good shower the first of the week relieved the situation in the farming districts.

Supplies of Manila cigars are again fairly plentiful and, in fact, the local dealers in these goods have suffered comparatively little shortage. A large lot arrived recently on the steamer "Tenyo Maru," and it is expected that another heavy shipment will come on the "Siberia" about the end of the month.

Marx & Newman Take Over Louis S. Cohn Company

With a company capitalized at $200,000, Lee Marx and Jesse Newman, of Spokane, Wash., have taken over the business of Louis S. Cohn Company, which has a chain of wholesale and retail cigar stores in the principal cities of Montana. Marx and Newman, the principals in the concern, have been identified with trade in Spokane. Mr. Marx was manager of the M. A. Gunst & Company branch house in the city until June, 1912, at which time Mr. Newman, who was assistant manager, took his place. The concern intends to enter the field anew and has most pretentious plans. During 1913, they intend to establish a chain of stores in Washington and Idaho. They expect to have at least twelve of them.

A new wholesale and retail liquor store has been opened in Salt Lake City, Utah, by D. F. Doran & Company. The new store is said to be one of the finest of its kind in that section of the West, and is located at 215 South Main Street.

Morris Burke, one of the best known cigar and stogie brokers in the southern end of California, his headquarters being in Los Angeles, will represent the Little Pet Stogie Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., for their lines of stogies. This concern is one of the largest in Wheeling, and makes "Little Pet Havanas," "Little Pet Seeds," "Pet Havanas" and "Jumbos."

Newsy Jobbing Notes

Tillman & Bendel, the San Francisco distributers for the "Sanchez y Haya" cigar, report having done an excellent Christmas trade on this well-known Tampa brand.

A. S. Goodrich & Company, wholesalers of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, have taken on the "Sight Draft" cigar of W. K. Gresh & Sons, of Norristown, and will push it heavily in that state. They distribute the "San Felice" and "Cinco" cigars in that territory.

The Louis Klein Cigar Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, recently closed a deal with Boltz-Clymer & Company, whereby they will distribute the "El Palencia" cigar in that city.

The Southern Cigar Company, of New Orleans, reports having done an excellent jobbing and retail trade the past few months. They distribute in that section the "El Verso" and "San Felice" cigars of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, Ohio. The box trade this year was better than last season.

The Robertson Cigar Company, of Omaha, Nebraska, which went into the hands of a receiver a short time ago, has re-opened for business at 1613 Farnam Street, that city.

The holiday trade this year has been very good for the Singer Cigar Company, of Jersey City. This wholesale concern handles the "Lovera," "Charter," "Blandura" and "El Dallo" cigars.

The retail and wholesale house of English Brothers, of Rochester, New York, have sold their business in that city. They were the Rochester distributers for the "Cinco" cigar, Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, and for a number of smaller brands.

A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed a short time ago by W. S. Hillyer, a wholesale cigar dealer, doing business at 811 East Douglas Avenue, Wichita, Kansas. His unsecured liabilities are reported as $3079.77, with assets totaling $785.02.

M. O'Conner & Company, Indianapolis wholesale grocers, are re-entering the cigar business in that city with several live lines. They have been handling cigars, but had not pushed them hard. They distribute the "Pace Maker" cigar, made by T. J. Dunn & Company, New York, in the southern part of the state.

The wholesale house of Sig. Sichel & Company, of Portland, Oregon, report having done an enormous business on the "Mi Hogar" cigars of E. P. Cordero & Company, New York. They were compelled to re-order for the holiday trade, in addition to their regular shipments. The Havana cigar trade is also especially heavy this year for this concern, as well as trade on the Manila cigars.

The Superior Cigar Company, of Buffalo, New York, did a heavy holiday distribution on the "Pastora" cigar, made by the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, and the "Flor de Valentine," put out by the well-known Philadelphia house of A. S. Valentine & Son.

It is reported that Niles & Moser, wholesale and retail cigar dealers of Kansas City, will open a branch store at Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, about February 1.

Boston Price Cutters Failed to Corner Trade—Holiday Business of Chain Drug Stores Falls Short of Expectations— Other News of Interest

THE tobacco fraternity is today good natured, happy, though tired and contented. This feeling is backed by real "mazuma," as all the dealers have done a record breaking business.

In the cigar end of the business many choice goods were sold and there were just as many boxes of fifty as there were of twenty-five.

In fact, the favorite gifts purchased this year fell to the lot of cigars and pipes, and this was a very pleasant surprise.

Another feature of this Christmas business was a very small demand for Boston's so called popular brands. This in spite of liberal advertising done by the two big chain drug stores, "Ryker-Jaynes and Liggetts," for two weeks previous to Christmas reinforced by big window displays in their stores located in Boston's busiest thoroughfares. These concerns were advertising these goods at about cost price, and yet in spite of it all their business did not come up to expectations. This is attributed to their cut price propensities, which are bound to cheapen the article in the public mind as a gift.

These conditions ought to furnish some food for thought to our local manufacturers, who are undoubtedly making as good a quality cigar as could be made, a fact which no one disputes.

All kinds of tobaccos in fancy glass jars were ready sellers during the Christmas rush, and a few popular brands were sold out several days previous to the finale, without an opportunity of replacing stock.

P. Lorillard & Company are now packing what they call retailers' bonds with several brands of plug tobacco, cut plugs and fine cut. These bonds are redeemable for valuable gifts anywhere from a tobacco cutter to a quarter karat diamond ring. The brands that they are packed with are: "Defiance," "Good Smoke," "Climax," "Blot," "Friendship," "Brotherhood," "Black and Tan" and "All Gold," "Sub Rosa," little cigars.

Ed. M. Davis, a New England representative of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, Philadelphia makers of the "Girard" cigar, reports a heavy shortage of goods for the holiday trade. The demand for these goods was so great that it was next to impossible to fill all the orders in their entirety.

Fred M. Goodwich, member of House of Representatives from Everett, Massachusetts, has the first honor of introducing freakish legislature this year in a bill offered to the House. It reads as follows:

"Any man who offers tobacco in any of its forms to women or girls shall be fined $50."

This bill is evidently intended right but it is not introduced outright, as you notice it says women or girls, which would mean mother, wife, sister, sweetheart, or just a plain cousin if you will. All the legal authorities interviewed on this bill doubt its constitutionality.

Julius Barden, the representative of the Surbrug Company, left for the Adirondacks for an indefinite stay to recuperate. All his friends wish him a speedy recovery, and hope to see him back very shortly plugging away at the famous "Milo" cigarettes, which are his hobby.

Bernard Lett, who is distributor for the Sanchez & Haya brand of clear Havana cigars, is unable to fill orders, although his supply was great the past month.

Another great shortage is the "Flor de Mendel" brand in several popular sizes. This brand has come to the front so fast that it is now well known by all the jobbers and dealers.

The first meeting of the creditors of Albertis B. Smith, head of the cigar manufacturing firm of A. B. Smith & Company, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, which was recently adjudicated bankrupt, will be held in East Cambridge, Massachusetts, on December 27. It has been said that Mr. Smith will make an offer of fifteen per cent. to his creditors.

McGreenery & Manning, a large Boston jobbing house, who are distributors of the "El Roi Tan" cigar, are oversold on all the sizes of this popular brand. They report an enormous business during the holidays, the pipe trade being especially good.

Burley Tobacco Society Wins Suit

Brought Against Grower for Breach of Contract—Sold His Leaf to Another Concern

CONTRACTS of the Burley tobacco pool to fix the price of that tobacco are valid and binding on the farmer who signs them, and he must pay the amount stated in the contract as damages if he violates the agreement, according to the decision of the appellate court in Indianapolis recently.

The decision is made in the suit of the Burley Tobacco Company for $480 damages because Harry Gillaspy, a grower, sold his 1909 crop of tobacco to a buyer after having made a contract with the Burley Society. The contract provided that the society should be the sole agents for the purpose of "receiving, commingling, handling, warehousing, inspecting, insuring, grading, financing and selling all of said tobacco in such manner and on such terms as said Burley Tobacco Society may prescribe, pursuant to its charter and by-laws." The contract provided further that if Gillaspy sold to another, he should pay twenty per cent. of the value of the crop to the Burley Society as damages. After raising his 1909 crop Gillaspy sold it to a buyer, whereupon the Burley Society sued him.

In rendering his decision, the court stated that until it is proven otherwise, it is presumed that the purpose of the society is merely to obtain a fair price for the tobacco, and not to create a monopolistic and fictitious price. It said that its formation was intended as a defense against the aggression of the monopoly of large manufacturing concerns.

Tobacco Growing in Kansas Increasing

Although the leaf tobacco business in Kansas is comparatively young, 44,000 pounds were sold at the opening day of the market at Weston, Missouri, several weeks ago. Leavenworth County produced about 60,000 pounds, which will soon be stripped and in shape for market. There has been a decided growth in the industry within the past three years in Kansas. There are ten growers now to one three years ago.

No Change in Freight Rates of Leaf Tobacco

Announced That Classification Committee in New York Will Not Make Increase

AS a result of the protest and brief submitted several months ago to the official freight classification committee by the Connecticut Leaf Tobacco Association in opposition to the proposed change in the rate for shipping tobacco, L. B. Haas, of Hartford, Conn., president of the association, has received notification from R. N. Collier, chairman of the committee, that there will be no change in the ratings.

Shortly before the October meeting of the association, it was announced by the official classification committee of the railroads with offices in New York, that it was considering a change in the rating affecting shipments of leaf tobacco, and that tobacco would be taken from the fourth-class rate and placed in the first-class. As this meant an increase in the rate of about one hundred per cent., a protest, accompanied by a supporting brief, was forwarded to Mr. Collier by the Connecticut association. The decision of the committee was announced by Mr. Collier at the December meeting of the Connecticut Leaf Tobacco Association at the Allyn House, Hartford, on the evening of December 19. This was the regular monthly meeting, and about twenty-five members were in attendance.

N. D. Sullivan Company, New North Carolina Firm

The N. D. Sullivan Company, tobacco manufacturers at Walkerstown, North Carolina, applied for a charter recently to do business with a capital of $250,000. The new corporation is to take over the well-known tobacco plant which was conducted for many years by the late N. D. Sullivan and his two sons-in-law, W. N. Poindexter and Philip Booe. Mr. C. D. Ogburn, who is a member of the firm of Ogburn, Hill & Company, tobacco manufacturers, which sold out recently, has purchased an interest in the concern and will be actively engaged in its management.

HOW JACK MERRIAM HITS THE MARK

The scene is laid at the Blooming Grove Hunting and Fishing Club, Pike County, Pa., and proves that Mr. Merriam can hit the mark in sport as well as he does in business.

Balance of Wisconsin Crop Being Slowly Absorbed

Tobacco Coming in Warehouses Is Sound Crop, But Is Not as Heavy as Was First Expected

(From the Edgerton Reporter, December 27.)

THE taking over of the unsold fraction of last season's tobacco crop is quietly going on in most of the growing sections and something like earlier prices have been paid for the better selections, though the bulk of the sales are nearer stemming figures.

Deliveries have been coming in quite freely at receiving points during the week. While the tobacco is generally in fine packing condition, the crop is not weighing out as heavily as was expected.

The receiving of the new crop has proceeded far enough to gain a pretty fair indication of the condition in which the tobacco is coming to the packing houses this season. A sounder crop has not been delivered to the packers in some years past, but it is not weighing out as heavy as most growers expected, partly because the tobacco was taken down in a rather light case and contains no excess moisture that so often is the bane of some crops. Then the leaf is thin in texture and while the bundles are bulky, the scales do not show as large a yield per acre as growers expected. A yield of 1500 pounds is probably exceptional and the most of the early portion of the crop will hardly exceed 1200 pounds to the acre. The tobacco runs uncommonly bright in colors and is coming to the warehouses in such exceptionally fine condition that very little trouble need be expected in delivery if the crops are properly stripped and fillers and trash eliminated. So far the packers have very little fault to find with their purchases as they are received. All indications point to the 1912 tobacco as the best binder crop the state has produced in some years.

Booker Tobacco Company Denies Being Purchased

Reports from Lynchburg, Virginia, state that the newly-organized Tobacco Products Corporation, incorporated under a Virginia charter, with $50,000,000 capital, has taken over the Booker Tobacco Company, of Lynchburg. According to this dispatch, the Tobacco Products Corporation will take possession the first of the year. Replies from several sources give it that this is merely a rumor. The Booker Tobacco Company denies the deal.

Newsy Trade Jottings

The Sullivan & Shannon Cigar Company, which opened up at 4137 South Halstead Street, Chicago, several months ago, is doing a nice business in that city on its private brands. Mr. Sullivan, of this firm, is well known in Chicago, having been cigar manager for Duncan & Curtin.

The cigar manufacturing firm of Mendez & Gomez, of Guncos, Porto Rico, has been reorganized with the following members: Manuel Cobas, C. Mendez and Claudio Calenti. The latter will have charge of the manufacturing end of the business, with headquarters at the main factory in Guncos.

The Mooney-Mueller Drug Company, of Indianapolis, report an excellent increase in sales on the "Y-B" and "Spana-Cuba" cigars, manufactured by Yocum Brothers, of Reading. They state that they would have been able to sell more than they did the last month had they been able to secure the cigars as fast as needed.

Inquiry Not Explicit Enough

MANCHESTER, N. H., December 17.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Could you tell me if the history of the Balkan War is used as an advertisement for cigarettes, or if the pictures of the kings, heroes or generals are registered to be used as silk novelties?

Yours truly,
VASEL TJANTJARES.

We do not quite understand your query as to the history of the Balkan War. If you desire any names of kings or generals participating in the Balkan War registered, submit the names. We cannot tell to what persons you refer.

Taking a Fling at "United"

NEW YORK, December 22.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD.

I notice in your December 15th issue that the United Cigar Stores are going to have medical inspection in their stores. That applicants for positions as clerks must pass a physical examination. Also that the clerks in the employ of the company will receive free hospital attention. Why does not someone suggest that the concern use the physicians to cut the prices on the products sold in the United stands? Then we independents will be compelled to go out of business even faster than we are going at the present time?

Very truly yours,
INDEPENDENT DEALER.

Just The Kind of Articles Needed

PHILADELPHIA, December 20.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Allow me to congratulate you on the splendid article appearing in the December 15th issue of the WORLD, written by Mr. Fordyce. Although there are many tobacco dealers nowadays who know just how their businesses stand, there are many more who have failed from the very reasons Mr. Fordyce stated.

I myself know of many more reasons than those given. Articles of this nature are the very things dealers need to keep them up with the times. You can not give us too many of them. They are invaluable for the thinking retailer as well as for the manufacturers and jobbers, who are the losers when the dealer goes into bankruptcy.

Very truly yours,
CIGAR MANUFACTURER.

Locker Loses to A. T. Co.; Other Suits Affected

Brooklyn Jobber Failing in Circuit, Says He Will Fight On—Similar Actions From Others Improbable

ACTING under instructions from Judge Mayer, the jury in the United States Circuit Court, New York, on December 20, rendered a verdict in favor of the defendants in the now famous suit of E. Locker & Company, Brooklyn tobacco jobbers, against the American Tobacco Company and several of its former subsidiaries.

This sudden termination of the suit which has dragged through the Circuit Court for nearly three weeks, will have a far-reaching effect, not only in tobacco circles, but in other industrial lines where points of a similar nature have arisen.

Locker & Company brought their suit for $100,000 damages, which trebled would have meant a $300,000 verdict, on the ground that the American Tobacco Company refused to sell them any of its products and compelled them to buy their goods through its own jobbing house, the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, and as a result of which Locker & Company contended that they were virtually driven out of business.

The plaintiffs presented a great number of witnesses, but the defendants took only a short time to present a rebuttal. James B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Company, went on the stand to deny that he had made threats against jobbers, and Arthur Stern, of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, contradicted the testimony of John A. Locker that he had advised him to get out of business, and he further denied that he, Stern, had refused to sell Locker any goods.

Point by point during the progress of the suit, the allegations of the plaintiff were swept aside by the defendants' attorneys and ruled out by the bench. The last stand taken by the plaintiffs was that they ought to be entitled to at least $25,000, which demand they based on the testimony of Charles Both, an expert accountant, who stated that he had examined the Locker books and had found $500,000 worth of the American Tobacco Company's products sold to the Locker Company without the customary five per cent. discount. The plaintiffs alleged that they were forced in consequence to sell these goods at the price which they paid for them.

As the case drew near the close, Judge Mayer, at the suggestion of Junius Parker, counsel for the defense, excluded the Blackwell-Durham Tobacco Company and the American Snuff Company from the list of co-defendants. DeLancey Nicoll, another attorney for the defense, waived the privilege of summing up, saying that he relied on Judge Mayer's charge to the jury to cover the points. The jury was only out a short time, and after one ballot returned with a verdict acquitting the defense.

Locker Says He'll Fight On.

The plaintiffs, it is announced, will not accept this decision as final. John S. Wise, Jr., counsel for Locker & Company, moved that the verdict be set aside, and then, having his motion denied, asked for permission to appeal. January 23 was set for argument on the last motion.

Asked what he thought of the decision, John A. Locker, who with his wife had brought the suit, said:

"No, this is not the end of the matter by any means. I am going to fight it to a finish. I have got the law and the facts on my side; in fact, all the points are in my favor, and I will carry it to the United States Supreme Court if necessary. There is no reason why the court should render such a decision, and that is perfectly clear to those who are acquainted with the facts. I am going to prove that I have a right to do business in the United States if it costs me all I have."

What the American Tobacco Company Says.

Commenting on the decision, an official of the American Tobacco Company said:

"There is little doubt but that if the Locker suit had gone against us, we would have faced many more actions of a similar character. Why, every man who had taken up tobacco jobbing and made a failure of it would have sued us, in effort to get back some of the money he lost in an unsuccessful undertaking, no matter whether or not his dealings with the old American Tobacco Company were in any way responsible for his failure. The suit brought by the Lockers was generally regarded in the trade as the strongest of any under consideration, and the summary manner in which the court dealt with the petition of the plaintiff will make others think twice before bringing action."

Those who followed closely the Locker suit from the opening were not much surprised by the ruling of the District Court. The fact that the great percentage of the supposedly strong arguments of counsel for the plaintiff were ruled out by the court had created the impression before the trial had gotten fairly under way that the court would be unable to do anything else than dismiss the action.

The result renders it improbable that any further suits of a similar character will be brought against the American Tobacco Company in connection with its conduct of business before the formal disintegration of the old combination.

Tampa Cigar Industry Shows Consistent Growth

Increase in Production for Past Year Over 1911 Estimated at More Than 16,500,000 Cigars

TAMPA has aptly been said to be a "pipe dream" realized, says a writer in the "Tampa Daily Times." It today stands confessed as the world's greatest clear Havana cigar manufacturing center. The founding of the city was picturesque. The manufacturer came from Cuba years ago, accompanied by his workmen, most of them reared in the service of the house and many having grown old in it. Thus, in 1886 came Senor V. Martinez Ybor and founded the famous house of V. Martinez Ybor & Company, its output to be known all over the world under the regal title of "El Principe de Gales." He was accompanied by the partners Sanchez and Haya, who founded the house of Sanchez y Haya, which opened the first cigar factory in Ybor City. Its successor still retains the title of Factory No. 1. In the years following many manufacturers, discontented with conditions then extant in the island of Cuba, lifted their eyes to the new town of Tampa and decided to settle there.

The early-comers were V. Martinez Ybor & Company and Sanchez & Haya, as above stated. Following close on their heels came Lozano, Pendas y Alvarez (from which the firms of Lozano & Company and Pendas y Alvarez were formed), Seidenberg, Salvador Rodriguez & Company, Ellinger, Trujillo, and so on, until in the year 1900 there were operating in Tampa factories great and small to the number of 100 employing some 4000 skilled workmen, representing a capital of $3,935,647, and an output of almost $8,000,000 value.

Under the persuasive influence of tobacco importations Tampa has taken its place as the ninth city of the United States as a revenue producer, being excelled only by New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, New Orleans, San Francisco, Baltimore and St. Louis. To show the marvelous growth of collections at Tampa, the following table is appended:

Year.	Amount Collected.	Year.	Amount Collected.
1881	$ 181.49	1896	784,032.02
1882	111.84	1897	638,515.00
1883	142.13	1898	352,336.00
1884	612.59	1899	530,128.00
1885	683.08	1900	871,377.00
1886	2,508.70	1901	865,409.00
1887	4,232.15	1902	1,250,984.00
1888	88,578.11	1903	1,318,531.00
1889	179,815.17	1904	1,501,189.00
1890	254,688.52	1905	1,604,826.00
1891	258,980.08	1906	1,764,647.00
1892	327,097.65	1907	1,687,609.00
1893	308,235.20	1908	1,581,390.00
1894	407,696.65	1909	1,891,836.00

The Tampa cigar found ready recognition in the markets of the world and a name was rapidly established. Factories flocked to Tampa and in 1907 there were in Tampa and vicinity 213 factories with a production of 285,660,300 cigars, representing a value of $19,225,000, employing something over ten thousand workmen who earned a combined salary of $9,325,000.

The range of cigars made is large, both as regards quality, size and price. It is a long hark from the humble "cheroot" with a "picadura" interior and a "pais" wrapper, to a sleek all-Havana regalia, a full six inches in length. For the cheroot the workman is paid about eight dollars per thousand, while for the regalia he is paid forty-two dollars, while selling prices are thirty dollars at one extreme and $150 at the other. There are more expensive, and perhaps cheaper, cigars made even than these, but their production is relatively small and unimportant.

Figures Showing Growth of Industry

	Cigars Shipped.	Internal Revenue.	Customs Receipts.

1912	310,000,000	.....	.....

*Strike year.

It is said that the average price of cigars shipped from Tampa is $85 per thousand. This substantiates the statement that this year's cigar business will total $26,350,000.

The percentage of increase in shipment of cigars from Tampa in the last ten years has been 99 per cent. The increase in shipments year by year is shown by the following figures:

Year.	Shipped.	Year.	Shipped.
1897	90,408,000	1905	220,430,000
1899	111,670,000	1907	285,660,000
1900	147,848,000	1908	236,681,000
1901	147,330,000	1909	267,059,000
1902	141,905,000	1910	201,405,000
1903	167,630,000	1911	293,360,000

The past year—the cigar industry having recouped itself with wonderful vitality from the prolonged strike of 1910-11—will be its banner year. It is estimated that more than 310,000,000 cigars will have been manufactured by the thirty-first of December, the value of which will exceed $20,000,000, and an outlay in wages alone of over $10,000,000.

Tampa cigars are a strictly "hand-made" product, no machines being employed either in cutting or rolling the weed. A visit to a large factory is always scheduled by tourists and a hospitable reception is always assured. Above the busy clatter of knives as the tabaquerors cut the leaf, rises the chatter of conversation, or it may be that a reader is holding forth from his platform, reading in a stentorian voice the news of the day or perhaps a popular novel in Spanish.

Some seven or eight years ago Tampa experienced a renaissance in the method of building cigar factories. Since that time the manufacturers have vied with each other in constructing handsome factories. There being no grimy machinery, no dump heaps, or other of the appurtenances that usually mark a manufacturing plant, and the industry lending itself well to neat surroundings, the buildings are surrounded in most cases by well-kept grounds, with handsome lawns and beautiful foliage.

The class of men, composing the captains of the tobacco industry in Tampa, are clear-thinking, conservative men, public-spirited and responsive to any movement that will aid in promoting the public weal. The future of the industry is bright, and while Tampa is not now as dependent on it as in years gone by, it is still its greatest asset.

Locker Says He'll Fight On.

The plaintiffs, it is announced, will not accept this decision as final. John S. Wise, Jr., counsel for Locker & Company, moved that the verdict be set aside, and then, having his motion denied, asked for permission to appeal. January 23 was set for argument on the last motion.

Asked what he thought of the decision, John A. Locker, who with his wife had brought the suit, said:

"No, this is not the end of the matter by any means. I am going to fight it to a finish. I have got the law and the facts on my side; in fact, all the points are in my favor, and I will carry it to the United States Supreme Court if necessary. There is no reason why the court should render such a decision, and that is perfectly clear to those who are acquainted with the facts. I am going to prove that I have a right to do business in the United States if it costs me all I have."

What the American Tobacco Company Says.

Commenting on the decision, an official of the American Tobacco Company said:

"There is little doubt but that if the Locker suit had gone against us, we would have faced many more actions of a similar character. Why, every man who had taken up tobacco jobbing and made a failure of it would have sued us, in effort to get back some of the money he lost in an unsuccessful undertaking, no matter whether or not his dealings with the old American Tobacco Company were in any way responsible for his failure. The suit brought by the Lockers was generally regarded in the trade as the strongest of any under consideration, and the summary manner in which the court dealt with the petition of the plaintiff will make others think twice before bringing action."

Those who followed closely the Locker suit from the opening were not much surprised by the ruling of the District Court. The fact that the great percentage of the supposedly strong arguments of counsel for the plaintiff were ruled out by the court had created the impression before the trial had gotten fairly under way that the court would be unable to do anything else than dismiss the action.

The result renders it improbable that any further suits of a similar character will be brought against the American Tobacco Company in connection with its conduct of business before the formal disintegration of the old combination.

Increase in Production for Past Year Over 1911 Estimated at More Than 16,500,000 Cigars

TAMPA has aptly been said to be a "pipe dream" realized, says a writer in the "Tampa Daily Times." It today stands confessed as the world's greatest clear Havana cigar manufacturing center. The founding of the city was picturesque. The manufacturer came from Cuba years ago, accompanied by his workmen, most of them reared in the service of the house and many having grown old in it. Thus, in 1886 came Senor V. Martinez Ybor and founded the famous house of V. Martinez Ybor & Company, its output to be known all over the world under the regal title of "El Principe de Gales." He was accompanied by the partners Sanchez and Haya, who founded the house of Sanchez y Haya, which opened the first cigar factory in Ybor City. Its successor still retains the title of Factory No. 1. In the years following many manufacturers, discontented with conditions then extant in the island of Cuba, lifted their eyes to the new town of Tampa and decided to settle there.

The early-comers were V. Martinez Ybor & Company and Sanchez & Haya, as above stated. Following close on their heels came Lozano, Pendas y Alvarez (from which the firms of Lozano & Company and Pendas y Alvarez were formed), Seidenberg, Salvador Rodriguez & Company, Ellinger, Trujillo, and so on, until in the year 1900 there were operating in Tampa factories great and small to the number of 100 employing some 4000 skilled workmen, representing a capital of $3,935,647, and an output of almost $8,000,000 value.

Under the persuasive influence of tobacco importations Tampa has taken its place as the ninth city of the United States as a revenue producer, being excelled only by New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, New Orleans, San Francisco, Baltimore and St. Louis. To show the marvelous growth of collections at Tampa, the following table is appended:

Year.	Amount Collected.	Year.	Amount Collected.
1881	$ 181.49	1896	784,032.02
1882	111.84	1897	638,515.00
1883	142.13	1898	352,336.00
1884	612.59	1899	530,128.00
1885	683.08	1900	871,377.00
1886	2,508.70	1901	865,409.00
1887	4,232.15	1902	1,250,984.00
1888	88,578.11	1903	1,318,531.00
1889	179,815.17	1904	1,501,189.00

The Tampa cigar found ready recognition in the markets of the world and a name was rapidly established. Factories flocked to Tampa and in 1907 there were in Tampa and vicinity 213 factories with a production of 285,660,300 cigars, representing a value of $19,225,000, employing something over ten thousand workmen who earned a combined salary of $9,325,000.

The range of cigars made is large, both as regards quality, size and price. It is a long hark from the humble "cheroot" with a "picadura" interior and a "pais" wrapper, to a sleek all-Havana regalia, a full six inches in length. For the cheroot the workman is paid about eight dollars per thousand, while for the regalia he is paid forty-two dollars, while selling prices are thirty dollars at one extreme and $150 at the other. There are more expensive, and perhaps cheaper, cigars made even than these, but their production is relatively small and unimportant.

It is said that the average price of cigars shipped from Tampa is $85 per thousand. This substantiates the statement that this year's cigar business will total $26,350,000.

The percentage of increase in shipment of cigars from Tampa in the last ten years has been 99 per cent. The increase in shipments year by year is shown by the following figures:

Year.	Shipped.	Year.	Shipped.
1897	90,408,000	1905	220,430,000
1899	111,670,000	1907	285,660,000
1900	147,848,000	1908	236,681,000
1901	147,330,000	1909	267,059,000
1902	141,905,000	1910	201,405,000
1903	167,630,000	1911	293,360,000

The past year—the cigar industry having recouped itself with wonderful vitality from the prolonged strike of 1910-11—will be its banner year. It is estimated that more than 310,000,000 cigars will have been manufactured by the thirty-first of December, the value of which will exceed $20,000,000, and an outlay in wages alone of over $10,000,000.

Tampa cigars are a strictly "hand-made" product, no machines being employed either in cutting or rolling the weed. A visit to a large factory is always scheduled by tourists and a hospitable reception is always assured. Above the busy clatter of knives as the tabaquerors cut the leaf, rises the chatter of conversation, or it may be that a reader is holding forth from his platform, reading in a stentorian voice the news of the day or perhaps a popular novel in Spanish.

Some seven or eight years ago Tampa experienced a renaissance in the method of building cigar factories. Since that time the manufacturers have vied with each other in constructing handsome factories. There being no grimy machinery, no dump heaps, or other of the appurtenances that usually mark a manufacturing plant, and the industry lending itself well to neat surroundings, the buildings are surrounded in most cases by well-kept grounds, with handsome lawns and beautiful foliage.

The class of men, composing the captains of the tobacco industry in Tampa, are clear-thinking, conservative men, public-spirited and responsive to any movement that will aid in promoting the public weal. The future of the industry is bright, and while Tampa is not now as dependent on it as in years gone by, it is still its greatest asset.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24
Altos

AS we include this time three weeks' sales in our fortnight, the totals appear larger than in comparison with the previous report. The major portion of the business, however, had been transacted during the earlier part of this period. At the moment there are only a couple of northern buyers in town, although as some of our commission merchants had orders by cable this has also helped to swell the number of sales. Stocks in first hands have been greatly reduced, and it will be more difficult to make selections after the turn of the year, as some particular grades are no longer to be found. Prices have been fully maintained for all good vegas. There are some old goods to be found yet of the 1911 crop, and which could be purchased upon more reasonable terms, as the holders appear rather anxious to close them out.

Through rains that fell on the 16th all over the principal districts of the tobacco growing region in the Vuelta Abajo, the prospect for a large crop has been wonderfully improved, and as the temprano growth is usually the best part, we may be able to expect a good light quality in this section. In the Partidos the rains have not been as widely experienced, as they were only partially. We have heard that in some plantations perhaps only one-half of the fields were favored, while the remainder are still suffering from the drought. Reports from the Santa Clara province are generally fair. Some vegueros in the Vuelta Abajo that had commenced to plant early during the second half of October will commence cutting during the end of this month already. Another good shower of rain during the month of January would, however, be necessary to further the growth of the later set out plants.

Sales from December 2d to December 21st amounted to 13,535 bales, or, which divided, represented: Vuelta Abajo, 5,076; Partido, 2,195, and Remedios, 6,264 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 7,233; exporters to Europe, 1,011; shippers to South America, 730, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 4,561 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from December 2d to December 21st were: To all ports of the United States, 12,648; to Austria, 4,564; to Bremen and Hamburg, 201; to London, 10; to the Netherlands, 6; to Mexico, 10, and to South America, 1,288; thus making a total of 18,727 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

Vuelta Abajo	537 bales	181,936 bales
Semi Vuelta	13	23,332
Partido	19	22,879
Remedios	2,113	233,862
Yara and Mayari	498	16,020
Total	3,340	478,029

Principal Buyers of Leaf Tobacco That Come and Go:

Arrivals—From New York: S. Ruppin, of S. Ruppin; Howard L. Friend, of Friend & Company; Bernhard Lichtenstein, of Lichtenstein Brothers; José Negroira, of José Negroira; H. Rosenberg, of H. Rosenberg & Company.

Returned—Ramen Aixala, of Aixala & Company; José Suarez, of José Suarez & Company; Manuel Sanchez, of Manuel Sánchez, called "El Bolero," and H. H. Strater, of H. H. Strater.

To Philadelphia: Leopold Loeb.
To Cleveland, Ohio: Frank Strater.
To Tampa: Edgar J. Stachelberg.
To Chicago: Florencio Vega.
To Cincinnati: Charles Haas.

Cigars.

The exports of cigars from the port of Havana, for the first half of December, as per our official custom house returns, were as follows, viz:

From December 1 to December 15, 1911,	8,116,700 cigars
From December 1 to December 15, 1912,	7,543,915
Decrease in 1912	572,785
From January 1 to December 15, 1911,	181,415,917
From January 1 to December 15, 1912,	168,874,136
Decrease in 1912	12,541,781

The above showing is again very unsatisfactory, and again the United States has fallen behind over 700,000 cigars, while England shows a slight increase, as well as Germany. It is indeed very hard to explain why the United States should have fallen behind repeatedly of late, in the face of good crops and apparent prosperity. Our only hope is now that the Democratic party may carry out its pledge of reducing the exorbitant protective duty on cigars, as under a tariff for revenue only the United States Treasury would not suffer one bit in reducing the duty at least one-half. We could surely more than double our exports of cigars to the United States. It appears unjust to allow the Philippine Islands to import 150 million cigars, free of duty, into the United States, when the object is to give them their independence in a stated number of years, or would it be the intention to raise the duties as soon as they were independent? On the other hand, Cuba, which is at present nominally independent, but which by the logic of facts is bound to become a part and parcel of the United States in perhaps a comparatively short space of time, should be treated as an entirely foreign nation, because the paltry twenty per cent. reduction in the duties, according to our reciprocity treaty, has proven to be of no benefit to us whatsoever, as our exports of cigars instead of increasing have decreased of late in a remarkable manner, notwithstanding our excellent crop of leaf tobacco this year.

While there is as usual some slacking up in our factories at the end of the year, it seems, however, that there are enough orders on hand from England, Germany and the South American republics to keep the principal ones fairly busy, while a few state that they are working still with undiminished forces. Not having any particular interesting news to communicate we will only give the names of the busy factories, viz: H. Upmann, Partagas, Romeo y Julieta, Castañeda, Sol, Flor de P. A. Estanillo, La Flor de José Otero and Eden. The principal factories of the Henry Clay & Bock & Company are also very busy. Don Francisco Arango left for a short visit to Tampa, and thence will proceed to New York in order to participate in the complimentary dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria on the 31st inst. to be given by Mr. Allie L. Sylvester, the president of the American Cigar Company, to all the principal heads and employees of this big concern.

The following factories are also doing a satisfactory business, viz: C. E. Bock & Company, La Escepsion, Por Larrañaga and Allenes, Ltd.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Sylvester & Stern were purchasers of 2,500 bales of all kinds of leaf during the last three weeks.

Sobrines de A. Gonzales sold the big quantity of 4,400 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios tobacco to their various customers in the last three weeks.

Mr. John H. Kolb, as we have learned from a good source, had bought during his stay here 2,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios leaf.

Aixala & Company reported sales of 1,500 bales of Partido and Remedios during the last three weeks.

Mr. Edgar J. Stachelberg, only a short while ago elected vice-president of the Sanchez & Haya Company, the oldest factory in Tampa (since 1867), paid us a visit during the last two weeks, and as he is a recognized authority on fine Vuelta Abajo leaf, he had no difficulty in finding quickly what he was looking for. He purchased in all 1,015 bales of Vuelta Abajo, the very best vegas in town, and knowing the situation of our market he did not try to haggle long over the price. Real choice vegas have not been plentiful, and they have commanded fancy figures throughout the season. The Sanchez & Haya Company is to be congratulated upon having secured the services of Mr. Stachelberg, as besides being a thorough judge of leaf tobacco, he is also an experienced manufacturer of long standing, and a merchant as well.

Mr. Wm. B. Houston, of the Henry Clay & Bock & Company, Ltd., arrived here on the 18th inst., and after having posted himself about the new sizes and prices of the cigars, will go to the naval station at Guantanamo, his next post of duty, for three to four months to come. He will try to supply the squadron assembled there this winter with the choice cigars of the Henry Clay & Bock & Company, Ltd.

Mr. S. Ruppin, who arrived here accompanied by Mrs. Ruppin on the 13th inst., left again homeward bound for New York on the 21st inst., after having collected another thousand bales of the best vegas he could find for his customers.

Don José F. Rocha was a seller of 697 bales of all kinds of leaf to the numerous clients of his warehouse.

Messrs. J. F. Berndes & Company purchased 934 bales of tobacco for the Austrian Regie, although their shipments were considerably larger, as they had previously made heavy purchases in the country direct.

Mr. Leslie Pantin was a buyer of 700 bales of different kinds of leaf upon cable orders for account of his customers in the north.

Mr. H. H. Strater returned with Mrs. Strater from his vacation in the United States on the 14th inst. His sales during the past three weeks amounted to 340 bales of his fine Manicaragua escogida and other kinds of Santa Clara leaf.

Mr. Frank Strater, the nephew of Mr. H. H. Strater, left here on the 21st inst., per S. S. Havana, to spend the holidays with his family in Cleveland and also enjoy a two months' vacation after his arduous work in the country last summer.

Other sellers of more or less importance were: José Menendez, 239; M. A. Suarez & Company, 220; Ernest Ellinger & Company, 200; José Suarez & Company, 120, and Gutierrez & Diehl, 100 bales.

Shippers of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the last three weeks above 300 bales were: J. F. Berndes & Company, 5,391 bales; J. Bernheim & Son, 1,960 bales; Sylvester & Stern, 1,028 bales; Mark A. Pollack, 735 bales; Leslie Pantin, 1,637 bales; Diego Montero, 818 bales; Ernest Ellinger & Company, 480 bales; José Suarez & Company, 471 bales; C. E. Bock & Company, 450 bales; Garcia & Company, 534 bales; Manuel Suarez, 427 bales; Hinsdale Smith & Company, 322 bales; Morris Rosenberg & Company, 306 bales; H. Upmann & Company, 305 bales.

Only after we had sent off our last report from here we heard the sad news that our intimate friend, Don Popin Rodriguez, the senior partner of the factory of Romeo y Julieta, had suffered the hard blow of fate to lose his beloved daughter, "Aurora," in the prime of her life. She had been ailing for some time back, but still it was hoped that the soft climate of the south of France (Areachen) might restore her health. Don Popin was deeply attached to her, and while we can do nothing to lessen his grief, it might be, however, a trifling consolation to know that we deeply sympathize with him.

Buckeye Tobacco Warehouse Changes Hands

The Buckeye Tobacco warehouse, which has done business for many years on Front Street, between Vine and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio, has been taken over by the Farmers and Shippers' Company, of that city. The Farmers and Shippers' have for some time stored a small quantity of their tobacco in the Buckeye building.

The warehouse will continue to do business, but only as a branch of the Farmers and Shippers' warehouse. The building will be used mainly as a storehouse, but will also be turned into a sales house if the business at any time should require it.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, December 27.

H. H. HELMICK, western manager of L. Newburger & Brother, at Sioux City, Iowa, came in to headquarters for the holidays. His firm had only the highest praise for the amount of cigar business he has produced in that section.

John Hamburger, manager of the Mid-West Cigar Factory at Omaha, Neb., shook hands with former friends and associates. He is a former Cincinnatian and visited the local factories in search of new ideas.

Former Police Inspector Jim Casey, now "sole agent for the Feld Cigar Company," is pushing "St. Clair Bouquet," "Success" and "Monopole." He says it makes a whole lot of difference whether you are pushing a brand of cigars or pushing the police regulations. At that, he remarked, "flat-footing" has nothing on the daily journeys of a cigar salesman.

Another city official who is selling cigars is Ed Bathgate, who used to be president of the city council. He was formerly a cigar store man on Sixth Street, which was but a side line to the city job. Now all of his attention is given to the selling end.

Jim Hastings, who writes a "scream" column for one of the local daily papers, has turned his humor tobaccoward. For L. Newburger & Brother he has written a small booklet called "Picadura Import." It is a gem of irony and humorous sarcasm. Hastings' humor is copied all over the country and appears under a nom de plume of "Luke McLuke."

Louis Lowenstein, who has a cigar store at 927 Main Street, is searching for a downtown location. His lease on the present location expires in a short while.

Police officials shut down entirely on any and all forms of raffles during the holidays. Some of the stores had purchased expensive smokers' sets and other articles usually disposed of in this way, and now are carrying this as dead stock.

There is quite a competition for the securing of the location of the cigar stand in the new Union Central Life Building (Cincinnati's biggest skyscraper). It is nearing completion, but as yet the cigar store location has not been leased.

It is not often a cigar store man will kick on the crowds that jam the sidewalk in front of his place of business, but Straus Brothers & Company had just cause for indignation last week. A fire, which destroyed the Gibson House facing their store on Walnut Street, forced the use of only one side of the sidewalk. During the whole of the Christmas week the sidewalk was crowded thick with people who came to "rubber," but their attention was all to the wrong location. During the heavy hours of the day the solid pack of humanity even prevented regular customers from getting to the door.

Henry Straus suffered a loss of about $1,500 from smoke and water in the Union Trust Building fire. With the holiday season in full blast the loss hurt doubly.

Ernest DuBrul and Albert DuBrul, of Miller DuBrul & Peters, manufacturers of cigar molds, flavors, etc., left Christmas day for South America. They will be gone for about three months.

Referee Whittaker has filed his record of proceedings in the bankruptcy case of Oscar Gassman & Company, thus closing the matter. The report shows that the total assets realized were $4,820, of which the unsecured creditors received $2,526.77 on claims amounting to over $28,000. Secured claims amounting to $655 were paid in full.

Jobbing houses, factories and the cigar trade generally are in the slump of the year when the trials of inventory are taken up. It is a time honored custom locally to do this work between Christmas and New Year. Most of the factories close down completely. At the J. S. Hill plant workmen were "on the job" five days beyond the usual period for closing down. Wallace Fritz, of Fritz Brothers, the home of the "Marguerite," said that the pressure of orders would preclude any shut down whatever. He said that the inventory would be made this year on "a run and a jump." Various other factories are running short handed and taking inventories that they may know if they "bought an elephant or sold a mouse." Traveling men are rare birds of passage locally. About January 10th is the usual time for them to reappear from holiday haunts.

Only a limited quantity of burley was offered on the local breaks this week, it being custom to close down the auctions over the holidays so that the sales of Monday made the final disposals for the year. Considerable kicking is being done by buyers at the local auction houses. Two days last week the auctions had to be postponed because of the miserable light which allowed only a perfunctory examination. As a result the prices suffered in consequence.

Special interest was given to the examination of the showing of new crop types. There was a good assortment of new tobacco and opening prices ranged $14 per 100 pounds. This was a range of 1½@2 cents advance over last year's prices. That there is a satisfactory trend to the market is shown by the fact that there was only fourteen per cent. of the total offerings rejected.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

York Dealers Do Big Christmas Trade

YORK, December 23.

THE streets are crowded, and from all appearances the cigar trade is coming into its own. Dealers report a brisk demand for all lines of goods, and although the holiday business was slow in coming, it is now here in all its strength. The cigar manufacturers are beginning to slow up to a certain extent. They have been going hard for some time, and the stock taking period is soon upon them. The past year in some respects has been an odd one. The earlier months were slow, in fact trade was stagnant during the summer months. The latter months of the year were more than up to the usual standard, but it is doubtful whether that will make up for the dulness of the earlier periods.

The cigar factory operated in Dallastown by Eugene Gallagher & Brother Company, stogie manufacturers of Columbus, Ohio, has undergone some changes. Hereafter the manufacturing will be done in Columbus. The Dallastown plant it is understood will be operated by E. S. Sechrist. Augustus Gallagher and Son, who ran the Dallastown factory, will be in charge of the establishment in Columbus. It is understood that the business will be run as the Commercial Cigar and Stogie Company.

Charles Swartz, the Dover cigar manufacturer, was badly hampered in his business on December 17, when his employees went out on a strike. Fifteen cigar makers were the first to quit work. Later they were followed by the packers. The strike came at a bad time for Mr. Swartz, as he had a number of urgent Christmas orders to be filled.

Owing to his increased business, W. L. Toomey, the Dover cigar manufacturer, was compelled to secure larger quarters. He is now located in the National Hotel property at that place, where he moved on December 18. The place is being remodeled for his accommodation.

What the Reading Trade is Doing

READING, December 22.

THERE is every indication of a fine holiday business among the cigar dealers. Business was not as brisk a short time ago as the time of year would warrant, but trading now is more brisk than it had been. The cigar manufacturers are most optimistic, and state that the closing months of the year have been all that they could have wished. Taken as a whole, though, the cigar industry for the year has not been above the average. The summer months were unusually dull, and although the holiday rush came with a vengeance, it hardly made up for the stagnant condition of the trade earlier in the year. But this condition was not local, as reports from other sections of the country are to some extent the same.

Harry Gring, a cigar manufacturer of Fritztown, has rented the factory of Harvey Winter in that place for a term of years. He is remodeling the building and will install steam heat. As soon as the necessary alterations have been made Mr. Gring will employ from thirty to fifty men.

At a recent meeting of the creditors of J. W. Newcomet, the cigar manufacturer, he offered them a full settlement of his indebtedness on notes. There is to be a meeting of his creditors tomorrow. The proposed settlement of Mr. Newcomet it is understood will be rejected.

Yocum Brothers state that without doubt 1912 will be the banner year of their business. The strides that the "Y-B" and the "Spana Cuba" have made in the past year have been phenomenal, the factory at all times being worked to the limit. Toward the close of the year, part shipments were a rule with the majority of the distributors.

There were some tasty displays around town this year of holiday cigars. Dealers are beginning to put some thought on the displays. They are beginning to bear fruit. The Breneiser windows were in holiday attire and looked their best. The window of the Moore store was also attractively trimmed.

The "A. J. Cassatt" cigar, manufactured by the Baum-Jaffe Company, of Philadelphia, has been taken on by Breneiser Brothers. This is a high grade piece of goods, and judging by the way it is making headway in other parts of the country it should be one of the big lines of the Reading wholesale house.

Leaf Situation Interests Lancaster County Growers

THE cigar manufacturers are now beginning to breathe easier, since the holiday rush is over. The past year has been a record breaker for many, and 1913 should go it even one better if the plans one hears from all sides mature. The retail trade for the holiday season was very good. The buying started rather late, but the volume of business done was above the average.

Leaf dealers report a continued run on 1909 tobacco. This leaf has been used successfully by a number of cigar manufacturers in conjunction with other tobaccos, and most of it should be out of the hands of the packers in a short time, according to a prominent leaf man. A moderate estimate of the 1909 tobacco on hand places it at 30,000 cases.

There has not been much doing in 1911. Sales have been going on in a desultory fashion, but none of any size.

The buying of the new crop is pretty near to a standstill at present. The larger interests are evidently through. Local packers are in no hurry to buy.

The S. R. Moss Cigar Company's plant was tastefully decorated for the holidays. Greens and Christmas decorations certainly gave the place a festive air. A number of large orders recently received insure the operation of the plant on full time for months to come.

Incorporations and Changes in the Tobacco Trade

The George M. Pierce Company, of Wilmington, Del. Capital stock, $25,000. To carry on a general tobacco business.

Anglo-American Tobacco Company, Port Ewen, N. Y. To deal in tobacco. Capital, $500,000. Incorporators, G. J. Smith, Kingston; J. E. M. Walker, Richmond, Va.; L. T. Michener, Washington, D. C.

Carl Hirsch Company, of Jersey City, N. J. To deal in tobacco. Capital, $100,000. Incorporators, Carl Hirsch, Joseph Seger and Herman Meiners.

The Carmen Tobacco Corporation, Manhattan, N. Y. Deal in tobacco, etc. Capital, $25,000. Incorporators, A. Pariani, F. B. Moody and M. I. Hewitt, of New York City.

Casserly Cigar Company, of Wilmington, Del. Capital, $100,000. Incorporator, F. D. Buck.

S. Bernson Company, Portland, Me. Capital, $10,000. To do a wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco business. Incorporators, Jacob Shapiro and Samuel Bernson.

The Hartford County Tobacco Growers' Association of East Hartford, Conn., has filed a preliminary certificate of dissolution.

Edward J. Heffernan, Inc., of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Liquors and tobaccos. $12,000. Edward J. Heffernan, Josephine F. Heffernan, Samuel J. Tessier, Saratoga Springs.

Washington, D. C., Dealers Plan Reforms

THE cigar and tobacco dealers of Washington, D. C., met in the Chamber of Commerce in that city on December 13, and took up matters looking toward correcting some abuses now existing in the trade there. A. H. Rogers and J. W. Wiley were appointed to investigate news venders selling in the streets and out-of-town peddlers selling in the city without a tax, and the taxing of cigar dealers who do not sell cigarettes and tobacco. These matters are to be taken up with the tax collectors.

Applications for membership were made by Wallace Luchs, William Stevens and J. W. Wiley. The membership is growing nicely, and good progress is being made along the lines the association has been working. The cigar dealers are part of the Retail Merchants' Association of Washington.

"Biggest Season Ever," Say Chicago Dealers

All Prophiecies as to Enormous Christmas Trade Fulfilled—R. B. Cooke Gives Up Store on S. La Salle St.—United Secures Lease Near Union Depot—O. Schrader & Company Take on "Pastora" Cigar

CHICAGO, December 24.

ALL prophecies indulged in and all calculations made concerning a great volume of holiday trade in cigars and smokers' articles in Chicago have been more than fulfilled. The manufacturers have had the biggest season in the history of their trade. The only thing that troubled any of them in connection with the holiday trade was fear of inability in many cases to fill orders. Extra hands were put at work in all departments, especially in the packing and shipping rooms. The days just before Christmas eve were days of liveliness approaching something like excitement.

The jobbers and wholesalers had their hands full, and more than full, in the efforts to fill orders and deliver goods on time. On all hands, it has been agreed that it has been by far the biggest season the distributors ever have known. And that statement covers the whole situation. No long descriptions, no multiplied use of adjectives can add to the impressiveness of the situation and the conditions.

A. T. Co.'s Property Changes Hands.

As a step in connection with the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, the property at the corner of North Clark and Maple Streets has been conveyed by quit claim deed by the company to the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. The property covers land 65 x 150 feet and a large building used for a tobacco warehouse. The consideration named in the deed is nominal.

Bandits, Gamblers and Politics.

One of the most daring and successful operations by a gang of automobile robbers was the holdup in the cigar store and billiard hall of Jacob Goldman, 2002 West Twelfth Street, a few nights ago. The robbers pretended to be detectives and proceeded to charge the proprietor of the place with keeping a gambling resort and all present with being frequenters of such a place. A large sum of money, watches, jewerly, etc., was secured.

"Smoke up and Visit!" is the mandate on the cards of Price's cigar store, 24 East Thirty-first Street, near Wabash Avenue. Mr. Price is one of the veterans in the trade in that part of the city. He endeavors to meet the tastes and requirements of all customers, never insisting he has "something equally good," but laying in a stock of what is wanted.

The Insurance Exchange Building cigar store, Jackson Boulevard and Sherman Street, is in charge of H. A. Daniel, who has been in the cigar business for some time. This store caters to the very best trade and carries a big line of high-priced cigars. It features the Sanchez & Haya, Tampa cigars.

The cigar store in the Steger Building, Jackson Boulevard and Wabash Avenue, is in charge of R. B. Clarke, with J. F. Williams as assistant. This store, which does a big day business, is closed evenings and Sundays. It carries a large line of fine goods. Its big seller is the "P. San Martin y Leon" brand, made in Tampa.

R. B. Cooke has given up his store at 117 South La Salle Street. The mortgagee, who had a mortgage on the fixtures, turned the store over to Mr. Knab, the saloon man in the rear of the store. Mr. Cooke moved what goods he had over to his Kesner Street store.

Abe Cohn is now working for Sam Harris, selling the "Yale Club," a five cent cigar. He has been with Randall & Lanfield, the "Rubini" cigar factory, and so knows the city trade pretty well.

The Real Estate Board store, corner of Randolph and Dearborn Streets, is in charge of L. M. Wremp, with H. Hermsdorfer as assistant Their windows are filled with holiday packages, pipes and smokers' sundries.

It turns out that the report that a cigar store was to be installed in the new Marshall Field Building, on the corner of Washington Street and Wabash Avenue, was a mistake.

H. M. Philbrook, C. A. Becker and I. S. Berkman have incorporated the VanBuren Cigar Company, Chicago; capital, $1000.

The United Cigar Stores Company has secured a lease of the four-story building at 136 Canal Street, opposite the Union Depot, for a term of years beginning May 1, 1913, at $5000 per year.

O. Schrader & Company have been appointed Chicago distributors for the "Pastora" Havana cigars made by the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company. It is anticipated that a large increase in the sales of this brand will result from the appointment.

J. B. Moos and Charles F. Fuller have sold the leasehold in the property 165-9 North Fifth Avenue, adjoining the Briggs House, to Sidney Loeb, proprietor of the hotel. It is understood that Mr. Loeb will proceed with his long-cherished plan of tearing down the old house and erecting a much larger and more modern structure.

Berriman Brothers' brands of cigars are proving immensely popular in the far northwest, especially the "Jose Vila" Havanas. George Tillinghast, who represents the house in the region from Portland, Ore., to Alaska, has come home to compare notes with the central office and lay plans for the coming year.

A new store will be opened by the Martin Cigar Company of Davenport in a few days in the new Putnam office building, that city. The cigar concern also announces having secured a lease on a store in Moline, Ill., where another establishment will be started with the coming of the new year. The two stores will feature the "Jose Vila," "Optimo," "La Venga," "El Beso" and "San Felice" cigars.

A heavy campaign in favor of the "El Palencia" brand of cigars from the factory of Boltz, Clymer & Company, Havana, is about to be started by the Charles Donovan Company. The company's other special brands are favorites and growing in popularity in the West.

So persistent is the rumor that a new retail cigar trade combination is to be started in Chicago that it begins to have many believers. What may be the details of the new movement, if it shall materialize, nobody seems able even to guess. Still the matter is not unlikely to take form in the early days of the New Year.

From the very hour of opening the new Monroe-Renaud Cigar Company's store, 124 West Monroe Street, in the New York Life Insurance Building, proved a popular place and a success from the business viewpoint. Personal friends of Mr. Renaud sympathize with him in the pain he has suffered as a result of an accident in the course of a game in his favorite pastime—handball.

Two most attractive pipe windows constitute a leading feature of the holiday ornamentation of the Best & Russell Company's Fisher Building cigar store, the decorations having been arranged under the direction of Fred. C. Bauer, manager. The leading brands of the Best & Russell Company are featured in the place, including "Sanchez y Haya," "El Salero," "Soneda," "El Serano" and "San Marco."

Representatives of the cigar trade regret to hear that William Goggins—familiarly known as "Bill"—has quit the game and been pensioned and is now enjoying the fruits of his labor on the old farm in Virginia where he was "done raised." His successor is J. W. Ward, a fine young chap, who will do well, but "old Bill" Goggins will never be forgotten. Bill is an active Elk and belongs to Chicago Lodge No. 4.

At the good old age of eighty-five, Jacob Benner, Sr., a pioneer cigar manufacturer of Chicago and father of William and Jacob Benner, of Benner Brothers, has passed to his rest. The funeral services were held at the Benner home, 1258 Winona Avenue; burial in Graceland Cemetery.

New quarters have been secured at 1805 Belknap Street, Superior, Wis., by Stiles & McDonnell, cigar manufacturers, formerly located at 1316 Ogden Avenue. The change in location was made necessary by increased business.

Sig. Meyer, the Western representative of F. Lozano, Son & Company, is back from a visit to the New York office of the house. Mr. Meyer is closing a very successful year's business, having added a large number of important accounts, some of them as far west as the Pacific Coast.

Clarence Hirschhorn, of Clarence Hirschhorn & Company, has gone to New York, accompanied by his wife to join in the celebration of their father's eighty-fourth birthday. They will return the second week in January.

Gilbert D. Smith, who recently severed his connection with Y. Pendas & Alvarez, has entered the employ of the Fromherz, Berlizheimer Company of Chicago.

Seattle

J. H. Cosper Moves to His New Location—Second Stand Near Fry Hotel for F. C. Williams—T. J. Ivers Sells Interest in Cigar Store

SEATTLE, December 26.

THE holidays are over. Jobbers and retailers closed the year with a very satisfactory business. Very few changes were made.

E. C. Hemphill, Burley Tobacco Company, is introducing a new brand of smoking tobacco, "Satisfaction." They are also doing some very extensive advertising on "Day's Work" and "Kismet."

B. F. Grimes, one of the popular First Avenue dealers, is getting a big business on "Sweet Loma Fine Cut" tobacco, a new brand he recently added to his stock.

J. H. Cosper, formerly located at 4871 Rainier Avenue, has moved to his new location, 4906 Rainier Avenue, which is a much more popular place. Mr. Cosper reports a very big business on cigars and cigarettes.

L. A. Sorg, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, recently left for Chicago on business.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company's salesmen, who have headquarters in Seattle, enjoyed their two weeks' vacation very much.

American Tobacco Company's new cigarette, the "Omar," is being well placed among the retail trade. They are also doing some very extensive advertising on the brand.

Cigarette smokers claim they have been saving money the past months on account of the continual sampling by the different companies.

C. J. Davis, proprietor of the Hotel Washington annex cigar stand, has sold out to James E. Davis.

Johns & Bibby, formerly of Seattle, have bought out the Wenatchee Billiard and Pool Parlor, of Wenatchee. They have the best wishes of their many friends for success in their new enterprise.

Geo. C. Burford, of Juneau, Alaska, was a Seattle caller recently. He says business is good in his home town.

E. M. Elam, representative of P. Lorillard Company, spent a few days here recently looking after his brands, principally "Union Leader." "Climax," etc.

Dan Carlton has just returned from a trip to Richmond, Virginia, where he went to visit his parents and also look after business interests. He is now representing the United States Tobacco Company in the states of Washington, Idaho and Oregon. He is again around among the trade talking "Epicure."

A. Caro, of the mouthpiece department of the John Bollman Company, has left for San Francisco for the holidays.

Fred Fitzch, president of the Spokane association, is busy getting out letters advertising the independent dealers. The association expects to send out a series of such letters to business and professional men's lodges, unions, etc., in the near future.

T. J. Ivers has sold his interest in the cigar store at Fourth Avenue and West Lake to Cass Altshuler and L. Hooper. The firm will be known as Cass Altshuler & Company.

C. H. Bascom has succeeded L. L. Phelps at 1937 First Avenue.

Dick Williams, formerly assistant manager of the M. A. Gunst stores in Seattle, has been made manager of the firm's stores in Spokane. He succeeds Jesse Newman, who, with his brother-in-law Lee Marks, bought the Cohn cigar interests at Butte, Montana.

Fred Chase is kept very busy booking orders for the new package of "Luxury" cigarettes. With the three rug insert the cigarette is getting so popular that it is impossible for the jobbers to supply the demand. They are especially popular in hotels and clubs. Mr. Chase is very popular with the trade and as a rule makes a winner of any new brand he puts on the market.

The Christmas rush is over now and business will move along rather slow for the next few weeks. Most every one is taking inventory. Most of the wholesale cigar people report having sold out entirely on all kinds of Christmas packages early this season and were unable to fill all the orders on hand.

During All Saints Church Fair held in the lobby of the Spokane Hotel, Spokane, "Zubelda" cigarettes were very conspicuous.

H. Shaw, representative of the New York Consolidated Card Company, was here this week on his regular trip.

Sam Newman, who for the past several years has made the Interior Alaska territory in the interest of Schwabacher Brothers Company, Incorporated, has gone into business for himself, having bought the Family Liquor House at 111 Yesler Way, formerly run by D. Himelhoch. His many friends wish him success in his new business.

F. C. Williams, who for several years past has been running a cigar stand at 310 Fourth Avenue, has opened up a new stand near the Fry Hotel. With the two stands it will just about keep him busy.

S. R. Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, Lancaster, Pa., was here this week in the interest of his brands of cigars.

W. M. McManis, who recently bought out Johns & Bibby, is remodeling his store, which will make it up-to-date in every respect. Mr. McManis is kept very busy handing out "Lovera" cigars and hobnobbing with his many friends.

Tacoma Men Extend Welcome to Cigar Dealers

In Circular, They Invite Tobacconists of Washington and Oregon to Attend Meeting

The Tacoma retail cigar dealers have extended an earnest invitation to all retail cigar dealers in the states of Washington and Oregon to attend a two days' meeting of the Western Association of Retail Cigar Dealers, at Tacoma, Washington, to be held in the Tacoma Commercial Club rooms, January 14 and 15, and to be closed with a banquet on the evening of January 15, to which all are requested to come. A ball will follow the banquet.

"The only responsibility you will have is in getting here. We will do the rest. The Olympus Hotel, Tacoma, will be the headquarters for the outside cigar dealers during their stay in our beautiful city. We are prepared to take care of an unlimited number, but would very much appreciate a little information in advance as to the probable attendance at the banquet, so that we may arrange for all. There will be a few short speeches and a short entertainment program before the bright lights are turned on in the ball room. We are especially desirous of making this Tacoma's most brilliant affair. There is no reason why the cigar dealers cannot get together in a way that will be a credit to themselves as well as to our city. Our commercial club here is the most ideal place we know of in which to hold a meeting and banquet of this kind. Its officers have been good enough to allow us the free use of committee rooms for our annual state meeting, and the entire club will be at our disposal.

"So come everybody. Bring your wife if you have one, and if not, someone else's wife. Don't forget the date—January 14 and 15. We have the assurance of a large delegation from Portland and other towns. The more the merrier."

Seattle Retailers' Association Elects Officers

At the annual meeting of the Seattle Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, held Friday, December 13, the following officers were elected for the next year: J. A. Gibson, president; M. W. McManus, vice-president; S. J. Brightman, treasurer; N. E. Nelson, secretary. Voted trustees, J. R. Brewster, C. E. Smith, R. E. Sullivan, L. L. Phelps, W. A. Harris, H. E. Brown, J. A. Gibson.

A two-story addition to the Clark & Snover Tobacco Factory, situated on Adams Avenue, near Lackawanna, Scranton, Pa., has been completed at the cost of approximately $35,000.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York Market Dull---Buying Movement of New Pennsylvania Crop Slows up---Moderate Amount of Trading in Wisconsin---All Warehouses Open in Connecticut

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, December 22.

TRADING in the leaf market amounts to virtually nothing. Manufacturers have been going at full tilt and stocks in many cases are well used up. Yet the leaf dealers expect little trade for a week or more. All lines of the trade are now taking an account of stock and laying plans for the new year, and there is no indication that cigar manufacturers are in any hurry to buy any tobacco at present, at least not until they have had time to look around and gather the scattered ends of a busy holiday business together.

Interest centers on the hearing of the tobacco men before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives on January 17. Preparations have been made by New York dealers as well as by leaf men in other parts of the country. Whether they will be able to get together and work harmoniously for the good of all concerned is a matter yet to be decided.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, December 24.

THE local leaf market has almost been at a standstill. But the leaf men have not been altogether idle by any means. The hearing they are to be given on January 17 was thoroughly discussed at a meeting held last Friday. They expect to present their arguments for a lower duty on wrapper and filler tobacco more clearly and effectively than was ever done before. The meeting held in the Harris Club was not large by any means, yet the firms represented there are among the most influential in the city. Whatever they present cannot help but carry weight. As one man put it, those present were the elite of the leaf tobacco trade.

The outlook for 1913, said one leaf man, is fair at this time. He stated that in many cases stocks are low and when orders begin to come in again the manufacturers will be compelled to buy heavily. The binder situation is about the same. Dealers are expecting a rush on them when they are able to prepare the Connecticut and Wisconsin crops for buyers. These crops will undoubtedly go a long way toward relieving the scarcity.

There has not been near as much buying of tobacco from the growers as had been expected the past two weeks. The larger interests evidently are through buying for the present, and local dealers will probably look over the remaining crops. They are in no hurry to do this, nevertheless, as they state there is enough of the 1911 on hand to warrant them in holding off for a while. One dealer predicted that the Lancaster County growers would receive considerably less for the remainder of the new crop than they got for that sold to the larger concerns, and that they will be able to get all they need before long—and at their prices, too. Time only can tell how near this prediction will come true.

One surprise here has been the call for the unpopular 1909 tobacco. A number of cigar manufacturers, who have been using this leaf, say that it can be used very well, when used in the right proportion with other tobaccos. But every one who knows the tobacco well realizes that it cannot be used alone as former Pennsylvania crops have been. One dealer claims to have secured an offer of seventeen cents for his 1909, but this is doubted by others, who say that any amount of it can be purchased at a much lower figure than that.

EPHRATA, December 20.

John J. Jeffries, who packs for Culman Brothers, of New York, started to buy last week and picked up quite a bunch in the eastern section of the county, paying in some instances ten and one-half and ten and three-quarters. John Longenecker and Gabriel Moyer, of Mount Joy, have purchased sparingly at prices around ten cents, and A. B. Cooper, of Landisville, has taken a few crops at the same figures. A few other buyers have been doing some driving, but trading has not been active. Indeed, in many sections of the county not much is to be had, the crop being pretty well cleaned up.

Deliveries of new tobacco have been begun. Morris Levy has been receiving at four of his warehouses—Lancaster, New Holland, Salunga and Ephrata. In fact, he has opened all his warehouses this week for the receipt of the new crop and the casing of it. Mr. Levy's opinion is that the tobacco so far received seems scarcely up to the quality promised from the appearance on the poles; however, he surmises that what he has so far received has been the last cutting, and he expects it to run better in the course of a week or two. No complaints are made of carelessness in handling and assorting and most farmers are careful to not allow their tobacco to get over damp so that the danger of case damage, much of which is believed to be caused by the leaf being too damp, will be reduced to a minimum. There has been an unusual activity in old goods.

On Monday Morris Levy received between 140,000 and 150,000 pounds of tobacco from farmers in this section of the county, at the Kimport cigar factory in this borough, the entire lower floor of which is being used in the work of assorting and casing the tobacco, under the superintendence of Mr. St. Clair, as manager. The work furnishes employment for a large number of men.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, December 20.

A MODERATE amount of trading is still being done in the country districts in moving the balance of the 1912 crop which is suffering a decline during the holiday season. But little change is noted as regards prices and the goods are sold largely on their merits.

Another season of casing weather early in the week has permitted growers to remove more of their hanging tobacco from the curing sheds. The mild temperature has also served to soften the frozen bulks which many growers failed to properly protect in the late zero weather and stripping was therefore suspended until the leaf could be safely handled. The recent experience has taught many the necessity of covering the bulks as the tobacco is taken from the poles if the stripping cannot be immediately attended to, for if they become frozen a good deal of torn and broken leaf will result. A slight covering of the bulks with straw or corn fodder will generally suffice to protect them from any ordinary freezing weather and stripping can proceed at the leisure of the farmer having strip room facilities.

Ed. Ford, 14a at 10&3c.
E. Hermonson, 15a at 10&3c.
C. F. McCarthy, 8a at 7½c.
J. Moulthrop, 3a at 10&3c; 3a at 8&3c.

A few small lots of old leaf have been marketed during the week but no transactions of any size have been reported. There seems to be plenty of inquiry for anything of a good binder nature or of "B" stock even.

A few deliveries have commenced to reach receiving points and the tobacco is said to be coming in in excellent condition. Warehouse handling will be started the coming week by a few firms in this market, but the work will hardly be under headway until after the holidays. At Janesville F. S. Baines, T. E. Welch and C. J. Jones & Son have opened their warehouses during this week, while three or four others will begin operations Monday. A. Cohn & Company's warehouse at Madison opened Thursday.

Haskins & Swartz, of Janesville, who represent Julius Marquse in this state, have rented warehouse No. 1 of Hanson Brothers and will put up a packing in this market. Chas. Clatworthy will have charge of the warehouse, which will be opened for sorting right after Christmas.—Reporter.

VIROQUA.

Seldom has December found such a percentage of the tobacco crop of Vernon County off the shed poles as is the fact now. Wednesday night, Thursday and that night brought a dense fog and heavy showers, putting tobacco in fine shape for removal, and it is now being put in bundle. Many valley growers complain that they failed to receive sufficient dampness to bring the weed into perfect case.

From all quarters comes a demand from growers upon buyers to receive their crops early. Local warehouses will not open for sorting before early in the new year, although doubtlesss goods will, in a limited way, be received prior to that date.—Censor.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, December 18.

THE large tobacco warehouse of William S. Pinney opened yesterday for the winter and has already started with a force of forty hands. At the American Cigar Company's warehouse in Main Street they employ nearly one hundred hands, of which about forty are sizers. This year the company is paying sizers seventy-five cents per hundred instead of sixty-five cents, the rate last year. This is the company's second seaon at the Spencer warehouse and only the best of help are employed there. Matthew Leahy is the manager and James O'Malley is the foreman. All of the tobacco warehouses are now running on full time and will continue until late in the spring. Some of the larger growers have already begun to contract for their fertilizers for next season and stable manure shipments have begun to reach town. The syndicate farms are breaking up new land and getting out lumber for new sheds the coming season. Twenty years ago the farmer who raised ten acres of tobacco was considered a large grower, but today there are individual growers with from forty to seventy-five acres and the syndicates have three and four times as much. The growth of shade grown industry is not as rapid as would be expected in

Pennsylvania Growers to Have Tobacco Shows

Clinton County Growers to Have Theirs in Lock Haven; Lancaster County Men in City of Lancaster

ON January 25, the Clinton County Tobacco Growers' Association will hold their first annual tobacco show in Lock Haven, Pa. Although this is an old tobacco section, the industry has dwindled to comparatively a small acreage during the past ten years. Recently, however, the growers have organized an association and have asked for assistance from both the state and the United States government, and are planning to again bring back this industry to its normal standard. In this show will be exhibited samples of both the Pennsylvania Havana Seed tobacco and the local broadleaf. The president of the association, Mr. Charles Dunn, offers a $25 silver cup for the best exhibit of Havana Seed Wrapper tobacco. This cup must be won three times before it becomes the permanent property of the winner. The show promises to be a very interesting one from both the growers' and packers' standpoint, and it will be well worth the packers' or manufacturers' time to see.

The first Monday in February, the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association will hold their second annual tobacco show in Lancaster, Pa. The show held last year attracted considerable local interest, and a large number of the Lancaster packers visited the exhibit and were very much interested. Practically the only tobacco shown at this exhibit will be the Pennsylvania broadleaf variety, which is the cigar filler tobacco.

California Growers Want Better Price for Turkish

The California leaf tobacco market may be considered as a joke, but it does not appear in that light to about a dozen Armenian tobacco growers of Fresno, California, who got together recently to consider means of getting a fair price for their crop. It is stated that last year the California crop of Turkish tobacco brought about seventy-five cents per pound, while this year the price is about thirty to thirty-five cents. The crop in the San Joaquin Valley is estimated at about one hundred thousand pounds.

Chicago Letter

President P. S. Hill has extended invitations to all of the head division salesmen in the Chicago territory to attend a banquet to be given by him. The invitation is accompanied by the assurance that all railroad fares and hotel bills will be paid.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by Sherman Brothers & Company against the cigar establishment of the F. S. Rockwood Company, 551 North State Street. It is understood that the financial difficulties of the company result from the fact that the section in which the store is located has changed in character—from a fine residence neighborhood to the location of the homes of rather a poor class of immigrants and their families.

James Terrell has left the employ of the Best & Russell Company and is selling the "Prince Albert" tobacco in the outskirts of the city. This is Mr. Terrell's first outside venture, and a wide circle of friends will hope that he makes good.

Storm, Fisher & Company are making bids for publicity by announcing that, sending in a "package cover" and thirty cents, anybody can obtain a 14-karat gold fountain pen.

view of the high prices obtained, but the initial cost of starting and carrying a crop through deters most of the farmers from trying it.

It is estimated that the acreage of tent-grown tobacco in the Connecticut Valley will be increased by thirty per cent. this season. This type of tobacco will be grown for the most part by syndicates, as the average farmer does not feel like going to the expense of covering his ground until the success of shade-grown tobacco is shown by a steady demand. There are some growers who are of the opinion that the popularity of this type is but a passing fancy and that when the curiosity of the manufacturers of the country has been satisfied the market will fall flat. On the other hand, the advocates of tent tobacco claim that it has come to stay and that in a few years it will have almost entirely taken the place of Sumatra as a cigar wrapper. The initial expense, however, will keep the small farmers from trying the experiment. It is doubtful whether a large proportion of the land that raises choice outdoor tobacco is suitable for the covered product and there is also a question in the minds of some as to what effect a wet season would have on tobacco under cloth.

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON, December 19.

OWING to the light weight of the Burley tobacco crop grown this year, it is predicted by growers and warehousemen here who are in a position to know, that the crop of 1912 will be at least twenty-five per cent. short. This means, of course, that the revenue of the growers, accruing from the crop as a whole, will be materially diminished, as the tobacco will not weigh out according to their expectations. Just how much this loss will aggregate has not yet been accurately figured, but it is estimated that it will amount into the millions. The warehousemen who handle the tobacco will also come in for their share of loss on the shrinkage of the crop.

It is conceded that the quality of the weed on the whole is better than usual, particularly the color, and while this will result in better prices as a rule than were paid for last year's crop, it will not, the tobacco people say, compensate for the unprecedented shrinkage in weight which is attributed to the unusually dry season when the tobacco was getting its early growth in the field and the dry weather which overtook the maturing stage.

PADUCAH, December 19.

This week has seen the opening of the tobacco season in Paducah and Western Kentucky. While Mayfield, Murray and other cities in this end of the state will be the recipients of thousands of pounds, Paducah as usual will lead the state in the amount of the weed handled through warehouses. The first loose-leaf sale will be conducted at the warehouse of A. J. Campbell, Ninth and Harrison Streets, this morning. About 100,000 pounds will be on the floor by that time.

Though the loose-leaf sales are expected to exceed those of last year, thousands of pounds from the Black Patch will find sale through the Planters' Protective Association, which has a large warehouse here. Numerous independent and Regie buyers are in the field and ere long practically the entire crop of Western Kentucky will have been sold or pledged.

The tobacco season is opening at an opportune time for both farmers and merchants. On the eve of Christmas, thousands of dollars will be distributed among the farmers. A great part of this will be expended on the local market.

Reports from the field indicate that a crop much larger than that of 1911 is being conditioned.

The books of the Planters' Protective Association will be closed on Christmas Eve, and many pledges are being received each day by the local officials.

OHIO.

THE offerings during the past week were the largest that have been seen on the local breaks since last August, although the offerings of the previous week were outnumbered by only one hogshead. The sale on Wednesday morning was conducted under most adverse circumstances, the city being enveloped in a genuine London fog, which rendered the light so poor that the sale had to be suspended several times, and finally postponed until the following day. On account of the poor light, inspection of the samples was very difficult, and caused irregularity in the bidding, but firm prices prevailed throughout the sale. During the week a liberal assortment of new tobacco was put up, and buyers showed keen interest in the offerings, which resulted in their selling at prices from one to two cents higher than the same grades of tobacco brought last year. The average of $14.06 for the 114 hogsheads of new tobacco offered shows the relative strength of the local market and the quality of the goods offered.

The rejections for the week totaled 118 hogsheads, or about thirteen per cent., while receipts from the various points in the Burley belt amounted to 473 hogsheads. Tuesday will be the last sales day of the year, and indications are that it will be a large one. Sales will then be suspended until Thursday, January 2.

The average of $14.06 last week for new tobacco is an average of about two cents over the previous week. It demonstrates the fact that shippers to the Cincinnati market can always rely upon full value for goods of merit. Every large corporation and firm, as well as numerous small tobacco manufacturers and leaf dealers, have representatives on the market or orders placed to fill.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

How Some Men Stop Smoking

Or Rather How They Say They Will, But Eventually Go Back to the Comforter

ONE of the most disturbing thoughts that comes into the mind of the slave of tobacco is the insidious resolve to stop.

The danger lies not only in the occasional presence of this thought, but in the fact that if it obtrudes too often, it may become a fixed habit.

How can we break ourselves of it?—not the tobacco, but the thought that we ought to stop it?

Smoking, as we have been told many a time and oft, is bad for the heart, bad for the nerves and bad for the pocket-book. It promotes thirst and takes up time.

There is, we regret to say, some truth in all this. There is just enough truth to foster that feeling of uneasiness at the thought that we are doing something that we ought not to do.

The average smoker smokes as much as he tells his wife, multiplied by three and then two more.

Even then he knows in his heart that he is smoking too much. He will smoke one cigar less tomorrow, and one less the next day. By and by he gets himself down—in his mind—to one cigar after dinner. That's enough for any man. Being only one cigar, he can afford to put as much money into it as into three that he is smoking now and still save. He will enjoy it so much more, also. Occasionally, as a special luxury, when he is out of an evening he will smoke two. Also occasionally, when he has a friend out at noon, he may smoke one after luncheon. But no more!

Sometimes the man quits altogether. He wakes up in the morning, folds his arms firmly like an expectant gladiator, looks at himself dramatically in the glass and exclaims: "Never again!"

Two hours later, he folds his arms once more—this time a little feebler—and there being no mirror this time, he just looks out into the cold, hard, unsympathetic world, and says, still somewhat dramatically: "Never again!"

Los Angeles

Holiday Trade Has Shown An Unusually Good Start, Many Dealers Being Already Sold Out On Special Goods—What the Big Jobbing Houses Are Doing

LOS ANGELES, December 20.

THE holiday trade in Los Angeles has shown an exceptionally good start; in fact, the sale of special holiday cigars has been better this year than for the same time last year. The jobbers are entirely sold out on all Christmas packages packed 1/80 and 1/40. Your correspondent has visited all wholesale jobbers today, and all of them without exception are sold out of all holiday goods and cannot get enough to supply their demands. Nearly all of the leading brands are out in special packages of 12 and 25 cigars. "Americans," "Websters," "Optimo," "Lovera," "La Natividad," "Lawrence Barrett," "Chancellor," "Lopez" and "Mi Rey" are all packed in the above-named packages, namely, 12 and 25's.

Beck & Company, successors to George W. Walker, are preparing to enter their new quarters at 224 South Angeles Street, this city. Mr. Beck is enjoying a nice business on all of his brands, particularly on "Belmont" cigars. This brand is bringing Mr. Beck true success. Billy Dickey, formerly city salesman for Rosenfeld & Smith, will be connected with Beck & Company after the first of the year in the capacity of salesman. Beck & Company have sure landed a live one in Billy.

Much credit is due J. A. Neides, city salesman for the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company, due to the showing he has made with the "Mi Rey" cigar. As most all prominent cigar stores and drug stores in this city are handling this cigar, in all sizes, it goes to show how Mr. Neides has spent his time pushing the brand.

The A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company will soon inaugurate a campaign on "Manhattan Girl" cigar, made by D. M. Frank & Company, of New York. They have received their first shipment today, which consisted of 250,000 and ten cases of advertising matter.

Morris Barke has just returned from a northern trip and met with a great amount of success selling "Post Dispatch" and "Havana Sticks" cigars, five cent brands, manufactured by Eitel & Casselholm, of Louisville, Ky.

One of the most successful campaigns has been waged here by Karl A. Miller pushing "Zubelda" cigarettes. Mr. Miller has succeeded in placing attractive window displays of this cigarette throughout the city, and they are causing no end of praise.

While there have been a very great number of attractive window displays of "Webster" cigars shown in Los Angeles during the past few months, by far the best shown thus far is that shown by the Hookstratton Cigar Company, on Spring Street, this city. It is due to this method of advertising that the "Webster" cigar has enjoyed such tremendous success of late.

The Max Roth Cigar Company are complaining of a shortage on "Bachelor" and "El Wadora" cigars. As they are a little better than 300,000 oversold, they cannot fill their orders on these brands until the factories work harder.

R. J. Gans, accompanied by Horace Gladstone, representative of Bondy & Lederer, are up in the oil fields doing some fine work on J. J. Gans popular brands.

The Klingenstein Company is experiencing a very large Christmas trade. "Webster," "The American" and "Y-B" cigars packed in 1/80 and 1/40 have taken with the public with good results. "Lord Lytton," their private brand, was packed in 1/40's. Mr. Klingenstein reports a large increase this year on Eisenlohr's "Cinco," and claims they could sell more if the factory would have come through with the necessary amount. The same applies to Surbrug's "Milo" cigarettes and "Golden Sceptre." "Admiration," a mild Tampa cigar, is taking well in Southern California and is giving elegant satisfaction.

The Klauber-Wangenheim Company is winding up its December business with the largest single month's sales made in the history of their business. This applies to both the Los Angeles and San Diego houses. This firm is one of the oldest in Southern California, and from the appearance of their shipping and delivery departments your correspondent quickly became convinced that the retail trade expected a heavy demand for the brands of cigars controlled by Klauber-Wangenheim Company. They are completely sold out of all special holiday packages and have been compelled to cancel orders for over 30,000 cigars up to the sixteenth of the month. The firm of Klauber-Wangenheim are handling in clear Havana "Optimo," "Sanchez" and "El Palencia;" seed and Havana, "Chancellors," "Virginia Harned" and "Flor de Mendel." In five cent cigars "Pippins," "Havana Ribbons," "Post Dispatch" and "Havana Sticks."

J. C. White, the hustling Southern California division manager for the Tobacco Company of Southern California, is doing some fine work on "Omar" cigarettes in his territory. Mr. White says he's batting .300 this season and his "Omar" business bears him out. M. B.

Holiday Trade Left Baltimore Stores Quite Bare

Jobbers too, Report Prosperity—New Distributor for "Bold" Cigars Making Good

(By Special Correspondent.)

BALTIMORE, MD., December 26.

THE day after Christmas finds the stocks of the leading retailers quite depleted. The Christmas rush this year was a little late in starting, but when it got under way its momentum increased daily. Upon the whole, the holiday season was both profitable and satisfactory to the trade. Local jobbers also have the same report to make.

A round of the cigar factories leads to the conclusion that some Baltimore houses have been making ground very fast during the past year. Such concerns as Heineman Brothers, Elliott, Ottenheimer & Elliott, Manchester Cigar Company, Wertheimer Brothers and Kranss & Company, have been hard pressed to make their deliveries, and they have big orders on their books for the new year.

Some local manufacturers have expressed considerable interest in the new cigarmaking machine that is being put on the market by the Cigar Machine Corporation of America. Their demonstrating plant at 106 South Gay Street is visited daily by cigar and leaf men from all parts of the country. An auxiliary demonstrating plant has been opened at Pittsburgh, where the stogie manufacturers have displayed keen interest in the work of the new invention.

A. J. Lynch, star salesman of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, was in Baltimore last week distributing Christmas cheer. He learned from Edward Rouse, manager of the cigar department of Hopper, McGaw & Company, that the "Stratfords" are making a big hit in this territory. This good news was also confirmed by Edward Hughes of the Emerson Hotel, who has been pushing "Stratfords" with much success among the discriminating patrons of that hostelry.

B. Faistenhamer, 437 Forrest Street, who is distributing the "Bold" cigars manufactured by Bobrow Brothers, Philadelphia, is delighted with the manner in which they are repeating. Although he began the account in a small way, the business has more than trebled during the past six weeks.

D. J. Bowers, of the Royal Havana Cigar Company, states that their "Black Arrow" brand is making great progress in many sections of the country.

William Deiches & Company expect to occupy their new warehouses and salesroom, 115-17 Eutaw Street, shortly after the first of the year. They have already begun moving part of their stock and equipment.

Lilly-Dungan Company's main store at Hopkins Place proved to be a veritable headquarters for Santa Claus during the last hours of Christmas shopping. Their box trade on Key West and imported goods and "Reynaldos" proved surprisingly large. They also did big business on their special brand of "L. L. D." made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia.

Samuel A. Sopher & Son have moved to their new cigar factory at 120 South Howard Street, where they also conduct a retail store.

F. A. Davis & Sons are finding that the "A. J. Cassatt" (Baum-Jaffe Company, Philadelphia) is a big duplicator. Although they have just recently introduced this cigar, they have been compelled to reorder frequently to meet their demands.

Cigarette and Tobacco Advertising Very Heavy on Coast—Retail Dealers' Association Prepares for big 1913—G. J. Vitaich to Dispose of Retail Stores

FOR the last few months cigarette and tobacco advertising has been unusually heavy, work in this line being probably on a larger scale than ever before. In addition to many small newspaper ads, full-page displays have been rather frequent, and an enormous amount of billboard space has been used. About the largest campaign of this kind so far undertaken is that of the Tobacco Company of California, which has contracted for 1,200,000 feet of billboard space to advertise "Bull Durham" in the Coast States. The billboard work in this city may be interfered with somewhat by an ordinance just passed limiting the height of billboards to ten feet.

The San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association is getting more active support from the trade than any similar organization in the past, and promises to become a permanent institution. It is preparing to start the year by taking up some new matters on which its action is expected to have an important bearing, and preparations are being made for a meeting next month at which practically all the members are expected to be present.

Sir Henry Bungey, Oriental representative of the British-American Tobacco Company, arrived here December 16th on the "Korea," en route to England for the holidays.

Edw. Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Company, is back from a visit to Los Angeles, where he found business active and the trade optimistic. Other visitors to Los Angeles from this city recently were H. Loewenstein and E. M. Elam, of the P. Lorillard Company.

Louis Erdt, the Melachrino representative, who has been traveling on the Coast for some time, is now on his way East. C. W. McCormick, representing the "Webster" cigar, who has spent several weeks in the various Coast cities, is also leaving for the East.

C. H. Schmidt, manager of Tillmann & Bendel, agents for a number of well-known lines, returned recently from a tour of the East, where he called on practically all the factories represented. This company is preparing to introduce a new Porto Rico cigar, the first shipment of which will arrive within a few days.

Chas. H. Knubel, who returned a couple of weeks ago from a prosperous trip through the Northwest, is now on his way East.

J. H. Mittenthal, a prominent cigar man of Fresno, California, was in the city this week.

G. J. Vitaich, owner of "Vit's Little Cigar Stores," expects to go out of the retail business the first of the year. He has an attractive opportunity to take up outside work for a prominent wholesale house, and feels that this will be more satisfactory than the retail game. The matter is not quite settled, however, as the present business will have to be disposed of before he can go on the road.

Geo. R. Webb, who has charge of the cigar business of the Coffin-Redington Company, the large wholesale drug house, is visiting the Tampa factories.

I. Danziger, the Manila cigar man, has been able to take care of his trade in fairly good shape, having received several good sized shipments lately, and he expects heavy shipments on the next two steamers to arrive from the Islands.

A number of M. A. Gunst & Company's travelers are now in for the holidays. This company has for years devoted much attention to smokers' articles for the Christmas season, and this year is outdoing all former efforts. The results have been fully up to expectations, and in the cigar department there has been a big rush for the last week. The wholesale department, in fact, is far behind in deliveries in several lines, and the special packs provided for the holidays were cleaned out some time ago.

Burd & Truman, the Sacramento, California, retailers, have taken a long lease on the new stand at Tenth and K. Streets, that city. This gives the firm three stands, and arrangements have been made for the cigar concession in the new Travelers' Hotel, now under construction.

Michaltischke Brothers & Company are having great success with the "Henry the Fourth" cigar of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, which was only introduced here a few weeks ago, but is taking a place with the old established brands. It has been very difficult to get enough of these goods to fill orders, and the few received in special packs were closed out almost at once.

Late Changes in the Trade

An interest in the Club House Cigar Store at York, Nebraska, has been purchased by John Afflerbach.

Tobacco Growers Aim to Eliminate Dealers

Method of Miami Valley, Ohio, Planters Explained—To Sell Direct to Manufacturer

TOBACCO growers have studied all parts of their business, but have given more attention to growing their crops than to selling, said Darius Ross, recently in the "Western Tobacco Journal" in explaining the methods used by Ohio growers in disposing of their crops. Within the past three years more time has been given the selling end of the business. The National Cigar Leaf Growers' Union of the Miami Valley now have about twelve warehouses located in Warren, Montgomery, Preble, Darke and Miami Counties. There they finish their own crops. The Union also covers a portion of the territory along the Indiana line on the Indiana side. The headquarters of the Union are at Dayton, Ohio.

None but members of the Union can enter their crops to be finished. These warehouses are owned and controlled by a stock company composed of union members only, and are duly incorporated. Each one is independent of the other. It was thought that the selling could be done by an authorized salesman, but we soon found that could not be done with benefit.

We have now completed the organization of a central sales warehouse company composed of union members only and governed by a board of five directors, representatives of the different local warehouses, with an advisory board of one member from each warehouse in the valley. Such member is to be selected by each warehouse company. We keep the management of the whole business in our own hands, as you see.

We propose in this sales warehouse to place competent men to sell our goods direct to the manufacturer by sample, just as the old jobber does. We, the growers, are finishing this tobacco and selling it ourselves, thereby doing away with the local buyer, the individual warehousemen and the jobber. Of course they say we will fall down, but we have not in two years, and in that time have been selling either direct from warehouse or by authorized salesman. I don't propose to publish the prices we have gotten for the goods sold; it's not good business to do so, but I am willing to say that those who have had their crops finished and sold are the most enthusiastic men we have in our organization.

When a grower's crop enters the warehouse to be worked it is insured by the warehouse company. That crop pays for its handling and sale. The finishing price varies according to condition of crop and how the grower handled it at home, but runs from one and one-half to four cents per pound. He sells that crop whenever the price suits him, but will be charged storage after a reasonable time from the finishing and boxing period. One of our oldest warehouses has sold every pound of their fillers from the house, and is now selling its wrappers at very satisfactory prices.

We expect in time, after we assure the manufacturers that we can finish the goods and have to sell as good an article as there is on the market, to sell a large part of our product direct from the sales warehouse recently established. We can divide the jobbers' and the trusts' profits with the manufacturer and justify him to come to our sales house. Growers have been compelled to work out this system or quit raising tobacco, as the prices we have had to take in the past do not justify the business of raising the crop.

Our members are not bound to put their crops in our warehouse. They can sell to whom they please, as we have no fear of getting all the tobacco we can market. The only drawback to our system is the grower who needs his money immediately, who must either take a warehouse receipt or wait until his crop is sold. This trouble will disappear after the first year's experience. The Union has caused the growers to receive much better bids for their 1912 crop.

Packers and dealers began to buy October 1 and purchased many crops at eight cents per pound; now they offer as high as ten cents. We do not expect to revolutionize the tobacco trade, but we do propose to cut out the middlemen, if persistence and money will do it. I believe that not more than one-third of the 1912 crop is sold.

To Expand Cigar Box Plant at Perkasie

THE Perkasie Manufacturing Company has been incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania with $50,000 capital, to take over the cigar box manufacturing business of S. W. Benner, of Perkasie, Pa. Mr. Benner will continue his interest in the new concern which plans to largely develop and expand the facilities of the Benner plant.

Among the incorporators of the new concern are Thomas Stinson, the well-known Philadelphia capitalist, and A. C. Schoen, a practical wood working expert. The new owners expect to install additional machinery and put up new buildings which will more than treble their capacity. They expect to specialize on high-grade cigar boxes, and being situated in a very prosperous and busy cigar manufacturing district, they will be able to give quick service to their customers.

Interesting Trade Paragraphs

The cigar store of William Leighton, on Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, was recently closed. George C. Knispel, a cigar manufacturer of St. Paul, took the stock to satisfy his claims on the firm.

A cigar and drug store has been opened in the Terminal Building of the Milwaukee Northern Railway, at Grafton, Wis., by G. A. Worm. "H. Gato," "Ben Miraz," "Wm. Penn," "Quatility" "Prince of India" and "Maskette" are the brands that are being featured.

A new cigar store has been opened in the Hotel Pasco, at Pasco, Washington, by Marvin R. Cohn, son of Louis Cohn, representative of the Hart Cigar Company. He is featuring "Gatos," "Optimos," and "Vasas."

A new store was opened at Youngstown, Ohio, on December 14, and also at Memphis, Tenn., by the United Cigar Stores Company. One of their stores which was recently opened at Dayton, Ohio, catered to 4000 customers on the opening day.

The cigar firm of Reinecke & McKone, of Fargo, N. D., has purchased the outstanding stock of their concern, which has been owned by A. Davis & Sons, and Grady & Bestwick, of that city, and have now become sole owners of the business.

A. L. Youse, Lake Charles, La., who conducts a cigar store in addition to a newspaper agency and messenger service, is now installed in his new store on the Philip Chavanne Building, on Broad Street, and has now associated with him as partner, Theodore J. Le Blanc, a well-known business man. A full line of tobaccos and smokers' articles will be carried.

One Thousand Live Men

UNDER the new management which took hold two years ago, The Tobacco World has been making quick strides forward in every department. The improvement in our reading pages, the enlargement of our correspondence staff and the distinctive style, have combined to place The Tobacco World in a class by itself.

Our method of building, has been first, to produce the best trade paper in the tobacco field, feeling sure that such a standard would be sure to win recognition in the form of thousands of new subscribers.

That this recognition is coming, is evident in the increase of more than 75% in our circulation, as well as substantial gains in our advertising accounts.

With the opening of the New Year, it is our ambition to extend this circulation in every State by an aggressive campaign for subscriptions. To that end, we have an excellent proposition for traveling salesmen who would wish to take subscriptions on a commission basis. Only men of high standing and unquestioned character are wanted.

At one dollar per year, The Tobacco World is the best trade journal proposition in the country to-day. In most cases, all that is necessary to get a subscription is to show a copy of the paper, and point out its distinctive features. Solicitors who have taken hold of our proposition are making a good side income from it.

Why not, Mr. Live Salesman, do the same?

"That's an unusually striking name for a cigar," said a "Liar" smoker recently. "Well, it's a mighty striking cigar," rejoined the dealer, who was selling to him.

HERE'S THE LABEL

¶ The unusual, distinctive blend of the "Liar" and the uniformity of the goods have resulted in a steady increase on this brand. It is out of the ordinary—just a bit better than anything at its price on the market.

¶ So in launching this new cigar, we decided upon a name in keeping with its distinctive qualities. The name and the goods are already linked together in the minds of many smokers as combining the best value possible for a nickel.

Chewing Snuff

It is made of the best, old, rich leaf tobacco. The Snuff Process retains the good of the tobacco and expels the bitter and acid of natural leaf tobacco, making Copenhagen the World's Best Tobacco for Both Chewing and Snuffing.

Whenever a dealer has any difficulty in obtaining his supply of Copenhagen Chewing Snuff satisfactorily, we will help him if he will write us.

UNDER the new management which took hold three years ago, The Tobacco World has been making quick strides forward in every department. The improvement in our reading pages, the enlargement of our correspondence staff and the distinctive style, have combined to place The Tobacco World in a class by itself.

Our method of building, has been first, to produce the best trade paper in the tobacco field, feeling sure that such a standard would be sure to win recognition in the form of thousands of new subscribers.

That this recognition is coming, is evident in the increase of more than 75% in our circulation, as well as substantial gains in our advertising accounts.

With the opening of the New Year, it is our ambition to extend this circulation in every State by an aggressive campaign for subscriptions. To that end, we have an excellent proposition for traveling salesmen who would wish to take subscriptions on a commission basis. Only men of high standing and unquestioned character are wanted.

At one dollar per year, The Tobacco World is the best trade journal proposition in the country to-day. In most cases, all that is necessary to get a subscription is to show a copy of the paper, and point out its distinctive features. Solicitors who have taken hold of our proposition are making a good side, income from it.

Why not, Mr. Live Salesman, do the same?

On the train, the other day,

I met a salesman who traveled from Chicago to the Pacific Coast in the interest of a certain cigar manufacturer. Because of the wide area this salesman covered he could see his customers not oftener than twice a year. Some of them he sees only once a year and some dealers he visits once—never again.

The manufacturer who hires that salesman could lighten the salesman's work and increase his efficiency by the use of the advertising pages of The Tobacco World. The World would hunt out some new dealers and jobbers really worth a visit; and in its twenty-four calls during the year, (to the salesman's one or two), if the manufacturer use the advertising space at all wisely, the salesman would develop an appreciation of the merits of his cigars impossible to create through infrequent, widely separated, personal visits.

The cost would be a fraction of the salesman's railroad fare.

Seventy Dealers Attend First Meeting of Newly Incorporated Company Which Promises to Cut Down Their Cost of Doing Business—Scheme of Operation Explained

OF the hundreds of Chicago tobacconists who were invited to attend a meeting on January 9, of an organization to further their own interests, but seventy responded.

The meeting was held in Masonic Temple, under the auspices of the American Retail Cigar Dealers' Company, which was incorporated six months ago and which has since been quietly working to formulate a campaign in behalf of the improvement of conditions among retailers.

The first letter sent out by the organization appeared under date of January 4, and it was set forth that under the proposed method of buying, the retailer could purchase any brand of cigar in small quantities (one box up) at as low or lower price than he now obtains the stock on large orders. It was also shown that this could be accomplished without the retailer being compelled to tie up hundreds of dollars in an overstock, as it is now necessary to do in order to buy to the best advantage.

Other points made in the letter were that the retailer could increase his income materially on the same amount of business that he is at present doing; that this plan of purchasing is not a radical change in business methods, but is the further development to gigantic proportions of a system now successfully in vogue in different parts of Chicago among the retail cigar men and druggists; that this is the long-sought means of placing the individual retail cigar dealer in a position to compete successfully with the chain store system in the buying as well as the selling.

At the meeting it was shown that the net expense to the company would be three per cent. of the gross receipts. This expense would include the salary of officers. It was also announced that the directorate would consist of five members, the three officers and one retail cigar man and one drug man.

As the meeting was to be semi-secret and the credentials for admission the letter sent out by the organization, those who attended were anxious to learn something of the personnel of the officers. It developed that J. P. Brill, the president and manager, is the only practical cigar man of the three officers of the organization, the other two officers being D. R. Roller, secretary, and R. E. Moser, treasurer. Mr. Brill was once connected with a Detroit cigar concern and sold to jobbers and retailers. He stated the prices at which the company could purchase cigars and furnish the members any quantity they might desire from one box up. The prices he quoted are practically the same at which the retailer can buy through a jobber if the purchase of a large quantity is made.

Mr. Brill asserted that it would be unnecessary for members to buy in large quantities, consequently the investment at any time would not be large and that there would be no dry stock to worry over. He also advocated

Expert's Handbook of Previous Schedules Will be Used as Guide in Framing the New Measures—Many Want to be Heard on January 17

TOBACCO growers and manufacturers are to be permitted to appear before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives in the forenoon of Friday, January 17, to register their views of how the tariff on tobacco shall be revised. According to present reports, Chairman Underwood has been flooded with requests from tobacco men to be heard at that time, and as a consequence the witnesses will be limited to a few minutes each. In the afternoon of the same day the committee will give its attention to witnesses who desire to tell what revision is needed in the schedule on pulp, paper and books.

If the truth were known the public hearings are to play but a minor part in the Democratic revision to be reported to Congress next spring. The revision is to be scientific (?). It will be done chiefly by the experts in the employ of the committee. Already there has been prepared for the use of the committee a "tariff handbook," by Daniel C. Roper, its clerk. This "handbook" analyzes the commerce in various commodities in comparison with the duties under the three previous tariff acts. An expert may take this analysis and figure out just about what duties will be carried in the Democratic revision.

Mr. Underwood has already gone on record as saying the higher duties should be imposed upon those commodities, the greater portion of which is imported, whereas no duty should be imposed where there is no importation.

Although this "handbook" was prepared for the use of the committee, your correspondent is permitted to give here the analysis, carried in it, of the various tobacco schedules. It is as follows:

Imports, duties, rate of duty, equivalent ad valorem rate of duty; production, exports and consumption, by segregated divisions of Schedule F, for selected years from 1896 to 1912.

Spietz & Worch Open Wayne Cigar Factory

Detroit, Michigan, January 13.

As forecasted exclusively in The Tobacco World of January 1, the changes in the Spietz & Worch factory have come to pass by the withdrawal of Messrs. Spietz & Worch from the local branch of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company. Under the title of the Wayne Cigar Company, Messrs. Spietz & Worch have opened a new factory in the Polish Seminary Building, Forrest and St. Aubin Avenues, where they will continue to make the "Hand Made" brand of cigars for the Niles & Moser Company, of Kansas City.

At the old Spietz & Worch factory, which is now controlled directly by the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, W. J. Schloss, who has been with the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company for a number of years, which is now a branch of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, has been installed as manager and the business has been continued without interruption.

a club brand cigar and produced samples of five and ten-cent cigars from five or six factories. Because of the fact that the distribution would be made among five or six hundred retailers the organization would be enabled to buy from reliable factories at excellent figures.

Treasurer Moser then outlined a plan to sell stock to not less than three hundred members at one hundred dollars a share, a retailer being obliged to purchase but one share. Mr. Moser conservatively estimated the average retailer's business under present conditions at two hundred dollars a month and painted a glowing picture of the dividend that would accrue to the five hundred members at the end of the year. He asserted the organization's profit would run up to thirteen per cent.

It was stated that the organization plans a motor delivery service, quarters in the "Loop" district, to be used as a club room for members, stationery, depository, etc.

The application for membership was signed by twenty-five of those present. The application sets forth that "it is understood and agreed that the organizers of this company, viz., J. P. Brill, D. R. Roller and R. E. Moser, will conduct this business at a net expense to the company of three per cent. of its gross receipts." This percentage is generally conceded to be too low.

Incidentally it may be stated that the sales of cigars at the Chicago Athletic Association during the year 1912 amounted to $150,000, and that the Union League Club and other similar organizations made a big showing. "This," said a prominent retailer, "is what is injuring our business, not the United Stores. Those retailers having a chain of stores are not in the least bit interested in the proposed new company."

Stephano Brothers Incorporate in Richmond, Virginia

Sell Part Interest in Concern to Tobacco Products Corporation, But Still Retain Control of Business

The rumor of the sale of an interest in the cigarette manufacturing firm of Stephano Brothers, of Philadelphia, to the newly organized Tobacco Products Corporation, has been confirmed by Henry Wise, a member of the law firm of Wise & Lichenstein, of New York City. Messrs. Wise & Lichenstein have been the attorneys for Stephano Brothers for some years and will remain in that capacity toward the new incorporation. Mr. Wise has given the following statement to the press:

"Stephano Brothers, manufacturers of the "Rameses" cigarette, have incorporated at Richmond, Virginia. The name of the corporation is Stephano Brothers, Incorporated. The capital stock is $3,410,000, of which $1,210,100 is preferred and $2,200,000 is common. The officers of the concern are: Constantine Stephano, president; Stephano Stephano, vice-president; E. P. Carleton, treasurer, and Gray Miller, secretary. In the neighborhood of fifty per cent. of the capital stock of this concern has been sold to the Tobacco Products Corporation. Messrs. Stephano, however, retain absolute control of the business in all departments, including the selling department. Any stories which have been printed to the effect that the control of this concern has passed into the hands of the Tobacco Products Corporation or to any one else are incorrect. The business will be carried on under the direction, management and supervision of Messrs. Stephano, precisely as it has been in the past. Not a share of the company's stock is to be offered to the public."

The cigar and tobacco stores of John Cox, located in the Carleton Furn. Building, Monument Square, Portland, Maine, were badly damaged by fire.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

HARRY BOBROW

CHARLES BOBROW

It has been said that to enter the cigar manufacturing business nowadays, and to make a successs of it, one needs a flying start; that it requires enough capital to take care of the business for at least a year. There are so many brands on the market these prognosticators state, that before any man can expect to do a paying business, he must first pry someone else loose from the ladder of success to get a toehold. And to do this he must make himself noticed, not so much by the quality of his goods as his capacity to keep up advertising on a heavy scale and to shout to the trade at large his presence.

To a certain extent this is very true. Times have changed when a firm builded slowly and surely, with little expense, at distributing its products. Large companies are forming each year—concerns with unlimited capital, with men at their heads who have made good and who still have indomitable energy—in fact firms which have all the ammunition necessary to carry on a successful business in this day of keen competition. But while these examples are very noticeable, there are others which are the exceptions to the rule.

In April, 1908, in Philadelphia, two brothers started to manufacture cigars at 1911 South Eighth Street. They had learned to make cigars, had kept their eyes open, and furthermore had firmly fixed ideas as to what constituted a good cigar. Philadelphia, as is well known, is the big nickel cigar manufacturing market of the country, and the competition among the cigar manufacturers is very close and keen. Yet these men felt there was room for a good nickel brand, one that was just a little different from the big sellers, and they started to work along those lines.

Their cigar was to be known as the "Bold." They made it up in their small factory, which had been a residence, and started manufacturing with one cigarmaker. With so many other cigars on the market it was no easy matter to convince dealers of the merit of the cigar. But the unusual flavor and the honestly-made piece of goods, together with the energy and evident progressiveness of the makers, ere long began to have their effect. The beginning was the hardest part, as in all enterprises.

After a time orders came in with more regularity, many without any solicitation on the part of the recipients, so that they were compelled to increase their floor space. But their capacity in the factory was reached in a short time and preparations were made for moving to a more advantageous location.

This was accordingly done in the early part of 1911. The new location was desirable in many ways and the business prospered. They had taken on a salesman shortly before this period and were compelled to add another when they reached the new establishment, located at Second and Arch Streets.

The nickel cigar received most of their attention. But customers reckoned that since the five-cent cigar was of such a superior quality, the ten-cent brand could not help but be a big seller also. The makers thereupon put out a ten-cent cigar, the "Discriminator." It is a big seller, but the firm has become so closely identified with the "Bold" cigar, and the demand has been so great on this brand, that they have not been able to give the "Discriminator" the attention it merited.

The sales force and the force of cigarmakers was being increased from time to time, and it became a problem as the fall trade of 1911 hove in sight. To prepare for this another location was acquired, the one they now occupy, at 114 South Second Street, Philadelphia. This factory has answered the purpose fairly well. It is a six-story and basement affair. The first floor is used as an office and shipping room. The upper floors are the workrooms, where 350 employees turn out the product. This force was largely augmented the past two months. From one salesman several years ago the selling force has now grown to five local and two outside men. This staff is composed of enthusiasts. Not one of them has been solicited previous to joining the house.

How Some Brands of Cigars Were Killed

DURING the past twenty years in the cigar and tobacco trade, there have been a number of big-selling brands of cigars which flourished for a time and then almost without warning of any kind dropped out of sight. A dealer was commenting upon this some time ago and gave a number of reasons why sales on certain brands had dropped off. To these I have added several other reasons for brands failing to retain their popularity, which I give below.

Not so very many years ago the son of a leaf tobacco dealer in one of our larger Eastern cities decided that the cigar manufacturing game was more profitable than selling leaf tobacco. So he made arrangements to change his line of work. The city in which he lived had sufficient help and labor was cheap, too. In addition, he had the advantage of securing his tobacco from his father at small or little profit. His father had also backed him financially in his new venture.

He was fortunate in securing the services of an experienced factory superintendent. The brand he manufactured was to retail at five cents. He was able to market it and allow liberally for advertising and other expenses. Sales on the brand increased splendidly and in a comparatively short period the young merchant was contemplating the expansion of his business. To do this he needed more capital. This his father refused to give him, claiming that the business should be built from the ground up—from the actual profits only.

Against the counsel of his superintendent, he started to substitute inferior tobacco in the brand in order to increase his profits. The superintendent protested vigorously. He had been in the game long enough to see the folly of such a course. For a very short time the cigar sold as well as formerly. Then all at once—like Holmes' "one-hoss shay"—sales dropped "to pieces all at once." The cigar was killed beyond all hope of resurrection.

Today this brand can be seen occasionally in a number of stores in Central Pennsylvania, where dealers stocked up heavily. When questioned, they state that they are pushing them simply to clear their stocks. They usually retail at ten for a quarter. The erstwhile "millionaire" cigar manufacturer is again on the road selling leaf tobacco for his father.

Another potent factor in the killing of certain brands of cigars has been the evil of price-cutting. It seems odd, but the experience of many veterans in the cigar business has proven that the surest way to kill any brand is to allow it to be the subject of price-cutting. It makes no difference whether the brand has an established reputation or not. Other lines of business cut the prices on the goods they sell, but cigars appear to be peculiarly susceptible to injury by this practice. The smoker loses confidence in the cigar and reasons that since it is being sold at a lowered price, it necessarily must be inferior in quality. This was proved in New York recently, when a prominent dealer started to cut prices on imported cigars—on brands which are almost as staple as Government gold bonds.

There have been scores of cigars on the market the past twenty years—nickel goods—which have dropped in sales due to price-cutting. Selling at five cents straight at first, they retailed later at six, seven and often at nine for a quarter. And this, in the case of one cigar; in face of a campaign of publicity which up to that time was unprecedented. Thousands of dollars were spent on bill-board advertising and also in trade journals and newspapers. Yet when the cigar was cut in price the nation-wide popularity of the brand failed to keep up the sales. This cigar is too well known among the older tobacco dealers to need mentioning.

One instance of a cigar falling in the estimation of the smoker was illustrated recently in the Middle West. The brand was advertised heavily and sold by the millions. It had been placed in the hands of a jobbing house in one of the larger cities, which had every facility for pushing it in the right way, and among the right dealers. The distributors assisted the manufacturers in every way to increase the sales on the cigar and with the aid of their salesmen and the missionary men of the manufacturer, made a big profit.

Missionary men are recognized by many manufacturers nowadays as a necessity. Large jobbing houses cooperate with the cigar manufacturer when he places his cigar in their territory and use their best salesmen in pushing the brand. The jobbing house mentioned above did this on a cigar and made excellent headway among their trade. But they noticed that just as soon as their efforts toward keeping up the sales by missionary men relaxed, interest in the cigar waned. The quality of the brand had been lessened gradually for some time and it required artificial stimulation to keep it going. Before long profits were at a minimum, although they sold millions of the goods. The net financial gains amounted to virtually nothing for the simple reason that the high-priced missionary men and salesmen ate up all the profits the firm expected to make on the cigar. As a result they dropped it and although it still sells fairly well, it will never enjoy the popularity it once had. This wholesale house reckoned that missionary men are all right to introduce a brand to the smokers, but when sales could only be continued properly by means of many missionary men, it was time to discontinue the account.

Harry Bobrow, the senior member of this concern, has become the factory man. He attends to the technic of the blending and manufacture of these brands and no one who has watched the progress of this successful young firm can fail to realize that the phenomenal growth of the business must be due in great part to the secret knowledge the man who has direct charge of the manufacturing must possess.

Charles Bobrow, whose likeness is shown, is the directing power behind the selling force of this concern. He has attended to this feature of the business from the time they went into business over five years ago, from the time he helped to make cigars in the daytime and sold them to the trade in his spare time, which usually was at night, after hours. He knows the cigars as few salesmen do and speaks from a fund of experience and knowledge when he places them with a new house. About twice a year he migrates to Western territory, where the "Bold" and "Discriminator" are becoming stronger and stronger each year.

The firm of Bobrow Brothers is an example of how two ambitious young men not only saw their opportunity, in great part they created it. Opportunity's call sometimes may be soft and low, but that lies with the hearer. To become one of the largest cigar manufacturers in a city known as the "Big Nickel Market" and to jump to this position in less than five years from the cigarmaker's bench is a record to which few firms can point.

Don't Overlook Your Trade Paper

WITH the closing of 1912, many subscriptions expired. The question of renewal should be one requiring immediate attention, for while some publishers will carry the matter over for a time, others stop the paper promptly, and the number you miss may be the one most valuable.

You may say that your trade paper does not pay. The question is, why not? There is scarcely a paper worthy of the name which does not contain in every issue material which you should be able to so apply that it will yield more than the annual subscription price. The man who buys a bushel of potatoes and then has them dumped into the cellar to lie until they rot, has no kick because he did not get the worth of his money. The fault lies wholly in himself. If you have found some publication devoted especially to your line of goods unprofitable, take a look back, honestly, seriously. There may be much meaty substance in those pages which you have skipped and tossed into the waste basket.

Insist that your entire business family read the trade paper. It will render the clerk more efficient, more enthusiastic, and keep him in touch with the vital issues. Situations change every day. The man who would do his best work and get the most out of the capital invested must keep up with the times.

You pride yourself, perhaps, that you are well up in political matters; that you understand the situation in the Balkan states as well as the next man. That is very commendable, but is it not just as important to keep in touch with the news and features of your line of business, from which comes your livelihood, as it does with the big questions of the day, which affect you only indirectly?

Some day a man will come into the store and inquire about something, of which you know nothing. You will be compelled to admit that you know nothing about the subject, and the customer will go away with a poor opinion of your knowledge of your business.

If the question is one which every tobacco dealer should know, you will fall greatly in his estimation, particularly if he then asks your competitor down the street and gets an answer to the query.

Knowledge is the foundation of strength. Keep the trade publications, the class periodicals as text-books, without which the even running of your business will be under a handicap, and read them.

Just a Few Puffs

Some men try advertising nowadays like the Indian tried feathers. He took one feather and slept on it all night. In the morning he looked at it in disgust and remarked: "White man say feathers heap soft; white man big fool." They use this flash-in-the-pan method and wonder why "advertising don't pay."

It is not how much you make for yourself that counts, as it is how much you make of yourself.

Now is the time of year to size up your lines and throw out the "dead ones." But give a cigar a square show. It may be slow in starting, but when it does take hold, be one of the best ones you have. But if it does not make good, throw it out, for it is taking up room that some worthier brand deserves.

The Reliable Man Always in Demand

THERE is always room for the man who can be relied upon. "Why do you look outside your own business to find a man for that place?" asked one business man of another who had stated that he was looking for a man.

"Well, the truth of it is," replied the other, "the kind of a man I want isn't to be found among our seven hundred employes. I have always believed in promoting our own men when we have the right ones to promote, but I want a man who can be relied upon. I can't stand over that work all the time to coach some fellow who may be able to do the detail if I do the thinking for him. What I need and what I must have is a man who can take that department and run it without too much watching. Of course, any man I get will need a few pointers now and then, while he is getting in touch with our way of doing business. And I want a man who can take advice when I see fit to give it, and who knows enough to come to me for advice when he needs it. But I can't afford to waste time, money and business opportunity coaching a man who can't be depended upon. I want some one I can lean on, and not some one who will lean on me. Do you know where I can find such a man?"

"Yes," replied the other, "there are several such men around town, but they have already been discovered and I am afraid you will find it hard to get one."

Which class are you working yourself into Mr. Clerk?

"IT certainly is odd the way the tastes of my customers change from year to year," said the Old Philosopher when I dropped in to see him the other day. "Take for instance the man of about thirty who just bought a pack of cigarettes. I remember well the first purchase that fellow made from me. That was at least ten years ago. I had been selling his dad all his cigars for years. The old man would smoke nothing but 'Romeo & Juliets.' One day they came in together. The old man jokingly remarked to me that he was going to start the young fellow right by bringing him to me to buy his cigarettes. The young man had graduated from college shortly before and the old man was teaching him the gentle art of earning money by taking care of other peoples cash. He was to be a banker.

"Well, Junior bought cigarettes from me for about six years. As a rule young fellows at the age he had reached finally jump to cigars, and I was not surprised when the coming banker did. He stuck to cigars for about four years and often said he didn't see what satisfaction any one got from a cigarette. You know how the larger cigarette concerns have been advertising cigarettes within the past year or more. The upshot has been that that fellow has gone back to cigarettes again. He said the other day that it was the same brand he had smoked while at college and he certainly enjoyed them. The old man jokes Junior about his fickle tastes and says he soon will be back to the cigar again. During this time the old man has been smoking his 'Romeo & Juliets' as regular as clockwork."

"You are an honest boy," said the elderly lady as she opened the roll of five one dollar bills, "but the money I lost was a five dollar bill. Didn't you see that in the advertisement?"

"Yessim," replied the boy. "It was a five dollar bill I found, but I had it changed, so that you could pay me the reward."

"Rather curious thing happened at our house the other day," said the commuter to his friend, Jones, as they were waiting for their train the other morning.

"Well, you know our conservatory? We've had a lot of trouble over the insects in there, and the other day I got an idea. My wife gave me a box of cigars for Christmas, but I have given up smoking—at least that variety. Rather funny, eh?"

"Very peculiar," replied Jones.

"Yes, and I got a bright idea. We would give the cigars to the gardener to smoke in the green house. That would kill off the insects."

"And did it?" asked Jones.

"We gave them to the gardener to smoke and——"

"But did it kill the insects?"

"I should say so. It killed the plants, too. And the doctor said yesterday that the gardener is now out of danger."

The horse-hair sofa, for generations a potent factor in family matrimonials, had been on the job three hours. Furthermore the clinch showed no signs of dissolution. If anything Mary and Bill snuggled closer together and struggled more desperately to merge their individualities into blissful amalgam. Bill swore endless devotion and undying love. For her dear sake, he said, he would dare such dangers as mortal man had never tackled before. All he wanted was to get a chance to make Lochinvar, Leander, Romeo and all the other big league lovers look like four flushers.

"My love," he said wind-milling his arms dramatically, "if you and I were out on the ocean and were suddenly shipwrecked, I would drink up the sea to save you. What can I do to prove it?"

Mary devoured her sweetheart with languishing eyes. "Well, since you are in such a self-sacrificing mood, why not stop smoking? You know, you said, John, that you were smoking too much. See how much you will save."

Then John begged off. He said that the wildest promise never covered a contingency such as that.

A salesman friend of mine, traveling on a through express to Chicago, had an amusing experience recently. He left his chair in the crowded dining car just after he had ordered his luncheon, going to get something he had forgotten in the Pullman.

When he returned, in spite of the fact that he had left a magazine on his chair in the diner, he found a handsomely gowned woman in the place. He protested with all the politeness he could muster, but the woman turned on him with flashing eyes.

"Sir," she remarked haughtily, "do you know that I am one of the director's wives?"

"My dear madam," he responded, "If you were the director's only wife I should still ask for my chair."

A gold-mounted amber-stemmed meerschaum pipe, sent to President-elect Wilson as a Christmas gift from one of his friends in Vicksburg, Mississippi, brought out the confession that once in his life, and only once, did Mr. Wilson smoke.

"It was this way," he said: "My father was a smoker of some attainments and had got to the stage where he liked a fat, black cigar. In his leisure hours, my mother took advantage of his habit and employed him to blow the pungent smoke over her rose bushes to kill insects.

"One day when he was not at home, she suggested that I try it on one of her favorite plants and I obliged, somewhat proudly. For five minutes I steamed away like a furnace and then it hit me with disastrous effect. I never tried it after that."

"And you never had any ambition to learn smoking?" was suggested.

"No," he replied. "You see I never was forbidden to, so there wouldn't have been any point to it."

The proposition of Mayor Blankenburg, submitted to Philadelphia Councils recently in his message, reducing gas to eighty cents and making up part of this deficit by taxing cigar and tobacco dealers, has met with considerable opposition among the trade in the Quaker City.

Philadelphia Stores Should Fight New City Tax

While retail and wholesale cigar stores are in favor of a lower gas rate, they do not feel that they should be called upon to pay an additional license or tax to bring this about.

It is pointed out by a prominent retailer that while the larger stores could pay the special tax, and not feel it, it would drive out of business many of the smaller neighborhood stores who are just now managing to eke out a living.

Mayor Blankenburg believes that about $75,000 per year could be collected from local tobacconists if a special tax of this character were to be imposed.

The proposition so far is in such a nebulous state that retail tobacconists have not thought it necessary to fight it openly, but should an effort be made to pass a law of this kind, a meeting will be called to present the case of the retail stores, and oppose to the last ditch, an enactment of a law that will saddle such a burden on the trade.

Special legislation of this character cannot fail to weaken the smaller stores and make competition with the larger chain stores almost prohibitive.

Sumatra, The Football for Tariff Makers

As the time approaches for the hearings on the tobacco tariff before the Ways and Means Committee in Washington, the prediction that there will be a decided reduction on Sumatra, becomes more likely of fulfilment. The fight between the importers and the domestic growers of wrapper tobacco will wage hot and fierce on Sumatra.

The contention of the Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Florida and Alabama growers that a reduction on Sumatra duty to a dollar will prove ruinous, will be presented in such a forcible way that it cannot fail to impress the tariff committee.

On the other hand, the importers and dealers who insist on a reduction, will shoot their heaviest guns, by pointing out the fact, that since the growth in the consumption of Sumatra by American manufacturers, that the American tobacco growing interests have not suffered in the least, but on the contrary, have been able to pay off past obligations and lay aside vast fortunes.

As the Democratic party is committed to tariff reduction all along the line, it seems that a slice in the Sumatra tariff is inevitable, and American growers, whether they be in Connecticut or Pennsylvania, will find that it is hard work pulling against this stream of public sentiment.

Among the Havana importing interests, there seems to be no division of sentiment in the demand that there be immediate relief from conditions which have long since been recognized as dangerous and oppressive. The demand of the Havana importers for a reduction of wrapper duty to one dollar per pound, and the classifying of bales of tobacco containing twenty-five per cent. or less of wrapper for assessment as filler, and those containing more than twenty-five per cent. for assessment as wrapper, seems both feasible and reasonable.

If the grievances of the Havana interests are presented forcibly and intelligently before the tariff committee, we see no reason why they should not carry their point.

It is recognized that the tariff hearings alone will not decide the schedules, but it would be well to have all interests represented, so as to throw more light and publicity upon the important questions which will confront the tobacco trade during the legislation which is sure to come under the Wilson administration.

United Stores To Reveal "Trade Secrets"

Believing that it is the duty of large corporations to inform their patrons of their methods of conducting their business, the United Cigar Stores Company have inaugurated an advertising campaign in Chicago for that purpose. Through the advertising columns of the newspapers they will tell to their customers their "trade secrets" and give them an insight into their business.

Other large corporations, such as the Standard Oil Company, the railroads, the Lumber "Trust" and the International Harvester, still use the press agent as their means of appearing before the public through the newspapers.

The United Cigar Stores Company is the first corporation voluntarily to take the step of informing those with whom they have dealings of their business. A half million dollars is to be expended by the United Cigar Stores Company in this form of advertising and the officers of the company believe that this method of becoming "acquainted" with their customers will prove of immense benefit to them in the conduct of their business.

Chicago was decided upon as the ideal place to inaugurate such a campaign, and the officers of the corporation are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the campaign in that city, with a view to making it national should it prove successful.

Many Distinctive Features in Hotel McAlpin

THE new Hotel McAlpin was opened for business on December 29. This latest addition to the larger hostelries of New York City will be one of the best of its kind. It accommodates twenty-five hundred guests and requires fifteen hundred employees to operate. Although the place is open for business, some of the floors are not yet finished.

The McAlpin has several distinctive features, placing it in a class by itself. One of them is a floor, the sixteenth, devoted exclusively to the use of night workers. Strict silence will be maintained on this floor, so that the occupants may do their slumbering undisturbed.

Another floor, the twenty-second, is for the use of men only, all the attendants are also men. The women also have a floor to which no men are admitted. All the clerks and attendants in these rooms are also women. The cigar stands of the hotel are under the management of the Acker, Merrall & Condit Company. They carry a wide stock of all grades of cigars, ranging from the clear Havana to the cheaper brands.

Announce Opening of "La Diligencia" Factory

Moreda & Company, Incorporated, Key West, Florida, with offices at West Forty-second Street, New York City, announce to the trade that the "La Diligencia" factory at Key West, will start operations during the first week of the coming year.

While it is well known that M. A. Gunst & Company have purchased the brand, etc., from Moreda & Company, it is the intention of the above to conduct the business under the name of the old firm.

The new factory building, which is now most thoroughly equipped, and ready for immediate operations, will be in a position to place on the market the "La Diligencia" brand on or about February 1.

Imports From Manila Increase

It is quite evident that the taste for Manila cigars is rapidly being acquired, for according to a prominent importer, the annual limit of 150,000,000 cigars, which are allowed to enter this country free of duty, is expected to be reached by the termination of next year. It is predicted that the imports this year will figure between 90,000,000 and 100,000,000. It is very evident that the business is steadily improving, and instead of the demand dropping off at this time of the year, it is still active.

E. Kleiner & Company Introduce New Cigar

A high-grade specialty cigar has just been put on the market by E. Kleiner & Company, and will be known to the trade as the "Marie Antoinette." Made in a number of popular sizes and shapes, and ranging in price from ten cents straight to twenty-five cents, it is a cigar that should appeal particularly to the discriminating smoker. Dealers catering to high-class trade will do well to feature this brand. The "La Famosa" cigar of this company is meeting with splendid success wherever introduced, having doubled its output in 1912.

T. J. Dunn & Company Report Large Shortage

T. J. Dunn & Company report having closed 1912 with a shortage of nearly 8,000,000 cigars. Plans are now being discussed to increase the output of the factory so as to keep the supply in line with the demand. Sales on the "New Bachelor" and other brands have been increasing steadily.

Claude E. Turner, Salvador Representative, in the South

Mr. Claude E. Turner, the affable and progressive Eastern representative of the "Charles the Great" cigar, is now in the South, visiting his home in Macon, Georgia, spending the holidays in that city.

While in the South, it is Mr. Turner's intention to visit the surrounding territory, where he is well known, having traveled extensively there for many years.

The New York office of Salvador Rodriguez looks forward to many new accounts, and large orders, which will probably be brought to their notice on the return of Mr. Turner.

J. W. Surbrug Sails

J. W. Surbrug, president of the Surbrug Company, manufacturers of "Milo" cigarettes, sailed for Europe on Saturday, January 4, for a prolonged stay there. His ultimate destination is Egypt, where he will look over the conditions prevailing in that country, and subsequently make his personal tobacco selections.

D. Gonzalez has resigned as manager of the Tampa Cooperative Cigar Company and has formed the firm of D. Gonzalez & Company with F. H. Westerman, to do a general cigar brokers' business, with headquarters at 135 Front Street, New York. The new firm announce that they are in position to represent several reliable houses that desire brokerage connections.

New York City Items

R. B. McKittrick, of M. Melachrino & Company, leaves for Pittsburgh tonight on a hasty trip throughout that territory.

Anton Kleiner left for Chicago in the early part of the week, where he will devote some time to the boosting of this cigar, which is distributed in that territory by Thorward & Roehling.

Clemence H. Cordson, Northwestern representative of M. Melachrino & Company, 214-216 West Forty-seventh Street, New York, manufacturers of Egyptian cigarettes, departed from this city for Seattle on January 2. He had been in the East, visiting headquarters during the past week.

Frank Lopez, Chicago representative of Garcia & Vega, manufacturers of Havana cigars, has been spending a few days in this city, looking up old acquaintances.

Mr. Sol M. Gans, son of the senior member of the firm of Max Gans & Son, of 197 Water Street, has been admitted as a member of the concern, dating January 1, 1913. Mr. Gans covers the South for Max Gans & Son.

William Van Balen, representing the well-known leaf importing house of Ernest Ellinger & Company, was in New York for a few days, visiting at the firm's headquarters. Mr. Van Balen takes care of the Ellinger interests in the Middle West, with offices at 160 North Fifth Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, where he is known as an aggressive and able worker.

Fillipe Rodriguez, of F. Rodriguez & Company, manufacturers of "Flor de P. A. Estanillo," "Flor del Fumar" and "Elite" brands, returned to Havana on Saturday, January 11, on the steamship "Saratoga." Mr. Rodriguez had been spending the holidays in New York City.

L. F. Weiss & Company, manufacturers of cigars at 214 East Ninety-ninth Street, have made an assignment to Sydney W. Stern. The deed was signed by one of the partners, Eugene Levy. The other partner is Leo F. Weiss. This concern was formed on May 1, 1912.

Max F. Schneider, the well-known New York Sumatra importer, died several weeks ago at his home in that city from an attack of grip. Mr. Schneider had been associated with a number of firms in the course of his life and at the time of his death was in partnership with Mr. Unger, the Amsterdam Sumatra tobacco dealer. He was fifty-two years of age and is survived by a widow and a son, sixteen years of age.

M. E. Kalfon, an old-timer in the cigar trade in a number of the larger cities of the country, has opened a store at 532 Broadway, where, in addition to his retail trade, he will also job cigars, pushing two of his brands, the "Lord Watson" and "American Lords." Mr. Kalfon has lately been connected with the Ferdinand Hirsch Company.

First Penna. 1912 Output, Millions Ahead of 1911

THE production of cigars and other tobacco products in the First Pennsylvania District for the month of December, as compiled from the internal revenue receipts, round out a most prosperous year for the cigar manufacturers. The figures for December show an increase in cigars over the same month the previous year of more than 9,691,000. Small cigars and manufactured tobacco also show increases, although there was a smaller output of both kinds of cigarettes than in December, 1911. The figures for the month are as follows:

	December

The production of large cigars for the entire year is far ahead of that during 1911. As can be seen from the table, the year was slow in starting, January being below that of 1911. The output for March and June were also smaller, but when the boom started in July the production each month steadily increased over the same periods of the previous year. The month of October was a record-breaking one for cigar manufacturers, the production going over the 70,000,000 mark, that occurring only once before in the history of the trade, in the October of 1911. The increase for the entire year over that of 1911 totalled 19,351,373. The figures are as follows:

February	57,352,083	54,357,810
March	59,818,500	64,189,650
April	59,742,000	56,696,320
May	65,116,700	63,739,060
June	61,929,240	63,560,240
July	64,267,610	57,810,830

Max Rosenblum, Nacie Gartner, B. Rosenblum, 2 West 120th Street, New York, are named as the incorporators of the Edwin Cigar Company, recently incorporated at Manhattan, New York, with a capitalization of $250,000.

J. L. Goldsmith has been appointed by H. Duys & Company, the Sumatra importing house, as representative in the Chicago and Milwaukee markets.

A. J. Lynch, the well-known representative of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, has been in the New York market recently in the interests of the "Stratford" cigars, made by his company. Mr. Lynch opened several accounts in New York with this brand, which is particularly popular through Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, and he feels convinced that New York consumers will be equally interested in a first-class Philadelphia product, such as theirs.

The directors of the United Cigar Stores Company last week declared an initial dividend of one and one-quarter per cent., and one-half of one per cent. extra on the common stock of the company, payable February 15, to stock of record January 15. This is said to be done so as to put the stock on a permanent seven per cent. basis.

T. H. Hart Company Prepare to Move

Have Decided to Locate at 1514 Sansom Street, Where Desirable Building Has Been Secured

THE T. H. Hart Company, manufacturers of the "Five of Harts" and "Heartsease" cigars, are making preparations preliminary to moving to their new location on February 1. A number of desirable places have been under consideration and a building at 1514 Sansom Street has finally been decided upon. It is two stories in height and has a basement running the length of the place.

The new location should be desirable in every way for the T. H. Hart business. It is centrally located, making it convenient for the jobbing business, and has ample floor space, being about 25 feet by 150 feet in length. The factory of the firm is situated at Quakertown.

They report having closed a good year's trade. The "Five of Harts" and "Heartsease" brands have secured a number of desirable connections in outside places and have been duplicating nicely. These cigars are well placed around town, the "Leda" ten-cent brand being also well known to Quaker City smokers.

Melachrino Changes in Philadelphia

AN important change has been made by Melachrino & Company in their Philadelphia representation in the appointing of Mr. Mahan to succeed William Noonen, who has been sent to Detroit, Michigan, to look after the Melachrino interests in that territory. Mr. Mahan, who has already assumed charge of the Philadelphia end, is an experienced cigarette man and very popular among the trade. He has secured the services of F. Vance Veith, who has been with the Finley Acker & Company cigar department for the last four years. Mr. Veith is a brother of W. R. Veith, the New Jersey sales manager for Melachrinos.

Steigerwalds Move to 2411-13 N. Howard Street

John Steigerwald & Company, Incorporated, removed on January 1, from their former location at Twentieth and Tioga Streets, to a larger building at 2411-2413 North Howard Street. They had been contemplating this move for some time as the old quarters were becoming far too small for the Steigerwald business.

The Howard Street location is desirable in many ways for the business. It is four stories in height, and has a basement running the length of the place. The salesrooms and factory are both located at this address.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Limited, Factories Busy

Local Cigar Manufacturers Are Oversold to the Extent of Three Million—To Push "Statesman" Brand

CARRYING over back orders for nearly three million cigars, Jeitles & Blumenthal, Limited, are opening the New Year under very auspicious circumstances. Their three out-of-town factories, in addition to their big factory on Eleventh Street, in Philadelphia, have been taxed to their fullest capacity for the last six months in a vain endeavor to keep up with the inrush of orders, and while January is usually a dull month with the average cigar manufacturer, this month finds their factories working at top speed.

They intend to push their "Statesman" ten-cent cigars more aggressively this year than ever. They are packing these goods with an attractive new label which is a decided improvement over the old. This cigar is a high-class seed and Havana piece of goods, made in twelve sizes. Its popular running-mate, the "Royal Peer," is an old favorite in the trade.

In their five-cent grades they are having a big success with their "Flor de Jeitles" and "Masterpiece," as well as their "Tungsten," "Little Peer" and "Statesman, Jr." The "Tungsten" brand has a big sale in the Western States, where it has been distributed by the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, of St. Louis, Missouri, and will be featured by their successors, the Niles & Moser Company, in western and northwestern territory.

Samuel C. Jeitles, of the firm, expects to leave Philadelphia this week for an extensive trip through western territory, calling on his trade.

Goodloe Cigar Company Strengthens Lines

The Goodloe Cigar Company report having closed a most successful season. This concern has not yet been in business a year, but have placed the brands they distribute in the majority of the larger stands around town. They recently took on several lines of cigars, which they say will strengthen their stock materially. A Manila brand, made by one of the largest factories in the Philippines, the "La Fragancia," was added to their lines and is selling well. It is imported by Horace Kelly, of New York. Other brands taken on within the past month are the "Claudia," a three-for-a-quarter smoke, E. M. Schwarz & Company, of New York, and two brands of the West Indies Cigar Company, the "Gran Director," three for twenty-five cents, and "Arno," a nickel brand.

Louis H. Eisenlohr, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, left last week for a month's pleasure trip through the South, en route to the Panama Canal. He traveled by rail to Florida and took a steamer there.

The cigar manufacturing and retailing firm of Hornstein & Breman, which opened up for business on Thirteenth Street above Market, shortly before the holidays, has secured another store in the central section of the city, being at 39 South Eighth Street. This makes the third stand of the concern.

A fire in the building at 920 Chestnut Street several weeks ago badly damaged the fixtures and equipment of the Casino Bowling Alleys in the place, also the stock of goods in the cigar stand run and controlled by H. J. Bergman. The loss is covered by insurance. Both the bowling alleys and cigar stand are closed for business.

B. E. Merwin, until recently manager of the cigar department of the John H. Fitch Company, of Youngstown, Ohio, has been appointed to represent Allen R. Cressman's Sons in Ohio, for the "Counsellor" cigar.

William Luckett, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, left Philadelphia last week on an extensive trip through Western territory. He expects to go as far as the Pacific Coast, boosting "Reynaldo" cigars, and will be away more than a month.

L. W. Moorin has been engaged to represent the Theobald & Oppenheimer lines in Pennsylvania and the Southeast.

About forty members of the factory, office and selling forces of Theobald & Oppenheimer Company were entertained at a banquet and vaudeville entertainment given by President John M. Kolb on New Year's day at the Majestic. All of the out-of-town salesmen and local men were included among the guests and T. W. Hesselbacher presided as toastmaster.

The four upper floors of the building at 247 North Third Street have been leased by the Rotelda Cigar Company. The building is twenty-five feet wide and one hundred and twenty-five feet long, furnishing floor space sufficient to accommodate two hundred men. This firm was formerly located on South Fourth Street.

TOO LATE FOR CLASSIFICATION

WANTED—A man with experience to extend retail cigar business. Capital of $1000 or more. Address, Box No. 101, care of "The Tobacco World," 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 1-15-c

POSITION WANTED by reliable experienced Havana cigar packer. Good instructor. Capable to act as foreman. City or country. Address, "Cigars," 599 South Twentieth Street, Newark, N. J. 1-15-c

New Representative for Bayuk Brothers Company

BAYUK BROTHERS COMPANY'S expectations of a large increase on "Havana Ribbon" sales for 1912 were more than realized, the final figures showing up far in excess of anything heretofore realized by the company.

Lines have already been laid for a live-wire campaign starting January 1, and covering the larger portion of the Western States. A number of high-class cigar men have been secured, whose expert services combined with the quality of "Havana Ribbons" should insure the firm the largest year's business ever experienced.

A. G. Bucher has been allotted Iowa, Nebraska and North and South Dakota, while C. M. McFarland will cover the states of Wisconsin and Minnesota. Frank D. Patton will devote his undivided attention to Illinois, while E. C. Jeffress will do the boosting in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. E. C. Bolm is covering Missouri and Kansas, while Joe Lange is taking exercise in his old time stamping ground, Indiana and Kentucky.

Elaborate Dinner Given by Bobrow Brothers

On Sunday, January 6, an elaborate dinner was given by Bobrow Brothers, to their office force and representatives of the firm. It took place at the new and beautiful home of Harry Bobrow, senior member of the firm. The toastmaster of the occasion was A. M. Schwarz, advertising manager of Bobrow Brothers, who carried off the honors in first-rate style. Those responding were Harry and Charles Bobrow, G. McPalmer, L. M. Walters, W. A. Copple, E. A. Collins and Miss Rose Bobrow, head of the firm's office force. After the dinner the guests indulged in dancing, which concluded a most enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Several New Salesmen for 44 Cigar Company

With the opening of the new year, the 44 Cigar Company has taken on a number of new salesmen. They are F. D. Crawford, who will cover New York State, working out of Binghamton; M. Zander, Southern representative, with offices in Dallas, Texas, and James F. Cormany, who will work the Middle West east of the Rockies, working out of Savannah, Missouri.

They are now preparing to occupy their new addition, in which will be moved the offices. In Mr. Lipschutz's office will be placed a new mahogany desk and chair presented by the office force on Christmas.

Bagley Representative in New Quarters

S. Van Doren, sales manager in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware for the John J. Bagley Tobacco Factory, of Detroit, recently moved his Philadelphia headquarters to 412 Lippincott Building, Twelfth and Filbert Streets. He has a big crew of men working under him through Pennsylvania, pushing their new five-cent plug "Maple Dip." He is also meeting with much success in the pushing of their new brand of smoking tobacco "Old Colony."

Cressmans Appoint Another Eastern Traveler

A new representative for the "Counsellor" factory has been appointed in the person of J. G. Oliver. Mr. Oliver is a salesman of wide experience, having been with some of the largest firms in the country during the past twenty years. He will cover the eastern part of the country, traveling through New Jersey, New York and the New England States.

Tobacco Interests Unlimber Guns for Tariff Fight

JUDGING by the preparations under way by the various tobacco growers' associations in the cigar leaf states, the Ways and Means Committee on January 17 at Washington, D. C., will be fairly swamped with briefs and statistics showing them why they should not reduce the duty on wrapper or filler tobacco. On the other hand, they will have to take into consideration the claims of many leaf tobacco dealers and cigar manufacturers, who contend that the duty on imported tobacco is far too high. These interests are also well prepared for the hearing with data showing why the duty on imported tobacco should be reduced.

At a number of meetings recently held by the Lancaster Tobacco Growers' Association, by the Wisconsin Tobacco Planters, also the Clinton County Association of Pennsylvania, steps were taken to put the proposition squarely up to the law makers at Washington. The Connecticut growers have been preparing petitions which it is expected will be signed by more than one thousand tobacco growers, asking that the duty be left where it is.

Reports from other cigar leaf sections of the country, such as Florida, Georgia and Alabama, prove that these interests are also going to make themselves heard. A committee of Tampa cigar manufacturers will also be on hand.

New York Leaf Trade to Ask for $1 Wrapper Duty

THE New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade held one of the largest meetings in the history of that body on Friday, January 10. After Chairman Carl Wobbe had called the meeting to order a resolution was introduced by Ferdinand Cranz. It was seconded by E. A. Kraussman and voted upon immediately after, without discussion of any kind. The resolution was as follows:

"Resolved, That we favor a reduction of the duty on wrapper tobacco to $1 per pound, and that the chairman appoint a special committee consisting of seven members to take such action as may be necessary to obtain said reduction."

The committee as appointed by Mr. Wobbe is as follows: E. A. Kraussman, F. M. Dolbeer, Charles Vogt, S. Ruppin, J. H. Duys, F. Cranz and Charles Fox.

A resolution pertaining to the filler duty was then introduced by Charles Fox, reading as follows:

"Resolved, That we favor a change of the so-called fifteen per cent. clause in the present tariff so as to read: filler tobacco, when packed with twenty-five per cent. or less of wrapper tobacco, shall be assessed at filler rate, and that the term wrapper tobacco mean such tobacco as is commercially known as wrappers."

The resolution which was finally adopted favors a reduction of the duty on filler tobacco from thirty-five to twenty-eight cents.

It is understood that two briefs are to be filed by the committee which will go before the Ways and Means Committee. One will deal with the reduction on wrappers and the second one on the filler situation.

Lancaster and Phila. Leaf Interests Want Wrapper Reduction

THE Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade has been busily preparing the past two weeks for the tariff hearing before the Ways and Means Committee at Washington on January 17. The brief to be filed has been in the hands of John R. Young, ex-president of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, the secretary of the committee appointed by Julius Vetterlein, president of the Philadelphia Board of Trade. Mr. Vetterlein is an ex-officio member of the committee. Mr. Young has appeared before the Ways and Means Committees in other years when matters pertaining to the tobacco trade came before Congress and has had the necessary and most valuable experience for carrying the work to a successful conclusion.

In order that the tobacco growers and the dealers of Pennsylvania would present a united front on January 17, Mr. Young and Mr. Vetterlein attended a meeting of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade on Saturday night, January 11, and showed the Lancaster tobacco interests how a community of interests existed between the two sections, and how advantageous it would be to work together. The meeting was largely attended. The tobacco growers also had been invited and listened closely to the address of Mr. Young, who spoke for more than an hour. Mr. Vetterlein and A. B. Hess, of Lancaster, president of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, also made addresses. The growers had been inclined to ask that the duty on imported tobacco be retained, they asserting that were the duty on fillers lowered it would affect their output.

Mr. Young pledged that the committee representing the Philadelphia interests would ask only that the wrapper duty be put at $1 per pound or less and would not work for a lower duty on fillers.

As a result of the meeting the following resolutions were passed:

"Resolved, That the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade endorse the action of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade and the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade taken on the question in regard to the duty on imported wrapper tobacco, which is a reduction of the duty."

The Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade had been divided in opinion regarding the proposed reduction in the duty. As many of them are growers of tobaccos they did not favor any reduction, especially on fillers.

Connecticut Growers to Defend Present Wrapper Duty

TOBACCO growers from all over New England gathered in Hartford, Connecticut, on January 10, at the calling of a meeting by the New England Tobacco Growers' Association for the purpose of taking some steps to head off the possible reduction by Congress of the tariff on imported tobacco.

The session was held at Unity Hall and hundreds of tobacco growers of the states of Connecticut and Massachusetts attended. The movement against the reduction has spread widely through New England, and especially in Connecticut, for it will affect these growers more than any others. They contend that it will mean a complete change in their product, making it a binder rather than a wrapper tobacco, and that the price will undoubtedly drop about ten cents per pound. They assert that were Sumatra tobacco allowed in free, or even with a liberal reduction in the present duty, it would drive them out of business. For even now, with the tariff at $1.85 a pound, more than half of the cigars made in this country are wrapped in Sumatra leaf, they say.

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, WIS., January 10.

BUSINESS with the local retailers has been fairly good during the past two weeks.

Surman reports a nice trade at the Cuba Rica Cigar Store in the Wells Building. The "El Planco" continues to move well; the "La Palina" is also moving nicely.

Harry Ziegler reports a good business at the Wells Building and states business is gradually improving at his new stand in the Merchants and Manufacturers' Bank Building. He carries a nice line there, including the "Webster," "Tom Moore," "Alcazar," "Mi Lola," "Harvester" and a good line of nickel goods.

The United Cigar Stores Company are now settled in their new store in the Caswell Block. Business with them continues very good. Julius Horvath, who conducts the lobby stand in the Caswell Block, added several new brands during the past week, including the "Webster," "Mi Lola," "Harvester," "Alcazar" and "Tom Moore."

A. O. Meister is doing his usual business. The "Equity" and "Cinco" are still proving favorites.

Leo Abraham is doing nicely at Third Street and Grand Avenue. Joe Faiger is enjoying a short vacation and is visiting in New York. He is expected back about the twentieth, when he will take charge of the Third Street store. Oscar Chapman, formerly chief clerk, has been promoted to city salesman. Chap should make a success on the outside, as he is a jolly, likeable fellow.

Earl DeVore, who has been alternating with Joe Leiser as relief clerk at this store, will leave shortly for the Sunny South, where it is understood he will engage in the furniture business.

Fay Lewis & Brother Company are doing a very good business, both wholesale and retail. Sales on the "Webster," "El "Sidelo," "Tom Moore" and "Masterpiece" continue to increase.

Thoroughgood & Company, one of the largest cigar box factories in the West, located at Janesville, Wisconsin, are increasing their output and this week acquired space in Minneapolis, Minnesota, where a branch factory will be operated.

The Sparta Cigar Company, of Sparta, Wisconsin, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The assets of the firm are placed at $1333.50, of which $203.75 is exempt. Liabilities are $3366.28.

Arthur E. Buchanan resigned as Deputy Sheriff at Superior, Wisconsin, to take charge of the Tampa Cigar Store. He is one of the popular men about town, has for several years been in public life, and has a host of friends. He should do well in his new undertaking.

Edgerton, Wisconsin, is beginning to experience its usual activity. Already the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, P. Lorillard Company, McIntosh Brothers, W. S. Brill and Pomeroy & Pelton have opened their warehouses, while the new Eisenlohr warehouse will soon open with about three hundred hands.

Fred A. Greene succeeds William M. Chalmers as state representative of the Pinkerton Tobacco Company, Mr. Chalmers having been promoted to an important position at Toledo, Ohio. Mr. Greene was formerly connected with C. L. Culton.

N. Gillan, of York, Pennsylvania; L. Weil and son, Richard, of New York, and I. Lewis, of Newark, New Jersey, are visitors in the state looking after their purchases in the market.

O. A. KROMPAS.

Late Trade Items

The M. W. Rafferty Company, Canton, Illinois, have planned to expand their cigar factory, devoting more attention than ever before to their line of clear Havana products. The Spanish method introduced in 1912, will be used more extensively in the manufacture of these goods which have made a decided hit with the trade.

An up-to-date cigar store has been opened lately in the State Bank Building, Omaha, under the title of Durran Cigar Company. Among the brands featured are "La Venga," "Charles, the Great," "Henry, the Fourth," "Tom Moore," "Reio," and others, as well as a selected variety of nickel brands.

The Branch-King Cigar Company, located on Parrish Street, Durham, North Carolina, has dissolved partnership, Mr. Branch's interest in the business having been taken over by H. H. King, who will continue to manufacture cigars at the old stand. Mr. Branch is in business for himself, having recently opened a cigar factory in the Everett Building.

Bobrow Brothers Granted Injunction

IN the infringement suit recently brought by Bobrow Brothers, of Philadelphia, against Balis Brothers, of that city, for infringement of their trademark and label, the complainants alleging that the defendants by marketing a cigar under the title of "Balo," were imitating their "Bold" cigar, the court on December 31 last granted an injunction against Balis Brothers, which reads as follows:

"We do command you, the said Maurice Balis and Meyer Balis, copartners trading at Balis Brothers, not to use the word 'Balo' or other similar word, upon cigars or boxes containing the same, in imitation of complainant's trademark "Bold," and that you do not further use in unfair competition the label, Exhibit B, or any substantially similar thereto, in fraudulent imitation of complainant's said label, Exhibit A."

Bobrow Brothers claimed that the sale on the "Bold" cigar has been injured through the marketing of the "Balo," which dealers had been selling, being under the impression that they were handling the "Bold" cigar. Balis Brothers have agreed to the injunction and have replied that they will discontinue the manufacture and marketing of the brand.

New Factory for Martinez-Charles Company

A new cigar factory is to be erected in Jacksonville, Florida, by the Martinez-Charles Company. In addition to the factory buildings twenty-two cottages will be erected for the accommodation of the employees. As the majority of them will be either Spanish or of Spanish descent, one of the features of the settlement is to be a Spanish Club. According to the plans now under way, the factory will occupy two city blocks, the factory building itself to be three stories in height, with accommodations for one hundred people.

Frank P. Lewis Remembers Old Employees in Will

Under the terms of the last will made by the late Frank P. Lewis, head of the Lewis Cigar Company, of Peoria, Illinois, who died in that city several weeks ago, six of the oldest employees of the firm are beneficiaries of the will. The employees in question are to receive sums approximating $2600. The cigar manufacturing plant and all the remainder of the property is held in trust for the widow and her children.

Promotion for L. A. Sorg

L. A. Sorg, for some time division manager for the Liggett & Myers smoking tobaccos in the states of Oregon and Washington, has returned to the company headquarters in Chicago, where he becomes assistant to F. H. Ortman, vice-president and manager of the firm. G. M. Locke succeeds him on the Coast.

George Vitiach Sells Out

George Vitiach, the San Francisco cigar dealer, has sold his two stores in that city, and is now a representative of S. Bachman & Company, the wholesale house, of that city. He operated two stands in San Francisco and some time ago wrote a little skit on the cigar business on the Coast, which was commented upon and widely read by many.

A fire, supposed to be of incendiary origin, destroyed a five and one-half-acre tobacco shed belonging to W. Howard Barlow, of Buckland, Connecticut, last week. The loss will total fifteen hundred dollars, which is partially covered by insurance.

N. E. Nichols to Sell "La Sinceridads"

Arrangements have been made whereby N. E. Nichols, long known as the efficient general sales representative for the Philip Morris Cigarette Company has associated himself with Gonzalez & Fisher Company, and will in future cover all territory east of Denver for them in the interests of the "La Sinceridad" brand.

Mr. Nichols has been a popular figure in the tobacco field for a number of years, and he retired three years ago, to engage in another line of business. The call was strong, however, and when Gonzalez & Fisher Company made him a good offer, he determined to once again see his old friends in the trade. He left on his first trip on Sunday last.

New Building of Tobacco Company of California

The Tobacco Company of California, the cigar and tobacco distributing house of San Francisco, is planning to make itself felt during 1913. The concern has secured a good location in the wholesale and manufacturing section of the city at Second and Park Streets. A three-story concrete building will be erected on the site, at a cost of about $50,000, the entire building to be occupied by the company.

Jerome J. Foley Takes on "Bold"

The "Bold" cigar, manufactured by Bobrow Brothers, of Philadelphia, has been taken on by Jerome J. Foley, of Rochester, New York, who will make it his leading nickel brand. Mr. Foley had a wide experience in the cigar business and has made preparations to push the cigar heavily during 1913 in the city of Rochester and vicinity.

David Ellis, who has been conducting a cigar and tobacco jobbing house at 182 Main Street, Buffalo, New York, for the last twelve years, has resigned as secretary of the Haas Tobacco Company, of that city, to devote his time exclusively to the development of his own business.

Dearstyne Brothers Tobacco Company, of Albany, New York, report a heavy increase during 1912 on the distribution of the "Havana Ribbon" cigar over the preceding years.

M. Linkman & Company, the Chicago pipe manufacturing and wholesale house, will move into their new fireproof building at Wells and North Water Streets, that city, about March 1. Two large floors have been leased, which afford ample facilities for their factory, warerooms and offices.

E. J. Reardon & Brother, the Kansas City jobbing concern, has taken on the "Sight Draft" cigar, manufactured by W. K. Gresh & Sons, Norristown, Pennsylvania, formerly distributed in that territory by the Kansas City Cigar Company.

Prosperous Year for J. K. Thomas & Company

The jobbing house of J. K. Thomas & Company, of Norristown, Pennsylvania, report having closed a most successful year. This concern is one of the largest wholesale houses in that part of Pennsylvania and is the distributor of the following brands of cigars: The "Bold" and "Discriminator," Bobrow Brothers, Philadelphia; "Vesper" and "Lord Lancaster," Duff Brothers, Philadelphia; "Rose-O-Cuba," Fleck Cigar Company, Reading, Pennsylvania; "Sight Draft," W. K. Gresh & Sons, Norristown; and the "44" cigar, 44 Cigar Company, of Philadelphia.

Parker-Gordon Cigar Company to Have Memphis Branch

The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, the Middle West wholesale house, are contemplating opening a branch store in Memphis, Tennessee. C. R. Cameron, formerly connected with the Best & Russell Company, with Mr. Parker, of the wholesale house, will manage the Memphis store.

Disasterous Fire in Peoria, Ill. Wholesale District

In a disastrous fire which swept the wholesale district at Peoria, Illinois, on January 8, entailing a loss of $200,000, the Allen & Large Wholesale Cigar Company was one of the losers. The damage is said to be fully covered by insurance.

Changes Reported in Minneapolis Accounts

It is reported from Duluth, Minnesota, that R. U. Delaphena & Company, wholesale grocers, of Minneapolis, have turned over their cigar business to the Rust-Parker-Martin Company, of Duluth, who expect to open a branch jobbing house in Minneapolis.

S. Bernson & Company have been organized with $10,000 capital at Portland, Maine, by Jacob Shapiro and Samuel Bernson, to engage in the wholesale cigar and tobacco business in that city.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by the Sparta Cigarette Company, of Lacrosse, Wisconsin. The company's assets are reported as $1333.50, and liabilities, $3356.28.

The cigar privileges of the Maxwell House Hotel, Nashville, Tennessee, have been leased by the Best & Russell Company for a number of years, with Ed. J. Fuller, formerly employed by the old management, in charge.

"Rey-Oma" and "Dulce" will be strongly featured by the Central Cigar Company, which opened for business last week on Union Street, Nashville, Tennessee.

The Pinkerton Tobacco Company has appointed Fred E. Green, of Janesville, Wisconsin, to take care of their interests in the Wisconsin field. Mr. Green succeeds Mr. Chalmers, who goes to Toledo, Ohio, for the same company.

Niles & Moser and Rothenberg & Schloss Take Over Stickney Business and Put in American Cigar Company's Lines—United Cigar Manufacturers Open New Distributing House in Kansas City, Missouri

DETAILS of one of the biggest deals ever consummated in the wholesale cigar business of this country have been announced during the past week by the Niles & Moser Cigar Company, of Kansas City.

The first announcement of this impending change was published in the January 1 issue of the TOBACCO WORLD, when it was stated that Messrs. Spietz & Worch had withdrawn from the Spietz & Worch branch of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, of Detroit, and had secured quarters to open up a new factory for themselves.

Back of this announcement of the WORLD was a very significant move which has resulted in Niles & Moser consolidating with Rothenberg & Schloss, big distributors of Kansas City, Missouri, and the taking over of the wholesale and retail cigar business of the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, with headquarters at St. Louis.

Spietz & Worch, in their new factory, will continue to make the "Hand Made" five-cent cigars for the Niles & Moser Company. Approximately sixteen million of this brand were distributed last year.

The consolidation has brought about a big change in the distribution of cigars in the territory west of the Mississippi. The connections of the Niles & Moser Company with the United Cigar Manufacturers Company have been severed and a number of brands of cigars manufactured by the American Cigar Company as well as several big independent factories, will be substituted for such well-known brands at "Tom Moore," "Robert Burns," "Little Tom," "Henry George," and a number of other private brands made by the United Cigar interests.

The change has necessitated the United Cigar Manufacturers Company making new distributing connections in Kansas City to handle the trade through Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Nebraska. It is announced that a new branch of the Best & Russell Company, of Chicago, has been opened on Broadway, Kansas City, Missouri, under the management of A. B. Adair, who will look after the distribution of the United brands in that territory. C. J. Duddleston succeeds A. B. Adair in the Best & Russell branch at Memphis, Tennessee.

In Denver, the distribution of the United's brands will be taken care of exclusively for the present by the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, which for a long time has been handling some of the "U. M." brands.

In explaining the big deal, E. S. Moser, of the Niles & Moser Cigar Company, denied that the new combination would be controlled by the American Cigar Company, although he admitted that a number of their leading brands would be handled in place of the United's. He states that the break with the United Cigar Manufacturers Company came as the result of a disagreement that has been brewing for some time.

The house of the William A. Stickney Cigar Company is one of the oldest and most prosperous in St. Louis. Under the new deal the Stickney branches at Kansas City and Denver will be closed, but the St. Louis headquarters will be conducted under the original name, with A. T. Stickney, former vice-president, in charge, and the Salt Lake City branch will be continued with S. G. Stickney, a brother, in an executive position. William A. Stickney, head of the house, retired from business after forty years' connection, and will devote the remainder of his years to recreation and travel.

It is understood that Rothenberg & Schloss acquire a half interest in the Stickney business jointly with the Niles & Moser Company. In Denver, the Niles & Moser Cigar Company have taken possession of the Stickney business and announce that they will handle the "La Preferencia," "Chancellor," "Permit," "Principe de Gales" (American Cigar Company); "Flor de Valentine" (A. S. Valentine & Son), "Tungsten" (Jeitles & Blumenthal), "La Mega" (V. Guerra, Diaz & Company), "Cinco" (Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers), "Sancha y Haya" (Cuesta, Rey & Co.), "Webster" (Pendas & Alvarez), "San Felice" and "El Verso" (Deisel-Wemmer Company), and a number of other independent brands.

The Stickney headquarters, at Denver, have been closed and the business has been taken over by the Niles & Moser Company, under the management of Andrew P. Niles.

In Kansas City, Missouri, Niles & Moser and Rothenberg & Schloss will continue to operate their businesses under the old names. It is also announced that the Southwestern Cigar Company, of Dallas, which is controlled jointly by Niles & Moser and Rothenberg & Schloss, will be continued.

Maurice Wertheim, vice-president of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, who was in Kansas City, January 4, announced that their new local distributors would likely put up a building to handle their business exclusively.

Niles & Moser Cigar Company Purchase Omaha Store

THE Niles & Moser Cigar Company, of Kansas City and Omaha, which recently bought out the William A. Stickney business at St. Louis, has taken over the cigar store of George Rogers, at 1506 Farnam Street, Omaha, Nebraska, which will be used as one of the jobbing centres of the concern.

The Rogers purchase is said to involve about $125,000, and will complete a string of wholesale houses owned by the Niles & Moser Company, combined with the Rothenberg & Schloss Company, Kansas City, extending from St. Louis to Salt Lake City, and as far South as Dallas, Texas. George Rogers is taken into the firm by the new owners and will retain the management of his store and will also assume charge of the jobbing and retail business already established in Omaha by Niles & Moser.

This latest acquisition makes the third store in Omaha for the large jobbing house, one at Sixteenth and Farnam Streets, one at the Loyal Hotel and the Rogers store, which will be run under Niles & Moser's name.

Trying to Readjust Havana Freight Rates

Rene Berndes, Leslie Pantin and Mark A. Pollack have been appointed a committee by the Association of Leaf Dealers, Havana, to convene with the agents of the Ward Line, relative to the dissatisfaction in the trade over the recent advance in freight rates on tobacco. One of the requests of the committee was that the order be suspended until the first of February, but this was refused. A rumor to the effect that a competitive line will be formed is in circulation.

CARLOS M. WINTZER, the well-known authority on the Havana leaf tobacco and cigar market, has compiled an approximate statement of the movement of last year's receipts of tobacco, sales and stocks on hand, which follows:

Stock on hand on January 1, 1912, in first hands estimated		40,000 bales
Receipts by railroad and by steamer during the year		478,254

We beg to add, that we have taken round numbers in this table, and also that in the previous years to 1912, there has not been figured the consumption of the two provinces of Santa Clara and Oriente (or formerly called Santiago de Cuba).

Cleveland

First Week of 1913 Starts off Well for Tobacconists—Stace & Vincent New Location to be One of the Finest in Middle West—With Heaviest Rush Over, Shields & Wertheim Prepare for New Year

CLEVELAND, OHIO, January 10.

THE dealers around these parts are all wearing the "smile that won't come off." The reason is that everyone is looking forward to 1913 as the banner year in the history of cigar and tobacco industry. The first week of the new year has started off with a rush.

To go back a little, as you didn't hear from Cleveland in the last issue, I want to say that the Christmas business in this city, especially with the large down-town dealers, was the largest in years, but outlying retailers complain of the slack in box trade owing to a great many consumers purchasing from the larger down-town stores. On the whole, it was a gala season and the "kicks" were very few.

The Stace & Vincent Company's new location in the Alhambra Building, corner of Euclid and 105th Street, will be one of the finest billiard parlors and cigar shops in the Middle West. They are going to have twenty-two pool and billiard tables, a private room with two tables for ladies and also for private parties. It will be finished in mahogany, with plenty of seats and cozy corners. The writer has looked over the blue prints of same and from their looks we believe it will be one of the most beautiful in the United States. This makes number three for Stace & Vincent. They say that after they are properly settled they will open number four. They are clever young men and well liked. They have made a success of their undertakings so far.

The rush is over with the Shields & Wertheim Company and they are now having a little breathing spell. They are anticipating a very heavy trade for the new year.

The Stein Cigar Company, corner Euclid and East Fifty-fifth Street, are very happy over the holiday business they have done and agree with all of us that it sure was "some holiday season."

Manager Joe Levy, of the Williamson store of the Jenkinson Company, reports that his December business was $1500 larger this month than ever before in the history of his twelve years' connection with this company.

Mr. Roland, the manager of the Jenkinson Company's stores, says their business was unusually big and everyone is satisfied.

Mr. Parker, manager of the Hotel Statler cigar stand, reports after a most successful holiday season. Their New Year's business has opened up splendidly. The hotel is full and there is always a crowd around the cigar stand.

The Campbell Cigar Company, of Akron, Ohio, distributors of the "White Knight" cigars, made by the Neuman & Mayer Company, of Philadelphia, are reporting increased business right along on this brand and have lately added a delivery wagon owing to the increase in business. Mr. John T. Campbell, president of the company, is going East to visit his friends. This firm has instituted quite a novel form of advertising on the "White Knight" cigar. Namely, in three different localities of Akron they have a five-gallon fish globe with about $100 worth of coins in each jar. The prizes accordingly will be distributed to the lucky guesser.

I. J. Mittelberger, with the Neuman & Mayer Company, is spending the week in Detroit assisting their distributors, the E. I. Stahl Cigar Company, on their "Bella Mundo" cigars.

Frank Gleichman, of the Boltz-Clymer Company, has just placed his "El Palencia" with the Louis Klein Cigar Company.

The Pyle & Allen Company report conditions exceedingly good. Their holiday business was larger than any previous year. Business in their new store, corner Prospect and East Fourth Streets, is coming along fine. Holiday business there was very fine and they are doing exceedingly well ever since they have opened.

The wholesale business of the Pyle & Allen Company was also very good. They weren't able to fill all their holiday orders and were short on "Sanchez and Haya" goods. They are also way behind on their "New Bachelors" and were unable to get enough to supply the holiday orders. All through the summer months they were one hundred thousand behind.

Their wholesale men started out for the new year and they, as well as other salesmen for other houses, report business very good for the first week of 1913. They all feel that general business conditions are much better than a year ago. Collections are much better and there seems to be more money in circulation. The Pyle & Allen Company feel that the way the fall and winter business has started out, this is going to be the biggest year since they have been in business.

Mr. Snyder, of the Snyder Cigar Company, was in town one day last week in the interest of his business. The Snyder stores have had a very good season and they feel this is going to continue.

Everything went off great with George B. Scrambling Company, and they are looking forward to 1913 doing still bigger things.

J. C. Thompson, secretary of the Beam-Dean Cigar Company, of Canton, Illinois, has resigned his position as secretary of the concern after seventeen years of continuous service.

Baltimore

Cigar Dealers Report That Year Just Closed Has Been a Good One—Latest Doings Among the Big Stands Around Town

BALTIMORE, January 10.

THE year just ending has been most gratifying to the cigar dealers in the business section. Every dealer has exceeded his best years. Monday and Tuesday of Christmas week were the largest days, which naturally was a surprise as every one was of the opinion that the large buying was over.

Lilly, Dungan & Company, at both stores, had the largest business they have ever had. The "Reynaldo," "L. L. D." and "Encore" sold beyond their expectation. The brands are made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia.

Ed. Micheau, manager for Yearley's cigar stand, reports a good business on high grade cigars and cigarettes.

S. J. Purzer, Calvert and Centre Streets, had a very gratifying Christmas business, and his new five-cent brand, "Cal-Cen," has proved a very good repeater.

Edward Rouse, manager of the cigar department for Hopper, McGaw & Company, is spending several weeks in Havana, Cuba, in the interest of Hopper, McGaw & Company.

Mr. W. Truson Davis is again seen hustling in the interest of Wm. Brehm & Son.

William D. Lilly, of the firm of Lilly, Dungan & Company, has been confined to his home for several days with an attack of the grippe.

H. O. Schaniger, cigar manufacturer, Gayety Theatre Building, is now well pleased with his "Record" cigar, made in three sizes, which has made a record for itself.

J. W. W. Cole, of North Calvert Street, states his "Roland Park" is making great progress with the dealers and consumers.

Edward F. Ward, division manager for the American Tobacco Company, was married December 27, to Miss Edna Regan, of Jersey City. Mr. and Mrs. Ward have just returned from the Bermuda Islands. Mr. Ward is pushing the "Omar" cigarette.

Louis M. Silver, representing Neudecker Tobacco Company, who is in charge of the pipe department, reports a very healthy condition.

The recent visitors were D. Harry Moulsdale, of Sanchez & Haya Company, Tampa, Florida; Joseph Skelly, of the American Tobacco Company; W. S. Luckett, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia, and Mr. Jacobs, of Mendez & Gomez, Porto Rico; also Mr. Channing F. Lilly, of Denver, Colorado, representative of M. Melachrino & Company.

Deisel-Wemmer Company May Have Another Plant

With the completion of their new Findlay, Ohio, plant, the Deisel-Wemmer Cigar Company, of Lima, Ohio, will increase the force of their employees of the concern to nearly four thousand. Plans are now under way to establish another plant in one of the larger centres of population in order to fill the many back orders which they now have in hand. There has been a phenomenal run on the "San Felice" and "El Verso" cigars made by the Deisel-Wemmer Company during the past year and the output has been oversold for a number.

Taylor Brothers Purchase Whitaker-Harvey Plant

Taylor Brothers, of Winston, North Carolina, have acquired the entire tobacco manufacturing business of the Whitaker-Harvey Company, of that city. Taylor Brothers have been one of the largest manufacturers in Winston for several years, but were recently wiped out by a disastrous fire. They will market their own brands in addition to those of the Whitaker-Harvey Company. The former employees and salesmen are to be retained. The change in the affairs of the Whitaker-Harvey Company was caused by the recent death of its president, W. A. Whitaker.

Re-organization of United Cigar Stores Co. Now Complete

All Outstanding Stock Now Turned in—George J. Whelan Speaks on Conditions in Trade as Affecting the Chain Store System

ALL outstanding stock of the old corporation of the United Cigar Stores has now been turned in, which completes the reorganization of the concern. Dissolution papers were filed in Albany, New York, several weeks ago. This means that all the stock of the corporation of the United Cigar Stores is now owned by the United Cigar Stores Company of America. All details of the plan outlined in a circular issued by the corporation on July 25 last have been put into effect.

George J. Whelan, organizer of the United Cigar Stores Company, sailed for Europe recently on a short business trip, accompanied by Solomon Schinasi, the cigarette manufacturer. Previous to his sailing Mr. Whelan had some rather pointed remarks to make on the tobacco trade generally, particularly as regards the policies to be followed out by the United management. Concerning the latter, he said:

"The whole situation in the tobacco industry has been changed as a result of the dissolution of the old American Tobacco Company in compliance with the ruling of the United States Supreme Court. The United Cigar Stores Company has been forced to put itself in a position to fight its battles alone. I myself can see nothing but a reasonable advantage of this company as a result of that condition.

"This company is being molded on the idea of permanency. That has been the motto of its directors in the past and will continue to be the plan worked upon in years to come. We care nothing about what the pursuance of such a policy may do in the way of affecting its market value.

"The United is a growing concern. We have recently declared a dividend of one and one-fourth per cent. and an extra dividend of one-half of one per cent. The one and one-fourth per cent. rate quarterly is the regular dividend. From time to time we will declare such extra dividends as the business of the company warrants and directors think wise. If at any time the management is of the belief that earnings can best be utilized in the business instead of being paid out to stockholders it is its duty to so use them. The United must continue as in the past to preserve a large cash balance.

"Those who have benefited by investing in the United, have done so because of the growth of the business; and this very growth is the result of the building up of the permanent friendship of consumers and employes. We have been successful because of the infinite care we have taken of the purchasing public in our stores and paying the employes in our stores earnings greater than any other company in the world pays its employes on the average.

"I can see no reason why the company should not grow at the same proportionate rate in years to come as it has in the past. I am firmly of the opinion that the organization of the company as it stands today is at its highest efficiency. The United's management has no interest whatsoever in the price of the stock and I repeat that people should not buy the stock on its cash dividend prospects, but rather upon what the future holds forth.

"Those who have profited by their investments in the United Cigar Stores have done so because of their very willingness to hold the stock for an extended period, and the company will continue to be managed in the interests of its permanent shareholders and the public."

Second Store in Toledo for Joseph T. Snyder

Joseph T. Snyder, the retail cigar store chain operator, has secured a lease of 302 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio, and will open his second Toledo store at that location about February 1.

S. L. Uhrig Tobacco Company to Lease New Location

The S. L. Uhrig Tobacco Company, of Pittsfield, Massachusetts, has taken a lease of a building on West Street, that city, and after changes have been made, it will be occupied as their new quarters. They are manufacturers, but a wholesale and retail department of the plant will be opened later. The president of the concern is W. E. Putnam.

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that the tobacco trade enjoyed the best business during the holidays in its history, there has not been any marked cessation of activities during the last week. In spite of a record breaking year and the belief that the trade would be slack after the holidays, factories are still working a full force and in some cases it is said that the supply of labor cannot meet the demand. Many of the large cigar stores in the "loop" were virtually cleaned of stock during the holidays, and as a result they have been re-ordering with a vim. The first two weeks of the new year find manufacturers, jobbers and retailers satisfied with conditions and all look forward to even a greater business during 1913 than last year.

A rumor that Wengler & Mandell, manufacturers, had sold out is denied by them. This concern is now erecting a modern sanitary factory on West Madison Street, near Robey, and are anticipating a decided increase in business. Mr. Wengler has just returned from Cuba, where he purchased two thousand bales from San Juan, Martinez, San Lui, Pilotos and Reo Seco districts, which grow the finest Veulta Abajo tobacco in Cuba. He also purchased five hundred bales from the Partido district. The firm has mailed hundreds of letters denying the sale.

The United Cigar Stores Company has just acquired two new stores in Chicago at Sixty-third and Halsted Streets and Adams and Halsted.

E. G. Bennett, former cigar salesman, has been made general Chicago manager of the Oppenheimer Cigar Company, of Saginaw, Michigan. This concern has just moved its office and stock room from the North American Building to more convenient quarters on La Salle Street, near Madison. Mr. Bennett has a wide acquaintance among the Chicago trade and his host of friends are confident that he will show results in his new position from the start.

Many in the trade are mourning the death of Frank P. Lewis, the Peoria cigar manufacturer.

In the future the local and Milwaukee territory will be in charge of J. L. Goldsmith for H. Duys & Company.

Barron Brothers, manufacturers of "High Sovereign" Havana cigars, have moved into their new factory at West Van Buren and Robey Streets.

La Posenda Cigar Company has been incorporated with $2500 capital. The incorporators are Millard J. Roberts, Walter I. Kanaby and Edward J. Pauler.

Samuel Paley, of the Congress Cigar Company, has gone to Havana to look over his tobacco holdings and make additional purchases. The Congress Cigar Company has enjoyed a marked increase in business since it moved into its new factory building.

Leo Schoenman, the well known salesman for Celestino Vega & Company, was united in marriage recently to Miss Stella Berlau at Paris, Illinois. Mr. and Mrs. Schoenman are now in Cuba on their wedding trip.

M. Linkman & Company, pipe manufacturers and wholesalers, plan to move about March 1 into the new fireproof building at Wells and North Water Streets. Two floors have been leased for factory, warerooms and offices.

P. Berkowitz, manager of the cigar department of Siegel, Cooper & Company, was recently united in marriage to Miss E. Klein and the couple are now in the East on their honeymoon.

Edward C. Berriman, who has been visiting the factory at Tampa, Florida, has departed from that point with his wife for the Panama Canal.

David Ritter, formerly with Emanuel Hoffman & Son, is now a traveling salesman for Schroeder, Reiss & Company, Chicago, with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Ritter will cover the Middle West territory.

Arthur E. Ariel will assist Joseph Carlisle in the latter's territory for A. Santaella y Ca. Mr. Ariel will cover the territory in which Clarence Hirschhorn & Company distribute the Santaella products.

C. R. Cameron, formerly manager of Best & Russell Company's Memphis staff, is now manager of the new branch of the Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, which has just been opened.

Jerome Windmueller, of the Salvador Sanchez Company factory, at Tampa, recently conferred in Chicago with his associate, A. J. Meyers.

Francisco Bolano, head of the Tampa factory of Francisco Bolano y Ca, conferred recently in Chicago with his associates, Mr. Seckback and Greenbaum, regarding plans for the extension of the concern's facilities.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hirschhorn have returned to Chicago after spending the holidays in the East.

C. M. Daily is now connected with the cigar department at the Grand Pacific Hotel. To accept this position he resigned as manager of the Boulevard Cigar Shop.

One thousand six hundred and one cigarette licenses have been taken out so far this year. The tax is $100 per annum, payable every January, irrespective of the time of the year a store may have started up in business.

The "Chicago Tribune" in a special edition issued December 31 gives the result of an exhaustive investigation that it made at the close of the year regarding the tobacco trade. "The increase has been most marked in the sale of cigarettes," says the "Tribune." "Men who have always smoked cigars and scorned cigarettes are rapidly discarding their old habits and adopting the smaller smoke. Probably the most important reason is the fact that the cost of one good Havana cigar may be divided up into ten or twenty short, but equally satisfactory smokes, when cigarettes are purchased. The sales of women's cigarettes have decreased. This apparently should quiet the men and women who delight in criticising Chicago society women and accusing them of indulging in paper pipes on the sly or among their friends. The manufacture and sale of high-grade cigars in Chicago showed a big increase in 1912 over the preceding year. Pipe smokers are not increasing and sales of the various brands of tobacco used by them have not increased except in certain instances, where advertising was carried on extensively. Taking into consideration the more general use of tobacco, it is safe to predict a record year during 1913."

In a fire that did damage to the amount of $75,000 to a building in West South Water Street, T. Altschul & Company, cigar manufacturers, sustained a slight loss from the blaze.

John W. Walters, Wichita, Kansas, representative for Best & Russell Company, passed through Chicago en route for New York to visit his family, who are stopping in the "Big City." Mr. Walters will be in Chicago again about January 15.

George Krebs, of 4937 Calumet Avenue, "The Red Top Agent," has been confined to his home with a severe cold and does not expect to be able to attend to his business before the fifteenth of January.

John F. Burns, of Burns & Goldfuss, will leave for Panama via New Orleans the middle of the month. He expects to be gone two months.

Best & Russell have added the "Little Babbie," five cent cigar, packed in tins, which are selling big throughout the city.

In making the rounds for information with regard to holiday business for 1912, as compared with 1911, the following firms reported:

Best & Russell Company, ahead of 1911; Albert Breitung, ahead of 1911; John J. Dolan, even with 1911; Hillman's, ahead of 1911; The Fair, ahead of 1911; Boston Store, ahead of 1911; Simon Lichtenstein, even with 1911; Sam Marco, even with 1911; Tom Jones Cigar Store, ahead of 1911; Wengler & Mandell, ahead of 1911; Peter J. Bauer, ahead of 1911; W. E. Ward, even with 1911; Fred. L. Wells, even with 1911; Burns & Goldfuss, ahead of 1911; Walter R. Eagle, even with 1911; Home Drug Company, ahead of 1911; Monroe Cigar Company, ahead of 1911; Hittell Brothers, behind 1911; Lillienfeld Brothers Company, even with 1911.

Sidney Hirschheimer, of Hirschheimer Brothers, Pittsfield, Illinois, was a visitor to the wholesale trade this past week.

H. Biederman, who makes the "Cliquot" and "Banker," says that post-holiday business has been better than for years. The retail trade generally is well cleaned up with Christmas goods and after judging their sales compared with other years most of the cigar store people are more than satisfied with results.

All of the local factories have finished their inventories and the general consensus of expression is to the effect that while stock has been high and expenses have increased, the general business of the year has been satisfactory.

Louis Loewenstein, the Main Street manufacturer of "Red Hand" and "Hand Made," was laid up for a couple of days last week. He is far from a well man and sickness has interfered much with his business during the past year.

Another fire, this time in the Carlisle Building, interfered with the business of the Henry Straus store in the Union Trust Building. The traffic has been blocked in front of this store for over a week.

J. Stacey Hill has secured an extension of his lease on the property at Fourth and Walnut Streets, one of the busiest corners in this city. The Hills have had a lease on this site for twenty-five years and use it as an outlet for their factory. Mr. Hill states the interior of the building will be modernized and that he intends to make it one of the most attractive stores in the downtown district.

The vanguard of the drummers is fast approaching this city for the placing of their new year's business. January 15 is about the time when the early birds put in an appearance. So far there have been only a scattering few of the outside boys on the road show up. This week will see a general buzzing for orders.

Suit has been filed in the Common Pleas Court of this county by the Burley Tobacco Society against the E. O. Eshelby Tobacco Company. They ask for a judgment of $12,583 on a contract entered into in 1908, relative to the sale of the pooled tobacco of the two years previous. $9876 is claimed on fifty-one hogsheads delivered at Georgetown of the 1907 crop; $2239 is claimed on twelve hogsheads delivered in 1909.

Among the names of the persons who will take in the Chamber of Commerce trade extension trip to Panama, Jamaica and Cuba and other points of Latin America, is Michael Ibold.

In the United States court the respondent in the involuntary bankruptcy proceedings of the Booker Tobacco Company, of Virginia, against C. V. Barnes, Cincinnati tobacco dealer, has filed a schedule of assets and liabilities. The assets are given as $5558; of this $5499 is in unsecured claims.

Two or three of the local tobacco people are arranging to go to Washington, January 17, when Schedule F, concerning tobacco and its manufacture, will be heard.

Confirmation was received here of the sale of a million pounds of Burley tobacco, at Maysville, Kentucky. The stock was in the hands of the farmers of Fleming County, and was sold to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. Three million pounds of Mason County tobacco is said to be off.

Receipts on the internal revenue tax for the first district of Ohio for tobacco and cigars shows a decrease for last year. In 1911 the receipts were $2,796,933 on tobaccos, and in 1912 $2,635,749. On cigars in 1911, $121,351; in 1912, $120,401.

Tampa Manufacturers to Attend Tariff Hearing

ON the recommendation of S. M. Sparkman, representative in Congress from Florida, the Tampa Board of Trade, acting in conjunction with the Cigar Manufacturers' Association, has appointed a committee of cigar manufacturers to go to Washington, January 17, and appear before the Ways and Means Committee of the House. On that day the tobacco schedule of the tariff bill is to be considered. The committee is as follows: A. L. Cuesta, chairman; M. W. Berriman, A. Santaella, Edward Wodiska and E. J. Stachelberg. The committee will go prepared to argue the cigar tariff question and to present facts and figures in support of their claims.

Is Influential Western Dealer

THE retail cigar dealers of the western part of the country, known as the Western Association of Retail Cigar Dealers, is meeting in the city of Seattle, Washington, on January 14 and 15, to elect officers and discuss plans for the ensuing year. One man who perhaps more than any other will be the biggest factor in the convention, is the president of the body, James R. Brewster, whose likeness is shown below. He owns and operates two cigar stores in Seattle, one at Third and Union Streets and another at 810 First Avenue.

James R. Brewster

Mr. Brewster has done much for the association of which he is president, having been one of the pioneers in the forming of that body. He has worked hard in its interest and his friends assert that he should be rewarded by re-election to the office he now occupies. Mr. Brewster, however, takes a different view of the matter, saying that owing to a precedent established by the Seattle branch of the association, he will not be a candidate for re-election. But his friends say that with the experience he has had during the past year, he is the logical man for the office, precedent or no precedent.

The "Juan de Fuca" cigar, which is one of the big cigars of Mr. Brewster, is manufactured by a concern in which he is personally interested, the Morgan Cigar Company, of Tampa, Florida. The brand has a wide distribution in that section of the West and is pushed hard by many of the more prominent dealers.

New Connections for Little Pet Stogie Company

The Little Pet Stogie Company, of Wheeling, West Virginia, have appointed W. J. Gilmore Drug Company as their distributors in Pittsburgh and vicinity. Morris Burke, the well-known cigar broker of Los Angeles, California, will represent them on the Pacific Coast. The state of Kentucky will be covered for them by the W. B. Chasteen Brokerage Company, of Lexington, Kentucky.

Following an attack of pneumonia, the death occurred recently, at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, of Nathaniel S. Groff, a tobacco grower and packer. He is survived by a widow and six grandchildren. Interment was in the Lutheran Cemetery at Neffsville.

Seattle

Dwyer & Co., Who Entered Wholesale Field Recently, Report Satisfactory Progress—Dave McInnes, of Dungeness, Sells Store—"Juan de Fuca" Sells Well

SEATTLE, January 8.

DEALERS report trade somewhat quiet in Western Washington. Dwyer & Company, who recently went into the wholesale cigar business here, are meeting with big success. Joe F. Dwyer, of the firm, is well known among the cigar trade, having been manager of the Seattle branch for Mason Ehrman Company. W. J. Levenhagen, the other member of the firm, is also well known among the cigar and tobacco trade, having been with the American Tobacco Company for many years. They report a big business on the "Banner Oak," union made ten-cent cigar.

There are some very attractive window displays around the city in "Union Scout" scrap.

A. J. Innis, of Tacoma, Washington, reports a very big business on his "A. J. Innis Special," a cigar manufactured for him by a local manufacturer. Mr. Innis also does a very big business on union-made goods. He recently added to his stock the following brands: "Winegold," "Union Scout Scrap," "Union Scout Plug," "Forex" and "Country Club."

G. A. Hedreen, who recently opened up a store in Port Angeles, Washington, reports a very big business on cigars, of which his leaders are the "Optimo" and the "Lovera." Port Angeles is having a very big boom at present.

Fred Riese, the cigarette man who is always on the job increasing the sale of "Fatimas," returned from San Francisco, where he spent several days on business.

Granted Drawback Allowances on Cigarette Books

BY order issued December 31, the Treasury Department granted a drawback allowance on cigarette books known as Oriental, manufactured by the Western Pipe Company, of Chicago, Illinois, with the use of imported cigarette paper. In his instructions to the collector of customs at Chicago, regarding the drawback, Assistant Secretary Curtis said:

"In liquidation, the quantity of imported cigarette paper which may be taken as a basis for payment of drawback may equal the quantity claimed in the drawback entry, provided it shall not exceed one ream of imported paper, 20 x 30 inches to 630 books of 100 pages each, size 2 13/16 x 1 10/16 inches."

A. B. Smith Offers Fifteen Per Cent. Settlement

A hearing on the voluntary petitions in bankruptcy of A. B. Smith & Company, of Boston, Massachusetts, was held recently, at which time Charles H. Morris was appointed trustee in the personal petition and Frank L. Brier, trustee in the petition of the corporation. It is understood that Mr. Smith has offered a tentative offer of fifteen per cent. in settlement.

William Deiches & Company in New Building

William Deiches & Company are now occupying their splendid new warehouse on Eutaw Street, Baltimore. Consisting of a large double building, with four floors and basement, it provides 20,000 square feet of floor space, compared with 5500 in their former building. According to Herbert Deiches, the year 1912 was a very prosperous one for the firm.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the British-American Tobacco Company, in London, a final dividend of eight per cent. out of the net earnings of the company for the fiscal year ending September 30, last, was confirmed. The dividend was payable January 7.

Final Revenue Figures Show Decrease of About 16,000,000 Cigars in 1912 Over Production of 1911—The Exchange Cigar Company Goes Out of Business—The Local Leaf House of Emilio Suarez & Co. Closed

FINAL figures on the cigar output for the year 1912, computed from the internal revenue sales, which include local consumption and cigars shipped in less than case lots, give a grand total of a little less than 277,000,000, which is a decrease from the output of 1911, which year broke all previous records. The year 1911 was an abnormal one, owing to the fact that the strike had just been settled and there was an unprecedented demand for Tampa cigars.

One of the most enjoyable recent events in cigar circles was the annual banquet of Cuesta, Rey & Company, given at the Hotel Atlanta, West Tampa, Monday night. The members of the firm, the heads of departments, the traveling men and a number of invited guests were present. Hugh C. Macfarlane, the "father of West Tampa," and a stockholder in the company, was toastmaster, and Mayor McKay, of Tampa, and Mayor J. D. Macfarlane, of West Tampa, were among the guests. At the meeting of the stockholders of the company the same day, A. L. Cuesta, Jr., son of the head of the firm, was elected a member of the board of directors. Young Cuesta has been working in various capacities in the factory, learning the business "from the ground up."

Two quiet weeks have attended the holiday season, but this week found the factories again in operation, with reasonably full forces. Orders for immediate delivery are rapidly coming in and the manufacturers do not anticipate any dull periods this year.

J. R. Burns, of the Lozano traveling force, spent a week in the city incident to the holidays.

J. D. Rush, of Reading, Pennsylvania, who is one of the stockholders in the Tornay-Fernandez Company, is in Tampa, attending to important matters at the factory.

Harry Culbreath, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, came in to spend the holidays at home and has just started out on another extended trip. Harry Robare, who represents this firm on the Pacific Coast, also spent a few days at the local factory.

Jerome Windmuller has been in Chicago for ten days. He is the manager and resident partner of Salvador Sanchez & Company, and went to Chicago to visit relatives and, at the same time, discuss business matters with A. J. Meyers.

A. Santaella was a prominent visitor last week. He found everything in good shape at the factory, the books showing a record-breaking output of "Optimos" for the past year and every prospect of a heavier demand this year.

The new clubhouse of the Centro Espanol in West Tampa opens with a grand ball Saturday night. This is the second clubhouse of this organization in Tampa, the other, in Ybor City, having been opened about two months ago.

Manuel Lopez, Jr., of the Lopez, Hermanos & Company factory, is expected to return daily from New York, where he went to spend Christmas.

Jose Lozano and H. S. Foley, of the Lozano factory, have returned from New York, where they went for a holiday visit.

Fernando Rodriguez has been in the city since the first of the year and will remain here several months. The "Charles the Great" factory is one of the busiest in the city and predicts a wonderful record for 1913.

Francisco Arango, of Havana, and Jose Arango, of Tampa, went to New York to attend the banquet given for the heads of departments by the officers of the Havana-American Company.

Edward Berriman spent holiday week in the city, but has returned home. Matthew Berriman came in a few days before New Year's and will be here until the committee of cigar manufacturers, of which he is a member, leaves for Washington.

Lawrence Gunst is in New York, but will return in about a week. He has been discussing the outlook with other members of the Gunst house while in that city.

Leon Schoeneman, traveling man for Celestino Vega & Company, has been making a brief visit to the local La Venga factory. He came here from Havana and will resume his work on the road at once.

The Exchange Cigar Company has gone out of business. The stockholders in the company were George Green, Harry Hunt, Elmo Ceconi and W. J. Fitzpatrick.

The local leaf house of Emilio Suarez & Company has been finally closed, Emilio Suarez coming here from New York to attend to the details. Ramon Menendez, who has been in charge here, goes to the Havana branch.

The Jose Lovera factory has a rush of nice orders and will put out some large special shipments early in the year.

Edward Wodiska is preparing to leave for Washington with the manufacturers committee. He has been here for more than a month and has everything running smoothly at the "Julia Marlowe" factory. Recently Mr. Wodiska entertained here Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Hammer, and Elmer C. Phillips, the office manager of the firm.

Frank W. Hopper, Edgar S. Wouse, of Baltimore, connected with the large house of Hopper, McGraw & Company, of that city, were visitors to Tampa last week, and were entertained by Charles Castillo, of San Martin & Leon.

Francis Bolano has been in Chicago for some time. It is expected that on his return announcement will be made of the building of a new factory for that firm, the business having far outgrown the present quarters.

Joseph W. Whitley, formerly with the M. A. Gunst Company, is now with the Tampa-Cuba Company.

The expected retirement of Enrique Pendas from the firm of Y. Pendas & Alvarez has not yet been publicly announced, but is expected to take place in a short time.

The factories of Antonio Rocha, who recently removed here from Jacksonville, and the F. R. Knight Cigar Company, both small concerns, have gone into the bankruptcy courts.

Edgar Stachelberg, George Meigs and Mr. Torrez, of the Sanchez & Haya Company, have been in consultation here about the new year's business. All express themselves in optimistic terms.

Lorenzo Pando spent the holidays in New York.

Jorge Leon, of San Martin & Leon, has returned to Cuba, where he is busily engaged superintending the several plantations of his firm.

Ceferino Balbin has quit the cigar business, on the advice of his physician, and has entered the automobile trade.

Eli Witt has returned from Saranac Lake, where he spent several months in a sanitarium. While greatly improved, he is still far from well and expects to return soon for another course of treatment.

Late Trade Jottings

Ned S. Adams, well known in Nashville, Tennessee, is opening a cigar store at 321 Union Street, that city. The place is to be fitted with marble and mahogany. Mr. Adams says that he will carry only the finest lines of imported and domestic cigars.

Reconstruction was begun last week on the rebuilding of the Wilentz factory, in Newark, New Jersey, which was partially destroyed by fire a short time ago. In addition to the main building being rebuilt, an extension of 35 by 25 feet will be added to the rear. The entire building will be two stories in height and will be 25 by 100 feet in size.

Frank Maguire, who conducted a cigar factory and billiard hall in Macomb, Illinois, has sold his cigar business to Charles Goodwin, a cigar manufacturer, of that place.

The Gibian Cigar and Tobacco Company, of Montgomery, Alabama, has changed hands, the new owner being Simon Loeb, a well-known business man of that city.

Michael J. Murray, a cigar manufacturer, of Oswego, New York, has taken his son, Roger P. Murray, in partnership with him, and the firm will be known hereafter as M. J. Murray & Son.

The dissolution of the partnership existing between Marshall Fenderson and Frank Cole, wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco dealers of Biddeford, Maine, has been announced. They started in business thirty years ago and during that time have been uniformly successful. Mr. Fenderson will continue the business, having purchased Mr. Cole's interest.

HAVANA, January 7.

IN order to keep our records for a year complete, and also as we are always more or less pressed for time at the end of the year, we have this time only stated the sales up to the end of December. Besides the operations during the first six days of the new year have been of no great importance, and may barely reach 1000 bales of all kinds of leaf. If it had not been for the large transactions of one important leaf dealer from New York during the closing days of the old year, we should have had little to report either, but these have helped to create more life than usually. The market closed well sustained for all good vegas, as they may be barely sufficient to meet the expected demand on the part of the manufacturers until the next crop could be ready for their use. On the other hand, those dealers that are still having some stocks of the old 1911 growth in their warehouses are feeling less confident in obtaining their previous asking figures, and would now be willing to make concessions.

Sales from December 21 to December 31, 1912, amounted to 3306 bales, or divided represented: Vuelta Abajo, 1039; Partido, 295, and Remedios, 1972 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 2618; exporters to Europe, 250; shippers to South America, 176, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 262 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from December 23 to January 4, 1913, were: To all ports of the United States, 10,218; to Bremen, 573; to London, 55; to Mexico, 75; to South America, 493; to Australia, 30; thus making the total of 11,444 bales:

Receipts of tobacco from the country were:

Vuelta Abajo	6 bales		181,942 bales
Semi Vuelta	..		23,332
Partido	..		22,879
Remedios	139		234,001
Yara and Mayari	80		16,100
Total	225	Total	478,254

The crop reports from the Vuelta Abajo are extremely promising, as it has rained several times last month, as well as this month, therefore, if nothing unforeseen should occur, we might have a very large, and possibly also a fine quality crop. However, as we have become skeptical by glowing accounts of the Vegueros, and other parties interested in spreading brilliant reports of the coming crop beforehand, when afterwards just the opposite has been the case, we prefer to await further developments, before trusting too much in the premature promises of what is going to come yet. Some tobacco has been cut already since the latter part of December, and further cuttings are going to take place this month. And while the first part of the very early planted tobacco may perhaps yield a fine quality later on, we are however entirely in the dark yet, how the tobacco may dry off, and still later, how it is going to pass the pilon. The nicotine plant is subject to so many changes, not alone while growing, but also later on in the drying sheds and during the process of the escogida, that one is never sure about the quality, until the tobacco has passed the second fermentation in the bales, and is then fit to be put on the cigarmakers' table for the final test. Before this period everything is more or less guesswork, but unfortunately in our great haste to discount the future we are jumping too often at conclusions and are forming a judgment, when we ought to take matters more calmly and wait for the proper time to come, as otherwise we are liable to be mistaken, and will have to pay the piper for our haste. This happened notably in the year 1907, when the great majority of the buyers thought they had a splendid crop before them, and they bought heavily of the green leaf, which later on turned out to be crude, and did not go through the fermentation, staying raw for a long number of years. Fortunes were lost, and it is very doubtful whether all the dealers have been able to recoup themselves in the meantime.

We have heard some complaints about the Partido crop, that some places are suffering from the drought, while other people, however, paint the situation in the same rose colors as regards this growth.

The accounts about the Remedios crop are mixed, as in some districts, like Manicaragua and Sancti Spiritus, not a drop of rain shall have fallen for six weeks, while, on the other hand, in Camajuani and its neighborhood they shall have had too heavy rains, which have washed away the young plants, as well as the seedbeds. However, as the Remedios crop is generally one month behind the Vuelta Abajo one, there may be still time to repair the damage done, provided the weather henceforth should prove to be more beneficial during the next two or three months to come.

Cigars.

We have not yet received the details of the reports from the fifteenth of December to the thirty-first of the same month, but we have heard that the total shrinkage in our exports from Havana shall have amounted to 9,147,716 cigars, as compared with the year 1911. This evidently proves that our customhouse statistics are not kept very accurate, as we surmised, when the extreme shortage occurred in the month of November of nearly six millions in fifteen days, and evidently the clerks must have noticed their error, and in order to make good the mistake they added the difference to the second half of December. There is no other explanation, because it is likewise impossible that we should have gained 3,394,065 cigars in the fifteen days from December 16 to 31, as compared with 1911. The United States have taken 6,159,579 cigars less than in the previous year, England 3,440,448, and Germany 1,187,395 cigars less; while Canada has increased her imports by 1,639,906 cigars.

This shows that our famous reciprocity treaty has not helped Cuba one bit in her cigar industry, and the sugar people are also stating that the profit under the reciprocity treaty has not gone into their pockets, but into the hands of the refiners in the United States.

We are awaiting anxiously to see what the Democratic party is going to do in the way of cutting down the duties, and whether later on it will grant us fifty per cent. reduction on the duties, instead of the paltry twenty per cent. As we are not alone polit-

Leaf Tobacco Jottings

A report from Lancaster, dated the 13th, states that the big tobacco concerns, which were so active in buying Lancaster County's new tobacco crop, appear to have evacuated the field, the understanding being that they had procured all the tobacco they needed. They procured it at an average price of ten cents for wrappers and three cents for fillers per pound.

With only twenty per cent. of the crop unsold, prices have stiffened, and the majority of the holders of these goods now demand from eleven to twelve cents a pound. Few local packers have been among the buyers, some because they are loaded with old goods, and others, who are ready to buy, waiting for the drop in prices the growers say will not take place.

The damp weather has been ideal for stripping, and the growers are now stripping and delivering at the warehouses as fast as possible. Few old goods are being sold now, and the prices are not high. The 1911 sells at fifteen to sixteen cents a pound, and the 1909 goods at ten to fourteen, according to grade.

The tariff hearing at Washington is going to bring out some interesting points on the importing of Sumatra tobacco. The interests who advocate a reduction in the present rates have a pretty strong case outlined and assert that $1 is ample to protect the domestic grower. They assert that it is ridiculous to pay a duty of $1.85 on an article, which ordinarily costs on an average of from $1 to $1.25.

Yet a number of the larger leaf importing houses realize that a reduction of the duty will enable a number of their smaller competitors to compete on a more even basis against them and accordingly are not anxious to see the duty reduced. The smaller cigar manufacturer, too, would probably do his own importing, were the duty lower and this would make inroads on the trade of the importing houses. This, the larger cigar manufacturing houses, which do their own importing, are not willing to see prevail, and oppose it vigorously.

Although the Connecticut Congressmen are Democrats, all indications point to their working hand in hand with the tobacco growers of that state. They assert that they will do all in their power to keep the duty at a point where the domestic grower need not fear the competition of the foreign planter.

But with such wide variance of opinion as to what changes should take place in the tobacco schedule there is small reason to believe that any radical reduction will be recommended.

One million pounds of tobacco, said to be in the hands of the Fleming County, Kentucky, tobacco growers, has been reported to have been sold to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The price paid was around $15 per hundred pounds.

E. J. Dienst has purchased the wholesale leaf tobacco business of Nunn, Buse & Dienst, wholesale tobacco leaf dealers, of St. Louis, and will continue business under his name. The other interests will do business under the name of Nunn, Buse & Company.

At the annual meeting of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, held in that city on January 8, the following officers were elected: President, Herbert J. Taylor; vice-president, Milton H. Ranck; secretary, L. H. Nolt; treasurer, Morris Rosenthal. The seventy-five persons present evinced much interest in the question of the proposed lowering of the tariff on foreign tobacco. A straw vote was taken which favored leaving the duty as it now exists.

ically dependent upon the United States, but also economically, we ought to have some benefit of a real importance in the shape of a reduction in the duties over the other foreign countries.

Business in general is dull, as always at this season of the year, although there are a few factories which have not cut down their forces of cigarmakers, but it is the small minority.

The principal factories that are working well are: Romeo & Julieta, Partagas, H. Upmann, Sol, Castañeda, Henry Clay & Bock & Company, Ltd., Flor de P. A. Estanillo, Hoyo de Monterey, Por Larrañaga, C. E. Beck & Company, La Flor de José Otero and Allones, Ltd.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Planas & Company were the biggest sellers during the last ten days of December, as they turned over 800 bales of Remedios.

Messrs. S. Wallach and Jessie Falk were our biggest buyers, as they acquired 1900 bales of choice Remedios and Vuelta Abajo in our market for their firm of G. Falk & Brother, of New York.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales had a quieter time during the last ten days, as they only disposed of 300 bales. However, in figuring up their total sales during the year, they ran up to 52,303 bales, a truly royal quantity for one house to handle, and there were only two weeks out of the fifty-two that they did not report any transactions, although this might have been that the number of bales were too insignificant and were added to the following week.

Howard Friend had added another 200 bales of leaf to the purchase of Friend & Company before he shook the dust of Havana from his feet on the 25th ulto.

M. Jessurun is reported to have purchased 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo leaf for his customers in Hamburg.

Don Pepin Rodriguez, the senior partner of Rodriguez & Argüelles, owners of the famous Romeo y Julieta factory, has cabled that he will leave Liverpool on the 10th inst. for Havana, via New York.

Don Adolfo Moeller bought and shipped a trille over 40,000 bales of leaf during the year 1912, the major part of which went to Germany.

Mr. Leslie Pantin purchased for his customers 36,000 bales of all kinds of leaf, out of which quantity he has shipped 25,000 bales and 4500 barrels of stripped fillers. If the latter were figured at two bales for one barrel, then it would make his shipment come up to 34,000 bales.

J. F. Berndes & Company gave their purchases as amounting to 34,200 bales during the year, principally to Germany and Austria, although they have also exported goods to their customers in the United States and Buenos Aires.

Herr Hermann Diehl, partner of Gutierrez & Diehl, will soon become a benedict, as he asked for the hand of a beautiful Cuban señorita, Lourdes de la Torre, a niece of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the wedding bells will ring some time in the month of February next.

Shippers above 300 bales of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana were: J. F. Berndes & Company, 3921; Leslie Pantin, 2432; J. Bernheim & Son, 1277; C. E. Beck & Company, 835; H. Upmann & Company, 727; Garcia & Company, 505; Manuel Suarez, 374; Ernest Ellinger & Company, 346; Rodriguez, Menendez & Company, 302, and Diego Montero, 300 bales.

Late Trade Bulletins

The Security Trust Company has asked for the appointment of a receiver for the R. Lowther Company, conducting a cigar stand in the Lemcke Annex, Indianapolis, Indiana. The plaintiff asks judgment for $4764.39, which amount they allege is due them on notes.

W. A. Yates has taken possession of the cigar store formerly conducted by John Francis, on Center Street, Baker, Oregon.

Fire nearly destroyed the cigar store of Joseph Pastora at 506 East Washington Street, Syracuse, New York, recently. The damage to stock, amounting to about $200, is an entire loss.

The Central Cigar Company, Nashville, Tennessee, have taken a ten-year lease on the store located 321 Union Street, that city, and will remodel the building along up-to-date lines, opening for business just as soon as alterations are completed.

Fire recently threatened to destroy the factory of the Columbia Club Cigar Company, Salt Lake City, Utah, but quick action prevented the flames from spreading, the damage being trifling.

The Mexican Congress has increased the import tariff on tobacco one hundred per cent. in order to obtain necessary funds needed by the government.

Extensive alterations are now in progress on the building located 37 Grant Square, Brooklyn, New York, which has been leased for a number of years and is to be occupied by the United Cigar Stores Company.

The Wheeling Traction Company, the Wheeling Natural Gas Company and Bloch Brothers Tobacco Company distributed to the firemen of Wheeling during the Christmas holidays many boxes of cigars, Bloch Brothers supplying carton upon carton of their "Mail Pouch" tobacco.

Albert Wutzler, owner of the Wutzler Cigar Factory, St. Louis, Missouri, died at his home in that city a short time ago.

Roy Abbey is now occupying his new cigar factory on Cherry Street, Burlington, Iowa.

J. W. & D. E. Chase have taken over the interest of Jerry Simpson in the cigar store in Theatre Block, Eugene, Oregon.

Rife & Earhart, Milton, Ohio, have purchased a site in that township on which they propose to erect a warehouse for the handling of tobacco. It is their intention to keep the place open the year 'round.

C. B. Davidson, a salesman connected with one of the largest cigar houses of San Francisco, California, has taken a half interest in the Palace Cigar Stand, Porterville, California, and will conduct the business in conjunction with J. Dorsey Seal, original owner of the business.

Ed. H. Miller, who formerly operated a cigar factory at Winton, Minnesota, is now located in Princeton, Minnesota, having joined his father at that place, it being their intention to run a large cigar establishment in Princeton.

The Superia Cigar Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Michigan, a short time ago, tendered their employees a banquet, this being an annual custom.

For the benefit of his creditors Samuel Barnard, doing business as the Annex Cigar Store, No. 6 Milk Street, Boston, Massachusetts, has assigned to William Hirsh.

Harry Krueger has taken over the cigar store at 36 North Main Street, Butte, Montana, formerly operated by J. Strobel and J. M. Reynolds.

Alterations and improvements to the value of $17,000 are being planned for the cigar store conducted by Jack Carroll, Sault Ste Marie, Michigan.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company plans to erect a modern cigar factory on a lot which they recently purchased, located on Maple Street, Seven Valleys, Pennsylvania.

It is estimated that the leaf tobacco brought into Chicago during 1912 by local importers amounted to almost a million and a half dollars. The report of the collector of customs shows $841,662 to have been paid in duties. These record-breaking figures are attributed to the very rapid increase in the growth of local cigar factories during the past year. It is predicted that the imports for this year will even surpass those for 1912.

J. F. Mills, a prominent wholesale and retail cigar dealer of Galesburg, Illinois, has opened up the Basement Cigar Store at 12 East Main Street. He is making quite a success with his new five cent cigar, which he has named "518," after the local aerie of the Eagles.

Incident to the Christmas season the Cigarmakers' Union No. 54, Evansville, Indiana, gave a dance shortly preceding the holidays, which was participated in and greatly enjoyed by its members.

C. J. Holton, a prominent cigar merchant of Detroit, Michigan, who resides at 620 Trumbull Avenue, held "open house" between the hours of 2 and 7 P. M. on New Year's Day for his many friends.

It is the intention of Joseph Roach, who recently acquired the cigar manufacturing business of Green Brothers, North Adams, Massachusetts, to continue the manufacture of the brands made by that company. His shop is located in the rear of the Smoke Shop on Main Street.

Calderwood & Robbins, tobacconists, for many years located in Merrimack Square, Lowell, Massachusetts, have moved into their new store, located 27 Prescott Street.

Charles and Margaret Robinson, proprietors of the Illinois Tobacco Company, Springfield, Illinois, have purchased a site on the south side of East Adams Street, near Ninth Street, and will erect thereon a warehouse for the storage of tobacco, the estimated cost being about $10,000.

As the result of a fall sustained while at work in the plant of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, St. Louis, Missouri, Emil R. Witzig, one of the oldest employees of the old Drummond and Liggett & Myers tobacco companies, died in the latter part of December. He is survived by two sons, two daughters, a brother and a sister.

Ben F. Shearer, of the Shearer Cigar Company, St. Joseph, Missouri, has signified his intention of giving to associated charities ten per cent. of the total receipts of two days' business.

Cigars to the number of 195,000 having been destroyed in a fire which burned out the Burgesser-Sweetring Cigar Factory, Clayton, Illinois, the company have planned to locate in a short time at Quincy, where operations on a more extensive scale will be carried on at 318-320 Hampshire Street. It is the intention of the Burgesser-Sweetring Company, who now manufacture five or six popular brands, to so develop their business that the output will be greatly increased.

U. C. M. Company to Have Another Pennsylvania Factory

Arrangements are being made for the opening of a branch factory of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, in Johnstown, Pennsylvania. The machinery and supplies needed for the plant are already in the city and it is expected that the factory will be in full operation about January 18.

1913 Has Good Start in Lancaster

ALTHOUGH the cigar manufacturing interests are taking stock and are not rushed as hard as they have been the past month, there is every indication of a good start for the new year. Many manufacturers state that orders have been coming in with pleasing regularity since the traveling representatives have been off the road. If the trade continues as nicely as it has started, 1913 will be one of the big years for the Ninth District. The poor start and dull summer hit some of the factories hard, and had it not been for the fall boom, 1912 would in all likelihood have fallen below the average of recent years.

The business was so brisk and holiday orders came in so fast with some of the firms that they were unable to fill the orders as required. One firm was compelled to turn some of the orders down because of the dearth of cigarmakers throughout this region. Hands are very scarce just now. Of course, this is also the case in other cigar manufacturing centres like Reading and York.

J. Aldis Herr, president of the Tobacco Growers' Society, has been notified that the Department of Agriculture is increasing the annual appropriation toward tobacco experiments. Special work will be done, it is understood, toward an investigation of the curing work throughout this part of the state. Congressman Griest has been able to get this appropriation for the growers.

I. E. Ryder, the cigar manufacturer, is again home after a short trip to New York City.

Milton Ranck, the leaf dealer, has been confined to his home in Strasburg from a slight illness.

Since the first of the year an inventory has kept the S. R. Moss factory busy. Indications point to a very successful year. This firm has broadened their fields of endeavor during 1912 with good results. Throughout the Middle West cities the "Flor de Moss" has been pushed hard and the orders, which fairly swamped the factory during the closing months of the year, have been repeating themselves the past week, arriving in every mail. The brands of this factory which are receiving the most attention at present are the "Flor de Moss," the "Moss Kids" and the "Little Minister."

At the annual meeting of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade on Saturday evening, at Hotel Wheatland, a vote was taken on the question of favoring a change in the present tariff on tobacco and the result was almost unanimously for making no change. Officers were elected for the year as follows: President, Herbert P. Taylor; vice-president, M. H. Ranck; secretary, Leroy H. Nolt; treasurer, Morris Rosenthal; Board of Directors, Joseph Goldberg, I. H. Weaver, Charles Emory Long, Samuel Siesel and J. H. Hoober.

Following the business meeting a banquet was served, Mr. Taylor acting as toastmaster. Dr. I. Rosenthal delivered the invocation. The discussion at the banquet was on the tariff levied on foreign tobacco. Nearly all the speakers favored allowing the tariff to remain as it is. Among the guests were a number of the officers and prominent members of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, and these also were in favor of not making any change.

It was decided to hold a banquet, at which time action is to be taken on a number of resolutions protesting against a change in the tariff on foreign tobacco. A committee, probably will be appointed to appear before the Ways and Means Committee in Washington on January 17, when a hearing will be given on this subject by the committee.

Robert Granat & Company are moving into their new offices and warehouse on North Queen Street, formerly occupied by Siesel & Tole, who have moved to their new building.

One of the heaviest transactions reported in the leaf market here for some time has taken place in the sale of eight hundred cases of 1911 tobacco by A. B. Groff, of New Holland, to Morris Levy. The deal is said to represent nearly $50,000.

Latest Doings in York and Vicinity

WHILE there has been a let-up in cigar manufacturing circles, 1913 has started out in a nice manner for the majority of the factories. They have been taking inventories and the results are satisfactory. The leaf market is quiet, sales being small in volume. Dealers look for a resumption of activity before very long.

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company report a good showing on the "Liar" cigar, only recently introduced to the trade. This brand is found in every worth-while store around town and is beginning to find excellent distribution in outside places. Mr. Plitt recently stated to the writer that, although the cigar was far above the majority of the other nickel brands in this market, he was continually improving it. The "King Rowser," ten cent cigar, made for W. A. Hall, a distributor of the Plitt brands in Washington, D. C., is making excellent headway in that market.

The Christmas rush in the cigar business ended several weeks ago, but there has only been a slight decrease in the amount of stamps sold at the York office of the Ninth Internal Revenue District during the month of December. The receipts for the month amounted to $96,564.94, as compared to $118,627.78 for the preceding month.

The receipts for the past month amounted to $17,952.72 more than for the month of December, 1911. From the large sale of stamps made at the office every day there seems to be little let-up on the boom in the cigar industry in York County. New factories are being opened continually in different sections of the county. Twelve new factories, giving employment to forty-nine persons, were opened during the month of December. The largest factory licensed was that of the Glen Rock Cigar Company, Glen Rock, giving employment to ten hands.

The following are some of the larger factories and number of hands employed in each licensed during the month of December:

Reading Could Use 300 More Cigar Makers

JUDGING by the reports one hears from the different cigar factories, 1913 has started out with a rush. The large fall trade assisted in making a good 1912. Orders have been coming in the latter part of the year which insure a steady operation of the plants for some time. The dearth of cigarmakers is the proposition the cigar men are now up against. Several factories have ads running in the local papers and want fifty. Unfortunately, the aforesaid fifty are slow in materializing. It is now up to those manufacturers to teach hands or get machines to do the work.

The Fleck Cigar Company has just closed a most successful year. They have concentrated their attention on the "Rose-O-Cuba" for some time and prophesy an even larger increase in 1913. George Parker, who distributes this cigar in Philadelphia, recently purchased an auto delivery truck, which carries a "Rose-O-Cuba" advertisement. R. K. Thomas & Company, of Norristown, Pa., jobber of the "Rose-O-Cuba" in that section, who have two auto trucks, report a big sale on the brand. One of their trucks carries the "Rose-O-Cuba" ad also.

The affairs of John J. Eshleman, the Mohnton cigar manufacturer, it is understood, were settled. The offer of 33 1-3 cents has been accepted and the factory is again operating.

Straightening of accounts and taking of stock is the order of the day now. W. W. Stewart & Sons are busily occupied at this, and outside of stating that the figures were entirely satisfactory had little to say.

"1912 has been a good year for us," said John Spatz, the cigar manufacturer. "The same methods and policy that have characterized our operations in the past will continue for the following year."

The offer of a settlement of thirty per cent. cash has been made to the creditors of George W. Lehr, the cigar manufacturer. Samuel E. Bertolet is the referee in bankruptcy.

Foreign Trade Inquiry

The daily consular and trade reports notes the following trade opportunity. An American consular officer in a European country reports that a local tobacco importer desires to get in touch with American tobacco growers and producers for the purpose of importing this article. He is particularly interested in tobacco adapted for the manufacture of snuff. Further information regarding this item may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, care of Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., and referring to number 10,137.

Late Trade Jottings

The Bowers Cigar Stores Company recently incorporated at Newark, New Jersey, names as its incorporators, T. F. Bowers, Newark, New Jersey, H. A. Rosner, New York City, and J. E. Smith, East Orange, New Jersey. The capital is rated at $125,000.

For the purpose of manufacturing and dealing in cigars, cigarettes, etc., the La Posenda Cigar Company was incorporated a short time since at Chicago, Illinois, with a capital of $2500. The incorporators are listed as follows: Millard J. Roberts, Walker I. Kanaby and Edward J. Pauler.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York Market Dull---Buying of Pennsylvania Crop Going Along Steadily---Connecticut Growers Prepare for Tariff Hearing---Shortage of Help in Some Wisconsin Places

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, January 9.

THERE has been little of interest transpiring in the local leaf circles the past two weeks. Pennsylvania has been selling well.

The binder situation remains about the same. Dealers are looking forward to the 1912 Connecticut crop and the Wisconsin crop, which will be available before long.

There was little activity in Havana. Remedios sold fairly well. The other tobaccos were at a standstill. The manufacturers have been taking inventories and have shown little inclination to do business with the leaf dealers. Inquiries have been coming in within the past few days, and it is only a question of a short time before many manufacturers must renew stocks.

More interest is evinced in the tariff hearing at Washington on January 17 than in anything else. Opinion is divided in this city.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, January 10.

THERE has been little doing in the leaf market during the past two weeks. Sales have been few and far between. Manufacturers have been busy taking inventories and will probably look around for new stocks when the time arrives. It is the general opinion that there will soon be a revival of interest in leaf tobacco.

Philadelphia leaf men have been discussing the tariff hearing on January 17 more than anything else. Some of them feel that this time it is a case of "Do or die," and they have no intention of dying either. They have made preparations for the hearing and when the conflicting interests get in Washington there are going to be some lively arguments.

Buying of the new crop is going along in a steady fashion. With the exception of a few cases the prices have been around ten and four. Local packers are buying slowly. The weather has been ideal for stripping in the country districts and the growers have been stripping their tobacco as fast as possible. Reports from some parts of the country give it that there will be much hail cut tobacco on the market. Some growers have their hail cut leaf divided in three classes; that tobacco which was riddled by one storm, some which received it twice, and a third class which has gone through three storms. Some growers did not take the trouble to cut tobacco after it passed through two storms.

There has been much dissatisfaction among the leaf interests here about some reports which have gone out of this market. Growers claim, and packers also, that the reports have been misleading in many respects, and that prices quoted at times were ridiculous.

The tobacco planters are united in opposition to any reduction in the imported filler duty, which may be lowered at the next session of Congress. They believe that any reduction will injure the American grower. The packers are divided. Some of them are in favor of a small reduction and others are distinctly opposed to it. The Growers' Association will probably send a delegation to Congress to protest against any reduction.

CONNECTICUT.

HARTFORD, January 8.

THE annual meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association will be held at Unity Hall, Friday, January 10, at 11 A. M. Action will be taken on resolutions in regard to the proposed reduction on the tariff on wrapper tobacco, the rate now being $1.85 per pound, to a rate of 75 cents per pound.

The Ways and Means Committee of Congress have set January 17 for the hearing on the tobacco schedule. W. K. Ackley, secretary of the association, says: "The life of the tobacco industry in this section is at stake and any reduction in the present rate of duty would paralyze this industry. Every wrapper-growing state will have representatives in Washington at this hearing."

SUFFIELD.

A number of the farmers who sold their tobacco crops early in the season are now complaining of the action of some of the out-of-town buyers who bought tobacco in the bundle on the farms, and now, declaring the product not up to the standard, have reduced the price per pound several points. Some of the farmers have accepted the cut price rather than take the chance of keeping the crop over a whole year, while others have refused to let the tobacco go until the original price is paid. In most cases the buyers paid money down, to bind the contract, but the agreements have been broken in two or three cases in town so far. One grower in Main Street was docked this week three cents a pound, but the figure was accepted rather than hold the tobacco for a higher price. This year several buyers bought in the field, a new practice for both the buyer and grower, and considered unfair to both.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, January 6.

THE holiday week given over so largely to pleasures has not been productive of much news in the tobacco trade. A few buyers are still traveling the growing districts, though there is but little competition in the country trading at present. A good deal of tobacco has been delivered at receiving points during the week, permitting the packers to gain a supply of bundle stock while the roads are fine. Warehouse handling is getting well started and the coming week will witness the sorting season under full headway at the packing points. A shortage of help is reported in some centers.

The beginning of a new year finds the tobacco growers of Wisconsin in excellent financial condition and in the best of spirits. The great bulk of last season's crop has been sold at a good average price, that must yield considerably more than $100 profit per acre. Much of it is now ready to be converted into cash that will go a long ways towards fattening bank accounts or meeting obligations. The country districts have been thoroughly cleaned of all old tobaccos, leaving the farmer to start in another year with a clean score and with a prospect that the coming season will prove equally as satisfactory, for the market stands ready to absorb easily any forty or fifty thousand acres that meets the demands of the binder trade. The packers, too, of Wisconsin leaf have little reason to regret results of last season's business as they study the balance sheet of the year. There has been a ready sale of all their holdings at a fair margin of profit, and good, healthy business has prevailed during the year; the demand for good binder stock has far exceeded their ability to supply until stocks held by local packers have been reduced to a condition seldom witnessed in this state. Old leaf available for independent manufacturers is doubtless the smallest ever known since Wisconsin became an important factor as a tobacco state. With no surplus of old stock on hand the prospects for business the coming year could scarcely well be improved upon.—Edgerton Reporter.

STOUGHTON.

Enough tobacco of the 1912 growth has been delivered to indicate its condition as to quality and weight. At Stoughton about 100 acres have been received. One crop that sold at 12½ and 4 went 1750 pounds to the acre. One hundred and fifty dollars an acre is a good return for labor and expense, and when the sum runs above $200 an acre, tobacco production is considered profitable. It is asserted that a sounder crop than 1912 has not been delivered to packers in several years, but the growers are disappointed in the weight. The excess of moisture in the leaf is lacking this year, as it was taken from the pole while in light case. Some yields may go as low as 1200 pounds to the acre, and the average yield may be about 1500 pounds.

Every man, boy and other help that can be crowded into the work is being utilized, and little is the rest or sleep in the tobacco sections. There is a general remark that the leaf is light, having cured completely with a thin texture, and the weight per acre will not be as great as anticipated at harvest season.

KENTUCKY.

HOPKINSVILLE, January 4.

CHRISTMAS took all of the life out of this tobacco market last week. But this was nothing unusual, for it always so happens and the tobacco dealers declare a vacation in advance and religiously observe it.

Except for loose sales on Monday and Tuesday there was nothing doing during the week. These sales aggregated about 50,000 pounds and prices held strong at former quotations of $3 to $4 for trash, $4.50 to $7.00 for lugs and $7 to $10.75 for leaf.

This week the market is expected to show the busiest time so far this season. The weather conditions are still unfavorable, but it is believed that the farmers can now handle the tobacco, and as they are very anxious to get it off of hand they will take advantage of every opportunity that offers.

Prices show no sign of decreasing and it is believed that the market will hold steady at present quotations. If there is any change it is believed it will be upward. Buying on the loose floors and at the barns increased considerably just before the holidays and will be heavier than ever now.

LEXINGTON.

It is generally admitted by both tobacco growers and the buyers who have been through the country that the crop of White Burley tobacco of this year is light in weight and will be shorter in pounds from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. than the usual crop. To this admitted shortage, as well as the fact that the Burley tobacco of this season has furnished much of bright grade, the good prices thus far realized has been generally attributed, and it is believed that as this shortage

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

The past year has witnessed many changes in leaf tobacco circles around Suffield, Connecticut. Quite a bit of land has been bought from the smaller farmers by the tobacco syndicates. While the demand for tobacco continues to hold up the prices, little will be heard of abandoned farms in that section. The Polish farmers of Connecticut are said to be buying up quite a great deal of land in that region, being very thrifty workers.

The Miami Valley Tobacco Growers' Sales Company, of Dayton, Ohio, which recently organized, has contracted for the services of two salesmen, who will have charge of the marketing of the crops from the warehouses of the growers represented in the company. An office is to be opened in Dayton. The association has made preparations to deal directly with the manufacturer and user of the tobacco, ignoring the middle man, the broker or the packer. It has been said that the big drawback to the plan is the uncertainty of the time at which the grower will receive his money, and that sooner than be compelled to wait until the tobacco has been marketed many planters will sell their crops as heretofore, thus insuring receiving the purchase price immediately upon delivery of the tobacco.

The new year was characterized by great activity in Burley circles throughout Ohio and Kentucky. All markets were crowded with business and country sales to speculators continued unabated. High prices and the general enthusiasm have caused hundreds of inexperienced buyers to enter the field of speculation. A number of these, no doubt, will quit poorer, but wiser, men. Interest in Western Ohio cigar leaf centres in the future of the new organization of growers and its effect upon the market. Conditions are quiet with but few sales.

It has been announced that Augustine Lonergan, Congressman-elect from Connecticut, will go to Washington with the delegation of the Hartford County Tobacco Dealers' Association to attend the tobacco hearing on January 17. The committee will leave for the capital on January 15 and will be granted three hours to present their claims.

Much has been said in the past year about the growing of Turkish tobacco in California. While this industry has barely passed the experimental stage, growers have been averaging over $200 an acre off the large plantation near Dinuba, in Tulare County. This leaf has been sold to the American Tobacco Company through their Coast agent, the John Bollman Company, of San Francisco. Prices paid for the product range from twenty-five to fiifty-five cents per pound, a much lower average than last year. This is accounted for by the fact that the quality was very poor, the growers not yet having the necessary knowledge for the proper culture of the leaf. The first tests were made two years ago, but now there are two hundred and fifty-five cents per pound, a much lower average than last man Company. This company next season will plant thirty acres of Turkish leaf on an experimental farm near Exeter, Tulare County, under the superintendence of Logan Umstead, a North Carolina expert. This step was taken on the actual results and on the recommendation of a man who studied the culture of the tobacco near Saloniki, in Turkey.

In one of the recently issued consular reports, an American consular officer reports that a local tobacco importer desires to get in touch with American tobacco growers for the purpose of importing this article, particularly the Virginia and Kentucky varieties. Anyone interested should write to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., giving file number 10,161. The correspondence should be in Portuguese or French.

It has been estimated that the 1912 crop of tobacco will yield Lancaster County growers in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. The majority of the local dealers have not done much packing as yet. It was the general belief last summer that if the planters would get seven and eight cents per pound they would be fortunate. The competition developed by big cigar manufacturing interests has caused prices to take a big jump. In some instances twelve cents was paid, but the average for the Lancaster tobacco crop this year will be around ten cents and three cents. There is quite an amount of the hail-cut tobacco on hand. The heaviest purchasers have been one of the largest cigar manufacturing firms in the country which took upwards of 30,000 cases and a prominent Philadelphia firm purchased probably 15,000 cases. Western cigar manufacturing firms have also been heavy purchasers.

Growers of shade tobacco, of Southern Alabama, are preparing for the tariff meeting before the Committee on Ways and Means in Washington, on January 17. They have prepared petitions asking that the tariff on imported wrapper tobacco remain the same. They assert that tobacco growing in Alabama is still in its infancy and that the proposed reduction would be fatal to the industry in that section. Large investments have been made in the equipment for the growing of wrapper tobacco. They contend that this would be entirely lost if the grower must compete on anything like an even basis with the Sumatra plantations.

Green River Association to Sell 20,000,000 Pounds of Burley

THE Green River Tobacco Growers' Association, with headquarters in Louisville, Kentucky, by a vote of its members, recently determined to accept the offer of an association of buyers for the 20,000,000 pounds pooled with it. The American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company are to take from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds, the remainder to be distributed among other factories. The price to be paid is from $5 to $9 for leaf and lugs and $3 for trash. There remains about 18,000,000 more to be disposed of, which is in the hands of the Green River Equity Association. The negotiations for the purchase of this tobacco at the same figures are now pending.

Under the report required by the Cantrill law, the stock in the Green River section on October 1, was 42,876,000 pounds or virtually a two years' supply. With the 1912 crop of about 20,000,000 pounds due in the market, in the next six months, the decision to sell at this time, is obviously an attempt to clean up stock before they become large enough to work against the best interest of the growers.

San Francisco

Holiday Trade Over, Finds Dealers Stocks Well Depleted—Plan Under Way to Establish $60,000 Commercial Travelers' Building—Present Year to See Many Changes in the Country Trade

SAN FRANCISCO, January 4.

AFTER about a couple of weeks of comparative quiet, the distributing cigar and tobacco trade is preparing for the late winter activity. Most of the traveling men working out of this city have been in for the holidays or absent on short vacations. Now all hands are getting the sample cases ready for an early and active start. In the city the holiday retail trade was large, especially during the last few days before Christmas, and the city salesmen for the local jobbing houses will have an easy time selling goods for the first few days, as everybody is well sold up and has more cash than cigars. Reports from the country also show a good business in most sections, the region from San Francisco north being especially favored. In the southern half of California, while the holiday sales were well up to, if not above, the average, the continued dry weather is beginning to have a slightly deterring effect on business in some of the farming sections. The dry weather has as yet done no real damage to crops, but the fear of it will, it is believed, make the cigar men a little cautious about ordering very heavily. So far the only regions affected are Southern California and the San Joaquin Valley.

The M. A. Gunst & Company traveling force, which has been in San Francisco for the usual annual gathering during the last two weeks, is now preparing to break up and get busy with the January business. H. C. Walters leaves in a few days for his regular trip through the San Joaquin Valley, and Will Crane, who works the Sacramento Valley, will get away about the same time. The salesmen have had a good time resting up and getting in touch with each other and with headquarters, and the points gained will be made good use of. The shortage of "Van Dyeks" gives the clear Havana business a little handicap, but additional supplies are coming in right along, and the comparatively small oversale will soon be filled. New bookings will be filled with very little delay.

Anton Michalitschke, for many years one of the leading wholesale cigar and tobacco men of this city, but now of Dresden, Germany, has remembered his old time friends with the season's greetings and is reported to be passing his time pleasantly in his native land.

Cigar travelers and manufacturers' representatives are interested in a proposition to establish at a cost of about $60,000 a Commercial Travelers' Building in this city. The question has been taken up seriously by the Pacific Coast Commercial Travelers' Association, of which H. L. Judell, of the wholesale cigar house of H. L. Judell & Company, is an officer and a very active member; and it now looks as though definite action will be taken shortly.

Sam Friend, one of the selling force of the Klingenstein Company, of Los Angeles, was in San Francisco for a few days last week. Mr. Friend reports that the Los Angeles trade had a splendid holiday season, his own house doing especially well with the "Webster" line.

J. T. Mercier, one of the live dealers of Santa Rosa, California, came to town to take in the New Year's festivities, and stayed over a day or so to get some trade pointers and leave some orders for additional stock. He closed a good year in his home town and counts on the usual progress or a little more for the opening year.

One of the earliest nickel campaigns for 1913 will be that of the San Francisco house of Boltz, Clymer & Company on their "El Merito" brand. This campaign is to be started just as soon as a big stock now on the way reaches the city.

The office of H. H. Manley, Western representative of the American Cigar Company, has now been removed to the Sherwood Building at 320 Market Street. Mr. Manley himself is now in the east visiting the New York headquarters, but will be back on the Coast early in the month in order to get a good start for the late winter trade.

The present year is expected to see a good many changes in the country cigar and tobacco trade. The elections of the fall left a good many counties and parts of counties on the dry side of the anti-saloon fight and, in a few cases, some places on the wet side that had formerly been dry; and as many of the country saloons controlled a considerable tobacco and cigar trade, a good many adjustments will have to be made. This will, it is believed, in the end tend to consolidate the trade in stronger hands and lead to the establishing of more exclusive cigar stores, but a good many jobbers will regret to lose their saloon trade, particularly as this trade has been above the average in financial dependability.

The new stand of Frank Cook at Fourth and Mission Streets seems to have made quite a hit. This is in a workingman's section and has fallen in line for a good trade on medium priced goods. The store takes over the cigar privileges of the Walsh & Lyon saloon, with which it is connected, and has the additional advantage of being directly beneath the headquarters of the Carpenters' Union, the membership of which runs into the ten thousands.

The city and outside salesmen of the "La Natividad" factory of this city began the new year promptly on January 2 this year with the active distribution among their customers of some handsome diaries. These are tastefully bound in leather and are just the right size for the pocket. Besides the usual calendar and memorandum space, the diaries are filled with a lot of well-selected and valuable information on all sorts of subjects.

R. J. Blaine, traveling representative for the "Belmont" factory of the Havana-American Company, has been spending some time in San Francisco in conference with the local agency and with M. Blaskower, the distributor for Northern California. He expects to inaugurate some special work in the interest of the Czar size of the "Belmont."

H. Bohls & Company this week put on the market their new "Naida" Egyptian cigarette to retail at two packages for twenty-five cents. An interesting lot of premiums is offered in connection with the new line, on which it is proposed to do some active promotion work.

M. C. Patterson Resigns From American Tobacco Company

Official announcement of the resignation of M. C. Patterson as vice-president of the American Tobacco Company was made recently at the offices of that firm in New York City. Mr. Patterson is at his home in Richmond, Virginia. No reason for his resignation has been given by him.

Leaf Tobacco Market

becomes more fully realized prices will go still higher. Although the Lexington market opened one week later than usual this year, up to Christmas 5,636,140 pounds have been sold at an average of $12.74, while last year up to the same time only 4,894,135 pounds had been sold at an average of $8.50.

The Lexington market, which had been suspended for the holidays, re-opened Thursday January 2.

CINCINNATI, January 4.

THE closing sale of the year was held in the local Burley tobacco market with a light offering at two of the warehouses. Quality and condition of tobacco was about on a par with the previous few weeks and the market showed but little change. The bidding on all grades of both old and new stock was quite spirited and some very good prices were paid for choice types. Colory styles, though scarce, were strong. In the old tobacco the common sorts prevailed and, while displaying no unusual strength, were not quotable lower. Medium to good red tobacco in old stock was firm. The average quality of the new tobacco was of a higher order and everything offered was disposed of at prices which were considered high. The general run of the new tobacco seen on the breaks so far this season seems to bear out the prediction previously made that the 1912 crop will prove one of the finest in several years.

One-third of the Ohio cigar leaf crop is sold at $8@10. Much interest centers in the National Cigar Leaf Growers' Union with its new and progressive methods. It is probable that the twelve large warehouses of the concern will soon hold the larger part of the remaining two-thirds of the crop of 1912. These warehouses will "work" and "finish" their tobacco and sell direct to manufacturers by sample and competent salesmen. The cost of the process is given at $1.50@4 per cwt., according to condition and the amount of sorting required. Each crop bears its own expense, which is considered better than to charge an average price. As in other tobacco organizations the one great disadvantage is the inability of the grower to await payment until his tobacco is sold. It is confidently expected that this difficulty will soon be overcome as comprehensive plans to meet the situation are now being considered.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Richmond Factory for Anglo-American Tobacco Company

The Anglo-American Tobacco Company, recently capitalized at $500,000 in New York City, is to have a large factory in Richmond, Virginia, although the principal plant will be in New York. It is understood that the money behind the new enterprise is Northern capital.

The new concern is to confine itself exclusively to the manufacture of cigars. The president is George J. Smith, a New Yorker who had much to do with originating the "Cremo" cigar. Several years ago Mr. Smith sold the "Cremo" to the American Tobacco Company and retired from active business. J. E. M. Walker, a Richmond cigar manufacturer, is vice-president and general manager of the new company.

The cigar store located in the Reisher Building, South Main Street, Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, owned by Ross Kuhn, has been purchased by William Orendorff, who will conduct it.

Lee & Bring, who have acquired a lease on the entire office room of the Hoffman House, Eugene, Oregon, will move their cigar store from the Goodman Block into the space formerly occupied by the barber shop, which is to be removed to the rear.

Smoking from a Medical Viewpoint

Physician States That Its Use Is Purely a Matter of Temperament—Late Suppers Much More Harmful

THE influence of tobacco on health and morals has been the subject of controversy ever since its introduction into Europe, and we seem to be no nearer a sane and definite conclusion now, writes a physician in the Dietic and Hygienic Gazette, than at the time when smokers were actually persecuted.

It may be said, without hesitation, that many of the harms said to be done the human body are due to individual idiosyncrasy or to overindulgence, and the idiom, "What is one man's meat is another man's poison," may in a sense be applied to the use of tobacco. "Moderation" is a relative term. What is moderation to one may be excess to another.

In this relation, therefore, every smoker must study and know himself. Everything—even pure water—is a poison if used in quantities to make it so; on the other hand, the most potent poisons, such as potassium cyanide or arsenic, are often useful if taken in non-poisonous, harmless doses. If tobacco is harmful, alcohol is to be looked upon as an extreme poison in comparison; if tobacco has killed thousands, alcohol has killed tens of thousands.

But, generally speaking, does tobacco smoking, if indulged in with reasonable moderation, really shorten life? I am strongly tempted to reply in the negative.

It must be confessed, even by those opposed to its use, that in most tobacco smokers the judicious use of this weed removes exhaustion, restlessness and listlessness due to bodily and mental fatigue, and seems to restore mental equanimity with extraordinary promptness. Anger, chagrin, worry, vexation and irritability gradually and solemnly take their leave under the soothing calming influence of a few puffs from the divine weed, and nothing else on earth can successfully be substituted—not even the nerve sedatives of the physician's armamentarium.

The time honored after-dinner smoke has become a real necessity, even more so than the spices or condiments of the table. This has become such a deeply rooted habit that deprive the smoker of his after-dinner cigar, though this may be the only smoke in twenty-four hours, and he feels miserable and prone to nervous indigestion.

The luxuriant sense of complacency and the calming narcotism of the mild smoke in the form of the cigarette has caused many of the gentler sex to indulge in its pleasures. Despite the numerous protests at first, many ladies of the royal courts are confirmed smokers. This is especially true in the court of Russia.

Smoking is a fad among some women, and if indulged in quantities consistent with reason and in proper place and time, there should be no more ground for objection than playing cards, attending champagne suppers, late dances, etc. Why object to the occasional whiff from the care dispelling, soothing cigarette, which is really less harmful than the late supper? It should be a matter of pure personal like or dislike and not that of sex privilege.

Smoking will shorten life if indulged in by those singularly susceptible to its effects or if the limit of moderation is overreached, bearing in mind that each person is a law unto himself regarding what is moderation. Under those adverse conditions tobacco may abbreviate existence, just as is the case in overindulgence in meats, tea and coffee, which causes organic disease.

But the habit of tobacco smoking, gauged by reason and discretion, is not only a harmless pleasure, without which all social functions among men would be sadly incomplete, but I venture to say that in the present day of strife and high mental tension, many lives are distinctly prolonged by smoking. If the nervousness caused by the high tension of life today, with its excitability, worry and restlessness, shortens life (and this is agreed upon by all authorities), then tobacco, dispelling excitability, restlessness and overcoming the high tension for a while, will do more good than harm and will consequently prolong life.

I do not advocate to the world the use of tobacco, nor do I condemn it. I ask the reader to draw his own deductions from the arguments presented. Inwardly, however, I say, "Blessed be the divine weed."

Oscar Invents a New Machine

That Oscar Hammerstein has made up his mind to keep in the limelight is again demonstrated by a report that he is about to put on the market a device invented by him, which it is claimed will flatten all kinds of tobacco fillers, rendering the tobacco as "smooth as writing paper." The machine will at the same time, through an electrical process, so treat the tobacco stems and veinings that uniform burning of the tobacco will be assured. This, in the past, was not possible, inasmuch as the stems had to be removed, as they would not burn.

A cigar store and restaurant will occupy the first floor of a brick and stucco building, which John O. Button plans to erect at Farmingdale, New Jersey.

The report which was filed with the proceedings relative to the bankruptcy of Oscar Gassmann & Company, cigar dealers, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a fortnight or so ago, showed total assets of $4820, of which amount $2526.57 went to unsecured creditors on their claims, totaling $28,086.43. The secured claims were paid in full and amounted to $655.19.

Newsy Trade Items

The Columbia Club Cigar Store, of Ogden, Utah, was slightly damaged by fire a short time since by an overheated furnace in the rear of the basement.

The United Cigar Store in Irons Hall, Olneyville, Providence, Rhode Island, closed down December 31. Report has it that the entire block has been leased by a prominent concern handling a large chain of lunch rooms throughout the country.

The United Cigar Stores Company has leased the building at Maine Street, East and Water Streets, Rochester, New York, now occupied by the Bijou Dream Theatre, and will open a cigar store at this stand at the expiration of the present lease.

William Payton has purchased the interest of "Bingo" Wilson, of the firm of Wilson & Hill, San Diego, Cal., and the firm name in future will be Payton & Hill.

E. W. Addis has sold his cigar business at National City, Cal., to L. B. Broadhead.

A "Pure Gold" Christmas Sentiment

THE Pure Gold Tobacco Company, of Greeneville, Tennessee, sent to the trade as their Christmas greeting a beautifully embossed card done in gold leaf on white. Unlike the conventional Christmas card, this greeting bears neither a picture of Santa Claus nor a wreath of holly, but it does carry a message that is well worth reading, as follows:

"Merrie Christmas—We hope that this Christmas may reveal to you that power within us all—the power to eat a crust with relish—to make our increasing burdens smaller by the way we shoulder them—to learn self-control and forget the doctor—to be content with the little left because of the much we give—to wear your heart upon your face, and your face thereby a joy be to those who have to live with it."

The regular monthly meeting of the Connecticut Leaf Tobacco Association, Hartford, Connecticut, which was held last month, was preceded by a dinner to the members, after which the meeting was called to order and the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read. Numbered among the guests of the association was Congressman-elect Augustine Lonergan.

Alfred E. Kilbourne Dies in East Hartford

Stricken with apoplexy while on his way to the office of the East Hartford Tobacco Storage Corporation, Hartford, Connecticut, of which he was president, Alfred E. Kilbourne, a well-known resident of East Hartford, died suddenly in that city, December 19. Born in 1849 in East Hartford, Mr. Kilbourne received a common school education followed by a course in business college. In 1884 he became connected with Mr. Osterweis of New Haven, for whom he bought tobacco. Remaining with him until 1892, he then accepted a position as manager and agent for Sutter Brothers, of Chicago and Philadelphia, taking care of their large tobacco interests in East Hartford. In 1904 he organized the East Hartford Tobacco Storage Corporation, with which he was connected until his death. The funeral was held December 21, interment being made at Center Cemetery. He is survived by a widow and two daughters by a former wife.

The death is reported recently of Michael Scholl, a cigar manufacturer, of 1196 Broadway, Brooklyn, New York, due to incessant bleeding of the nose brought on by the breaking of a blood vessel following a sneezing spell.

CIGAR FACTORIES FOUND GOOD

State Board of Health Shows That Wanton Attack on New Orleans Industry Is Not Justified by Inspection.

Two tobacco factories were rated "good" and one was adjudged bad in their general sanitary conditions by Dr. Mayer Newhauser, inspector of the State Board of Health, following an inspection of the premises Thursday morning.

Of the W. R. Irby branch of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, Dr. Newhauser reports that the premises were clean and employes were tidy, but the toilet conveniences were inadequate.

The inspectors gave the Hernsheim Company, Limited, cigar factory one of the best "boosts," perhaps, which has ever been given a New Orleans cigar factory by the State Board of Health. Of this plant he said: "A minute inspection of the sanitary arrangements and washing facilities, as well as the floors and tables, shows this institution to be exceptionally clean and employes in fairly good health and tidy."

In his report to Dr. Dowling, however, the inspector complains of conditions in the Havana-American Company's factory at Gravier and South Peters Streets as follows: "Toilet and washing facilities in this building are detrimental to the health and welfare of the employes."

Dr. Dowling's condemnation of a cigar factory a year ago and criticism of another about a month ago have been seized upon by rivals of the New Orleans cigar industry to make a vicious attack on it, and suggest that boards of health of other states should prohibit New Orleans-made cigars from entering other states. This form of attack is not justified by the facts, for the local institutions, as soon as warned by the State Board of Health, have remedied conditions complained of. Where there was criticism by the health officer at the time of the inspection, subsequent inspections have shown improvement. The inspection Thursday showed two of three places visited in splendid condition, while the third will attain that condition just as soon as the proprietors can bring about reforms suggested.

From The Times-Democrat, New Orleans, La., Feb. 7, 1913.

THE KING'S COURT IS A CLEAN PLACE

But One Tobacco Factory of Three Gets Jolt From Newhauser

The Hernsheim Company, Limited, maker of the "King's Court" and other high-grade cigars, came bravely through the rigors of an impromptu visit by the inspector for the State Board of Health Thursday, getting a highly complimentary rating for its attention to details of sanitation.

The W. R. Irby branch of the Liggett & Myers Company received a good report, with the qualification that some of its toilet facilities are inadequate.

These details of the Havana-American Company's factory at Gravier and South Peters Streets are described as detrimental to the health and welfare of the employes. Dr. Mayer Newhauser made the rounds:

"A minute inspection of the sanitary arrangements and washing facilities of the Hernsheim Company," he reports, "as well as the floors and tables, shows this institution to be exceptionally clean and the employes in fairly good health and tidy."

The managers of the Hernsheim Company are particularly gratified by the inspector's findings, inasmuch as the firm was more or less "stung," as an employe phrased it, some time ago, by an adverse report made on another tobacco company in an old building bearing the Hernsheim name. The Hernsheim Tobacco Company had moved its business out of that building long before and had no connection whatever with the enterprise operated there.

"We are pleased with the visit of the doctor," said one of the makers of "King's Court," "because it recognizes the efforts we have consistently made to turn out a safe product as well as a good one. The process of cigar rolling, involving as it does the application of moisture and the constant contact of human hands, in rooms where a number work together, on an article that is finally to be put into your mouth, ought, in our judgment, to be surrounded with every sanitary safeguard that can be applied to it. We think this is true even if the proper care costs enough to make an insignificant addition to the cost of the cigar. We have spared no expense that is really needed to make our goods right.

"History tells us that the royalty of olden days was about as unkempt and dirty as the rabble. Times have changed, however, and dames and gentlemen of high degree have changed with them. Anybody that keeps company with any of the dukes, princes, queens or kings of our court, whatever he thinks of their quality otherwise, can gamble that they're clean."

United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. and M. A. Gunst & Co. Consolidate Interests

Under Arrangement Outlined, President Jacob Wertheim Retires on April 1st, Though Retaining Directorship Vice-President Fred Hirschorn to Be New Head of Concern—Country-wide Changes to Take Place

COINCIDENT with the annual statement of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, which showed it to have passed through one of the most satisfactory years since 1909, announcement was made on the twelfth inst. that preliminary agreements had been executed between the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company and M. A. Gunst & Company, whereby the entire business of each will be consolidated with the other. The first steps in this transaction were taken by Moses A. Gunst and Jacob Wertheim during the recent visit to New York of Mr. Gunst from his home in San Francisco.

Under the arrangement outlined at present, President Jacob Wertheim, of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, will fulfill a long-cherished desire, and while remaining a director of the company, will retire to private life about April 1 next. It is understood that Vice-President Fred Hirschorn will then become the president. At the same time, Alfred I. Esburg and Preston Herbert, of M. A. Gunst & Company, will enter the management of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, and Mr. Maurice Wertheim, son of the president and himself the secretary, will also withdraw and leave the United States to enter the diplomatic service.

This consolidation is considered as the crowning achievement of Mr. Wertheim's splendid management of the United Company, and he believes that his concern is now in such shape, both from a manufacturing and distributing standpoint, that its stability and continued prosperity, without his active labors, is assured for the future.

The announcement that George L. Storm & Company, a subsidiary of the United, had purchased the exclusive jobbing and distributing business of Bissinger Brothers, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, is another cog in the wheel, which will insure an uninterrupted output of all of the United brands in the big territory of which Pittsburgh is the centre. The business there will be operated as the Pittsburgh branch of George L. Storm & Company.

M. A. Gunst & Company, which has now joined with the United, will not make any change in the general conduct of its business, with the exception that all of the earnings will become a part of the United Cigar Manufacturers' earnings. M. A. Gunst & Company operate large clear Havana factories in Tampa and Key West and are rated as among the largest cigar distributors in the United States, with other big distributing houses in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Oregon; Seattle, and Spokane, Washington, and in Honolulu. They also own a large chain of retail stores in the cities named, as well as some retail shops in New York City, the most important of which is at No. 1 West Forty-second Street, where the general Eastern offices of the company have been located.

Under the new arrangement, in addition to their tremendous output of domestic and seed and Havana goods, the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, now has several splendid clear Havana brands to offer to the trade, the leader of course being the well-known "Van Dyck."

At the annual meeting of the company, held February 10, the regular quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent. on the preferred stock of the company was declared to be payable on and after March 1.

The healthy condition of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company is shown by the report for the fiscal year, end-

Free Smokers Bill Becomes a Law

President Taft Signs Measure Passed by Congress Permitting Workmen to Have 21 Cigars Per Week, Tax Free

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 12.

AT last, the Free Smokers' bill is a law, having been signed by President Taft. By this action, Congress overturns the free smoking regulations promulgated by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Cabell, and hereafter cigarmakers will be permitted to smoke twenty-one cigars per week, tax free.

Commissioner Cabell interpreted the present law to require a revenue tax on all cigars and cigarettes manufactured, no matter whether they are sold to the trade or given away to the workmen in the factory, and issued instructions to that effect. This caused considerable trouble in the trade and Congress was appealed to to lighten the requirements of the law. As a consequence of this a bill was introduced exempting from taxation those cigars smoked on the premises of the factory, not exceeding twenty-one cigars per week to each workman.

Provided further, That each employee of a manufacturer of cigars shall be permitted to use, for personal consumption and for experimental purposes, not to exceed twenty-one cigars per week without the manufacturer of cigars being required to pack the same in boxes or to stamp or pay any internal revenue tax thereon, such exemption to be allowed under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

Commissioner Cabell did not care to discuss the new law, although it was intimated that the Internal Revenue Bureau is not displeased with the present conditions in the trade as regards free smokers. It must be remembered, however, that the new law will not take effect until regulations have been drafted. It is but a little over two weeks before the present administration will leave office, so it is safe to predict that the smokers' regulations under the new law will be drafted by a Democratic administration sometime after March 4.

How Some Brands of Cigars Were Killed

ON the other hand, there have been cases where the other extreme has helped to kill a brand. One firm came to my attention recently which devoted altogether too much time on the manufacturing end of the business and very little on the sales end. The concern had been in business for a number of years and in all that period had never put a salesman on the road. The city in which they did business had a population of about one hundred thousand. Their cigars were as uniformly good as could be made for the price. The head of the company was known as a crank on leaf tobacco and knew cigar manufacturing from A to Z. After he had secured all the trade he knew was possible in his home town he began to look around on the outside for more. His brands were fairly well known, but he had not pushed them as he should have done. When he reached for more outside trade, he found himself in the peculiar position of having several dead brands on his hands which had never been very much alive. He finally decided to drop them in reaching for more business, and introduced others composed of the same tobaccos. The sales organization of the firm had not been properly balanced with the manufacturing end and it proved disastrous to him when he began to expand the business.

He looked around his plant and finally decided to use one of his men, who had been successful in selling cigars in the home city. This man was almost inexperienced, but he had the right stuff in him and is making good. He had no one to rely upon or get advice from when he started out, but he kept his eyes open and is slowly, but surely, making headway. Had the sales organization of the firm been on a right basis, he would not have had the uphill fight for recognition he had to undergo.

About five years ago a cigarmaker, who had been in the employ of a large firm as factory superintendent for fifteen years, decided to embark in business for himself. There was no question about the fact that he could make good cigars. This man, Jones, we will call him, opened a factory in his home town with two hands. The cigar he put out was a hummer, being better than any three-for-a-quarter and equal to most ten-cent cigars then on the market. It retailed for a nickel.

Shortly after he opened up I called upon him and found out that it was his intention to work up a fair box trade in the home town. Everything was to be put into the cigar and none in fancy labels, advertising or other expenses. Any one in touch with the business knows full well that were the marketing expenses of tobacco products eliminated, the smoker would get almost twice as much for the price as he now does. So Jones could sell a mighty fine cigar for five cents. He had drummed up a fair trade when he made a trip to a neighboring city so as to increase his business.

Here is where he was up against it. There was so much in the cigar that the dealer had to pay more than for any other nickel cigar on the market. And the brand was not well known enough to warrant any man putting them in and pushing them. It was all right for Jones to sell them at his retail store for five cents, and even then the profits were small, but it was out of the question to market them and allow for another to make a profit on them also.

The market in his home town was limited, the population being about 10,000, and when Jones tried for the outside trade he had to introduce another brand. Failure to allow for selling expenses caused this trouble.

Another case similar to this one came to my attention recently. A cigar dealer in one of our larger cities had been operating two stores for a number of years. Most of his cigars were manufactured by himself in a small factory in the city.

About a year ago he decided to make a cigar that would beat everything at that price in the town. It would sell at a nickel. The brand came out and sold like wild fire. It was the utmost value possible that he could put in the cigar and sell at that price. Through a good salesman he soon had a nice trade with retailers in the city, selling it at $35 straight, allowing for no discounts whatsoever.

It was of such a superior value that several dealers bought heavily and sold it to other tobacconists at $40 and even higher. In a number of cafes it sold readily for a dime; at others it retailed three for a quarter and many dealers sold it for five cents straight.

Smith, which was of course not his name, was pleased with the reception the brand received and spoke to me in glowing terms of the future in store for it. He formulated plans to advertise heavily in trade journals and try for outside trade. One reason he wished to make a bid for the outside was that dealers were beginning to get dissatisfied with the way the brand had been selling around town, prices ranging all the way from a nickel to a dime.

The cigar he allowed for was a good one when only one profit was allowed for—in the case of his own stores—but I inquired what he was going to call it when he commenced advertising—a five or a ten-cent brand? It could not be put in the hands of a jobber for $35, which was the rock-bottom price, and expect any one to sell it at a nickel. The profits were too small and no one would push it.

On the other hand, if he advertised it as a ten-cent piece of goods, what would his distributors in other cities think when they ascertained that the same brand was selling in the manufacturer's home city for five cents and that dealers were purchasing it for $35, whereas they would have to pay more outside for the same piece of goods.

Finally, I told Smith, the brand was neither a five-cent cigar nor a ten-center. It was too good for the first-named class and not quite good enough for the second one. If he cut the quality to put it in the first class he would surely kill it in his home city. So we put that possibility aside. And if he increased the quality to put it in the dime class, he would be compelled to raise the price to home dealers, which would mean a loss of trade. It was a pretty kettle of fish. The upshot was that he put out another brand for the outside and made good headway on it. But the standard of his goods in the home town was so high that it never sold there to any extent, as compared with the first brand.

High-handed methods of doing business by some cigar jobbers and manufacturers have in some instances done much to kill certain brands. Several months ago, the sales manager of a large cigar manufacturing concern placed his goods with a jobber in a city of about 85,000 population. This man made all kinds of promises and assured the jobber that he would have the firm's hearty support in distributing the cigar. He spoke of newspaper advertising and a factory missionary, but made no definite promises. The

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Businesses

A Guessing Contest is Always Popular

A large and hustling retail cigar firm in an Ohio city recently tried a guessing contest which was quite popular while it lasted. They were pushing a well-known cigar in that town and persuaded the manufacturers to bear half the expense of the contest.

The concern operated three stands in the city. In the show window of each store they displayed a fish globe, containing a number of coins. It could not be seen just what the value of the coins were, but it must have been more than several hundred dollars. Each purchaser of the cigar they were popularizing in the city was entitled to take one guess at the number of coins in the jar. The prize was given, of course, to the purchaser making the closest estimate. The prize in working a "Rinkle" such as this would be the coins in the jar, or it could be a box of cigars, lighter, humidor, or anything the ingenuity of the dealer suggests.

Make a Specialty of Clever Trick Smoking Devices

Holmes & Walthers, owners of a popular retail cigar stand at the corner of Ellis and Powell Streets, San Francisco, carry an interesting side-line which has drawn considerable attention to their store from its novelty, and has been a source of some profit in itself. The line consists of everything they have been able to get hold of in the way of trick devices—barring, of course, infernal machines containing dangerous explosives. The nearest approach to this is the cigar that will "go off" like a Roman candle. They have over two hundred different devices in the line, and as many as possible are regularly displayed in one of their windows, which serves continually to attract the notice of new customers. For the holiday season they made up a number of special combination boxes containing assortments of these devices, at various prices, an idea which was well received.

Man Who Knocked the "Eyes" Out of Competition

It never pays to knock your competitor, when he gets some business you think you were entitled to. The only way is to smile and "dig" all the harder and see that it does not occur again. In a certain city some time ago one merchant was watching his younger competitor across the street closely. Shortly after he experienced the competition of the fast-growing house he put out a large sign reading:

WE WELCOME COMPETITION.

The intent of the sign was so obvious that the younger merchant decided he could not overlook it, although he was averse to getting into any seeming argument with a competitor. But he knocked all the wind out of the sails of the other fellow by immediately showing a large sign reading:

I AM THE FELLOW THAT KNOCKED BOTH "EYES" OUT OF COMPETITION.

The cleverness of the sign was not lost on the many passers-by and afforded much amusement to persons watching the commercial warfare.

Hand Matches to Prospective Customers

Some time ago the writer entered one of the larger cigar stores in the city of Baltimore. He walked up to the counter intending to purchase several cigars, when a clerk stepped up and before an order could be given, pushed a small box of matches toward him. In many cases a customer will ask for a match or matches, and the idea of handing the customer a box before he makes his purchase makes a very good impression indeed. Such a little thing may seem trivial, but the cigar merchant who is on the lookout for courtesies such as these leaves a good taste in the mouth of the smoker by the plan. Many times the matches will not be taken, but the store gets the credit of giving good service nevertheless.

Popularity Contest for Persons of Musical Talent a Success

A merchant in the West tried a scheme some time ago, which made a decided hit with his patrons. He held a popularity voting and business-getting contest in which a number of young women were invited to take part. The number of contestants was limited to fifteen, each one of whom was expected to have a reputation for some sort of musical talent, either vocal or instrumental.

Each of the contestants was supposed to give a concert at the store between certain hours, in return for which he or she was given one per cent. of the day's cash receipts, and also ten votes with every dollar's worth of goods purchased by his or her friends—the votes to count any day, but the cash commission only to count for the day of the concert. The scheme was declared to be a good one for boosting sales.

Does Card and Cartoon Work in Show Windows

W. F. Patillo, specialty man for Bondy & Lederer, was recently working on a publicity campaign for some cigars, in San Francisco. His specialty is card and cartoon work, which he does in the show windows, and his start in San Francisco was made in the window of Ed. Goodman, at Pine and Market Streets. He kept up a rapid fire of catchy window cards, getting out something new every few minutes, and kept the sidewalk crowded all day—so much so that at one time a policeman felt called upon to clear the sidewalk. Of course, this brought a rush of business in the store, and Mr. Goodman has had a big run on the cigars as a result.

If it is hard for you to get along with people, make up your mind that it is hard for people to get along with you.

There is nothing you have to sell that will not be better sold if it is not displayed in the best possible manner.

Most of your customers depend upon what you tell them about the goods they are buying. See to it that your information about your stock is correct.

There is no trouble in getting a new line of goods introduced to your trade if you will get your clerks genuinely interested in it.

A Few Pointers on Pipe Repairing

SOME of the edges of carved meerschaum are so sharp that it is a common accident to chip off a piece of the meerschaum; in all probability it is a small piece; if so, it is an easy matter to trim the broken edge with a sharp penknife, always supposing that the surrounding carving will admit the operation without disfigurement. If, however, the fracture be too large to treat in this manner satisfactorily, then carefully wrap the broken-off piece in tissue paper, place it inside the bowl, and put the pipe away for future treatment when you can sit down quietly and uninterruptedly. Then get some "diamond cement" or other transparent preparation with which the fracture can be repaired in such a manner that it does not show where joined. "Secotine" is not colorless enough for this work. A very small portion of cement should be used, it being necessary to allow it to dry perfectly, after which the superfluous cement must be very carefully removed with a knife. This job must be done with perfectly clean fingers, as dirt, grease, or even perspiration on the fracture will prevent the cement holding. Should you have any doubt about your capability, then send the pipe to a professional pipe-repairer. A colored or partially colored pipe does not require so much care, as the trimming off or fracture can be darkened with tobacco juice.

It sometimes occurs, even to the most careful man, that a pipe drops out of the hands; should this occur, try to let it fall on your feet, this may not save it, but it will certainly lessen the impact, as the feet are not so hard as the floor. Practice this with an old wooden pipe.

With cheap goods it is best to put broken ones into the "cripples' box" (of which we will treat hereafter); but with better qualities—they generally break close to the mouthpiece—attempts should be made to repair them by cementing the broken parts together, letting the same become perfectly dry, then cover the fracture with a silver band. If the screw simply becomes loose, then proceed in the same manner as with meerschaum, but using secotine instead of plaster and gum; as a rule, they are loose for want of a little moisture only. When screws are broken, it is sometimes possible to extract the broken pieces and put in new ones; but, as a rule, it is better to put the pipes in the "cripples' box," taking care to place the mouthpieces in the bowls after wrapping them in paper; this to ensure that the right mouthpiece can be afterwards put to the right pipe.

There are very few repairs which the novice can not do himself, with the exception of when the lip-piece is broken or bitten off. With small pieces it is not worth the time and trouble that the repair involves; but it is different with a long, and therefore expensive mouthpiece. To begin with, the fractured part must be cut off level with the small three square file, or, better still, with a very fine small saw such as metal-workers use; now with the medium safe-edge file held flat on the table or bench, the cut-off end must be made smooth by moving the amber, held perfectly upright, from end to end of the file. The next process is to cut a lip on the amber with a fine file; the lip must be started somewhat thicker than would seem to be necessary, because the subsequent trimming will considerably reduce it. Now graduate the cut along the amber so that the result may not be too stubby and sudden; this is the most difficult and tedious part of the process. When done, trim the end of the amber and the new lip to a crescent shape, with the medium and fine files in succession. To get the right shape take an unbroken mouthpiece as a pattern. The repaired mouthpiece now requires polishing, firstly with No. OO glasspaper, then with chalk and water, finishing with oil vigorously rubbed on with a piece of flannel.

When amber or amberoid is bodily broken send it to your pipe-repairer, who can join the edges after filing them flat, by inserting a screw; as this shortens the mouthpiece, it is necessary in a bad break to insert also a piece of amber or amberoid to fill up the gap, when the screw goes completely through the new piece, which may well be of a different color to the original without disfigurement; on the contrary, it frequently enhances the appearance.

With stock goods the overturning is generally caused by the screw having shrunk from drought, and is easily remedied by the application of moisture; but with customers' pipes it is mostly caused by constant unscrewing for cleaning purposes; in these cases it will mostly be found that the portion of the screw inside the stem of the meerschaum or briar, as the case may be, is very firmly fixed. To correct this overturning it is needful to cut down the joining face of the mouthpiece so as to convert the "over-turn" into a complete half-turn, sometimes this proves to be insufficient and a whole turn is required. The cutting-down process is effected with the file held quite flat on the table, and the amber worked steadily and firmly to and fro; trying the mouthpieces on the screw frequently so as not to file off too much. As this is a very tedious process, to avoid the necessity of cutting a whole turn when the pipe is of wood, and it happens that the stem is not perfectly cylindrical, then the wood may be cut away and the amber filed where projecting so as to bring the edges level; but do not attempt this with meerschaum. We should remark that large square ambers require a lathe to reduce them properly; hence it is best to send them to the pipe-repairer. Caution: Go very gently with a new file, or tiny bits are liable to be chipped off the amber.

How Some Brands Were Killed

wholesale house told their salesmen to place the brand wherever possible, and it was put with a number of good stands in a comparatively short space of time.

One morning the manager of the jobbing concern received a bill for advertising in one of the largest morning dailies of the city. He had not contracted for any advertising and was dumbfounded. He called up the advertising manager of the newspaper and asked him to call upon him immediately. He received him and was told that the contract had been placed in the paper by the sales manager of the cigar manufacturer, who instructed the advertising man to send the bills to the wholesale house.

The jobber was hot under the collar and immediately wired for the man who had placed the cigars with his house. He placed his bill before the salesman and inquired the meaning of it. The advertising was placed by him, the representative explained, and he wished the jobber to pay half of it, since he was profiting by it also. And furthermore, he explained to the astonished buyer, if they terminated the contract by which they were handling the cigar, it would be placed with another dealer in the same city, who would receive their support.

The jobber saw that the sales manager was trying to "put one over on him" and gave his ultimatum. The remaining cigars would be shipped back the next day. This was done and these goods have not been placed with any other firm in that town. The jobber explained the matter to all his retail customers, who threw out the cigar. The other jobber, who the salesman stated would take on the brand, found out the true situation and resolved to keep his hands off. The brand, for the time being at least, is dead in that city. And this can be attributed to the sharp business methods of the sales manager only.

What Does the First Six Weeks of 1913 Mean to You?

ALREADY one month and a half of the new year has sped into the past.

What have you done, Mr. Live-wire Dealer, to make a record for the next twelve months? Perhaps you said when the new year approached: "I am going to throw out some of the dead brands and will stock up with others worth while." Or it may be that you made a resolution to try and have a more cheerful and attractive store. The window was to be utilized more also than it had been in the last twelve months. You were, in addition, going to try a few "stunts" to draw the attention of the smokers of your town to your establishment.

Have you done these—or any of them?

It is the easiest thing in the world to get in a rut. And it is not the most simple matter to awake when one has fallen in a temporary trance. Do you belong to this class? Do you belong to that class one finds in each town whom the up-to-the-minute merchants consider outsiders, men who have not the ambition to have up-to-date, progressive methods and stores?

Regardless of what you think of others, regardless of what they think of you, you know what stuff you are made of—you realize that within you there are capabilities which will not brook indifference. You have said that you have the ability of making good. When you pass away, the world will not pass on you according to what you thought of yourself, but what you did when you were here. Your stature is to be measured by the foot-rule of accomplishment.

Therefore, if you have made a resolution to go onward and upward to a bigger business—get busy. And if your resolution was tabled in the rush of other matters, make one now.

And work it out.

Keep Your Windows From Becoming Frosted

What are your show windows like these frosty mornings, Mr. Storekeeper? Windows are bound to frost if care is not taken to prevent it. It is caused because the temperature on the outside and inside of the window is not the same. This can be remedied by having holes bored in the lower and upper parts of the window which admit the air and provide for sufficient ventilation. Some merchants, instead of boring holes, cut small slits about six inches long and two inches wide. These should be covered with a fine screen. In every case where this plan is used there should be an opening at the top of the window also. The air will not draw through unless there are openings in both the top and the bottom—or rather on two sides.

Your window displays will do you little good if you allow the window to frost up on you. There would be some excuse for some merchants, for some products put in windows, freeze easily. But not so with goods sold in the cigar store.

Fine Report on Hernsheim Factory

The report of Dr. Oscar Dowling, State Health Officer of Louisiana, upon the sanitary conditions found in the cigar factory of the Hernsheim Company, at New Orleans, is sufficient refutation of the charges recently appearing in print that this factory was not in a fit sanitary condition. Details of the report are published in another column of this issue and are well worth perusal.

Who Keeps You Down, Mr. Clerk?

IF some other person secured the position you were counting on in the place you are now working, if some one, who has been in the business world only half as long as you have been, seems more successful, do not console yourself with the idea that you are being kept down. Nobody of any sense will agree with you. If you are made of the stuff that wins, if you are determined to get ahead, nobody can keep you back. Your achievement will be no more than the aim you have set for yourself. If you believe that you are tied down so that you cannot move, you will never advance.

Up-to-date employers are on the lookout for the man or woman who is above the average standard of ability; the one who stands out from the crowd as an individual; who is not afraid to be original; who can carry out old plans in a better way; one who can originate new plans. Employers of this class are looking for initiative and ability to facilitate business. They are looking for the wideawake, ambitious employee who can help them to attain greater success. He knows he can get any number of ordinary men, who will obey his orders—the extraordinary man is the person he is after.

Can you prove that you are all this? Are you alive to the interests of the man who is paying you wages? Do not allow inaccuracy and lack of interest in details to interfere with your success. Get a reputation for thoroughness and reliability. Use your opportunities, your imagination, be persistently determined to get ahead and you will surely get there.

Don't blame anyone for keeping you down but yourself. When you get a reputation for the qualities that spell success, you will have no reason for kicking. Your services will be in demand.

G. A. LORENZEN, a Chicago cigar salesman, retiring from business a short time ago, made public his expense accounts, showing $18,000 in tips the past twenty years. His average was seventy-five dollars per month. "If you don't pay tips," said Mr. Lorenzen, "you are blacklisted." As all the tips a salesman hands out are paid by the house a man represents, it would be interesting to know just how much the consumer must pay to hotel servants and others for this item in the course of a year. This must be allowed for in the ultimate price of the goods.

It may seem strange, but the drummer appears to be the natural prey of the tip system. The tourist may never come that way again, so he can give as he chooses. But the traveling man carries impediments in the way of sample cases; he comes around that way again, and sooner than have a war each time, he must allow himself to be mulcted. There have been myriads of cases where a new man starting out for a house decided that tipping was a nuisance. After a time his trunks did not come along in time, he would have a fight about it; the same thing would happen the next time he came along, until finally realizing that he needed his energy to transact business, he gave in and tipped in future.

Perhaps this is the reason, or one of them, why only a certain type of man makes a success as a salesman. Just as he must be able to sleep doubled up in a day coach, and put up with innumerable inconveniences, so must he be able to be continually milked and keep on smiling. The man with too keen a sense of justice couldn't stand it.

The whole system will be adjusted when the hotels pay their help a living wage and prohibit tipping. The employees can not be blamed. Were their wages made public the consumer would realize that they must secure additional money somewhere, and the tipping practice is the only one which affords that.

I was one of a group of men in a hotel corridor some time ago, who vied with each other in telling the wildest yarns. The palm was awarded to a bright cigar salesman who put this one across:

"I was traveling with a missionary crew several years ago, introducing a plug tobacco which I will call 'Red Jack,' because that wasn't the name. One day I tried an advertising stunt which was pronounced the best the town ever saw. I had spied a space between two windows over the porch roof of a two-story store building which I considered an elegant one for the large muslin signs we were putting around town. After I had gotten the dealer's consent I climbed out on the roof and went to work merrily with my little hammer.

"Just as I drove the last tack my foot slipped and as the law of gravitation was stronger than my eyebrows, I descended earthward. I reached terra firma a writhing, groaning mass of flesh. The crowd which rapidly collected, bore me tenderly to a shady spot and applied the simple restoratives that were at hand, but seemingly with no effect.

"Just as they were going to send for the hospital ambulance, I rose and asked for a chew of 'Red Jack.' It was just the thing needed and after I had taken a good chunk I got up and wended my way to the next cigar store, feeling better than ever."

Many Philadelphians have made a lot of money out of tobacco in one shape or another—and not by going actually in business either. William L. Elkins, the late eminent capitalist, is said to have put $1,000,000 in one tobacco venture from which he shortly took out $3,000,000, which to be real conservative, beats Little Johnnie Horner's plum trick fifty ways. Mr. Widener is said to have done even better than that. Some Philadelphians have used snuff investments to help them keep the wolf from the door. One of the romances of the Quaker City trade, though, is the story of the Greeks, who, starting in an extremely modest basement store, became one of the largest manufacturers of cigarettes in the East, or in fact, the country. This was almost duplicated by one of our cigar manufacturers—the difference was only in methods used to secure the same results.

"I certainly am the prize Jonah of this 'burg," said a friend of mine the other day. "I've always been a heavy smoker and I don't think any man ever got more solid satisfaction out of a cigar or pipe than I did. I smoked assiduously for many years and the other day when I got a case of 'nerves' I went to the doctor, who told me that I would have to stop for a time, or else I would be a case for the undertaker before spring.

"Well, it would be mighty inconvenient for me to die this winter, so I threw away my pipe and a box or two of cigars. That was several weeks ago, and since then I have been in so many peculiar positions that I am beginning to pity myself.

"Before I quit smoking, I never seemed to notice anyone coming around and handing me any free smokes, but since I have been compelled to swear off, my friends seem determined to see that I am well supplied. I had a birthday last week and I received two meerschaum pipes, a cigar-holder and three boxes of cigars, in addition to a silver match-safe and a few other things which go to make a smoker's life one round of pleasure. Every time I seem to come down town somebody wants me to sample a favorite brand of cigars and I expect it will begin to rain cigarettes some day when I am around without an umbrella."

"That's the way it goes," I replied; "I suppose it's just the general contrariness of the world."

How Will Free Smoker Law Be Interpreted?

The signing of the Free Smokers' bill by President Taft this week brings nearer to final solution, the mooted question which has been agitating the cigarmakers ever since Commissioner Cabell interpreted the revenue laws to forbid any cigars being smoked on which a revenue tax had not been paid. The law, as amended, permits employees of the cigar factories to use for personal consumption and experimental purposes, twenty-one cigars each week, tax free.

The only possible trouble that may now arise from this amendment is the interpretation the Internal Revenue Commissioner might place upon it.

As the new law will not become effective until regulations drafted by the Secretary of the Treasury, through the Internal Revenue Commissioner, are promulgated, it remains to be seen whether the new administration, which takes office March 4, will draw the line fine enough to confine the smoking of free cigars to the factory premises.

It has been the custom for many years, for cigarmakers to take their free cigars home with them, and if the new Secretary of the Treasury should deny them this time-honored custom, he will be met with considerable opposition which may reopen the entire question. Unfortunately, this phase has been left open to the Treasury Department and its interpretation of the new law will be awaited with interest.

Well Deserved Rest for Jacob Wertheim

The announcement that Jacob Wertheim, the president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company would, on April 1, retire from the active management of that big and most prosperous concern, and endeavor to spend the remaining years of his life in pursuit of recreation and rest, comes with surprise and gratification to a large circle of friends.

Mr. Wertheim is one of the finest examples of the American self-made man of whom we know in the tobacco industry.

It has always been his pride that whatever he achieved in life, was accomplished solely through his own energies and ability. He had no rich daddy to back him and he entered a field of industrial pursuit that required a strong hand and keen brain, if success was to be achieved. He is essentially a big man and his plans were all in keeping with his physique.

With the consolidation of his company and Gunst & Company, as detailed elsewhere, Mr. Wertheim considers that his work in the tobacco field is practically finished and he will retire from the active arena with the deepest affection of his numerous friends, and particularly of scores whom he has assisted and counseled in their commercial life, and with the heartfelt respect of his most bitter antagonists.

An Address That Hit the Nail on the Head

During the recent convention of the Western Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, in Tacoma, a number of unusually stirring addresses were made. Perhaps nothing brought out at the meeting was more heartily endorsed and appreciated by the hearers than the words of N. E. Nelson, the secretary of the association. He reviewed the efforts made the past year by the officers and others and the results obtained.

The summing up of his speech brought out a few points which every tobacco dealer, whether large or small, should read carefully and digest. In part, he said:

"In closing let me emphasize the fact that you have a moral obligation to perform in connection with the association work. If we say that we are going to give preference to the manufacturers and jobbers whose goods pay the best profit, we should be consistent and honest and push their goods in preference to all other lines that do not pay a fair and reasonable profit. The man behind the counter cannot only stimulate the demand, but create it, if he has the confidence of his patrons. If you are a salesman and a business man, sell goods at a profit. Anybody can GIVE AWAY goods. Salesmanship is the ability to sell goods at a PROFIT. Do not make an automaton of yourself for the benefit of the manufacturer who is forcing his goods upon you through the medium of bill-board and magazine advertising. So long as you insist upon the manufacturer creating a demand for his goods, just so long you will be at his mercy."

There are few persons in the West who are more conversant with the trade situation in that region, as affecting the retailer, than Mr. Nelson, and his words caused many a man to scratch his head and think a bit harder than usual.

Wagner & De Beer, the Amsterdam tobacco brokers, have removed their offices and sample rooms from Nes 88-90 to corner Nes 71 and Kuipersteeg 2.

Alfonso Rios & Company, of Chicago, announce that they have removed their office and factory to more commodious quarters at 17 West Kinzie Street, near State. The new telephone number is Randolph 5630.

Cuba Cigar Company Liquidating

According to F. O. Rhoades, the Business Affairs of the Firm Will Be Closed by May 1st.

Despite certain contradictory rumors concerning the Cuba Cigar Company, F. O. Rhoades, the general manager, authorizes THE TOBACCO WORLD to state that the company is in process of liquidation and that all of their affairs should be wound up by May 1 next. The "Kings Club" cigar, which this company has done so much to popularize in the New York market and elsewhere, will be merchandized in future, by Pedro Castro & Company, the manufacturers of the goods, whose factory is in Tampa, and E. P. Oakes, the president of the old concern, will be associated with them in the selling and sales management under the new conditions.

Arrangements have been made with Louis G. Smith & Company, whereby they will act as New York distributors for "Kings Club" cigars in future. F. O. Rhoades says that his other business interests are of such a varied nature, that as soon as he has closed up the affairs of the Cuba Company, he will withdraw from the cigar field.

American Tobacco Co. Declares Dividend

The American Tobacco Company has declared a dividend of five per cent. and an extra dividend of fifteen per cent. on the common stock of the company. The dividends are payable March 1, to stockholders of record February 15. The American Tobacco Company states officially: "This distribution action is similar to that six months ago, when acting in accordance with the decree, $8,000,000 was distributed. The amount of the present distribution is $6,000,000."

The extra dividend of fifteen per cent., it is said, will almost clean up the proceeds of the sale of the various securities left in the hands of the directors of the new company for distribution. It is estimated that about $500,000 still remains unsold, which must be disposed of before February 1, 1915.

Independent Salesmen Meet

Judge Henry Hunter addressed the members of the Independent Salesmen's Association of America, at the regular meeting at the Hotel Marie Antoinette, on Friday, February 7. He outlined the work that had already been accomplished, giving an interesting talk. President Oscar Veit was in the chair.

G. S. Nicholas & Company, the large importing house, announce a substantial increase in their business during the past month over the same period last year. W. A. Charles, the Western traveler for the firm, has opened up some very desirable accounts since the first of the year and expects to hang up a record for 1913.

Effective Car Advertising on "Regensburg"

E. Regensburg & Sons, the Havana cigar manufacturers with New York offices, at 47 West Thirty-fourth Street, have just placed one of the catchiest cards seen in the street cars for some time. It depicts the Man in the Moon enjoying a "Regensburg." One eye is closed and the whole expression denotes the utmost satisfaction in smoking. To the right of the face is printed: "Get the expression—'Regensburg' for mine."

The really big distinctive feature of the card is the illusion secured by covering the tip of the cigar with tinsel, thus giving the effect of it being lit. It can be noticed from any angle and in any part of the car. The whole thing should be a most effective bit of advertising.

Fifty Sales Managers of "United" Dine

Fifty sales managers from fifty-two cities in which the United Cigar Stores have stands, were rewarded the evening of February 8, for faithful service by the presentation to each of one hundred shares of stock in the company. The presentation took place at a dinner in the Astor House following the second annual convention of sales managers. Addresses were made by J. H. O'Neil, G. H. Peterman, Charles Sherlock and John F. Whalen.

A. Kern & Company have been doing yeoman work on the "Bernadotte" cigar since the first of the year and state that their efforts have been most satisfactory. Although the cigar has been known among the best cigar circles of New York, it is now beginning to make itself felt on the outside.

Canadian Factory for M. Melachrino & Co.

A Canadian branch of M. Melachrino & Company will be established at Montreal shortly, under the direction of W. H. Munson, who is an experienced cigarette man. The business will be operated under the title of M. Melachrino & Company, of Canada, Limited. Mr. Munson expects to assume charge early in March and he plans to have the factory in operation in April.

Assignee Named for Business of S. H. Harris, Inc.

Charles A. Riegelman has been named as the assignee of the business of Samuel H. Harris, Incorporated, cigar manufacturer, located at 422-430 East Fifty-third Street, New York.

The business, which was started a little over three years ago, by Mr. Harris, was incorporated in December, 1910, he, himself acting as president, and the reported capital stock being $100,000. It is stated that the liabilities are about $50,000, and nominal assets $100,000. Dissensions among the officers is said to be the cause for the assignment.

Importers of Havana Cigars Actively Assert Their Claims

Say They Should Have a Re-adjustment of the Rate, So That Duty Will Be $3.00 Per Pound

THE Association of the Importers of Havana Cigars of the United States, have been exceedingly active in furthering their claims before the Ways and Means Committee for a readjustment of the tariff, so that the duty on imported cigars will be placed at three dollars per pound, specific duty, and the ad valorem duty entirely wiped out. Special meetings have been held at the office of Robert E. Lane and practically all the importers of note have signified their interest in the matters under discussion.

The brief which the importers filed before the Ways and Means Committee at its recent meeting and which was summarized in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD, has been put into a neat booklet and mailed by the New York members to every firm in the United States which was credited with importing a case of Havana cigars during 1912.

With the pamphlet, containing this brief, was a letter to the importer requesting that he sign the brief as an indication of his endorsement of the tariff change suggested, and return to the New York Association. Of the one hundred and thirty-five importers who received this pamphlet, more than a quarter have already signified their interest in the question and signed and returned their brief with a tacit promise to enlist Congressional support in obtaining the changes desired.

Some of those who had already signed up to the date of going to press, included R. L. Rose & Company, Providence, Rhode Island; S. S. Pierce Company, Boston, Massachusetts; D. Osborn & Company, Newark, New Jersey; Stoddard, Gilbert & Company, New Haven, Connecticut; Best & Russell Company, Chicago, Illinois; C. Jevne & Company, Chicago, Illinois; Louis G. Smith & Company, Robert E. Lane Company, G. S. Nicholas & Company, Park & Tilford, C. A. Van Rennselaer & Company, Waldorf-Astoria Segar Company, Macy & Jenkins, B. Wasserman Company, Acker, Merrall & Condit Company, Benson & Hedges, J. W. Surbrug, Charles & Company, Felbel, Spyer & Company, R. H. Hahn, Calixto Lopez & Company, G. W. Faber, Incorporated; Garcia, Pando & Company, all of New York City.; Washington Tobacco Company, Washington, District of Columbia.

The Havana Manufacturers Association are watching the work being done in New York with keen interest, and through Mr. Charles Landau, American representative of H. Upmann, have promised their hearty financial support to the association.

It is believed by many of the importers that with a specific duty of three dollars per pound, which would mean about forty-five dollars per thousand on imported Havana "Perfectos," the manufacturers in the United States will not take a very antagonistic stand to such a change in the tariff.

The "La Mega" Pleasing Club and Hotel Trade

The "La Mega" Havana cigar, manufactured by V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, of Tampa, has been receiving excellent distribution throughout New York City and vicinity recently through the efforts of Mr. Roman Dobler, who is championing this brand. The high-class club and hotel trade is appreciating the merit of the "La Mega" and a tour of many of these places would find it up in front with the big ones, selling strongly. Mr. Dobler is a keen student of the cigar game and when it comes to pushing a good thing, he loses no time in getting the desired results.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, February 11.

THE arrival of 2500 hogsheads of burley tobacco on this market in one day created a furore in the warehouse sections, being the largest in volume of shipments that have come here for many years. The big jam was brought in entirely by steamboat from up and down river points and was a part of the accumulation caused by the high water the Ohio Valley suffered last month.

Tobacco dealers in the bottoms are beginning to appreciate what it would mean for Cincinnati to be blessed with a curing plant. Maysville, Kentucky; Lexington and Louisville all have this adjunct to the trade, and as a business producer much credit is given.

How much the basket business is breaking in to the business on the local breaks is just beginning to be realized by the warehouse people. Talking with one of the oldest tobacco men in this city, he asserted that Cincinnati would have to be up or doing or this industry to which so much pride was given would be fast slipping from their fingers.

Chickering Brothers—they are not comedians, but good entertainers—who have charge of Bejacks Vine Street store, are building up a large trade in cigarette and cigar smokes. So enthused by success is Lou Chickering that he is seriously thinking of taking unto himself a frau.

"A few bands picked up from the floor of our store. Is yours here?" is the catchy sign that is displayed over a heap of rolled bands which appear in the retail window of J. Stacey Hill's store and has attracted a great deal of attention.

Speaking of novel window attractions, Charles Krohn & Company sprung a new one in the Walnut Street window. It was called the veiled lady, a litho with a fish net veil over her face. Curiosity seekers would gaze long at the thing, and it sure was an attraction.

Another novel trade producer was tried in a Vine Street store with meerschaum pipes. They were high-priced goods and were reduced a dollar a day until sold. It cleaned them all out when they reached the five dollar mark.

Lee Cahn, the retired cigar dealer, received the sympathy of the trade through the death of his sister, Mrs. Fannie Bloom.

In a two-column article in the "Commercial Tribune" one of the reporters rhapsodized so over a pipe and the joys to be had therefrom that down-town dealers have been stocking up after the depletion.

Nathan Straus, of Straus Brothers, wholesale and retail dealers, was married Wednesday, February 12, to Miss Elsie Frauhoff. They went East for the honeymoon.

P. Zeltmacher, of the Hamilton Pipe Works, Brooklyn, New York, was another business caller.

W. E. James, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, Tampa, paid a visit on business bent among the local jobbers and dealers.

Valentine day had an observer in the Straus Brothers' establishment on Walnut Street. The fixtures and trimmings were gotten up by one of the expert trimmers of the biggest department store in town.

Hirsch Brothers, who have had all sort of trouble through accusations against them for conducting a hand book on races, have been picketed by a policeman again. For two years off and on a blue coat has stood guard on their place. "The only cigar store in captivity with police protection" is the sign Nathan Hirsch is thinking of putting up.

Cigar stores here have wondered why every person they had ever known in Atlanta, Georgia, were sending for the top lid of the "Webster" cigar boxes and bands. The answer came last week, when it was announced that the "Webster" had won a popularity contest with such strong competitors as hams, flours and soaps to contend with.

Sig. C. Mayer, of "El Wadora" fame, was a busy man with the order book this week. He placed a big line. Dan Wolf will do the distributing.

"El Classo" is the name of a new broad leaf ten-center that Lee Heine is getting out.

Tobacco Products Company to Declare Dividend

It is reported that the directors of the Tobacco Products Corporation will meet some time during the coming month, according to present plans, and declare an initial dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock for the quarter begun January 1, when the stock became cumulative. This dividend, it is said, will be payable about April 1. It is said that, although some of the directors favored semi-annual dividends, quarterly disbursements were decided upon.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

Cigar Manufacturers Doing Big Business—Leaf Trade Brightens Up—Retailers Quiet

FROM all appearances the First Pennsylvania District cigar manufacturers are going to knock the 1912 production record higher than a kite. The figures recently received, as compiled from the revenue receipts, show that last January was the busiest in the history of the local trade. The output for the month, more than sixty-two millions, is almost eleven millions ahead of the same month last year. If the activity continues for the year, at the usual rate, 1913 will be a hummer. Several of the larger firms are on the outlook for outside factories and will open up just as soon as desirable locations can be secured. Conditions are way above normal for this time of the year.

There is not much doing in the wholesale circles. New brands are coming along in the usual after-holiday manner, a number having been taken on since the first of the year. The retail branch of the trade is quiet, say the jobbers, to which the dealers agree.

There has been a decided brightening of conditions among the leaf men. Almost every kind of leaf has been in demand. The new Connecticut has been received favorably in this market, but there has been some hedging at the prices asked. It has met with general satisfaction. Wisconsin, which is being force-sweated in order to relieve the binder scarcity, is also going well, although this can hardly be said to be fully on the market as yet.

Will Open Stock Exchange Cigar Stand March 10th

Yahn & McDonnell will open the cigar stand in the new Stock Exchange about March 10, according to plans now under way. The new stand will face Walnut Street, on the main floor, in the lobby. The furnishings will be of mahogany, plate glass and marble, similar in design to the Fifteenth Street store of the firm, and the very latest equipment will be used.

Yahn & McDonnell are direct importers of "H. Upmann" and "Romeo y Julieta" clear Havana cigars, which brands will be featured, though a complete line of imported and domestic goods of the higher grade will also be carried. The selection of a manager and his assistants remains yet to be decided.

Anti-Smoking Edict for Street Cars Strictly Enforced

As a Result of the War Between Trolley Company, and Riders Who Persist in Violating Rule, Many Smokers Are Arrested and Fined

THE new edict of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, which went into effect on February 1, resulted in some lively skirmishes between the smokers and the street car men. The transit company asked the public to co-operate with them in stopping the practice of carrying lighted cigars in street cars and also spitting in the trolleys. The announcement which was carried by thousands of cars several weeks previous to the enforcement of the order, was greeted with amusement by many, but the laugh is now on the rider who violates this rule contrary to the orders of the conductors.

Two convictions were handed down by Magistrates Harris and Toughhill last week, which would seem to prove that the "P. R. T." means business this time. One man, a pipe smoker, was fined for smoking on an elevated station platform, after he had been warned. Another felt the hand of the law when he expectorated in a street car. When cautioned he became offensive. The magistrate decided that ten days in the "pen" would cure him of the habit. In one case the objections of a rider to having his morning smoke stopped resulted in a riot. In the fight which followed the ejection of the smoker from the car, his friends joined in. A policeman, who happened to be near, decided that it was a case for the riot squad and turned in an alarm.

At each station of the elevated road, in West Philadelphia, there is a metal receptacle into which smokers are compelled to deposit their "butts" before entering the trains. Quite a number of half-smoked cigars and cigarettes are cast into these cans during the course of the day, in fact so much so that one of the station hands, who has a thrifty nature, awakened to the fact that these "butts" have a commercial value. The cans filled with the stumps are taken to nearby florists and sold, the florists using them to make tobacco water, a concoction which they spray upon their plants to kill insects. This would seem to prove the adage that "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good."

The Speed Goodloe Cigar Company has taken on the "R. B." cigar of Rosenthal Brothers, of New York. This is a nickel brand, and the manufacturers supply the jobbers of the cigar with much catchy literature in order to popularize it with the dealer and smoker.

"Cuban" Horse Seeks Havana in "Stratford"

Last Monday morning, about ten o'clock, after an accident at Arch Street above Second, a horse broke loose from a team and headed down Arch Street toward the river. He had not gone very far, though, when he made a break for a show window at the southeast corner of Second and Arch Streets, and went right through it as though it were paper. As a result, the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company will be compelled to invest in a new plate glass front for one of their show windows.

The odd manner in which the accident occurred caused one wag to say that he believed thoroughly that the equine was of Cuban nationality and was after the Havana in the "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Company. At any rate, if all the "Stratford" smokers insisted at all times and places so emphatically for their favorite smoke as the horse did, we would venture the assertion that the factory would soon require an addition.

Failure of J. H. Stitler

J. H. Stitler, a druggist at Twenty-first and Mount Vernon Streets, was declared insolvent several weeks ago, and a meeting of his creditors was held on February 10. There is a cigar stand connected with the store. As a result a number of cigar men around town were interested in the failure. Several offers were made to settle, and if a proposition now under way to adjust matters goes through, the creditors will receive from 25 to 30 per cent. The liabilities are placed at $4000.

L. M. Walters, of Bobrow Brothers, is on a trip through the Eastern cities calling on the "Bold" jobbers. He returned a short time ago from the Middle West, where he found the trade in excellent shape.

Quaker City Notes

Charles J. Eisenlohr, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, is on a pleasure trip to Florida, and will be gone about three weeks.

Charles Heath, of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, is on a trip to Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania in the interests of the "Stratford" cigar.

Sig. C. Mayer, of Sig. C. Mayer & Company, is on a trip to the Middle West, calling on the jobbers in that section.

Louis G. Smith & Company, 52 Beaver Street, New York, are distributing "Reynaldos" in the metropolis with great success. Mr. Monroe Luchs, of the factory, has been doing yeoman work in assisting Smiths to place this popular cigar in New York.

Nathan Baum, of the Baum-Jaffe Company, was very favorably impressed with the outlook in the Middle West for the Baum-Jaffe goods upon the occasion of his recent trip to that territory. They intend to open up that territory with unusual vigor during 1913. He reports the new year as commencing well for the "Coiner," "El Jaffe" and "A. J. Cassatt."

Dusel, Goodloe & Co. Reelect Officers

AT the recent election of officers of Dusel, Goodloe & Company, W. W. Goldsmith was again chosen president, with N. Popper as vice-president, and P. L. Brogan, secretary. Dusel, Goodloe & Company have announced that hereafter they will devote their time to the cigar end of the business, they having sold out their pipes.

In a recent interview Mr. Popper was most enthusiastic as to the results they have secured the past month on Manila cigars, particularly the "Flor de Legarda," made by the Germinal factory, one of the largest in the Philippines. "I believe there is a great future for the Manila cigar in this and other cities," stated Mr. Popper, "and if the dealers would only carry high-grade goods in their cases, instead of the cheap brands they have been selling in the past, the results would have been more satisfactory than they have been. I have become a rabid enthusiast on the Manila cigar—the quality product—and the progress we are making on our brands warrants me in saying that they will be one of our biggest sellers before long."

A nickel brand was taken on several days ago, which will be given a trial. It is the "Golden," and is made by an Evansville, Indiana, factory.

Real Estate Men Smoke "Stratford's" at Banquet

At the annual dinner of the Philadelphia Real Estate Brokers' Association, which was held in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, on February 1, the "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, was supplied to the three hundred diners. This body of men is composed of all the big real estate men around town, men of big means, and the fact that the cigar selected for the occasion was the "Stratford," proves pretty well that it is a brand for the discriminating smoker.

Godfrey S. Mahn, the Philadelphia and New York importer and retailer, sailed for Havana, Cuba, February 15, and expects to touch at Key West and Tampa before returning.

Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, are offering a cigarette humidor to every customer who makes a purchase of one hundred "Melachrino" cigarettes. The humidors are small at the base and are of a design adapted for use on desks and smoking tables.

Claude E. Turner, representing Salvador Rodriguez, closed some attractive orders for "Charles the Great" cigars, while in Philadelphia this week.

Mr. Dolby, the "B. B. B." pipe man, visited the Philadelphia trade this week.

C. W. Saunders, general sales manager of the Cortez Cigar Company, called on the trade in the Quaker City this week. Orders of a substantial nature resulted from the visit.

W. Leamy, formerly identified with the Pall Mall branch of the American Tobacco Company, has joined the Pennsylvania selling force of M. Melachrino & Company, working under the direction of Mr. Mahan, district manager.

Stallings & Co. Take on Well-Known Cigars

STALLINGS & COMPANY, of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, a wholesale grocery house, which recently opened a cigar department, under the management of W. F. Sharples, well known in the trade in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania, have announced a number of the brands which they intend to carry. Among them will be the "El Wadora" and "El Trendo" cigars, manufactured by Sig. C. Mayer & Company, of Philadelphia; "Salome," Heineman Brothers, of Baltimore; "La Saramita," Shields-Wertheim Company, Cleveland, Ohio; and "Ology," Casper Rosenberg, Cleveland, Ohio.

The "Charles Denby" cigar, H. Fendrich, Evansville, Indiana, which was formerly handled by Haworth & Dewhurst, of Pittsburgh, has been taken on by Stallings & Company for Western Pennsylvania, including Pittsburgh and West Virginia. The "La Saramita" cigar will be pushed heavily by them and with their six salesmen working hard, should do much to make all the brands a big feature in the cigar trade of that region.

The "Bold" Cigar in Atlantic City and Reading

William Crook, an Atlantic City cigar dealer, has taken on the "Bold" cigar and is making splendid headway with it. Mr. Crook has reported to the manufacturers of the cigar that it has taken hold better than any nickel cigar he ever introduced in that market.

Charles Breneiser's Sons, of Reading, Pennsylvania, who took on the "Bold" account for that territory some time ago, are pushing it with good results with the Reading dealers. Breneiser Brothers operate one of the finest retail stores in that city, in addition to doing a large jobbing business.

Storm & Co. Take Over Bissinger Bros.

From Pittsburgh comes the announcement that Bissinger Brothers, who conduct one of the largest wholesale and jobbing businesses in that city, sold out their business to George L. Storm & Company, of New York, who will use their business as a nucleus for a new Pittsburgh branch. Bissinger Brothers have for some time been prominent distributors of cigars made by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

Shipton & Payne Co. Entertain 25 Guests at Banquet

Shipton & Payne Company, the Philadelphia wholesale cigar house, gave their fifth annual dinner in the Bingham Hotel, in that city, February 6. There were over twenty-five guests present, including the employees and a number of invited guests. The dinner was a most elaborate one and was enjoyed by all until a late hour. During the course of the evening an address was made by Mr. Shipton, of the jobbing firm, in which he gave a comprehensive history of the business and its aims for the future. Responses were heard from nearly all those present, among them representatives of cigar and pipe houses of this and other cities.

Hudson Cigar Co. Now Mendelsohn Cigar Co.

The Hudson Cigar Company, of Hudson, New York, has changed its name and will hereafter be known as the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, and will do business in Albany, New York. They moved to their new location a short time ago in Albany. This concern is the distributor in that district of the "San Felice" cigar, Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, Ohio; also of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company lines, among them "Little William Penn." This firm has been in the wholesale business for three years and reports having made good progress in that time.

Kearney-Lehmann Co. New Buffalo Jobbers

The Kearney-Lehmann Company, of Buffalo, New York, is the title under which Alfred Lehmann and P. E. Kearney, of that city, will do a cigar jobbing business. Mr. Lehmann is well known among the trade in that section of the state, having been a cigar salesman. Mr. Kearney is the proprietor of a retail store at 335 Washington Street, which is the location also of the wholesale business. The retail and wholesale businesses will be separate.

Niles & Moser Purchase C. H. Meinhart Cigar Co.

Another move growing out of the changes recently put into force by the Niles & Moser Cigar Company, Kansas City, was the purchase of the C. H. Meinhart Cigar Company, of St. Louis, for that firm. It is further announced that C. J. Thorne has been appointed to take charge of the retail stands of the Stickney Cigar Stores Company, under which name the retail branch of the William A. Stickney Cigar Company will be operated.

Pushing "Portuondo" in the West

Warner P. Searle, Western representative of the Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, has been particularly active through his territory, lately having opened a campaign on the "Portuondo" cigars on behalf of the Aylesbury Mercantile Company, Wichita, Kansas, and the Tollerton-Warfield Company, Sioux City, Iowa. He is now pushing a campaign for the Sprague-Warner Company, of Chicago.

New "Stratford" Account in Baltimore

The "Stratford" cigar, manufactured by the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, has been taken on by the Associated Drug Company, of Baltimore, Maryland. This concern is now operating three stores in Baltimore, and has two more under consideration. The "Stratford" will be carried by them in five sizes.

Mason, Ehrman & Company, of Portland, Oregon, are doing a nicely increasing trade on the "Flor de Moss" cigar, made by the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania. They are distributors in that city also for the "La Mega" cigar, of V. Guerra Diaz & Company, of Tampa, Florida.

Seattle

February Trade Increasing in Volume—With Two Suffragette Members, Washington Legislature No Longer Smokes While in Session—Many Changes Among Retail Stores

SEATTLE, WASH., February 3.

BUSINESS has been somewhat quiet during January. February business up to date is much better.

The Legislature is now in session at Olympia and the retail dealers report a very big business. Winstanley & Blankenship report business better than ever, notwithstanding the fact that the House of Representatives has two suffragette members and smoking is no longer the fashion while the body is in session.

W. W. Mackey has sold the Cosmopolis store to Rourke & Breakiron and opens up a new stand at Chehalis.

Seattle has the distinction of being the largest pipe distributing center west of Chicago. Three jobbing houses, namely, Schwabacher Brothers & Company, Incorporated, the National Grocery Company and the S. G. Russell Company having exclusive pipe salesmen, who travel with complete lines. The leading brands sold are the "C. P. F.," "W. D. C.," "Three Star Manhattan," "B. B. B.," English and Peterson pipes.

The firm of Benzer & Volger, at Concrete, Washington, has been changed to Benzer & Miller.

V. G. Sadler, formerly at Olympia, Washington, has opened a new store at Monroe, Washington.

Charles and Michael Rantz have opened up a new cigar store on the new Municipal wharf at Bremerton, Washington. They have the exclusive right on the wharf.

Valentine & Fredrickson have opened up a new billiard hall and tobacco store at the entrance of the navy yard, Bremerton, Washington.

Martin Elk, known as "Slim" also, being the slimest Elk in Bremerton, Washington, also the most popular tobacco dealer among the sailor boys, reports a very big business—better than ever before.

J. L. Jenson & Son, formerly at Centralia, Washington, sold their interest there and opened a new store at Blaine, Washington.

Guy Hedreen, of Port Angeles, Washington, sold his tobacco store to A. W. Pollitt. Mr. Hedreen has accepted a position with the Brunswick-Balke Company, of Seattle, as manager.

Many favorable comments are being heard in local trade circles concerning the splendid new cigar stand of Wills Brothers, located in the Lacy Robertson Building, at the corner of D Street and Yosemite Avenue, Madera, California. Ornate and up-to-date fixtures make the place very attractive.

William L. Frye, an enterprising tobacconist, doing business in the Commercial House block, Salem, Massachusetts, does not believe in following the "beaten track" when he has a special to offer. Desirous of featuring his special cigar, known as "1-70-9," he employed the services recently of an expert shouter, whose duty it was to draw passers-by to the window of the shop, where an expert cigarmaker was busily employed making the favorite brand. The innovation proved quite a success, in that the sales were largely increased.

Fire lately destroyed the cigar and grocery store of K. Lancua, Thirty-second and S Streets, Omaha, Nebraska, valued at $1000, the insurance amounting to $800.

Wheeling District Stogie Output Gains Heavily

According to the report of Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Alexander Campbell, of the Wheeling, West Virginia, district there were 11,360,000 stogies made by the factories in that district during the month of January. The January sales of 1913 show a decided gain over the same period last year, despite the fact that the revenue office was closed in Wheeling for four days, on account of the flood several weeks ago. The output for January, 1912, was 10,318,000, a gain of 1,042,000 over last January.

Cigar Makes Pronounced Hit With Hotel Trade

IT is admitted by everyone in touch with conditions in the cigar trade that a cigar, to be a permanent seller with the high-class club, cafe and hotel trade, must be of unquestioned merit. Many manufacturers have introduced their goods in these enviable circles only to meet with failure. A brand which has reached this position and has retained it successfully is the "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia. A careful canvass of all the better class cigar stands in the large cities of the East and some Western cities would find this cigar one of the staple sellers. In fact few of the largest Eastern hostelries are without it.

The brand, an illustration of which is shown herewith, is made in a number of sizes. The manufacturers guarantee that it is distinctly different from the ordinary cigar of the so-called seed and Havana type and that the filler is composed only of the finest grade Vuelta Abajo tobacco. It is pronounced to be a mild smoke and one which the particular consumer delights in. The fact that it is handled by such hotels as the Bellevue-Stratford, of Philadelphia, and is one of their biggest sellers, is proof enough that it is more than making good with the man who wants a cigar a bit better than the ordinary.

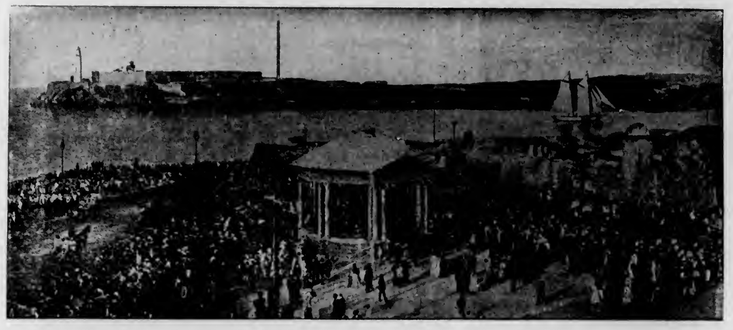
The "Stratford" has been placed in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, New York and other large Eastern cities with good results and the manufacturers are now starting a campaign in the Middle West and Far West, which should make it even better known than it is at present. Dealers wishing to stock up with a distinctly Havana piece of goods, at the same time getting a mild and well-flavored cigar, will find the "Stratford" much to their liking.



The Cuban Market

From Our
Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24
Altos

OUR market during the past fortnight could not be classified otherwise than dull, as in consequence of the few buyers that had arrived from the North there were considerably fewer transactions to be reported. However, as during the past week more buyers had made their appearance in our market, we have no doubt to be able to relate a more active market the next time. While the stocks in first hands are by no means large, there are nevertheless enough suitable goods to be found yet to make it worth the while for manufacturers to come here. Of Vuelta Abajo factory vegas, from the Lomas, we have yet a fair supply, also the heavy styles of Vuelta Abajo and Semi Vuelta, with fillers from the Partido sections. Of Remedios there are a couple thousand of first capaduras, from the very choicest Santa Clara packings, but the owners are not supposed to lower their former high pretensions, as they claim that their packings cost them more money, owing to their quality and cleanliness, therefore they consider themselves entitled to a higher figure than their neighbors obtained. Of medium qualities only smaller vegas are existing still. On the other hand, so-called wrappers are going begging at bargain prices. From the 1911 Vuelta Abajo crop a buyer could make his pick at quite moderate figures, as the holders would be willing enough to accept any offer in reason.

The event of the fortnight has been the arrival of the first few lots of new tobacco (1913 crop) from the Vuelta Abajo, libra de pie. We have heard of one sale of nine bales, which a veguero had brought to town, and which were taken by a cigarette manufacturer, more out of curiosity, as he told us, than on account of its intrinsic value, and also because it was very low in price, compared with the high figures for colas of Vuelta Abajo. The readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD will, however, bear in mind that this class of tobacco has been hurried to market, without having undergone any sweat in the piles, therefore it would be rash to judge this year's crop by these premature samples. They may answer for mixing to the cigarette manufacturer, but they would be unfit for making cigars.

Sales from January 20 to February 1, inclusive, only aggregated in all 2238 bales, consisting of: Vuelta Abajo, 627; Partido, 786, and Remedios, 825 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 1145; shippers to South America, 713, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 380 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from January 20 to February 1, were: To all ports of the United States, 12,194, and to Buenos Aires, 881 bales; making a total of 13,075 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country:

	From January 19 to January 31, 1913.		Since January 1, 1913.
Vuelta Abajo	48	bales	66	bales
Partido	2	"	93	"
Remedios	83	"	151	"
Oriente	76	"	103	"

The crop prospects in the Vuelta Abajo vary so much that we are almost tempted to leave this subject severely alone for the time being, but as undoubtedly there are many readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD that would be anxious to hear something, we beg to state the following facts: On January 27 it rained all over in the provinces of Pinar del Rio and Havana. The rains came from the south, a good direction, but as the wind veered to the northwest shortly after the beginning, it is now claimed, that instead of having been beneficial it may have done harm instead, as the rainclouds from the northwest are said, owing to their low course, to take up some of the salt water from the Gulf of Mexico. It is claimed by the farmers that such rainfalls will spot the tobacco not alone, but are also apt to make the tobacco burn less freely. We will not dispute this question, whether true or false, but later on, when the packing season begins, it will be found out what truth can be placed upon this assertion. Large planters that we have spoken to say that they do not expect to get over twenty-five per cent. more than last year, provided they could count upon being able to cut what is still of a small growth in the fields. Some people assert that the crop will be as big as never before, while others claim that it would be even smaller than last year. Now, whom can we believe under such circumstances? To speak about the quality is absolutely premature, as the same can only be known when the tobacco has passed the fermentation in the piles. Undoubtedly there will be choice leaf, good, medium and poor, as every year. It will also settle the disputed question whether irrigation in the Vuelta Abajo is beneficial to the tobacco crop, or, as others claim, does harm by making the burn doubtful. This year many large planters that had an irrigation system employed the same frequently, when there was a drought of some weeks, and while the plants evidently have attained a very luxurious growth, promising many wrappers, it remains to be seen how these vegas will go through the sweat. Perhaps it is only envy that has prompted this assertion, although one large planter told us that to be sure on this point he has made a trial on different fields, some being irrigated and others not, and keeping the two classes entirely separate.

The Partido crop undoubtedly will be larger in quantity this year, while on the other hand the Remedios crop is now claimed to be in all probability considerably smaller in quantity, although there might be more capaduras eventually. The large Sancti Spiritus district, which of late has furnished nearly half the crop, has been the greatest sufferer from the prevailing drought, as no rains have fallen there since the twenty-seventh of last January.

Cigars.

The big decline in the exportation of our cigars during the first half of January has been explained to us; that very often some clearance papers are not at once included in the fortnightly statements, particularly when there is a rush of work to be done, but that in such a case they are added to the following fortnight, so that for this reason the total clearances for the month, however, will come out all right.

Well, a poor explanation is better than none, and in order not to mislead the readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD we shall in future only give the figures at the end of the month. By the figures given to us for the second half of January it can be seen at a glance that the big increase offsets the big loss during the first half, and still leaves for the whole month an increase of a trifle over one and three-quarter millions of cigars. This is certainly a more satisfactory showing, and corresponds to the information gathered from the different manufacturers when we called upon them, as the majority of them are working under a good headway, considering that this is not the active part of the year, when shipments are very large.

Increase in the second half of 1913,	4,370,515 "

Our manufacturers are taking a lively interest in the propaganda that is being made in the United States to have the extreme high protectionist duties reduced to a more moderate figure, although as long as the new tariff is an internal affair of the United States, our Union of Manufacturers would have no voice in the Committee of Ways and Means to be considered. When the time arrives to deliberate about a new reciprocity treaty between Cuba and the United States, then our government, with the assistance of the Union of Manufacturers, ought to be able to convince the American government that we are entitled to a more liberal allowance, which at the same time would not prejudice the income of the United States Treasury in the least, but in all probability increase the revenue of the American government through correspondingly larger importations of our cigars. That a high tariff has not increased the amount of duties on the long run has been proven by facts, according to the statistics published by THE TOBACCO WORLD in its issue of February 1.

Partagas has no complaints to make, as orders from the chief consuming countries are coming forward at a lively pace.

Sol is doing very well, having particular good orders from England.

Castañeda is busier now even than it was last winter; at least the owners, Cardenas & Company, have been compelled to increase the number of their cigarmakers right along.

Flor de P. A. Estanillo is also working well, and seems particularly favored with high-priced regalia sizes for its well-liked "Flor del Fumar" brand, running from $120 to $200 per thousand.

Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, stated that they have orders pending five million more than at this time last year, and which were then nearly eight millions.

Other factories that are quite busy are: Allones, Limited; C. E. Beck & Company, La Flor de José Otero, Por Larrañaga and Eden.

A. L. Sylvester had been so pleased with the business of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, and the harmonious working of each branch, that he gave the heads of them, as well as a large number of the employes, a grand dinner in the Hotel Sevilla on the evening of the 1st inst. Covers were laid for one hundred and fifty persons, and there was not a vacant seat, as everybody had accepted the invitation. The greatest democratic freedom prevailed, as the dinner was excellent, the wines choice and plentiful, and there was no lack of speeches and good-will to everybody. On dit: that the cover was paid by Mr. Sylvester out of his own private pocket, to the tune of twenty-one dollars and twenty cents for each cover. "El Diario de la Marina," one of our leading daily papers, gave quite a lengthy description of this love feast.

Shippers above 300 bales of tobacco from the port of Havana from January 20 to February 1, inclusive, were: I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 3421; Mark A. Pollack, 1430; Monroe Commercial Company, 857; J. Bernheim & Son, 852; Maximilian Stern, 731; Leslie Pantin, 639; Ernest Ellinger & Company, 587; Garcia & Company, 500; H. Upmann & Company, 440; Diego Montero, 363; J. M. Nuñez, 331, and J. F. Berndes & Company, 309 bales.

First Pennsylvania District Hangs Up Another Cigar Production Record

Output for January Almost 11,000,000 Ahead of Same Period Last Year and 7,000,000 Increase Over Any January in History of Trade---Cigarettes Decrease

THE output of cigars and other tobacco products in the First Pennsylvania District for the month of January, as compiled from the stamp receipts at the Internal Revenue Office should be most encouraging for the cigar manufacturers of this district. For the production of large cigars is almost 11,000,000 ahead of the same month last year, and is more than 7,000,000 ahead of any January in the history of the cigar trade in Philadelphia and vicinity, which comprises the First District. To be exact, the figures for January, 1913, are 62,643,440, as against 51,712,480, in 1912, an increase of 10,930,960. The biggest January for the First District previous to last month was in 1907, when 55,358,500 cigars were turned out.

The complete figures for the month, as compared with the same period in 1912 are as follows:

Small Cigars	20,250,000	25,580,000	*5,330,000
Cigarettes	8,108,984	8,648,776	*539,792

ing December 31, 1912. The company's gross earnings were $2,705,824, as against $2,809,352 in 1911. A surplus of $406,848 was added to the surplus fund after the payment of operating expenses, interest on loans and dividends. The earnings on the common stock for 1912 were 6.83 per cent., compared with 5.52 per cent. in 1911. The past year proved to be the most prosperous that the company enjoyed since 1909 when the gross earnings were $2,820,978, and the amount added to surplus was $607,497.

Gross earnings	$2,705,824	$2,089,352
Selling and admin. exp.	1,382,281	996,958
Earnings from operations	1,323,542	1,092,394
Misc. profit and int.	211,013	170,751
Total income	$1,534,555	$1,263,145
Deductions:
Int. on loans dep.	$159,588	$83,718
Preferred dividends	350,000	350,000
Common dividends	618,120	675,000
Total deductions	$1,127,708	$1,108,718
Surplus for year	$406,848	$154,427

Tobacco Marketing in the United States

Department of Agriculture Publishes Newsy Report Reviewing Difficulties Encountered in Differentiations of Grades

THE Department of Agriculture has issued an interesting publication entitled "Tobacco Marketing in the United States," which takes up this subject in a very good manner.

It reviews the difficulties that beset the marketing of tobacco of the higher grades where there are the refined and subtle differentiations to be considered with a divergence of opinion as to the proper values even by experienced men.

And in view of this the bulletin says there is no wonder there were misunderstandings and claims of misrepresentation in the early days of the industry. As a result of this there sprang up the rigorous state supervision which has now been generally done away with but which still has a discernible effect and even now there are elaborate statutes in force in all of the older tobacco growing states regulating the inspection, sale and warehousing of tobacco.

The bulletin then takes up a discussion of the methods of marketing tobacco in the various parts of the United States. Of the Maryland or Baltimore system it says:

Of all the systems of marketing tobacco, that existing in Maryland, or rather Baltimore, since that is the only central market in the state, has undergone less change from the methods followed in the early days than that of any other of the old tobacco states, and, indeed, the methods now followed are practically what they always have been. State warehouses, state inspections (although no longer compulsory), and state guarantee of the samples are all still in force in the Baltimore market.

In earlier times state inspection houses were located here and there at a number of convenient points throughout the producing territory. These, however, were abandoned one at a time, and the trade became more and more centered in Baltimore, and finally became entirely centered there.

A system of five large state storage and inspection houses resulted, each presided over by an independent inspector appointed by the Governor. With a shrinkage in business, however, the number actually in operation was finally reduced to three. Under the system of having independent inspectors for each house there grew up much rivalry and competition for business in the effort to make each house self-sustaining. Under this system the tendency was to give a better sample than the contents of the hogshead warranted. To counteract this evil the Maryland Legislature remodeled its inspection law in 1898, providing, among other changes, for the appointment of a single chief inspector, with deputy inspectors for all state houses, all to be appointed by the Governor for biennial periods and placed under heavy bonds for the proper discharge of their duties.

The more important provisions of the law, so far as general rules of procedure are concerned, are substantially as follows: The hogsheads are numbered and inspected in the regular order of their receipt. The gross weight of the tobacco and hogshead is taken first; then the hogshead is stripped from the tobacco and the hogshead weighed separately. The tobacco is then inspected by drawing samples from at least six different places. This sample is sealed with wax and appropriately marked with the number of the hogshead, date and inspector's name. No charge is made to sellers of Maryland-grown tobacco for either storage or inspection. The buyer, however, covers the expense of the service to the state of paying a fee of two dollars per hogshead upon the removal of the tobacco and an additional storage fee of fifteen cents per month, if in storage more than six months after purchase.

Tobacco is not sold at auction on the Baltimore market. There are a number of commission firms, to one of which the farmer usually consigns his tobacco. On inspection the sealed sworn samples are taken in charge by the commission merchant and removed to his office. The sale of the hogshead of tobacco is thereafter a matter of private bargaining between the commission merchant and the buyer, although the grower sometimes sets a minimum price for the commission merchant to ask. When the market is active it is customary for the buyers on the Baltimore market to make the rounds from commission house to commission house, looking at the samples and making offers on such hogsheads as they think they can use. For this service the commission merchant charges the seller a fee of one dollar and fifty cents per hogshead, independently of its weight or the price it brings. In addition to the price of the tobacco, however, he collects from the buyer one dollar per hogshead, which he turns over to the farmer as reimbursement for the value of the hogshead itself.

In case of dispute as to the correctness of any sample furnished by the inspector under the seal of the state, the controversy under certain limitations is referred to a board of arbitration consisting of three disinterested parties. One of the members of this board is selected by the inspector and one by the claimant, and if after consultation these two cannot agree, they are to select the third member. Under the state law this board has power to summon witnesses and to assess such reclamation or damages as it deems just. This reclamation is paid by the inspector from the general tobacco fund and is not charged against either the grower or the seller.

Of the loose leaf tobacco auction sales system the bulletin says:

The practice of selling tobacco loose at auction started on a small scale, particularly in some of the market towns of Southern Virginia and North Carolina. An act of 1877 gave an added impetus to this method of selling by changing the law so as to permit the sale of loose tobacco on the warehouse floor without inspection. So far as the sales of loose tobacco are concerned the Virginia law merely requires the weigher to take a prescribed form of oath to keep the warehouse scales properly standardized and to properly weigh the tobacco. The warehouseman must issue a statement to the seller covering in detail all charges connected with the sale of the tobacco.

Another agency working for the rapid spread of this system is the manifest preference of the largest manufacturers and exporters to purchase leaf tobacco by it rather than by the hogshead and inspection method.

At the present time, so far as the first-hand sale of tobacco from farmers is concerned, the loose leaf tobacco system of selling at public auction is almost universal in the tobacco districts of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The system has been brought to a high state of perfection and efficiency and in its general convenience both to buyers and sellers surpasses any other method of marketing tobacco and other farm product that has come under the writer's observation.

Sales warehouses are located in nearly all the centers of any importance in the tobacco-growing section of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. Most of the important producing counties have at least one tobacco market town, and in some cases there are several markets in the county. The most important exception to this is in the few counties producing tobacco north of the James River in Virginia. Except Richmond there is no tobacco market in Virginia north of the James.

Most of the larger towns have from two to four sales warehouses each, and in Danville, Virginia, which is a very large market, there are generally six and in some seasons more warehouses open for business. The sales warehouses are often substantial brick structures, with a great expanse of floor space, sometimes covering from 25,000 to 30,000 square feet in area, with as few posts or other obstructions as possible. The roof construction, covering such large expanses without center supports, is a feat of considerable engineering skill.

Competition for business among warehouses is very keen, and conveniences and facilities for both sellers and buyers are as complete as possible with a view of attracting patronage. The effective lighting of the larger sales floor is accomplished by skylights and side windows. Usually the warehouse is so arranged that farmers can drive inside and unload. Bunks and lounging rooms for the farmers and stables for the horses are generally provided.

In some sections, as, for example, in the eastern North Carolina markets, there are basements for grading and tying tobacco, so that farmers can have this work done for them at a reasonable price if they so desire. Generally, however, the farmers themselves grade and tie up the tobacco in small hands at home, then pack the different grades one after the other neatly in the wagon bed, and cover the load with sailcloth, bed blankets, or some other protection from the weather.

At the warehouse each grade is carefully and neatly piled on a warehouse truck, carried to the scales and weighed, and a ticket is attached showing the owner's name, the number of the lot, the number of piles or grades in the lot, and the weight of the pile. In addition there are blank spaces left for filling in at the time of sale, showing the buyer's name and the price. Stubs are usually provided also so that these data may be entered on each part, one to be retained by the warehouseman and the other to go to the purchaser. Each grade is then placed on the floor in rows, usually allowing about eighteen inches each way between piles.

A number of advantages of the loose leaf auction system, both to seller and buyer, are apparent.

The seller is conveniently brought into contact at once with the buyer under as fair conditions as it is possible to create, so far as a mere system of selling is concerned. He can see for himself what his tobacco brings as compared with the general market for similar grades. The sale is prompt—within the day after he arrives with his tobacco—and his money is ready immediately in cash or its equivalent. If he is not satisfied with the prices obtained, he may reject the sale within a reasonable time limit, and he can then immediately re-offer his tobacco for sale or he may take it home, or to some other market, or to another warehouse, without charge of any kind.

Lilly, Dungan & Co. Putting in Heavy Efforts on "Reynaldo"—Rumor That "United Will Open Another Store—"Tampa-Cuba" Brand With Stock Inducement Interests Drug Trade

BALTIMORE, February 11.

BUSINESS for the month of January is a little ahead of the corresponding month of last year. Several of our large jobbing houses have put on new brands, and are busy placing them among the retail trade. Among the most prominent is Lilly, Dungan & Company, who are putting their extra efforts on the "Reynaldo" brand in six sizes, with the able assistance of Mr. W. L. Clauser, factory representative of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb. Mr. Clauser has done excellent work in placing these sizes with the best stores and hotels, with the assistance of Lilly, Dungan & Company's salesman. This brand is making friends fast with the smokers here.

C. I. Ruckle reports a substantial increase in his January business over January of 1912. Mr. Ruckel controls the cigar stand in Kahn's Drug Store, Lexington and Liberty Streets.

Wm. Boucher, of Wm. Boucher & Son, has just returned from New York on a business trip.

A. Kaufman, 302 West Camden Street, has quite a high-grade business on cigars, such as "Cortez," "Sanchez y Haya," and "Principe de Gales." His big nickel seller is "Vesta," a domestic cigar, made in one shape.

H. L. Jobson, of the Surbrug Company, is pushing "Milo," plain end. Goes to the trade at eighteen dollars; retails at twenty-five cents per package. Mr. Jobson expects to start a campaign of advertising shortly.

L. S. Williams & Company, St. Paul and Twenty-fourth Streets, has demonstrated what pluck and progressiveness will do. Mr. Williams has practically revised the business at his corner. Among the popular brands of cigars seen in his case are "Adelina Patti," "La Mega," "Cortez," "Solace," "Sanchez y Haya," "Reynaldo" in three sizes, and many others.

A. J. Lynch was in town in the interest of El Draco Cigar Company. The "Stratford" cigar is becoming very popular among the good smokers here.

D. Harry Moulsdale has just returned from Tampa, Florida, after spending several weeks on business with the Sanchez y Haya Company, also gunning in the wilds of Florida for ducks and deer. Mr. Moulsdale is sure some gunner for game as well as cigar orders.

Mr. Ackerman and Mr. C. Lutt were recent visitors here in the interest of the Y. Pendas & Alvarez "Webster" cigars.

H. E. White, of Kansas City, Missouri, is representing M. Melachrino & Company in Virginia, Maryland, and District of Columbia. Mr. White is getting in some good work on "Non Plus Ultras."

There is a rumor going around the city that Eddie McGraw, operator of a cafe on Baltimore Street, between North and Holliday Streets, will in the near future move his bar in the rear of his place in order to make room for another United store, which is to occupy the front of the building.

Manchester Cigar Company report their factory working to its full capacity.

Edward Hughes, manager of the Hotel Emerson cigar department, reports a very good business on "Stratford" cigars, made by the El Draco Cigar Company, Philadelphia. Also, T. H. Hart & Company's "Heartsease," in several shapes.

Morgan & Millard's cigar stand carries the following brands: "E. Regensberg & Son," "Gato," "Adelina Patti," "Sanchez & Haya," "Cortez," and many others. This stand is ably managed by Miss Ella Dorsey, with the assistance of Miss Virginia Tayman.

The Temple lunch room, of West Lexington Street, has recently put in a cigar case with popular brands of Lilly, Dungan & Company.

Frank Knight, who has recently taken over the Tampa-Cuba clear Havana line, speaks in the highest terms of the success he is meeting in placing his line with the drug trade. This line is only sold to the drug trade, and gives each dealer an opportunity to buy one or more shares of stock, which entitles him to a ten per cent. discount on cigars in any quantity, besides interest on their money invested in stock. This company has only been in existence a little over a year, and so far has declared ten per cent. dividend on its stock.

The "Counsellor" cigar in several sizes is seen in a good many cases of our prominent dealers. This brand is quite a favorite. It is made by Allen R. Cressman's Sons, Philadelphia.

H. H. L.

"Barrister" Boosters

Here you see, Gentle Reader, the contrast of life. The big man is Al. M. Ingle who stands 7 ft. 2 in. in his "hole proofs." His long legs cover some ground, but the man beside him, L. C. Pollock, manages to keep up with him, no matter how fast he travels. They make a very lively team in pushing "Barristers" on behalf of M. J. Schwab, the Dayton, O., distributor. Mr. Pollock is a native of Dayton, and represents Celestino Costello & Co., of York, Pa., in that territory.

Another Factory for Bondy & Lederer

The cigar manufacturing firm of Bondy & Lederer, of New York, have leased the second and third floors of the building of the Palmer Supply Company, of Palmerton, Pennsylvania, which is being remodeled to accommodate from one hundred to two hundred hands. Bondy & Lederer already have a factory in Allentown, Pennsylvania, which is not far from Palmerton.

The Tom Jones, a general restaurant, cigar and liquor business, has been organized in Chicago, with a capital of $25,000. The organizers are George E. Moore, M. T. Jones and Paul H. Ringo.

Charles Hunter and Fritz Saeger, cigarmakers, of Jacksonville, Illinois, are opening a cigar factory in Beardstown, that state. They state that they will make a high-grade product, all goods to be hand-made.

The Gibson Grocery Company has been incorporated in St. Louis, to do a wholesale grocery business. The capital stock is $6000.

Report on 1912 Tobacco Crop Issued by Government

THE Government's report on the 1912 tobacco crop of the country, as prepared by J. P. Killebrew, special agent for the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture, is at hand and reviews the different types by districts. As coming from the government it is of interest, but the publication contains little, outside of the figures, which is not already generally known.

I. CIGAR TYPES.

NEW ENGLAND.

Dry weather in June and July retarded growth, but more favorable conditions in August caused rapid improvement, except in some early fields that were too near maturity to receive full benefit from better weather. Harvesting was about two weeks late. The bulk of the crop went into the sheds in good condition, with much less damage from wind and hail than last year, and little from insects or disease. The season for curing was unusually good, hence little damage from shed burn is reported. The cured leaf has good size, color, and body, and contains more high grades than in 1911. The yield, reduced by low topping in many fields during the dry weather, is 1,700 pounds per acre, or larger than last year. The average price is 24 cents per pound, the highest in several years, and is partly due to increased primed tobacco.

In the Big Flats district planting was early and under favorable conditions. Dry weather in the early growing season retarded development, but was conducive to proper cultivation. Sufficient rain later accelerated growth, and little damage was done by insects, disease, or hail. Cutting was a week or two late under favorable conditions. Curing weather was better than usual, and little damage occurred in the sheds. The cured product, of good size, color, and body, yields a larger percentage of high grades than has been the case in several years. In the Onondaga district the crop is better in quality than that of a year ago. The average yield per acre for the State is 1,300 pounds; the average price 12.6 cents per pound.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Because of dry weather in early summer planting was late and growth slow. Rain in August induced rapid growth and good size. Harvest was two weeks in arrears, but fine weather and absence of early frost enabled the crop to be put in the sheds in good condition, except in localities where damaged by hail; loss from this cause was more extensive than usual, some fields being entirely destroyed. Dry weather, with no freezing temperatures, followed harvest and produced a good cure, remarkably free from pole sweat. The cured product has good size, color, and body, better than that of 1911. The average yield per acre is estimated at 1,420 pounds and the average price, on December 1, 8.5 cents per pound.

OHIO—MIAMI VALLEY.

Although the weather was generally propitious during the growing period, more than usual damage was done by hail and storms. When early tobacco was ready to go into the sheds heavy rains caused considerable rust. With this exception the crop went under shelter in good condition, and curing took place during favorable weather. The cured leaf is of good size and color, but is showing some shed burn and thin leaf among the early cuttings. As a whole it has better quality than in 1911. The yield per acre and the average December 1 price per pound are both higher than last year—yield per acre 990 pounds and December 1 price 8 cents per pound.

WISCONSIN.

Planting, about the usual time, was followed by forcing weather; the result was the best growth in several years. Although appreciable injury was done by hail in some counties, on the whole it was much less than usual. The damage by insects or disease was negligible, and the crop went into the sheds in better condition than any recent crop. The unusually fine curing season resulted in one of the soundest crops ever produced in the State. The cured leaf, of good size, color, body, and texture, will yield a large percentage of binders and is remarkably free from pole burn, stem rot, or frozen tobacco. The average yield per acre is 1,290 pounds, and the average price 11 cents per pound, both higher than for several years.

GEORGIA AND FLORIDA.

Cold, wet weather, which delayed planting two or three weeks, was afterwards favorable, and growth was excellent. Most of the crop was harvested under satisfactory conditions, and subsequent fine weather resulted in the best cured product in several years in both sun and shade-grown tobacco. The late cut is not so good, because of excessive harvest rains. As a whole this is the best crop grown in years, shade-grown tobacco yielding an exceptionally large per cent. of fine light wrappers and sun tobacco showing unusually fine quality. The average yield is 837 pounds per acre and 30 cents the average price per pound.

II. CHEWING, SMOKING, SNUFF, AND EXPORT TYPES.

BURLEY DISTRICT.

Planting was finished about the usual time. Throughout most of the district the weather was favorable and growth good. Little damage was caused by insects, hail, or disease. Advantageous conditions at harvest were followed by unusually good curing weather. The leaf has cured sound, with an unusually large per cent. of light-colored, thin leaf. Quality is much superior to that of 1911 or 1910, with little house burn. On account of the thinness of leaf, the yield is less than last year, 860 pounds per acre. The average price, 11 cents per pound, is the highest since 1909.

DARK DISTRICTS OF KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

Paducah district.—The planting season was about normal. Excessive rains during the latter part of June and first of July prevented proper cultivation and destroyed many crops on low-lying lands. Subsequent dry weather caused a small growth and narrowness of leaf. Extremely hot, dry weather in late August and early September caused much firing, and hence many fields were cut before maturity. The cured leaf is small in size and thin, but has good color. The crop is the poorest in quality of any grown in recent years. The yield per acre of 620 pounds and the average price of 6.2 cents per pound are each low.

Henderson or stemming district.—Planting was early and the crop started off auspiciously. Heavy precipitation in late June and July, however, besides preventing proper cultivation, seriously damaged most fields and in low lands destroyed many. The result is smaller growth than in 1911. Cutting was under desirable conditions and weather favorable for curing followed. The result was sound leaf and little house burn. The cured product is cleaner than last year and of good color, but smaller in size and thinner in body. Quality is inferior to that of 1911 crop. The yield per acre, 800 pounds, is inferior to that of last year. No sales had been made when reports were sent to the bureau; it was thought the average price would not exceed 7 cents per pound.

Upper Green River district.—On account of dry weather, planting, which began early, was finished late. Downpours in late June and early July prevented thorough cultivation and injured the crop. Subsequent dry weather resulted in smaller growth and more speckled tobacco than usual. A hot, droughty period in late August and early September caused the plants to burn to some extent in the field. The curing season resulted in little house burn. The cured leaf is inferior to that of 1911 in size, color, and body; in fact, the present crop is the poorest grown in this district in several years. The yield per acre, 730 pounds, is less than a year ago. Little had been sold up to about December 1, but the price indicated was 6.5 cents per pound.

Upper Cumberland district.—About half the area was planted early, the remainder, because of dry weather, late. Continuous wet weather the last half of June and the first of July interfered with proper cultivation, and caused the plants to have small stalks and narrow leaves; more specked leaves than usual are also noticeable. Ensuing dry weather made the growth small. Conditions while the tobacco was curing resulted in a good color and little house burn; the leaf is of small size, thin body, and much is badly specked. The yield per acre is of smaller volume than in several years, 720 pounds. The average price per pound is 6.5 cents.

Clarksville and Hopkinsville district.—The greater part of the planting was early, but on about one-third of the area it was retarded by drought. Continuous wet weather for about four weeks, beginning mid-June, interfered with cultivation and caused plants in many fields to have small stalks and short leaves. Subsequently dry weather prevailed until most of the crop was in the barns. Intense heat in late August and early September caused bottom leaves to burn and many fields to be cut before fully ripe. The bulk of the cured leaf is of small size, but good color. Some of the early cutting has good body, but most of the crop is thin and of poor quality; in fact, the poorest in several years. The average yield is 660 pounds per acre, the price 7.8 cents per pound, each less than in any recent year.

VIRGINIA SUN-CURED DISTRICT.

Planting was late. Dry weather prevailed during the entire growing season and until most of the crop was cut and put in the barns. This part of the crop is of poor quality and small size. That cut after the rains in September has better size and quality. Medium and low grades predominate, with a small per cent. of fine tobacco. The yield per acre is 650 pounds and the average price 8 cents, both below last year.

VIRGINIA DARK DISTRICT.

Dry weather delayed planting beyond the usual time. Rainfall, light during the entire growing season and until most of the crop was in the barns, resulted in small size, and in a cured leaf thin in body and of inferior quality, a large per cent. showing fairly good color. That cut after the rain has better size and body, but is dark. Serious hail damage was suffered in some counties. This is the poorest crop grown in recent years. The yield per acre is lighter than usual, being 660 pounds. Few sales had been effected when reports were made; a price 7.8 cents per pound, is indicated.

BRIGHT YELLOW DISTRICT.

Old Belt, Virginia and North Carolina.—Most of the crop was planted early, but dry weather caused part to be planted later than usual. Growth is small, the result of light rainfall in July and August. Most of the crop went into the barns during dry weather.

The cured leaf from this has unusually good color, body, and texture, but is small in size, with better quality, except where plant was cut before maturity, than for several years. That cut after the September rains, though larger in size, is dark of color and inferior in quality. In some counties hail damaged some fields and destroyed others. As a whole, the crop shows a larger per cent. than usual of both high and low grades, with medium grades scarce. The yield per acre of 540 pounds is the smallest in recent years, while the average price of 15.2 cents is the highest. Fine grades of good color are higher than in twenty years, but common green tips are low.

New Belt, Eastern North Carolina and South Carolina.—Plantings were completed in good season. In Eastern North Carolina rainfall was light during the growing period, except in the southeastern part of the district, where it was copious. The tobacco is medium to small, but the cured product has fine color, body, and texture. The quality is the best of any recent crop, with an unusually large per cent. of wrappers and other fine grades. In South Carolina heavy rains in early summer, followed by dry weather, produced medium growth, with poor color and body, and of inferior quality. The average yield per acre in the district is 730 pounds. In Eastern North Carolina the price, ranging from 18 to 20 cents, average, on most markets, is the highest ever received. The average price in South Carolina is 10.9 cents per pound. The average for the district is 16.1 cents.

MARYLAND AND EASTERN OHIO EXPORT.

The crop was planted in good time. As a consequence of seasonable weather during early summer, the plants made rapid progress. Dry weather from mid-July until harvest checked the growth and made the leaf smaller than usual. In some sections worms, more abundant late in the season than usual, damaged late fields. With this exception, the crop went in the house in good shape. Satisfactory conditions for curing followed, and, although the cured leaf is shorter than last year, it has good color and little damage from house burn. Quality is much better than in 1911. The yield per acre, 710 pounds, is smaller than in several years. As none of the new crop except ground leaves is ever sold until the summer following growth, the value on December 1 must be estimated from sales of old tobacco, which indicates a price of 8.1 cents per pound.

LOUISIANA, PERIQUE.

Weather conditions were unfavorable to a full yield, but quality is good. The average out-turn per acre is 300 pounds; average price, 30 cents per pound.

Finley Acker, Philadelphia Merchant, Passes Away

Finley Acker, president of the Finley Acker Company, grocers, restaurateurs, and cigar merchants, of Philadelphia, died in that city last Wednesday, after a short illness. He was fifty-six years of age. He started in business twenty-eight years ago, and in that time had built up a big business among the better class of patrons in Philadelphia. Mr. Acker had taken an active part in civic and pure food affairs. He was a member of many clubs.

Mr. Acker had been ill only a short time and his death shocked his many friends. Having taken a wide and active part in so many movements of different natures he had a wide acquaintance, who greatly regretted to hear of his death.

Isaac L. Kemper

Isaac L. Kemper, one of the best known men in the leaf tobacco trade of Baltimore, died in that city, February 5. He was head of M. Kemper & Sons, leaf tobacco merchants, which business was founded by the deceased's father many years ago. Mr. Kemper was fifty-one years old, and at the time of his death, was president of the Cigar Leaf Association of Baltimore.

J. F. McGreenery Dies in Boston

J. F. McGreenery, one of the best known and oldest cigar merchants of Boston, died at his home, near Boston, on February 5. Mr. McGreenery was a member of McGreenery & Manning. He started in the tobacco business in 1883, in that city and with his brother, continued in partnership until 1899, when Joseph P. Manning was taken in the firm, which changed to McGreenery & Manning. Mr. McGreenery was interested in charitable work and was a member of many clubs and lodges in and near Boston. He was fifty-eight years of age and is survived by a widow and four children.

George E. Wisner, a well-known cigar box manufacturer of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, died in that city recently, aged sixty-five years. Mr. Wisner had been in business in that city for some years and had a large trade.

Charles Pool, a Minneapolis cigar dealer for many years, died in that city a short time ago at the age of seventy-two years. He leaves a widow and a son.

Gustavus Charles Davis, at one time in the tobacco business in Pittsburgh, passed away in that city recently, at the age of sixty-six years. He retired in 1890. A widow and three children survive Mr. Davis.

Robert Zeigler, a well-known St. Louis cigar man, and head of the R. Zeigler Cigar Company, died in that city recently at the age of sixty-nine years.

Walter McNamara, formerly connected with the American Cigar Company, died in Corona, Long Island, recently, aged forty-three years. He is survived by a widow and two children.

Abram King, a cigar and tobacco retailer, of Mahanoy, Pennsylvania, died at that place recently, aged fifty-five years.

Charles Myer, for many years a salesman, but in recent years proprietor of a cigar store in New Orleans, died in that city recently, aged fifty-seven years.

Anthony Bonn, for many years a member of the wholesale tobacco house of Bonn Brothers, Baltimore, died at Walbrook, Maryland, a short time ago, aged eighty years.

A. N. Slaughter, a well-known tobacco dealer of Owenton, Kentucky, died in that city a short time ago. A widow and three children survive him.

Antone Wichman, a well-known cigarmaker, of Quincy, Illinois, died in that city recently, aged sixty-six years.

Elias Fagley, proprietor of a cigar store, Twenty-eighth and Diamond Streets, Philadelphia, died in that city several weeks ago, aged ninety-one years.

F. A. Rian, Member of Quiros, Villazon y Ca.

F. A. Rian, well known in the Middle West for some time as the representative of Berriman Brothers, cigar manufacturers, has entered the firm of Quiros, Villazon y Ca., of Tampa, and will have charge of the sales end of that concern. This concern manufactures the "La Docilla" brand of cigars.

Tobacco Marketing

From the buyer's standpoint there are also important advantages connected with the loose leaf tobacco system. He can look over carefully, although rather hurriedly, all the tobacco, not merely a sample, that he buys. In order that tobacco may keep free from damage by mold, etc., either during storage prior to re-sale or manufacture or during shipment to distant countries, it must be thoroughly dried out and conditioned—that is, put into safe keeping order. When sold in hogsheads at first hand, the tobacco comes to the buyer in all sorts of conditions, good and bad, and some of it must be re-dried, a matter to be determined by the purchaser. All loose tobacco is sold in soft condition, the buyer taking the responsibility of re-drying and putting it in safe and uniform keeping order, which is the most satisfactory way.

Of course there are drawbacks connected with this method of selling, and it does not give satisfaction in every case, either to the seller or to the buyer. On the whole, however, it is the most generally satisfactory method of sale yet devised, and it seems to be able to hold its ground against the hogshead and inspection method wherever introduced, so far as first-hand sales from farmers are concerned. Under this system there is no necessity for official inspection or sampling. The warehouse proprietors in conducting the sales merely employ an auctioneer and such other clerks, weighers, bookkeepers and laborers as are necessary. For this they make a charge to the seller, which in the case of the larger markets usually consists of three items, about as follows: (1) An unloading and weighing fee of ten cents per one hundred pounds; (2) an auction or selling fee at the rate of fifteen cents for each pile of one hundred pounds or less, and twenty-five cents for each pile of more than one hundred pounds; (3) a commission of two and one-half per cent. on the gross proceeds. Some of the markets charge three per cent. commission and some have no commission charges whatever.

In practically all of the larger loose leaf tobacco markets the members of the tobacco trade, including warehousemen, leaf tobacco dealers and manufacturers, are organized into trade organizations, which have established market rules and regulations in the interests of the trade as a whole and in the interest of fair dealing and avoidance or settlement of disputes between members.

The rest of the bulletin is taken up with a review of the conditions which have prevailed in the various large tobacco markets and of the growth of the markets.

San Francisco

Large Shipment of American Tobacco and Cigarettes Goes to Orient—M. A. Gunst Short on "Owls"—Adler & Cohn Doing Special Silver Inlay Work on Pipes

SAN FRANCISCO, February 5.

EASTERN traveling men are now fairly numerous in the city, with new arrivals nearly every day. At the same time the road men for local houses are keeping very busy on the outside, and some of the heads of wholesale firms are making trips either to important points in the territory, or to the factories. Business is decidedly good in all departments of the trade, and statistical reports for January in regard to financial, building, and export trade conditions give reason for great encouragement.

As a counterbalance to the heavy arrivals of Manila cigars at this port, large quantities of American leaf tobacco and cigarettes are being shipped through San Francisco to the Orient. The liner "Chiyo Maru," which recently brought a large lot of cigars, left February 1, for the Orient, via Honolulu, with twenty carloads of Virginia tobacco in hogsheads. This is said to be the largest single shipment of the kind ever sent to the Orient.

John Blakely, formerly associated with the house of M. A. Gunst & Company, in the Northwest, is now making his headquarters at the San Francisco office, California and Front Streets, where he is taking charge of the publicity work. He has been studying the situation for the last week, and expects within a short time to launch an important publicity campaign on the Gunst lines. This house is now endeavoring to make up the shortage of "Van Dycks" by getting in the "staple" size by express. The company is gradually catching up with orders on "Owls," which have been short for the last six months.

Herman Moss, resident representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, returned from a trip to the factory a few days ago, accompanied by Charles Kohlberg, formerly of this city, who has been on the road in the East for some years. Mr. Kohlberg is acting now as specialty man for the "Flor de Moss," and is now starting his campaign in the Sacramento Valley. Valley.

E. J. Stachelberg, now vice-president of the Sanchez & Haya Company, was in San Francisco last week. Another recent visitor was M. deLange, representing the "LaPrueba" factory of Manila, whose goods are represented here by the Edw. Wolf Company.

Adler & Cohn, on Powell Street, near Market, are making as much of a specialty of pipes as ever, and say the demand is still increasing, owing largely to the advertising lately done on smoking tobaccos. As a special feature in this line they are taking orders for silver inlay work, and show in their window display a number of handsome samples of such decoration on all kinds of pipes.

George R. Webb, manager of the cigar department of the Coffin-Redington Company, has just returned from a trip to Tampa, and is now getting a lot of local business on the M. & W. brand of J. M. Martinez.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, is just starting out for a trip through Oregon. H. L. Judell reports an active business all around, several of his lines being considerably benefited by the publicity campaigns now under way.

L. A. Sawyer, representing the "El Grifo" and "Las Dos Naciones" cigars, has just returned from Nevada. He has been giving considerable attention to that state of late, and believes the outlook there is excellent. A great impetus to business there, he says, has been given by recent gold strikes, which have given the hotels, cigar stores, etc., in some of the towns about all they could handle. A more important factor for the future as well as present prosperity of the Nevada trade, he says, is the large Government irrigation work, which will bring several hundred thousand acres of desert land under cultivation. Mr. Sawyer was visited this week by N. Sampliner, representing the Bucher & Bucher Company, of Dayton, Ohio, whose "Coin Bond" line he handles.

W. I. Pixley has been putting in some effective work of late in San Francisco and nearby towns. He is getting a steady run of orders for the "Dill" lines, and is working up considerable business for Krinsky's "Fifth Avenue" cigarettes.

Mr. Niemeyer, who recently took charge of a large cigar establishment at Marysville, California, is placing orders with the local wholesalers this week.

L. H. Umstead, representing the American Tobacco Company, has been putting in some time in Dinuba, California, to demonstrate matters connected with the proper culture of Turkish tobacco.

Newsy Trade Jottings

P. C. Anderson, of Globe, Arizona, has made preparations to open a cigar store in that city.

Kleinschnittger & Ott is the firm name of a new cigar manufacturing concern recently opened at Anton, Illinois.

Henze & Schafer have started a new cigar factory in Jacksonville, Illinois, where among their other brands they will manufacture a cigar, "Ehnie's New Wrinkle," for Ehnie & Brother, a cigar jobbing concern of that city.

Louis A. Haeckl, owner of a retail cigar stand in Portland, Oregon, has gone in the hands of a receiver. The assets of the business are placed at $300, with liabilities of $698.

The cigar factory of Claude Ross, at Belding, Michigan, has been taken over by Charles H. Stout.

G. D. Putnam has acquired the cigar business in Grangeville, Idaho, of William Thompson.

The cigar store of Guy H. Weeks, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, has been acquired by Peter C. Johnson.

D. R. Campbell, of Sidney, Nebraska, has purchased the stock of cigars of D. H. Short.

INTERIOR VIEW OF ONE OF OHIO'S BEST CIGAR STORES—That of M. J. Schwab, at Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Schwab, the proprietor, is seen standing in the rear of the cash register. He is a big distributor of "Roig's" and "San Felice" cigars, and a number of other prominent brands.

Detroit

Anti-Cigarette Bill for Michigan Will Probably Fail in Legislature—Scotten-Dillon Tobacco Co. Earned Sixty-five Per Cent—Abe Mannheim to be Vice-President of Soper Cigar Company—Many Changes in Stands

DETROIT, MICH., February 9.

DEALERS thought the cigar business would improve about the first of February, but at that time the coldest snap of the season struck Detroit, so that conditions are just about the same—very quiet. However, dealers can breath easy because, according to the weather man, we are to have "Indian summer" very shortly, which he promises will continue until the opening of the baseball season.

The cigar manufacturers here are a bit concerned in the proposed legislation at Washington, which will increase the tariff on tobacco two dollars per thousand. Several of them have conferred with our local Congressman, asking that he exert his influence to defeat such a measure, as it would mean a tremendous expense to them in the course of a year were it allowed to pass. Three million cigars are made in the Detroit district annually.

Another bill proposed—this time at the Michigan Legislature—is "anti-cigarette," but which will undoubtedly be defeated as most of the members of the Legislature have openly expressed themselves as being opposed to it.

W. A. Charles of G. S. Nicholas & Company, who visited here this week, says the demand for imported cigars is increasing, especially in the larger shapes.

The "Cinco" cigar is probably as large a seller in Michigan as any of the five-centers. Lee & Cady have the exclusive rights in the state.

Card Garrison, sales manager of the Banner Cigar Company, is back on the job after a ten days' illness. He says that the season has opened up well, that orders are ahead of last year at this time, and that 1913 has every indication of being a most successful year. "Poor crops are the only thing that can give this country a set-back this year; manufacturers in all lines of trade were never more optimistic and this, despite the fact that we are soon to have a change in administration, which is a pretty good sign of prosperity."

Floyd Richey, who has been connected with the Wenonah Hotel cigar stand at Bay City, Michigan, for the past three years, has been appointed manager to succeed Harley Davidson, who resigned to accept the managership of the Hotel Cadillac cigar stand in Detroit. Like his predecessor, Mr. Richey has a large acquaintance among the good smokers of his town, in addition to a large force of traveling men, all of whom will rejoice to hear of his promotion.

John T. Woodhouse is back in Detroit after an extended trip to New York and the Bermudas.

William Dempster, who has operated a cigar store in West Bay City for the past ten years, has sold his place and will retire from active business.

Sam T. Goldberg, president of the Lillies Cigar Company, who returned in January from a six weeks' trip to the Pacific Coast, left two days later for the Northwest, where he visited all the principal cities. Sam says he found business conditions exceptionally good. Incidentally, the writer might add that the Lillies Company will manufacture during 1913 approximately 60,000,000 "La Azora" cigars, 40,000,000 being made at the Forest Avenue plant and the balance at the Third Street branch.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Globe Tobacco Company the following officers and directors were elected: Homer McGraw, president; August C. Stellwagon, vice-president; Walter R. Hamper, secretary-treasurer and general manager; directors, Homer McGraw, August C. Stellwagon, John Kempf, C. M. Hamper and W. B. Hamper. This firm makes strictly union-made tobacco products.

All the employees of the Superior Cigar Company, 684 Hendire Avenue, Detroit, receive a ten per cent. advance in wages effective February 11. A. E. Stuart, president of the company, says the increase in pay-roll will amount to about $15,000 a year. The company employes 350 persons, and since moving into its present plant last July has doubled its output. Just recently extensive alterations and additions to the factory were made necessary.

The many friends of Abe Mannheim, for more than a score of years with E. M. Harris & Company, will be pleased to hear that he is vice-president of the Soper Cigar Company, which will operate the two cigar stands in the Dime Savings Bank Building. He will resign his position with the Harris Company about March 1 to get ready for the opening of the other stands, which it is expected will be about the fifteenth of that month. The company recently incorporated for $12,000, electing the following officers: Walter O. Briggs, president; Abe Mannheim, vice-president; M. G. Soper, secretary-treasurer and general manager. Some titles for Mel: he says he will continue to wear a straw hat, but that this time it will be a new 1913 model, the English kind, you know, with the high crown and saw edge. Mel is being besieged with requests from cigar salesmen, asking him to put in their line, and will try to accommodate them so far as possible.

E. E. Moran, whose father is one of the most prominent men in town, has joined the sales force of Frank M. Smith, 29 McGraw Building, and will devote his entire time to the initial and monogram cigarette department among private individuals.

J. Eugene Beck, of Pittsburg, cigar broker, spent a few days in Detroit and says he picked up some nice orders.

Albert Thornberg, the young manager of the cigar department at the Hotel Ponchartrain, has returned from Indiana with his wife after a four days' visit with relatives.

It is rumored that the Harry W. Watson Company has secured the cigar privileges at the Bancroft House at Saginaw, and that Mr. Miller, who has been manager up to this time, will continue in like capacity for the new lessees.

Ed Crook, with a crew of fourteen stalwart athletes, alias "Jim Thorpes," are working Detroit and vicinity with "Fatimas," "Satins," "Piedmonts," "Home Runs" and "Richmond Straight-Cut." At the present time "Fatima" is the leading seller; in fact, it is the best cigarette seller in Michigan today.

"Lucius," in two new sizes, has been added to the Cadillac cigar stand through the persistent efforts of Mort Hammer, the live-wire salesman from Cleveland. Mort also succeeded while here recently in getting Mel Soper to make a leader of this brand when he opens up.

Along about February 16 another cigar store will be added to the link in the down-town district, located at 10 Monroe Avenue, and operated by the Central Cigar Store, who at present conduct a shop at the corner of Broadway and Gratiot Avenues. The same firm will open a third store about March 10 in the Peninsular Engraving Company Building, at the corner of Woodward and Erskine Streets.

Peter C. Johnson has bought the cigar stand of Guy H. Weeks, 101 South Division Street, Grand Rapids. Other recent changes have been: Sam Stewart has bought the cigar store at 52 East Grand River Avenue, Detroit; Paul Dehring has purchased the cigar store at 396 Crane Avenue, formerly conducted by T. D. Barron; William Lang now has the store at 242 Woodward Avenue, formerly owned by J. McCoy; H. Mahlman has purchased the store at 239 Cass Street, from H. Blum; W. Blackmore has purchased the cigar store at 44 Broadway from H. Schafer.

Calabash pipes have been selling very big since the first of January owing to the cut in prices. A. C. Dietsche, at 86 Woodward Avenue, has been displaying them in his large window almost continually for two weeks.

The Detroit Cigar Manufacturing Company has increased its capital stock from $25,000 to $50,000, which will enable them to make a number of needed improvements.

The Wayne Cigar Company, composed of Messrs. Spietz & Worch, gave their employes a grand ball several weeks ago, which was largely attended. Refreshments were served during the evening. Everything from the two-step to the tango was danced, both members of the firm participating.

The February meeting of the Scotten-Dillon Tobacco Company showed earnings during 1912 of sixty-five per cent. on capital of $1,000,000, although the earnings during 1912 were seventy-five per cent. on a capital of $500,000—an indication of great prosperity and shrewd management. The manufactured product of the concern amounted to about 18,000,000 pounds in 1912, being smoking and chewing tobacco. Officers elected were: Edwin C. Way, president; Alexander McPherson, vice-president; Daniel M. Lynch, secretary-treasurer. Directors were Michael W. Dillon, Alexander McPherson, M. E. Farr, Walter Scotten, Daniel M. Lynch, George B. Fowler and Henry Stephens.

The Ponchartrain has added the "Aploma" cigar in two sizes. The hotel is now preparing a cigar catalogue, in which will be listed all its brands with prices; the catalogue will then be distributed among all the bell-boys, waiters and the guests, which will save them, as well as the cigar clerks, much time in asking and answering questions.

Herbert Earl is now connected with the cigar department at the Wayne Hotel; he was formerly with the Hamilton Club, of Chicago, and is well known to the trade. He had charge of the cigar stand which was in operation at the Wayne Pavilion during the Automobile Show from January 27 to February 4.

Frank Forrest has assumed his duties as clerk with the E. M. Harris cigar store, succeeding Mel Soper. Mr. Forrest was formerly with the Harry W. Watson Company. Another recent addition to the Harris force is Frank Hardoin, who for several years had charge of the Churchill cigar stand on Woodward Avenue.

Al Gaines, of the Lee & Cady cigar department, is again on the job after a week's illness. Al boosts for the "Varro" cigar, which is a private brand of the Lee & Cady Company, and manufactured by Compeer, of Indianapolis.

H. L. Berger, of John Getzinz & Company, New York City, tobacco importers, is now permanently located in Detroit, where he looks after the immediate territory.

Recent visitors: Ben Bloch, of the Philip Morris Company; Jack Kelley, selling "Aplomas;" Leo F. Weiss, of Ruy Lopez Company; William Levison, of J. Bernheim & Son; Paul J. Hirschorn, of the United Cigar Manufacturers; Jack Gorman, of the Harned-Hewitt Company, of Toledo; Steve Friend, of Friend & Company.

Late Trade Bulletins

The firm of Swisher Brothers, of Newark, Ohio, has dissolved and will be known hereafter as John H. Swisher & Son. John H. Swisher took over the interest of his brother in the firm.

The Minneapolis retail cigar and tobacco dealers are meeting in the Nicollet Hotel, in that city, on February 11. This is the monthly dinner of the association. Mayor Nye and Chief of Police Martinson, of Minneapolis, are to be the guests of honor. President Louis Nathanson is to be toastmaster. A number of addresses are slated for the evening.

The Empire Cigar Company, of 428 Sixteenth Street, Denver, Colorado, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $6000, and assets of $4000. Fred Prenger is the owner of the concern.

E. W. Collins opened a cigar and tobacco store at Bay and Hogan Streets, Jacksonville, Florida, last week.

The Metropolitan Cigar Company, the distributor of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company products in the city of Denver, will shortly enter the retail field. They have leased a store at Fifteenth and Arapahoe Streets, that city, which will be fitted up in a fine manner.

Ed LaBrie has sold out his interest in the LaBrie & Kisler Cigar Store, West First Street, Hastings, Nebraska, to John Freitag. The new firm will be known as Kisler & Freitag, continuing at the same location.

The Wills Cigar and Tobacco Store, Madera, California, is now located in the Lacy Robertson Building.

The cigar store and restaurant of Arthur Chapman, of Twelfth and Main Streets, Kansas City, has gone into the hands of a receiver. The petition was filed by a number of the creditors. It is not known exactly what the liabilities will be, but it is estimated that they will be about $20,000.

W. G. Schmid & Company, leaf dealers, of 111 Market Street, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, sustained a loss of $10,000 by fire recently. The five-story building, part of which they occupied, was badly damaged.

The Empress cigar store of Denver has made an assignment for the benefit of the creditors.

George Brenner, Highville Pennsylvania, recently acquired the tobacco warehouse and shed of William Bones, Safe Harbor, Pennsylvania.

Independent Tobacco Mfgrs. May Soon Meet Again

At Annual Gathering in Washington, But Fifteen Members Attend—Deliberations Held Privately—Old Officers Re-elected

(From Washington Bureau of Tobacco World.)

THE regular annual meeting of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association was held at the New Willard Hotel, on February 4. There was but a small attendance, about fifteen members in all being present, and the deliberations were held privately. It was learned later that the association adjourned upon call of the president, and that very likely another meeting will be held in this city about April 1. This is significant in that the extra session of Congress will have begun and the question of tariff will have been taken under consideration by politicians.

One new member joined the association, C. G. Boalt, of the Eight-Hour Tobacco Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The same officers were re-elected for another term: W. T. Reed, Richmond, Virginia, president; Ben Pearson, Byfield, Massachusetts, vice-president; and R. D. Best, Covington, Kentucky, secretary-treasurer. Upon the legislative committee was placed J. A. Bloch, of Wheeling, West Virginia; W. F. Axton, of Louisville, Kentucky; L. W. Brown, of Utica, New York, and Hugh Campbell, of Richmond, Virginia. The new legislative committee is composed of S. S. Block, of Wheeling, West Virginia; J. J. Bagley, of Detroit; G. P. Brown, of Winston-Salem; J. D. Moore, of Lexington, Kentucky; and W. F. Axton, of Louisville, Kentucky. On the membership committee was named, Carl J. Walter, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Paul Bagley, of Detroit, Michigan; George W. Myers, of Dubuque, Iowa; and C. G. Boalt, of Cincinnati.

It was declared that the tariff formed no part of the deliberations of the meeting and that there were no set speeches, and only perfunctory matters discussed at the one-day session. However, it was said that Mr. Reed, in making the presidential report, mentioned the decision of the Supreme Court in the Tobacco Trust case and declared that the independent tobacco men should have been afforded more relief when the final decree in that case was under consideration.

V. GILMORE IDEN.

The recent election of officers of the Dearstyne Brothers Tobacco Company, Albany, New York, resulted in the following: President, Charles Dearstyne; vice-president and treasurer, Edmund C. Dearstyne; secretary, Alfred McAvoy; assistant treasurer, William W. Dearstyne; counsel, William E. Fitzsimmons.

The cigar store at Pennsylvania and Washington Streets, Indianapolis, Indiana, formerly operated by the L. G. Deshchler Cigar Company, has been leased by the United Cigar Stores Company. The annual rental is said to be around $10,000. A ten-year lease was taken.

An interesting exhibit was that of a quantity of glue, recently on view at the Irving Smoke Shop, Waterloo, Iowa, which is to be used in the joining of the stems and bowls of pipes, just so soon as plans are completed for the opening of a new pipe factory, to be located in the basement of the present building.

Nathan Seidman, the Cleveland dealer, has been compelled to remove from Superior and Ninth Streets, that city, because the building at that location is being razed. He has gone across the street and will return when the former location is again ready to be occupied.

Los Angeles

Max Roth Cigar Co. to Handle "El Palencia" and "El Merito"—Klingenstein Company Does Enormous Business on Eisenlohrs' "Cinco" and Also on Regenbergs' "American"—Beck & Company, Pushing "Counsellors"

LOS ANGELES, CAL., February 3.

THE Max Roth Cigar Company have added to their line of result-getters the "El Palencia" and the popular "El Merito" cigars, both manufactured by Boltz, Clymer & Company, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The "El Merito" cigar will be made and featured in this city, from blended Havana with a Wisconsin binder and an imported Sumatra wrapper. Mr. L. Wachs, Pacific Coast representative for Boltz-Clymer, will assist the Max Roth Cigar Company in placing these brands in this market. Mr. Wachs is well known in this territory. The Max Roth Cigar Company have a good area for distribution.

Harry Rinaldo is doing some wonderful work on the "Mi Rey" cigars distributed by the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company, of this city.

J. J. Gans left for Imperial Valley, accompanied by Horace Gladstone, representative of Bondy & Lederer. While on their trip they will preach "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" to the trade.

Milo Adams, representative of Surbrug's lines, has just arrived here and wears a smile that won't come off. He expects to remain with us a few weeks preaching "Milo" and "Arab" cigarettes.

J. B. Bonhaus, representative for Klauber, Wangenheim & Company, returned from a northern trip recently, and reports business very good in that territory.

E. A. Allison, formerly with headquarters in San Francisco, will make his future headquarters in Los Angeles, devoting his time in the interests of the "El Sedello" cigar, distributed by Fred Barman & Brothers.

A special campaign has been waged on "Counsellor" cigars by Beck & Company, late successors to George W. Walker, of this city. His entire sales force of eighteen men are preaching "Counsellor" to the trade daily and the above brand is well distributed in this territory.

The "Dry Climate" cigar, distributed by M. A. Newmark & Company, has one of the most magnificent window displays in the city at the present time. Joe Goldsmith, general manager of the cigar department of the M. A. Newmark & Company, informs me that they have placed this cigar in more than one thousand different places, which is showing "results," I guess.

Morris Burke, well-known cigar broker, of this city, is finishing up a campaign on "Post Dispatch" and "Havana Sticks," and expects to leave for Louisville, Kentucky, by the 20th of this month, in the interests of these brands. While on this trip he will take the opportunity to take in many other Eastern cities with the business view always in mind.

The Klingenstein Company is doing an elegant business on Eisenlohr's "Cinco" five-cent cigar, and claim they cannot get enough cigars from the factory to supply the great demand for this brand. Window displays, put up by this well-known firm, on this cigar are the talk of the town. Klingenstein Company are also agents for "The American," E. Regensburg & Sons. They placed elegant displays in many windows the last few weeks, which have been a great means of securing the success "The American" now enjoys. Surbrug's line are handled by this firm and they are pushing hard on "Milo" and "Arab" cigarettes, "Floss Cut," "Arcadia" and are showing excellent results. "Zig-Zag" paper is showing increased sales daily. Mr. Milo Adams is here in the interests of "Milo" cigarettes and other of Surbrug's line handled by the Klingenstein Company.

Klauber, Wangenheim & Company report the largest "Chancellor" business for 1912 in the history of their business. "Chancellor" cigars have been distributed by this firm in this territory for the past fifteen years and the volume of business for 1912 amounted to over double the previous business. Klauber, Wangenheim & Company, are now putting in some nice work on "La Giralda," their leader in Manila cigars. Klauber, Wangenheim & Company are selling the usual number of "Optimo" cigars and the new size "Bismarck" at ten cents straight is selling well in this territory.

The M. A. Newmark Cigar Company is enjoying a nice business on "Pathfinder" and "Jose Vila," their clear Havana line. Joe Wood, better known to the trade as "Jose Vila" Wood, is expected here daily by the distributors of the "Jose Vila" cigar.

Tobacco Culture in Dominican Republic

The year 1911 was satisfactory both in the quantity and value of tobacco produced, says a consular report relative to the Dominican Republic. In order to encourage the agriculturists in the scientific cultivation of this plant the Dominican Government has established near Santiago, in the tobacco region, a tobacco experiment station which has been placed under the direction of a German specialist.

Referring to the Puerto Plata district, it states that tobacco is the second most important export from this district. In 1911 28,716,879 pounds, against 18,963,526 pounds in 1910, were shipped from Puerto Plata. Of this amount the United States took only 41,517 pounds. This large crop of over 280,000 bales or seroons (of about 100 pounds each) realized, it was reported, about 36 marks to the bale in Hamburg.

It was expected that the 1912 crop will be smaller than that for 1911, due to the long drought and a shortage of labor and transportation facilities. The low price also led some to neglect the harvest. It is expected that the crop for export will be between 100,000 and 160,000 bales. This is bringing $6.50 a bale or less. The Dominican Government is anxious to introduce better seed and improved cultivation, and not until then can Dominican tobacco hope to stand high in the market.

York Revenue Receipts Show Good January

YORK, February 9.

THE receipts at the local revenue office for the month of January broke all records for the month in cigar annals. The receipts were $101,127.57, as compared with $85,976.74 for the same period in 1911. This is an increase of more than $15,000 and is certainly encouraging for the cigar manufacturers.

The usual after-holiday lull in the trade was also not so pronounced as last year. Of course, this was the case with many of the smaller factories, but not with the larger ones. Business was so good and manufacturers are in such an optimistic mood that more than twenty new factories were opened in January. In this respect this number also breaks the record for January. These factories will give employment to 348 hands, as compared with twelve new plants in December, employing forty-nine people.

The factories opened up in January, giving those only with five hands or more are as follows:

Commercial Cigar Company, Dallastown, thirty hands; David H. Spangler, East York, five hands; J. M. Smith Cigar Company, Centennial, five hands; James C. Lawrence, McSherrystown, twenty hands; H. L. Haines, Red Lion, fifty hands; T. E. Brooks & Company, Red Lion, forty hands; R. R. Smith & Company, Red Lion, thirty hands; Gertrude Sechrist, Red Lion, five hands; Carl F. Mack, 109 North Duke Street, York, five hands; William R. Bangs, Hanover, five hands; Kaltreider Tobacco Company, Red Lion, fifty hands; Wallace M. Gemmill, Red Lion, fifty hands; C. D. Flinchbaugh, Dallastown, five hands; Fred S. Eberly, Dallastown, five hands; Red Lion Tobacco Company, Red Lion, thirty hands.

Red Lion tobacco interests are preparing to hold a tobacco exhibit, which buyers of the leaf will be asked to attend. The growers in that section claim that rumors are being spread, stating that the crop is a poor one, and that these reports will injure them when they try to sell their crop. At a meeting of the farmers on January 1 they were addressed by E. K. Hibshman, recognized as an authority on tobacco. He spoke on "Handling the Pennsylvania Tobacco Crop"; also on "Tobacco Fertilizers."

S. R. Kocher, the Wrightsville cigar manufacturer, is on a pleasure trip to Florida and will be gone about a month. Mr. Kocher was accompanied by his wife and daughter.

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company, manufacturers of the "Liar" and "Twentieth Century," are operating their plant at full time and with a full complement of hands. The new year has opened up nicely for them and with the start already secured should far surpass that of 1912. The home of the "Liar" is a light, airy and well-ventilated plant. Shortly after taking over the plant Mr. Plitt put in twenty more windows in order to secure all the light possible for his workers.

Walter Krout, the leaf tobacco agent, who was arrested on the allegation of having embezzled $900 from local leaf tobacco firms, is out on bail in this city. The bail was furnished by his father.

The cigar factory operated until a short time ago in Dallastown by Howard Lee Kohler will be managed in the future by P. S. Smith, formerly foreman of the Dallastown Cigar Company, and F. L. Kohler, of the same place.

Reading 1912 Cigar Output a Big Increase Over 1911

READING, February 9.

THE activity in cigar manufacturing circles continues unabated. The larger factories about town are "up against it" in securing sufficient help, and although representatives have made trips to neighboring towns, we have not heard as yet of any definite steps being taken by any of them for opening branch plants. Several representatives of Reading concerns were in Lebanon the past two weeks and looked over the situation, but did not decide. There are now several cigar factories of size in that place and it is questionable whether they could secure the hands. This market was entered before by outside manufacturers, who retired from the field after a short time.

The citizens of the town of Bechtelsville held a meeting in that place about ten days ago for the purpose of starting a cigar factory. The meeting was called to order by George Bartholomew. D. H. Latshaw was elected presiding officer and William A. Henry, secretary, of the meeting. A committee was appointed to secure subscriptions for the new industry, which included the following: D. H. Latshaw, Charles Herbein and George Bartholomew. It is intended that the factory will be located on the second and third floors of the building of Irvin B. Kehs, in Bechtelsville.

According to the figures given out by the revenue office, this district has more than held its own in cigar manufacturing the past year. This industry has been one of Reading's big ones for over a century, and is still increasing at a nice rate. The output last year was about 160,000,000 cigars, which is a gain of more than ten million over the production in 1911.

One of the record crops of tobacco this year in this section was raised by John H. Witter, the Newmanstown cigar manufacturer and tobacco grower. On Mr. Witter's farm, which is located about a mile and one-half from Newmanstown, he had eighteen acres of land in tobacco, from which an average yield of 2000 pounds per acre was realized.

A round of the factories elicits about the same reports. The past month was way above that of last year. The good start that 1913 has made would seem to indicate a first-class year for the trade. Last year started off poorly, and had it not been for the record-breaking holiday business the increase in production of cigars would not have been so pronounced. The retail trade is quiet, as is the leaf market. The resumption of activities in leaf circles is expected soon.

LANCASTER, February 9.

CONDITIONS among the tobacco men remain about the same. In leaf circles there has been little doing in buying up of the new crop. This is almost at a standstill. The tobacco, the bulk of which has been stripped, is coming up to expectations. Docking, as reported in other growing centres such as Wisconsin and Connecticut, is almost unknown here this year. Planters say they have no kick to make on that score.

The tobacco has been selling as low as nine cents, where formerly the owners expected to receive ten or eleven. The remaining portion of the crop will probably sell at a much lower price than was at first expected. It is predicted that prices will drop to eight cents before the leaf is cleaned up.

The cigar factories are still busy. The output for January coincided with the reports of the manufacturers during the month—that business was far better than at the same period in 1912. The trouble with the larger cigar men is the scarcity of skilled cigarmakers. Orders are coming in with a pleasing regularity since the first of the year.

The tobacco show held in this city was a pronounced success. The exhibit of Lancaster County grown tobacco was good. Twenty-one exhibits of wrapper leaf were shown, while thirty-nine were displayed in the binder class and thirty-eight in the filler class. About fifty growers participated. The judges of the show were: I. H. Weaver, Morris Rosenthal and Joseph Goldberg. The tobacco shown this year was conceded to be superior generally to that of last year, although the leaves were somewhat large.

Wrappers—First, J. H. Hostetter, Millersville; second, J. Aldus Herr, West Lampeter Township; third, H. K. Landis, East Lampeter Township; fourth, J. P. McCardell, Little Britain Township.

Binders—First, J. H. Hostetter, Millersville; second, Hon. George Hibshman, Ephrata; third, G. H. Hilton, Salisbury Township; fourth, Martin H. Good, Martinville.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association was well attended last week. At the request of a member the committee which attended the tariff hearing in Washington on January 17 made its report. President Herr stated that he believed that radical changes would be made in the present duty, but just what would be done was problematical.

T. M. Ottenger, of Mitchell & Ottenger, the leaf tobacco firm, was in the hospital recently with a severe case of the grip.

The S. R. Moss Cigar Company is working its plant on full time with a full force of hands, orders having been coming in with their customary regularity, even after the holidays when there usually is a lull in the trade. The Western territory of the concern will be broadened and extended even more than during the past year.

Late Trade Items

W. M. Nicholson, of Spalding, Idaho, who was put out of business recently by a fire, has again resumed business.

The capital of the Dingman-Evans Company, of Tacoma, Washington, has been decreased from $60,000 to $43,200.

The cigar factory of Hoff & Mayland, of Brooklings, South Dakota, has been purchased by J. G. Miles.

Herman & Harrigan, of Great Falls, Montana, have purchased the cigar business of Rector & Jensen, of that city.

The Old Dominion Tobacco Company, of Norfolk, Virginia, has bought a part interest in a property at Main and Randolph Streets, that city.

Walter H. LeClaire has taken over the cigar stand in the Old National Bank Building, Spokane, Washington, formerly operated by the Hemenway & Moser Company.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York Market Continues Active---Philadelphia Dealers Doing Better Business---Biggest Percentage of Connecticut Crop Sold---Friction in Trading Between Wisconsin Growers and Buyers

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, February 8.

THE continued activity in the local leaf market has been encouraging to dealers, as the resumption of trade has been looked forward to for some time. Interest at present centers in the binder situation, as this stock continues to be very scarce. Wisconsin growers are force-sweating their products in order to get the goods on the market by April.

Transactions in all kinds of filler leaf remain on a fair basis, although manufacturers claim to be well stocked up. Yet no manufacturer passes up a chance to secure a desirable lot of fillers and sales are going on despite the claims of the cigar men.

Sumatra deals are slowing up, but the Havana market is keeping up its activity, although orders with the manufacturers are said to have dropped off slightly the past two weeks. The makers of the five and ten-cent cigars are, however, still busy. The month of January as a whole has been far above that of January of 1912, and the continuation of present conditions with the usual increase later on insures the leaf men some reason that they will not be forgotten.

The recent reports from Havana give assurance that the 1913 crop is coming along nicely. Rains in the Vuelta Abajo districts will no doubt have a good influence on a good production. In old leaf little is doing, as Remedios especially has been pretty well cleaned up.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, February 5.

LEAF dealers are somewhat disappointed at the manner in which trade continues. They had every reason for thinking that business would increase materially from the first of the month on, but even though the majority of the factories around town are busy, the cigar manufacturers appear to be pretty well stocked up. The output of the First District for the month of January was almost eleven million above that of last year, which would seem sufficient reason for prophesying that conditions will soon improve.

LANCASTER, February 8.

It has been estimated that about twenty per cent. of the Lancaster County crop is still in the hands of the growers. And from present indications it will stay there for some time unless the planters are willing to part with it for considerably less than they had planned to realize. Prices are around nine cents now. The local packers have taken up little of the crop as compared with other years. And they say that since they are well stocked up they see no reason for paying the prices demanded by the farmers.

The general condition of the cigar manufacturing trade would seem to warrant a boom in the leaf market, but this does not seem to be the case. The best tobacco is not selling any too well. That of 1911 should be changing hands heavily. Although some 1909 tobacco sold during the past two weeks, it is not selling at a good price.

The production of cigars for the Ninth District during the month of January was more than 14,000,000 ahead of that of the same month in 1912, which prosperity should reflect itself in the leaf circles before very long.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, February 4.

THE biggest percentage of the 1912 Connecticut is now in the hands of the buyers. Taken as a whole, the crop can be truly said to be one of the largest in the history of tobacco culture in the state. The acreage has been placed at about 20,000 and the value of the crop as $9,500,000.

The 1912 New England tobacco area was from three to five per cent. larger than the 1911 acreage. The principal increase was in primed Havana tobacco. The shaded or tent-grown acreage decreased slightly. Unofficial estimates place the 1912 shaded area at 1877 acres against 2163 acres in 1911. No especial significance, however, is attached to the decrease, which was due in part to the conservative attitude of the shaded interests which are fully awake to the fact that at this stage the establishment of a reputation for Connecticut Valley shaded tobacco is of the greatest importance. In their efforts to maintain a high standard the growers have discovered that the acreage which a single corporation can cultivate to the best advantage has its limitations.

Good reports are heard concerning 1912 shaded tobacco, though it is still too early for the manufacturers' verdict. The shaded tobacco corporations and growers, practically without exception, are strongly financed and the failure of the shaded acreage to increase last year, it is declared, was not due to lack of confidence on the part of the backers of the shaded tobacco enterprises. Moreover, the phenomenal growth of the shaded tobacco industry in 1911 made necessary the settling-together process, which is now in progress. When the shaded tobacco industry again expands, shaded tobacco enthusiasts declare, it will be in response to a demand which will assure a market for every pound of leaf of this type that can be raised.

In respect to the proportion of fine light wrappers the 1912 Connecticut Valley crop is admittedly a disappointment. The crop is an average yield, but the high prices at which it was contracted for had raised expectations to a height which that portion of the crop which has been sorted has not justified. This fact has given rise to differences between buyers and growers and in some instances lawyers have tried to shade the price at which the tobacco was bargained for. Growers who have refused to be docked still have their tobacco. The most serious clashes arise in cases in which a payment has been made to bind the contract. All in all, however, the differences between buyers and growers are not more serious than in years in which the percentage of the crop bought in the fields was much smaller than last season.

A number of the out-of-town tobacco buyers have been in town recently looking for tobacco crops that might have been rejected by other buyers, and it is asserted by several farmers that deals have been closed with the new representatives for about the same price, or at a two-cent loss per pound on what the first buyer had offered for the crop when it was growing in the field. There have been many differences between the buyers and the growers over the amount of damage from pole sweat, though for the most part they have been settled up quietly at a lower price than was first agreed upon. The report was that the broad leaf tobacco grown in this section was badly touched by pole sweat and seems to be heavier than that of the Havana variety. The early buyers bought the crops while they were standing in the fields and now they are having their hands full trying to get to some agreement between themselves and the growers, and several lawsuits will probably be the result before they get through.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, February 7.

THE marketing of the tobacco crop is still the principal business throughout the growing sections of the state, as dealers are receiving their purchases as fast as their storage facilities will permit. The settlements continue to be attended with considerable friction, especially in the Vernon County section, where a good deal of docking as well as rejection is prevalent, for quite a large percentage of the crop fails to meet contract requirements and the dealers are averse to paying the promised high prices for tobacco that does not meet expectations. Very little buying of the unsold remnants is now being done except to take over rejected crops at reduced figures.

No news of importance has developed in the local markets for old stock. A moderate business in small order lots is recorded, but the scarcity of available binder leaf may account for the light trade.

Warehouse handling is progressing under quite satisfactory conditions and deliveries are ample to keep a full force employed at the various packing points.

The suggestion offered in this column that the growers have it in their power to discourage the indiscriminate field buying or option taking on a growing crop is not an original one. A group of Richland County farmers have actually put in practice the plan of refusing to sell their crops until they were in the handle, for several years past. These growers signed an iron-clad agreement to abide by that decision under a forfeiture of $100 for a violation of it. And the scheme worked, too. Every buyer who came into that territory was informed of this agreement and of the farmers' determination to faithfully line up to the terms. These growers have always been able to get the average price for their crops and there is never any trouble at delivery time, for the buyers thoroughly examined and accepted the tobacco at the time of making the contracts. The success of this undertaking simply illustrates what it is possible for growers in every community in the tobacco sections to inaugurate and carry out. Talk it up during the winter months and if feasible organize and be prepared before the next buying campaign opens.—Edgerton Reporter.

TENNESSEE.

OAKSVILLE, February 5.

WHILE the attendance at the meeting of the Tobacco Association last Friday was not as large as usual, only three of the chairmen were absent. The reports showed that much tobacco had been stripped, but all in condition too soft to deliver. Reports showed that in some districts the independents had nearly all sold their crops, while in others, No. 19 especially, there was a considerable quantity unsold. There have been many inquiries of various chairmen relative to opening the pledge books, but the only reply is that they are closed on the crop of 1913. The chairman stated that he had received more applications since the books were closed than before.

The method of getting tobacco in proper condition was discussed and urged upon the members. All members seem to be well pleased with the situation.

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

One hundred and fifty tobacco growers of the Miami Valley, of Ohio, held a meeting in the Phillips House, in Dayton, on January 30, at which time plans for establishing a local clearing house were taken up. Rooms are to be leased in the Beckel Building, in Dayton, where two men will be placed in charge. In these rooms the samples, names of growers and all the business will be transacted. The official sampler of the association is to be Homer Hales, of the Lynde-Hamilton Company, of New York.

Lawsuits will probably be instituted by tobacco men in Connecticut before all the leaf changes hands. The larger part of the crop has already been taken by the buyers, but in some instances growers refused to sell at the price the buyers wished to give and sold it to others later at several cents less per pound. The representatives of the leaf houses in many instances claimed that the tobacco was pole-sweated and would not take it at the price originally agreed upon, when the tobacco was still in the field. Out-of-town buyers have been buying up tobacco in Suffield since the disagreement.

At a recent meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers' Tobacco Company, of Hemingway, South Carolina, it was decided to build two tobacco warehouses and a number of prize houses. The following officers were elected: President, H. L. Baker; vice-president, R. B. Chandler; secretary and treasurer, F. F. Huggins; directors: George S. Hemingway, H. L. Baker, F. E. Huggins, W. D. Harmon, L. F. Rhem, J. P. Hazelden, S. J. Hazelden, B. B. Chandler and J. E. Johnson.

Eight hundred members of the Stemming District Tobacco Association, of Kentucky, met in a mass-meeting in Henderson, on January 28, and adopted resolutions in the nature of an address to the buyers, asking the price of eight cents for the 25,000,000 pounds of tobacco pooled by the association. There was some wild talk by some members of the association, but the leaders cautioned order. The Imperial Tobacco Company representative and other prospective buyers made addresses, stating that the price offered, seven cents, was above the average.

The claim that Connecticut tobacco growers have specialized to such an extent on their product as to give up almost entirely the raising of vegetables for the table has been put forth by J. W. Crowell, secretary of the Hartford Market Gardeners' Association, in a recent statement. It appears from the claim of Mr. Crowell that the farmers are finding such profit in the raising of tobacco that there is an actual scarcity of native vegetables in that market. Many gardeners would buy more land and try to increase their output, says Mr. Crowell, but the land has been acquired by tobacco planters, in some case buyers paying $1000 for the land. An acre of tobacco in good season will give the grower a profit of $400, as against $75, when used in the cultivation of potatoes.

The tobacco-buying situation as seen from the position of the farmer in Ohio, is outlined very strongly in a letter recently published in an Ohio agricultural paper. The writer particularly takes a fling at the speculator. He says:

"Since the recent decline many of the purchases of speculators and warehousemen do not show a profit and accordingly all sort of trickery is being employed to avoid settlement when tobacco is delivered. Among the favorite weapons used upon the helpless grower are the claims that tobacco is damp, poorly stripped, etc. The warehouse authorities who are allied with the speculators, co-operate in seeing that the grower receives even less than the reduced price which the flickering speculator is usually instructed to offer. Usually, speculators are as worthless in law as they are in principle, they being quietly 'backed' by warehouse interests which through these irresponsible agents are in position to accept or reject the deals according to the profit or loss that conditions create when tobacco is delivered. In view of such an unbecoming position on the part of buyers, it should be stated that so far as known not a single grower in the whole section has refused to deliver his tobacco, notwithstanding the fact that many, and especially those who sold early in the season could today sell for hundreds of dollars more than they are getting.

"Another source of unfairness has developed in the favoritism shown speculators as compared with farmers in warehouse sales. At this time of year many loads of tobacco arriving from the farm stand waiting for days their turn to be unloaded, the owner being at heavy expense meanwhile. If this were all, it would be perfectly fair, but while these men are waiting speculators are allowed to bring their offerings from nearby sources, and by another entrance place them on sale ahead of the waiting farmer. Again speculators' offerings are usually found in best floor position as regards light, time of selling, etc. The speculator is also favored in the matter of by-bidding, the unsuspecting grower being left at the cold mercy of buyers and often in the dark corner of salesroom.

"Such manipulation reveals no new situation, but simply a new setting for the now old one that the farmer needs to place himself in position to do his own selling, and that so long as he submits to the presence of middlemen just that long will he be more or less deprived of his rights. Already an occasional farmers' warehouse has been established and doubtless more will follow. Where these are conducted according to the principles their name implies there is a profitable absence of unfair methods."

Deliveries of the tobacco pooled with the Henderson County Tobacco Association of Kentucky, began on January 28. It has been estimated that this will amount to about two and one-half million pounds. The price to be paid is seven for the fired and six and one-half for the unfired tobacco. This leaf will go to the Imperial Tobacco Company. Several offers had been made for the tobacco and were turned down until a better bid could be received. The whole crop will bring the growers in the neighborhood of $200,000.

The Warren County Leaf Tobacco Company, of Franklin, Ohio, held dedication exercises for their new warehouse in that city on February 7. A round table discussion of topics of interest to the tobacco grower, with music and refreshments were the program for the day.

The burning of a freight car near Cobb, Kentucky, holding seven hogsheads of tobacco, has given rise to the rumor in that section that "night riding" is again imminent. One report from the place states that the car was burned by a party of men. The burning of the tobacco is said to bear all the ear-marks of the methods used heretofore by the perpetrators of such acts. The destruction of the leaf is given credence by the assertion that earlier in the season the tobacco growers in that section were said to have grievances, and that the fact that the section was at one time one of those most affected when "night riding" was prevalent, appears also to be significant.

KENTUCKY.

OWENSBORO, February 4.

THE Sales Committee of the Equity Home Warehouse Company, which last week made the announcement of a sale of 7,000,000 pounds of pooled tobacco to the American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company, and allowed the deliveries to begin of that portion of the crop in danger of being damaged on account of the flood, issued a statement requesting the growers to keep the tobacco in the barns and not to bring any more to Owensboro.

It has developed that a large part of the tobacco pooled with this organization in Ohio, McLean and Hancock counties has not been sold, and to date buyers for it have not been secured. It is estimated that there are about 5,000,000 pounds unsold. The poolers from the counties where the tobacco is unsold have entered a strong protest against the delivery of any of the tobacco until the entire pool is sold. The agreement with the poolers is that no portion of the pool is to be sold until all of it has been disposed of. There was a great rush of Equity tobacco in Owensboro this week, so great that it could not be unloaded. Many of the farmers have returned to their homes with the tobacco they brought to town. There will be no more deliveries until February 10 or until the poolers receive notice.

It is estimated that seventy-five per cent. of the tobacco pooled with the Green River Tobacco Company Growers' Association, which is about 15,000,000 pounds, has been delivered. There have been 600,000 pounds of the unpooled weed sold on the loose-leaf floor in Owensboro.

ALABAMA.

SUMMERDALE, February 8.

THE J. H. Behrens crop of tobacco is now packed and baled. It consists of sixty bales of first-class and high-grade shade grown tobacco and is now ready for the market. Mr. Behrens has had several offers for his crop which were pleasing to him. This crop of tobacco was handled by John H. Hoy and D. E. Clark.

Lester A. Friedman, of Bainbridge, Georgia, a packer and leaf tobacco man, was in Summerdale a short time ago and looked over the tobacco with a view of buying. He has made satisfactory offers on several crops, especially on those crops which have been properly prepared for the market.

The fact that tobacco men from different parts of the United States are coming here to buy Alabama tobacco speaks very highly for the growing industry. This tobacco is now being sized, assorted, baled and prepared for the market and they realize that this tobacco district is coming into competition with other districts. The tobacco, so far this year, has proven itself first-class in all the qualifications required for cigar wrappers.

Review of the Burley Market

Crop Being Taken to Warehouses in All Parts of Kentucky—Tense Situation Exists in the Stemming District

HOPKINSVILLE, February 8.

KENTUCKY ranks as the largest tobacco producing state in this country and the annual marketing of the crop attracts wide attention. All over the state the selling season is now on in full blast.

To properly understand the situation the division of the state into districts, each of which produces a different class of tobacco and according to which prices are influenced, where the selling methods are different, etc., should be explained. For instance, the entire central part of the state produces the burley, a tobacco that is entirely different in texture and quality from that produced in the western section and which does not require firing to cure it up properly. About Bowling Green are half a dozen counties comprising what is known as the One Sucker district. Henderson, Webster, Union, Hopkins and Crittenden counties form the Stemming district. Daviess, Hancock, McLean, Ohio and Breckinridge make up the Green River district and the balance of the counties westward to the Mississippi River are included in the Black Patch, or dark district, which also extends over into the border counties of Tennessee.

In all of these districts the farmers' organization, formed for the purpose of controlling the production and securing the prices they demand, are in existence and have played a more or less important part in the disposal of the crop this time.

The only really acute situation is in the Stemming district. Here the Stemming District Association controls the bulk of the crop, which this year is estimated to be between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 pounds in the five counties. The association has been holding their tobacco at a round price of $8 per hundred pounds, which they have been unable to get, the best offer being $7 and $6.50 for first and second grades.

Failing to get their price the organized growers began an agitation to prevent the non-poolers from selling also. Bodies of farmers got together and visited buyers and asked them not to buy unpooled tobacco. The independent farmers were urged in every possible way not to sell for less than the price asked by the association. The newspapers took up the fight in most instances and gave their space freely to report proceedings and present the lengthy statements issued. In Hopkins County the non-poolers held a meeting at Madisonville and agreed to hold also for $8. On January 25 one hundred and fifty horsemen rode up to the Illinois Central depot at Waverly, a small station near Henderson, and commanded the agent not to furnish cars for transportation of any unpooled tobacco that might be sold there. Meetings were held all over the district, and especially at Henderson, culminating with a monster meeting at which farmers were present from all five counties and much oratory was unloaded setting forth their position and the reason for their demands.

But recently matters were precipitated by the sale of about 2,500,000 pounds of tobacco controlled by the Henderson County pool, a small independent organization. This sale was made on January 25 to the Imperial Tobacco Company at their bid of $7 and $6.50 per hundred pounds. Deliveries of this tobacco began this week and every effort was made to prevent the carrying out of the contract. But the sellers were determined to deliver their tobacco, and despite the heated talk that prevailed fully a hundred wagons were in Henderson on the first day set for deliveries, each discharging a full cargo of tobacco.

This brought conditions to a crisis and so general was the talk of possible violence that many of the fatmers delivering tobacco went heavily armed. The Imperial plant at Henderson is being guarded by employes and farmers who are bringing tobacco to it. It is said that Mayor Thompson appointed guards for the plant, but they refused to serve. It is also said that the officials of that city stand ready to petition Governor McCreary to send soldiers at a moment's notice should the situation become any more grave than it is, or should actual depredations be begun.

The farmers claim freely that the chief tobacco buying concerns of Henderson are in a combine to keep the prices down. The tobacco buyers contend that the crop is an inferior one and they are offering all that they can possibly give.

For a time it seemed that matters would reach a serious phase in the Green River district, but this was more a difference between the growers themselves as to whether or not they would sell at the price offered than it was between the buyers and the growers. The crop of that district is about 35,000,000 pounds, and except for about 10,000,000 pounds controlled by the Society of Equity, it is pooled with the Green River District Association. Some weeks ago it was decided by the Green River Association to accept the price of $9 for leaf, $5 for lugs and $3 for trash, per hundred pounds, that was offered them by various concerns buying in that district. The association had held out for $10, and although the decision to sell was made at a public meeting held at Owensboro those opposed to it raised such a stir that it was called off and the proposition was put to a vote. The voting lasted for four days, and showed the proposition to sell was favored by 1702 members and opposed by 292, so the deal was closed. On January 23 the Society of Equity sold their holdings at the same figure and the tobacco is now delivered under these contracts.

Things are going swimmingly in the burley district. The Burley Tobacco Society, which at one time controlled the situation almost entirely and caused an almost total cut out of one year's crop during the earlier excitement, has not maintained its strength and the bulk of the crop there now is sold direct from farmer to buyer or at auction on the public sales floors. With a magnificent crop in nearly every way, and a strong demand, prices have been soaring and that district has prospered accordingly. Prices have steadily climbed until the top notch of $72 per hundred pounds has been reached, and the limit may not be attained yet. At the opposite extreme the trash is selling as low as $4, but the general average for the crops as a whole is ranging close around $20.

The crop of the One Sucker district is controlled by a farmers' organization and a deal has practically been closed for the entire holdings. There has been no undue excitement in that district attendant upon the sale of the crop.

The Planters' Protective Association, which formerly dominated the Black Patch, still controls a considerable part of the crop, but nothing like so much as in former years. This year the Planters' Protective Association made an energetic campaign for members and they are handling much tobacco. This is prized according to certain stipulations and is sold for schedule prices according to grade. The farmers not affiliated with this organization are selling direct to the rehandlers or speculators or through the loose sales houses.

The handling season was delayed nearly two months by continued cold and dry weather keeping the tobacco so dry and brittle as to make it impossible for it to be handled. Only in the last three weeks has the weather been favorable, but once begun it has lasted and the markets everywhere are flooded with the enormous quantities that are being rushed in. Prices are ranging from $3 to $11 for the tobacco in the loose state. Deliveries are so heavy at nearly every town that wagons have to wait two and three days in order to get unloaded. Some prizing houses are working full forces both night and day in order to keep up with their receipts.

The burning of the carload of tobacco at Cobb, Thursday night, is the only disorder of any consequence that has been reported in the Black Patch this season, and that is said to be a local incident, rather than an indication of organized outlawry affecting the district.—Kentucky New Era.

York County Growers May Have Association

If plans now under way work to a successful conclusion, the tobacco growers of York County, Pennsylvania, will soon have a growers' association such as the planters have in Lancaster County. A farmers' institute was held in the town of Red Lion during the week of February 3-8, at which time addresses were made by a number of tobacco experts. E. K. Hibshman, who is recognized as an expert Lancaster County tobacco grower, addressed the farmers and gave suggestions for forming an association. He told the growers that the Government was ready and willing at all times to lend its aid in the building up of the industry in York County and that if they made arrangements for experimentations along the lines that were being followed in Lancaster County, he believed it would be of great benefit to them. He spoke also along the lines of having the proper seed for the cultivation of tobacco and also of the proper use of fertilizers.

Nothing definite has been done, but it is hoped that the growers will get together for the purpose of improving selling conditions, in addition to growing tobacco along more scientific lines.

Connecticut Growers Still Delivering Tobacco

A late report from Suffield, Connecticut, states that the growers are still delivering their crops, but are much dissatisfied at the way the buyers are cutting the price. In many instances there is a cut of from two to three cents in the prices originally agreed upon. Some of the growers object to a cut and do not deliver the tobacco. It is to be hoped that the experience of the growers and buyers this year will do away with the system of buying the crop in the field, which can never hope to be mutually beneficial to both parties. It is reported that the primed tobacco was not up to last year's quality and that there is considerable of this yet unsold. It is estimated that there will be 3500 acres of tobacco grown in Suffield during the coming year, which is about one-quarter of the acreage of the state.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

Summary of British Tobacco Trade for 1912

NO improvement was noted in the tobacco manufacturing trade during the past year, states a consular report. The number of manufacturers' licenses issued was 360, a decrease of 47 below the number in 1909, and four less than were issued in 1911. Manufacturers were also adversely affected by the increased cost of leaf tobacco, prices having shown considerable advance over the high figures of the preceding year. It was stated that the Virginia crop of 1911 was unsatisfactory and the Balkan war operated to maintain the scarcity of Turkish and similar tobaccos. Commenting on this situation, the Chamber of Commerce Journal says:

> It is not to this country (England) or to Ireland that manufacturers will be able to look in the future for suitable material to compensate for the annual shortage in their supplies from Virginia and other districts of the United States; happily, however, within the limits of the British Empire tobacco is now being produced admirably suited in every way for the manufacture of choice cigarettes and high-grade pipe requirements. Both Rhodesia and Nyassaland are growing leaf of good color, quality and flavor, similar in many respects to that coming from the best districts of Virginia and Carolina.

The total quantity of unmanufactured tobacco imported into the United Kingdom in 1912 was 138,127,730 pounds, valued at $25,114,314, an increase of more than 19,000,000 pounds in quantity and $5,500,000 in value over the 1911 imports. The entries for home consumption were 103,637,122 pounds, as against 101,114,584 pounds in 1911. The imports from the United States were made up as follows: Stemmed, 43,577,092 pounds, valued at $8,382,478, as compared with 33,642,266 pounds, valued at $6,232,604 in 1911; unstemmed, 78,321,271 pounds, valued at $12,495,488, as against 70,965,344 pounds, valued at $9,496,074, in 1911. Only a small portion of the United Kingdom's imports of manufactured tobacco comes from the United States, the principal item in this class being Cavendish and negrohead. In 1912 the United Kingdom imported $257,272 worth of this latter class from the United States. The exports of tobacco in 1912 from the United Kingdom amounted to 18,378,278 pounds of manufactured tobacco, and 10,098,287 pounds of snuff offals, with an aggregate value of $12,724,262.

It has been suggested in some of the English newspapers that the increased consumption of tobacco is an indication of the prosperous condition of the working people.

Interesting Trade Items

John C. Houghton is now located in the Voller Building, Main Street, Evart, Michigan, where he is conducting a cigar manufacturing business. He has associated with him three cigarmakers, which staff will be increased as business warrants.

Lewis Grossmar, Windsor, Connecticut, sustained a loss of about $3000 through fire, which a short time ago destroyed his three-acre tobacco shed and warehouse, together with his 1912 crop of tobacco. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

The cigar stand formerly operated by Fritch Brothers, under the title of "The Brunswick," 119 High Avenue, East, Oskaloosa, Iowa, has been taken over by Fritch & Himes.

C. K. Komp and J. W. Jones are the new owners of the cigar store formerly operated by Dr. M. M. Bull, Eugene, Oregon.

Just so soon as Oscar F. Rawson, a cigar manufacturer of Worcester, Massachusetts, finds a suitable location, he will discontinue operations at 391-393 Main Street, thereafter doing a wholesale business only.

Henry Fedemeyer, a cigar manufacturer of Albany, Oregon, is now located in the St. Charles Hotel and expects to increase his help in the near future.

It is rumored that the United Cigar Stores Company are endeavoring to secure a lease on the building at present occupied by the Citizens' State Bank at Eighth and Main Streets, Dubuque, Iowa, this being one of the best locations in the city.

The management of the Capital City Tobacco Company has been taken over by W. B. Carlton, treasurer, and E. F. Malone, secretary; J. W. Davis, who took an active part in the affairs of the company, having resigned. Mr. Davis' resignation will make no change in the operating of the company, as the former policy will be maintained.

Much attention has been attracted by the splendid new store which has just been opened by the United Cigar Stores Company at Merrimack and Prescott Streets, Lowell, Massachusetts. It has been fitted up with the most modern appliances, an innovation being the installation of an ornate soda fountain, finished in marble, with decorations of leaded glass. The new store is open on Sunday and is proving quite a convenience to the public, not only from the tobacco end, but from that of the soda fountain as well.

Philadelphia Cigar Manufacturers Take Steps Toward Forming a Permanent Organization

Meeting, Called to Fight Pernicious Legislation, Is Well Attended—Two Committees Appointed—Another Gathering in Near Future—To Confer With Cigar Interests in Other Cities

AT a well attended and representative gathering of the cigar manufacturers of Philadelphia in the Bingham Hotel, Tuesday evening, February 25, steps were taken toward the forming of a permanent city organization, the title of which body will be decided later. While the meeting was called primarily to prepare a brief to be presented to the Ways and Means Committee of Congress, protesting against the proposed increase in the internal revenue tax on cigars and tobacco products, it was finally resolved that the present occasion, as well as any future matters of this kind, warranted the organization of a permanent body. It was argued by one person after another that the benefits to be derived would be incalculable. One pleasing feature of the affair was the feeling of harmony and good fellowship which prevailed. It caused one to wonder why such a body as is proposed was not already in existence.

The Necessity of Organization.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Dietsch, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, who explained the object of the gathering. Then suggestions were made for the appointing of a temporary presiding officer, and Nathan Baum, of the Baum-Jaffe Company, was selected. Opinions were asked from the different manufacturers and in response Robt. J. Boltz, of the Boltz-Clymer Company, gave a report of a visit he made recently to Washington, in reference to the increased revenue bill. He pointed out that in order to make the proper impression and to work together, it was imperative that a brief be prepared before the actual advertisement of the proposed hearing is known. According to his interviews with several of the Congressmen representing the Philadelphia cigar manufacturers, the majority of whom are Republicans, they could promise little in the way of assistance at that time.

Mr. Dietsch then went into details regarding the evils the cigar manufacturer must put up with and warned those present that in addition to the changes now under contemplation in Congress, affecting the tobacco trade, there were several measures in the State Legislature, which would have a bearing on the operation of their factories were they enacted. He mentioned several dealing with the regulation of the hours of labor in factories.

Claiming that more good would be accomplished by forming a permanent organization, since one was badly needed, a body which would be able to deal with all injurious legislation, as well as introduce and foster beneficial measures, Mr. Shea, of Bayuk Brothers Company, made an appeal to the manufacturers to organize at once. This was heartily approved of by other speakers who followed him, and it resulted in a motion by Mr. Shea that a committee be formed to take up the matter of organization. This was passed.

It will be the duty of this committee to prepare a circular and other matter to be sent to all the cigar manufacturers of the First Pennsylvania District, asking them for their support and inviting them to join the body.

Tobacco Products Corporation, Through Melachrinos, Purchases Nestor-Gianaclis Co.

Entire Capital Stock of Roxbury, Mass., Cigarette Manufacturing Firm Becomes Part of Recently Incorporated Concern—No Change for the Present, in Manufacturing or Selling Methods, Announces R. M. Ellis

OFFICIAL announcement was made on the twenty-sixth ultimo that following numerous rumors, M. Melachrino & Company, Incorporated, had purchased the entire capital stock of the Nestor-Gianaclis Company, who manufacture the "American Nestor" cigarettes at their factory in Roxbury, Massachusetts. In addition to this, the company had the exclusive agency in the United States for the "Nestor" goods of foreign make and for the cigarettes made by the T. Vafiadis & Company, which are marketed through Park & Tilford.

R. M. Ellis, of the Melachrino Company, informs THE TOBACCO WORLD representative that by this change the Nestor Company becomes a subsidiary of the Tobacco Products Corporation, which, as is well known, also owns M. Melachrino & Company, and that for the present, at least, there will be no change whatever in either the conduct of the manufacturing or the selling of the "Nestor" cigarettes.

Judge Tracy, in Covington, Ky., in Reviewing the Case, Orders Filing of List of Members

(Special Correspondence of "The Tobacco World.")

CINCINNATI, February 27.

JUDGE FRANK M. TRACY, in an opinion handed down by his court in Covington, Kentucky, has refused the appointment of a receiver for the Burley Tobacco Society. He has ordered, however, that James L. Rankin, the secretary, and Walter T. Loomis, a stockholder, living at Independence, Kentucky, make up a list of those who are connected with the Burley Society.

In reviewing the case the court refused the appointment of a receiver on the following grounds: The capital stock of this corporation shall be $2,000,000, divided into shares of $1 each. The shares of stock shall be issued to the several beneficial owners thereof, and the power to vote said stock shall be vested in the individuals who constitute from time to time the district board of the Burley Tobacco Society, who shall continue to act until their successors are elected and are qualified.

The suit was first filed at Independence, Kentucky, last October, and alleged that the late Frank P. Mann and others were never elected members of the directors of the district board of the Burley Tobacco Society, and that they illegally took possession of the money and affairs of the Burley Tobacco Society.

The purpose of the suit, it was asserted at the time of its filing, was to compel an election of directors by the stockholders of the entire Burley Tobacco Society, and to compel them to turn over to the legally elected directors $1,050,497.69.

Are You Selling Cigars---Or Giving Them Away?

Written for The Tobacco World by James V. Thompson

DURING the course of a conversation with one of the best cigar salesmen I ever knew, a short time ago, our talk drifted to the subject of salesmanship. This man was slightly disgruntled at the time because he had been worsted by one of his competitors in placing his brand with a good dealer in that city. "I don't believe in knocking," he said, "but I can't help feeling that any one who sells cigars like that fellow does is no salesman. But if his house stands for it, I'll bet he won't stop doing it. Why, he literally gave them away."

He was working a city at the time, to which he had been sent by his firm, together with the salesmen of the wholesale house distributing his brand. He had made fairly good headway, but had been handicapped by the fact that the home cigar manufacturers had covered the city pretty well and were giving inducements which he would not meet. The man he referred to had given away fifty cigars with the first order of two hundred. The dealer, of course, called this to his attention when he tried to solicit him. "I told him before I left, after we had haggled over the price for a while, that I was selling cigars, and not giving them away," my friend said, "and when I can't sell any more, I am going to farming."

Free Deals One Evil

A wholesaler called my attention to a scheme tried on him a short time ago. The salesman for a cigar manufacturer induced him to take on a brand, with the understanding that he would stay in the town for a month and go among the retailers introducing it. He went out and sold two cases before the month was up, giving many away, then left town, assuring the wholesaler that the duplicate orders would be forthcoming. About six months later, when the jobber did not re-order, the salesman again called upon him and wanted to know what was wrong. "Nothing, except that they don't want any more," replied the head of the jobbing house. "I'm going to have three cases sent in a few days and will sell the cigars even faster than before," said the salesman. He did that and evidently had no trouble in getting rid of them. He came to the jobber when the cigars were out of the place and asked for his money. Fortunately the local man happened to know that the "salesman" had been placing them with the understanding that any cigars left over after a period of thirty days could be returned. He thereupon refused to pay for them until he received the money from the retailers. And when more than half of the cigars came back, he congratulated himself on "getting wise."

There are any number of cigar manufacturers who use these methods to extremes, when introducing a brand, yet these same men take offense when the retailer starts to cut prices on the cigar. When the dealer is given cigars, he can't be blamed for literally giving them away in turn. The fact that he can get them so easily cheapens them in his estimation. And when the smoker buys them below the regular price, he receives the same impression.

Western Dealers Eliminate Price Cutting

The Western Retail Cigar Dealers' Association was formed to remedy just such conditions among the tobacco dealers of the Pacific Coast. The Seattle Association instituted many reforms which have made for greater profits for the retailers. It has denounced price-cutting and other poor methods of doing business, with the result that the former was virtually eliminated.

N. E. Nelson, secretary of the body, recently said: "The man behind the counter cannot only stimulate the demand, but create it, if he has the confidence of his patrons. If you are a salesman and a business man sell goods at a profit. Anybody can give away goods. Salesmanship is the ability to sell goods at a profit."

Have you ever thought, Mr. Dealer, to which of these classes you belong? Do you depend upon the service you give your patrons, the condition and quality of your goods, the confidence of your customers—or must you rely upon price-cutting to bring the smoker to your store? If you look upon the latter as one of your big business getters, you are building your trade upon a very unstable foundation, indeed.

A cigar dealer in one of our large manufacturing cities decided to stir things up in his part of the city. Each Saturday, he cut a well known nickel cigar to seven for a quarter, brands he was paying $35 for. The third Saturday when he was selling another brand at the same price the manufacturer of the cigar came in and said: "What are you trying to do, Bill? Give my cigar a black eye?" In a very short time he heard from the other factories, and in several cases the ultimatum went forth to the effect that any store selling brands at cut prices would not be sold any more cigars. He did not see, until it was called to his attention, that it was hurting the cigar. Bill sells them at the regular price now.

One dealer, who insisted upon price-cutting in this city after being warned, secured the cigar from a jobber outside. He did not know that it was an easy matter for the manufacturer to send to his store for a box of the goods and by looking on the bottom of the package see where he had purchased it. The jobber, who sold him, upon a threat of having the brand taken away from him by the manufacturer if it occurred again, cut him off.

It matters not how the price-cutting is looked upon, from any angle almost, it is a bad thing for all concerned, and since it has proven beyond a doubt to be a particular evil of the cigar, cigarette and tobacco business, the dealer who shuns it will be benefiting himself more than he realizes. The store with the reputation of selling cigars too cheap, is passed over by some factory representatives as being undesirable.

Is Bad For All Concerned

Stand upon your own feet, build up your business upon a reputation for first quality goods, upon fresh stock, attractive, not necessarily expensive, fittings, good window displays, and an all round reputation of being a merchant, not a cut-price artist. Then you will be working along the same lines as have made the big dealers of the country.

It is so much easier to tell a fellow what to do than it is to do it, that the wonder is that there are not more of us at it.

Horse racing is not by any means the only thing that makes a difference in opinion—take the different tastes for tobacco and cigars, for example.

A man is not likely to be too polite. He may use too much ceremony and palaver, but that is not true politeness any more than wearing too many flashy clothes is the sign of a true gentleman.

Making people want things is a whole lot better business than merely furnishing what they actually need.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

WHEN one of the wealthiest merchants of the country was asked the other day how he accounted for his rapid rise in the business world, he summed up his principles in a way which could be applied to many a man who is now pointed to as a type of the successful up-to-date merchant. "I kept my eyes open for every opportunity that came my way to better myself," said the millionaire, "and in working was not afraid to keep everlastingly at it." This can aptly be said to explain to an extent how Henry Straus, of the large Cincinnati wholesale and retailing cigar and tobacco house, became one of the big factors of the trade in the Middle West.

Henry Straus

It has been said of Mr. Straus, that he could scarcely have kept out of the cigar business had he tried. He entered it when a mere boy, early in the seventies, and has watched the industry grow in that section, incidentally growing with it and becoming a big influence in it.

Mr. Straus is now fifty-six years of age, the possessor of one of the largest jobbing businesses in the Ohio Valley, and every day sees him at his main store with as much work on hand, and in the course of a day done, as is attempted by any of his many assistants.

He was born and raised in Cincinnati. His father died when he was a youngster, and in casting about for something to do he was given a messenger boy job with the old firm of Krohn, Feiss & Company. With this firm he remained until January, 1880, when he determined to branch out for himself and employ some of the money that he had carefully saved from his earnings.

His first stroke of business was the foundation of the large interests he now controls. In the eighties the old Burnett House was the hotel of the city. It was there that big business deals and other affairs were carried through. Steamboating was in its prime and coming from the levee the river trade had to pass the doors of the hotel. Third Street was then the big financial Broadway of the lower Ohio, so when he opened a store in this building at Third and Vine Streets, success could not but follow in the wake.

By 1896 his business had so expanded that he opened a branch store in the old Pike Building at Fourth and Vine, closing the other location a year or so later.

During the big opera house fire of 1903 the Pike Building was destroyed and this, which he considered his original store, was moved to 527 Vine Street. Fire also followed him there, for this location is the Grand Opera House Building, which was gutted in 1904, but his stock was not wiped out.

Another branch store was opened on Vine Street near Fourth in 1885, and in 1903 a lease on a location at Fifth and Walnut Streets was secured and the store was moved there, where it continues to do a flourishing business.

In 1908, he opened a stand in the Havlin Hotel on its completion, and in June of last year he bought out the cigar stand of Lee Cahn, which had been established in the Union Savings Bank and Trust Company Building. During the time that he has been in business Mr. Straus took in Charles Stars and I. S. A. Straus as his partners. The style of the firm was then changed to Henry Straus & Company.

In 1886 Mr. Straus paid his first visit to Cuba and a direct importing business followed. He was a pioneer in this line in this section of the country. Before the passage of the McKinley Bill the importations ran to a million and a half, and since the introduction of high tariff, while not as large, the imports of his firm remain the largest in this section of the country.

Some of the brands of cigars handled by Henry Straus & Company, are those of Bock & Company, the "Carolinas," "Diligencia," "Corona," "Hoyo de Monterrey," "Manuel Garcia," "Partagas," "Por Larranaga," "Romeo and Juliet," "Sol," "H. Upmann," "Villar," "Julia Marlowe," in addition to being the representative of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, in that section, the "Owl" and "General Arthur" being the big sellers.

Cater to the Worth-While Pipe Smoker

THE man who is an inveterate pipe smoker and uses good pipes and tobacco is well worth cultivating. There are many stores which make a specialty of dealing in smokers' articles. It is a treat to be waited upon by some of the older clerks in those establishments. They have handled pipe cranks for years and display real salesmanship. When a prospective customer comes into the store, these salesmen rarely ask him what price he wants to pay, or exactly the pipe he wants, until the customer shows a preference. He lays each pipe before the man, explains its merits, any advantage it has and its disadvantages, and allows the quality of the article to influence the customer as to what price he will pay.

In selling pipes, impress upon the smoker that a good pipe will become better after being seasoned, while a cheap one will never improve. Talk merit and quality of the goods, and the customer can talk prices.

But be sure to keep your pipe stock in condition, so you will be able to talk quality. You can't put a pipe before a man and enlarge upon the superior briar it is made of, then let him see that the bowl is a little off color and the bit has turned lighter. This is one thing that many tobacco retailers neglect. They consider it a waste of time.

Your better grade briar pipes do not require the care that the cheaper ones do. You need not feel afraid that exposure to the sun by displaying them in the windows will ruin them. They will become darker rather than lighter in color. Olive oil will darken any briar pipe. The cheap pipe, with the defects covered with putty, and with a dark stain, becomes lighter and shows every flaw in it. The amber and vulcanite mouthpieces are sometimes slightly injured by strong light. This can be remedied by rubbing them with moistened tissue paper. This applies to rubber also. Take extreme care with your meerschaum pipes. Before trying to clean them with a silk handkerchief or cloth, see that all dust is removed, for they may be scratched, which is easily noticed.

Game of Making Good Has Time Limit

When we were seventeen the future to us was a world unexplored, with time unlimited. But at thirty-seven or forty-seven our perspective has changed. We look into the future through wiser eyes and are startled—time has acquired boundary lines. We look back at opportunities lost—at things done which we ought not to have done—at things left undone which we ought to have done—at long hours and well-meant labor which proved profitless.

And it shows in our score.

We stand at the crest of the hill. The game is half over. To win we must capitalize the future with experience gathered from the past. But we cannot afford to put off till tomorrow. We cannot afford to miss even one opportunity.

There is a limit—a time limit—and every day, every hour, every minute is reducing just that much, our chance of rolling up a good score in the game of making good. We can't afford to go through the year not knowing whether we are winning, playing even, or going behind.—J. R. Worden, of Burroughs Adding Machine Company.

The Rating of the Cigar Dealer

MANY retail and sometimes wholesale houses take offense when an inquiry is made regarding the financial standing of its business.

This is a matter which is often misunderstood by dealers who claim to be good merchants. The writer has seen instances where the head of the house has literally "gone up in the air" when a reporter from a mercantile agency called and asked a number of questions which he considered impertinent. He took the stand that it was no one's business but his own as to just what condition his finances were in. That no one had any right to ask him what the amount of his stock was, or whether any of his holdings were mortgaged.

Were this man to be in the office of a cigar manufacturer when orders come in, he would be surprised at the method of procedure before the order is placed. Unless the firm ordering is well known, the letter is turned over to a man who passes upon it. Dun's and Bradstreet's is first consulted as to the rating of the house and if it is too low, considering the size of the order, it is ignored, or either the person is written to and requested to furnish references as to his liability.

Perhaps you have been offended at times as to the manner in which your order has been received by a certain cigar manufacturing firm, and you said to yourself, "Well, if they don't want to do business with me, there are many who will." And you got huffy about it. Perhaps you can trace this whole unpleasantness to the reception you gave the man from the mercantile agency. Even if your rating is not of the highest, the reputation you may have for paying your bills promptly, which will be put with your credit rating, will go a long way.

These agencies fill an important place in modern business, and the man who opposes them never gets very far on it.

Semi-Editorial Puffs For The Thinking Dealer

YOUNG Winkler worked for Jabez Beall, who deals in shoes and linseed meal. For years he was a valued clerk, and Jabez warmly praised his work. And Winkler's friends would often say he should be drawing better pay. "He owes his splendid trade to you; oh, what would poor old Jabez do, if you'd decided to flee the coop? 'Twould surely leave him in the soup." Young Winkler's head began to swell so many people stopped to tell him what a honeybird he was, and clapped his back with fervent paws. So Winkler then began to feel he was a bigger man than Beall, and he got grouchy, mean and sore, because he wasn't drawing more. He thought if he resigned his job his boss would wail around and sob and beg him for a while to stay, and doubtless give him double pay. And so, in haughty tones he told old Jabez that his feet were cold. "My services are in demand; good jobs await on every hand. You don't, I fear, appreciate, how much I've done to make you great." Thus Winkler made his little spiel. "I'm glad you quit," said Jabez Beall. "In other days you did quite well, but since your head began to swell you made myself and patrons tired, and I had planned to have you fired." Now Winkler tramps around the town and hunts a job and is turned down, and while his world's a thing of gloom, old Jabez's trade is on the boom.—By Walt Mason.

Moral: Don't allow your cranium to swell.

The Western paper, which recently gave an account of the thrilling adventure of a man who kept a pack of wolves from devouring him by keeping four cigars lighted and poking them towards the ravenous beasts, evidently forgot to mention the brand. We have met some awful "ropes" in our time, but the cigar that can scare away a wolf is in a class by itself.

The fellow who will take a lighted cigar in a street car and inconvenience other smokers is one of the biggest assets for the anti-tobacconists to play upon. Fortunately for the tobacco trade these men are the exception. The recent anti-smoking edict by the trolley company in Philadelphia showed that such was the case. Conductors said that it was often done unthinkingly and that when a man was told he threw it away without any questions. Of course, there were a few of the exceptions, too.

It is said that the tobacco habit was introduced in Turkey by English sailors. The use of the weed was quickly prohibited. As in Russia, a tradition was discovered prohibiting its use by the faithful. The prophet Mahomet is said to have foretold that in future ages some of his followers should smoke an herb called tobacco, but that these people would be unbelievers.

One Turkish ruler, Sultan Amurath IV, strictly prohibited its use under heavy penalties. Searches were made for smokers; tobacco pipes were driven through their cheeks, and rolls of tobacco hung like collars around their necks. They were then placed on asses facing the tail, and after being driven through the streets as a warning to others, were hanged.

RESPONSIBILITY

Accept the task,
And make that task your own;
By and through it,
Your talents shall be shown.

Power grows on power,
So step by step improve:
Avoid the easy way—
The common groove.

On trained discernment,
Fix your firmest thoughts;
Thus duty comes as pleasure
And not with trouble fraught.

—Printers' Ink.

PRACTICALLY every large office building in Chicago has a cigar stand in the lobby. In the biggest of these structures, especially where great numbers of men are employed and where crowds of visitors enter and leave, these stands are owned by well-known cigar dealers or are parts of a system controlling a number of the places.

But, in the smaller buildings, where the number of employees is less and the visitors are fewer, each cigar stand as a rule, is owned, or at least managed by some elderly man who seeks to make a modest living in circumstances which assure him independence and fair remuneration for his time and his services.

These elderly men constitute a class all by themselves in commercial life. As a rule, all are genial, courteous, kindly and, and at the same time ready and pleasant conversationalists. In many cases they have "seen better days." Business reverses, ill health or other untoward circumstances have left them in condition after passing middle life making it necessary for them to follow some calling that will guarantee them a living income without the necessity for hard work.

They know personally every man, woman and child who is called to pass their stands with any degree of regularity. Primarily, their stock consists of cigars and other smokers' articles. But, as a rule, they keep on hand a considerable supply of various other things. They have chewing gum for the stenographers in the building. They have candy for the younger folks. They keep postage stamps on hand for anybody and everybody. They have all sorts of cough drops and some other styles of medicaments, being ready at any time to diagnose the minor physical ills of mankind. Then, too, they are very accommodating in the way of cashing small checks, sometimes loaning small amounts of cash, and otherwise ministering to the financial needs of their patrons.

Everybody likes them. Everybody respects them. Sometimes it is not an easy matter to come on familiar terms with them. But, when they learn to have confidence in those with whom they deal, they are all kindness and sociability. They are living enclyclopedias of information concerning the tenants of the building, the near-by business establishments, the show places of the city, and in a general way of the history of the metropolis and the biographies of its leading men, living and dead.

Yes, they constitute a class all by themselves. Long may they live to deal out the best cigars in their stock for the smoker, favorite brands of chewing gum for the girls, candies for the little folks and knick-knacks for everyone—and especially to cash small checks and accommodate impecunious clerks with small loans of cash.

The man that considers himself as merely working for some one else and fails to realize that he is also working for himself—his own welfare and advancement—at the same time, is not likely to make much progress.

THE doc has been poking my ribs till they're barked. "You'll have to quit smoking," he sternly remarked. "Your heart is a-thumping like surf in a storm; and it will quit pumping if you don't reform. You must, on my honor, cut out the cheroot, or you will be a gorner, you dippy galoot." The learned doctor's orders I followed one day, and over the borders of madness I stray. I'm filled with a yearning for spinach on fire; to keep a pipe burning is all I desire. My nerves in a jangle, I can't write a rhyme; I just fume and wrangle and cuss all the time. I shy at my labor, my mind's in a fog; I scrap with my neighbor and poison his dog. For fragrant Havana I sigh and I pant; I bust the piano and browbeat my aunt. So bring me my briar that gives me delight! The doc can go higher than Kilderoy's kite! So long as I am smoking his threats are a joke; I'd rather be croaking enshrouded with smoke than be an old fogey of two hundred years, deprived of the stogie that comforts and cheers. That life is a treasure no one will deny; but sometimes the pleasure of living's too high.—Walt Mason.

An amusing incident in the life of Charles Lamb, the English writer and essayist, is recorded in the book "William Hone, His Life and Times." Mr. Hone said:

"One summer's evening I was walking with Charles Lamb, and we had talked ourselves into a philosophic contempt of our slavery to the habit of snuff taking, with the firm resolution of never again taking a single pinch. We threw our snuff boxes away from the hill on which we stood at Hampstead, far among the furze and brambles below, and went home in triumph.

"I began to be very miserable, was wretched all night. In the morning I was walking on the same hill. I saw Charles Lamb below, searching among the bushes. He looked up laughing, and saying:

"'What! You are come to look for your snuff box, too?'

"'Oh, no,' said I, taking a pinch out of a paper in my waistcoat pocket. 'I went for a halfpenny worth to the first shop that was open.'"

A friend of mine, Bill we will call him, was an inveterate cigar smoker. But he was a married man, with not too large an income, and naturally the expensive imported brands were beyond reach of his purse. For all that, Bill would get the best cigar possible. He usually smoked small five-cent cigars during the week, then on Saturday, stocked up on ten-cent or three-for-a-quarter smokes.

The bane of his life was a neighbor who received any number of ropes from salesmen and others entering the office in which he was employed. Neighbor knew a good cigar, too, and would pass many of these punks along to Bill, knowing that Bill, of course, had a better cigar or two and would offer him one in return. At last he got tired of smoking this awful stuff handed him by Neighbor and saved every one until he had a boxful of the worst collection of snide brands imaginable.

One night, coming home in the smoker to the suburb in which they both lived, Bill remarked to this fellow, "Say, neighbor, I have a box of cigars which are becoming a little dry on me. I have quite a few on hand now, which I am smoking, and if you want that boxful, you are welcome to them." Neighbor, of course, accepted and said he would send his boy over for them after dinner.

He nearly threw a fit when he opened the box and found every cigar he had given Bill the last six months. They were the finest collection of "Flor de Cabaggios" and "El Punkerinos" you would find in a month of Saturdays.

Neighbor evidently was not such a bad fellow, for he saw the joke and tries his own gift cigars after this. Nevertheless, Bill said that there was quite a pronounced coolness between the two families for a time.

The late Queen Victoria of England was much opposed to smoking, and were she to come back to Windsor Castle in London, would probably be astonished at the number of smoking rooms now distributed over the palace. The rooms for smoking in her various residences were always relegated to the distant parts of the establishments. Guests were always warned against smoking in their apartments and were compelled to use the few smoking rooms or wait until they left the place.

It is said that so emphatic was the Queen against the habit that the whole household of Sandringham was much alarmed at one time when it was ascertained that her Majesty was coming to the palace. King Edward, who was far from being an anti-tobacconist, had recently had a great part of the house remodeled and smoking rooms were scattered plentifully throughout from the first floor to the roof. In order to mislead the Queen they were labeled "Bath rooms" until she left the place.

A cigar salesman stopped at one of the smaller country hotels in the Southwest some months ago for the night. When he arose in the morning he found no water and started on a quest for it. He found the landlord out at the stable doing the chores for the day, and made his request for the liquid.

"What for?" the landlord asked.

"I want to wash my face," rejoined the salesman.

The landlord directed him to a creek near by, and he went there for his morning ablutions, followed by several children, whose curiosity had been aroused. As the traveler washed his face and combed his hair, as best he could, the children stared at him in amazement with wide-open eyes.

Finally the largest boy's curiosity got the best of him and he blurted out: "Say, Mister, do you-all take all that trouble with yourself every day?"

Good Movement Started in Philadelphia

An encouraging sign of the times was the enthusiastic meeting held in Philadelphia during the past week for the organization of an association of cigar manufacturers of the First Revenue District of Pennsylvania. The need of such an organization to look after the interests of the cigar manufacturers is so obvious as to need no comment, but it has taken almost an upheaval to bring about even the first steps of organization.

The impending increase of revenue tax on cigars is the menace which has awakened the manufacturers to the importance of united effort to protect themselves and their industry. In laying the foundation for this organization, the Philadelphia manufacturers have pointed the way for the manufacturers elsewhere to take similar steps and bring about a national organization that will really achieve something and be permanent in its influence.

The stumbling block to all associations of this character is, that being called into existence in times of extreme need, they lapse into a state of coma during times of peace and gradually peter out.

If it is worth while organizing at all, it should be worth while making these organizations permanent. Constantly, there are questions arising, vitally affecting the cigar trade, which could be handled effectively by the manufacturers through united effort which is deaf to petty prejudices and jealousies.

If local manufacturers everywhere should form local associations similar in character and affiliate with a national body, they would have a solid organization that would really achieve something, both locally and nationally.

Wanted: A Moses—

We have been favored with a copy of the address prepared and delivered by Nicholas Ehrlich, vice-president of the Brooklyn branch of the Independent Retailers' Association of America, which was read at a recent meeting of retailers and manufacturers held in New York at the Victoria Hotel.

In perusing this carefully written brief, we are again forced to admit that despite all the individual work, and trumpet blasts of warning, the actual, crying need of the independent industry today is for a magnetic and majestic leader who can bring directly home to those concerned the exact situation as it exists.

Meeting after meeting has been held of the retailers in New York City, Philadelphia, Boston and in other centers, and in every place the same conditions have arisen. The gatherings have developed little or nothing but petty jealousies, and a desire on the part of some men to hold offices with a high-sounding title. When it came down to putting up the sinews of war in the shape of a few dollars to help carry out certain lines of beneficial work, a majority of the members have always been conspicuously absent.

If the independent manufacturers of the country want to see the independent retailers properly organized, let them get together in a businesslike way, secure the services of a corps of brilliant men, guarantee the needed money and send them forth. Results will follow.

The cigar industry needs a man like unto John Mitchell, of the mineworkers, or an Arthur, of the railway engineers, to accomplish some tangible results, and THE TOBACCO WORLD is almost ready to admit that it is up to the manufacturers, unjust as it may seem, to take up the work of effectively organizing the retailer—a job which up to date the retailer seems unable to do for himself.

It is a good thing to argue about the different ways to do business, for that is the road to enlightenment if followed right, but it is a mistake to condemn all other ways but yours, for there is often more than one right way to do things successfully.

Good business this year means increasing the capacity next year, no matter what the size now, and it is a part of human nature to want to do more next year, no matter how much has been done in the year gone by. Our wants are progressive and we are disappointed when there is any kind of a halt in their progress.

Have You Voiced Your Protest?

Have you written to your Congressman, protesting against the proposed increase in revenue taxes on cigars. If you have not done so, you have neglected your duty as a member of the tobacco trade and are inviting disaster to your business.

The time to get busy is NOW.
It's too late, once the tax is raised.
Kill the movement in its infancy.
Write today.

Preferred Havana Tobacco Co. Locates in Eagle Building

Jose M. Diaz to Direct New York Office—New Quarters and Humidors Best of Their Types

THE past week has been a strenuous one for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, Calixto Lopez & Company, P. Verplanck & Company, and the Lopez, Hermanos Company, who form the recently organized Preferred Havana Tobacco Company. These various concerns have been moving into combined offices, which take up the entire front of the fifth floor of the fine new Eagle Building at Twenty-first and Fourth Avenue. President Jose M. Diaz, of the Preferred Company, will be in entire charge of the New York office, with P. Verplanck as the general sales director; Manuel Lopez, director of manufactures, and F. Bustillo, chief purchasing agent, being assisted in this work also by Mr. Lopez. J. M. Diaz, of the company, leaves New York on March 8 for a trip to Cuba and Tampa, and after that he will make a short stay at Palm Beach. Mr. Diaz will be accompanied by Howard Charles, of Charles & Company, who are large distributors of the well-known "Flor de Mundo" brand, which is controlled by the Preferred Havana Tobacco Company.

The new offices of the corporation are thoroughly modern in every respect. They have installed a magnificent humidor which is surpassed by none in New York. They have over 3500 feet of floor space in their new location and this affords ample opportunity for the proper conducting of the four component businesses of the corporation.

Fassler & Shepard New Leaf Firm

Fassler & Shepard is the title under which a new leaf firm has been organized at 231 Pearl Street, New York City. Andrew N. Shepard, one of the members of the firm, had been an extensive grower and packer of Connecticut tobaccos for more than a quarter of a century. Samuel A. Fassler, the other member, has had a wide experience with a number of packing firms, but within the past four years has been in business for himself. Mr. Fassler will attend to the office details and the sales end of the business, while Mr. Shepard will put his attention to the growing and the packing end of the business. They will deal in Connecticut tobaccos exclusively.

Robert E. Lane on Western Tour

Robert E. Lane, the representative for the "Partagas" Havana cigars, left last week for a lengthy trip to the western part of this country and Canada. He will work towards the Pacific Coast, thence going north to Canada. He expects to cover about 9000 miles and will return to New York about April 1.

Griffin-Neuberger Co. Occupying New Quarters

Splendid Facilities Afforded—Plantations in Connecticut Have Annual Crop of 3000 Bales of Tobacco

THE Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company will occupy their new quarters at 130 Water Street, corner of Pine Street, on Monday, March 3. Here they have taken two floors and contractors have been busy for several weeks past fixing things in shape for their use.

At the new quarters the firm have splendid facilities to conduct their own selling, a policy which they have just incorporated, and their sample rooms are most commodious and well lighted. The company are one of the largest handlers of Connecticut-grown tobacco in this country, and their plantations are sufficiently large to give them an annual crop of over three thousand bales of all varieties, with their warehouse located at Clarksville, Connecticut. The officers of the company include Moritz Neuberger, as president; Fritz Lederer, vice-president, and F. B. Griffin, general manager.

"Pure Aroma" and "Turkish Blossom" New Cigarettes

Introduced and Manufactured by Pure Aroma Tobacco Works, Who Claim Special Qualities Through Curing Process

Several brands of Egyptian cigarettes, the quality of which the manufacturers claim is far above the average, are being put on the market by the Pure Aroma Tobacco Works, 146 Pearl Street, this city. They are known as the "Pure Aroma" and "Turkish Blossom" cigarettes and are guaranteed not to irritate the throat.

The particular quality of these cigarettes is said to be obtained through a special curing process. Louis Edelman, of the Pure Aroma Tobacco Works, has been experimenting with this process for several years and says that in offering these brands to American smokers, they give them Egyptian cigarettes of a natural aroma and free from any foreign flavor or substance whatever.

Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., Take Over Hyman Plant

S. Hyman, Limited, the Canadian tobacco manufacturers, have sent a circular to the trade announcing that they have disposed of their manufacturing and selling rights in the United States to Philip Morris & Company, Limited, of New York, who will in the future manufacture and market the brands known as "Hyman's English Mixture," "Hyman's Cut Plug," "Hyman's Special Mixture," "Hyman's Sun Cured" and "Hyman's Extra Mild." All orders and correspondence are to be addressed to Philip Morris & Company, Limited, 402 West Broadway, New York City.

MAN IN THE MOON ENJOYING "REGENSBURGS"

The tip of the cigar is tinseled, giving the appearance of being on fire, and can be seen from any position in the car.

"El Myra" A New Monday Cigarette

A new popular-priced cigarette has recently been placed on the market by S. Monday & Sons, of Brooklyn, New York. It is termed the "El Myra" and goes to the consumer ten for five cents. A new feature of the selling of this brand is the placing of a coupon in each package with a cash value of one-half cent. The dealer receives thirty National Retailers' certificates, free with each 1000.

O. S. Veit Goes With Gans Bros.

Oscar S. Veit, who has been for some time with Rey, Strauss & Company, of Tampa, pushing their "Mi Rey" brand, has resigned his position and joined the selling staff of Gans Brothers, who make clear Havana goods in New York City, with their factory at 417 East Seventy-sixth Street.

Mr. Veit succeeds to the position formerly held by Wm. Frisch, and his wide acquaintance with the trade should help in making him a valuable addition to the Gans staff.

Additional Stand for Gunst's

Another stand has been added to the retail cigar stores in New York City of M. A. Gunst & Company. This concern has leased the store at the southeast corner of Broadway and John Street. They will occupy this location within a short time. It is not known what rent they are obliged to pay, but it is said to exceed $10,000 annually.

Smoker for Independent Dealers on March 27

The Independent Retail Dealers' Association, of New York, at the recent meeting arranged to send a committee through a number of the smaller cities outside of New York in a response to information from these sources relative to the forming of associations. The committee will include Messrs. Hunter, Jonas, Starr, White and Weil. Arrangements for holding a smoker at the regular meeting on March 27 was put in the hands of a special committee.

Police Lieutenants Enjoy "Castenadas"

"Castenada" cigars were supplied to the diners at the annual banquet of the Police Lieutenants' Benevolent Association, at the Waldorf Astoria, on Washington's Birthday. Dave Echemendia, the "Castenada" representative for the United States, took great pains in putting these cigars before the diners in unusual packings. Each diner was supplied with a small single box decorated with the police color of green.

Fifth Stand for British-American Stores

A lease has been taken on the corner of Seventy-second Street and Broadway, through W. W. St. John, president of the British-American Cigar Stores Company, for that concern. After the necessary changes have been made in the building, the cigar stand will be opened about March 15. This is the fifth store of the concern. Other locations are now under consideration and will be taken, provided they are suitable.

E. J. Stachelberg in New York

Mr. Stachelberg states that the distribution of the five brands of old factory No. 1, of Tampa, was never in better shape than today, and that the popularity of their goods seems to be continually increasing in all centers.

Charles Adler Declared to Be Insolvent

Charles Adler, of 11 Burling Slip, is declared by a number of his creditors to be insolvent. A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by a number of his creditors, among them being John Schlenger, S. Loewenthal & Sons, Joseph Holzman and Hatheway & Steane. Mr. Adler had been manufacturing cigars for more than nine years.

Kreuger & Braun Dissolve Partnership

It is announced that the partnership, formerly existing between William Braun and Earnest Kreuger, carrying on the lithographic business of Kreuger & Braun, at Nos. 312-316 East Twenty-third Street, this city, was dissolved on February 14. Earnest Kreuger has stated that he will carry on the business alone and will pay and discharge all debts and liabilities, and receive all money payable to the concern.

Harry Salomon, of Salomon Brothers & Stern, this city, is at present in Cuba, accompanied by his bride, on his honeymoon. After spending a few weeks in Cuba, Mr. and Mrs. Salomon expect to return to the United States via New Orleans.

The Quaker City Trade Outlook

OUTSIDE of the healthy condition of the cigar manufacturing industry at this writing, there has been little of moment in local tobacco circles to cause much comment. The one big piece of news of the past week is the meeting of the cigar manufacturers in the Hotel Bingham last Tuesday night, described in another section of the WORLD. This was most satisfactory as far as results for the present are concerned, and it is hoped that this branch of the trade will see the advisability of forming a permanent, influential organization.

It is now up to the retailers to get busy, if they ever intend to organize. As is known, this was attempted several times. Perhaps the example of the manufacturers will stimulate the retail trade to finally organizing. Let us hope so.

The retailers are not enthusing over any unusual amount of business. The box trade has particularly fallen off. Yet no one is complaining. The dealers state that most of them have still quite a bit of stock left over from the holidays and they are not ordering heavily. The wholesale trade is in sympathy with the retail end, very quiet.

Inspect New Edgerton Tobacco Warehouse

Otto Eisenlohr, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, and C. H. Eimerbrink, general factory superintendent of the firm, have recently returned from a trip to Edgerton, Wisconsin, where they were inspecting a new warehouse lately opened. This latest building for the manufacturers of the "Cinco" consists of two divisions, one of them being 240 by 100 feet, being one story and basement in height, to be used as a sorting room. The other section is 240 by 40 feet in size and is two stories and basement in height. This will be used for storage purposes.

Labor Bill in Legislature Affecting Cigar Factories

The Philadelphia cigar manufacturers are much interested in a bill now before the state legislature, regulating the hours of labor in cigar factories, which would of course affect a majority of them. At a recent meeting of the manufacturers steps were taken for fighting this measure.

The new nickel cigar of the T. H. Hart Company is receiving a cordial reception from the trade. It is marketed under the title "Quaker Pure," and the quality and attractive appearance of the brand have done much to make for its reception.

Doings of the "Havana Ribbon" Hustlers

THE force of new men allotted territories on January 1, by Bayuk Brothers Company, are all meeting with success and report "Havana Ribbons" steadily gaining in popularity with the trade.

A. G. Bucher, in Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas, is developing a large business with the jobbers there, and has just completed a visit to The Harle-Haas Drug Company, of Council Bluffs, where he inaugurated an active selling and advertising campaign. Mr. Bucher looks for his territory to produce a big increase of business over 1912, and bases his judgment on the enthusiasm of his jobbers.

E. C. Jeffreys, Texas and Oklahoma representative, is also meeting with success in his territory, as is C. W. McFarland in Wisconsin and Minnesota and Frank D. Patton in Illinois. Mr. McFarland is conducting a selling campaign with The Badger Tobacco Company, at Milwaukee, and Mr. Patton has just terminated one with the Southern Illinois Cigar Company, at Centralia.

E. C. Bohn, Kansas and Missouri representative, made a recent visit to Sol. H. Cohn Company, "Havana Ribbon" distributors for Kansas City, and the H. D. Lee Mercantile Company, who have jurisdiction at Salina, and found the brand enjoying a liberal increase in distribution at both points. Mr. Bohn is now conducting a campaign in St. Louis, where the Hoelscher Cigar Company has control.

Samuel Bayuk, of Bayuk Brothers Company, left by the steamship "George Washington" on the twenty-second instant, to attend the Sumatra inscriptions at Amsterdam, and will return about April 1.

Discontinues South Ninth Street Store

A. Coin, who has been operating a retail cigar store at 35 South Ninth Street, in the stand originally opened by Wentworth Brothers, sold his stock this week and has discontinued business at that point. It has been announced that a store will be opened shortly by the son of Mr. Coin, F. Coin, at 141 North Eighth Street. It is to be styled the Unique Cigar Store.

Mr. Hornstein Retires From Hornstein & Breman

The cigar manufacturing and retail firm of Hornstein & Breman, which was organized recently and is now located at 6 North Thirteenth Street, has undergone a change. Mr. Hornstein has withdrawn from the concern and it will be operated by Mr. Breman. They lately put a new nickel cigar before the trade, "Havana Friend."

Quaker City Notes

Irvin Loeb, of the Loeb-Nunez Tobacco Company, of this city, has sailed for the Amsterdam inscriptions from the port of New York.

Charles H. Gudnecht, the importer of Havana cigars, with offices at 604 Drexel Building, has announced his removal to 421 Chestnut Street, Room 220, Philadelphia Bank Building.

J. W. Brenneman, the Lancaster leaf tobacco man and cigar manufacturer, was a recent caller in the leaf tobacco market.

Daniel Ostrow, proprietor of the Central Cigar Store, at Seventh and Chestnut Streets, has been holding a special sale during the past week on the "Roitray" cigar, made by the G. H. P. Cigar Company, of this city.

John T. Dee, of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, has gone on a trip of about ten days' duration, to the West. A recent visitor to the factory was W. S. Conrad, of the W. S. Conrad Company, St. Paul, who distributes the T. & O. products in that territory.

Terry & Duncan have been holding a special sale and giving an inducement in the form of a Hathway lighter, valued at $1, to everyone purchasing cigars, tobacco or cigarettes to the value of $2.50.

Samuel Jeitles, of Jeitles & Blumenthal, is sojourning at Atlantic City, after a strenuous campaign through the Middle West.

Claude E. Turner, the Salvador Rodriguez representative, has been a visitor with the quality dealers.

A. J. Lynch, of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, was a recent visitor to New York, where he called upon the better class hotel and cafe trade. The "Stratford" is beginning to gain a nice foothold in that market.

The anti-smoking rule on the street cars, which caused a stir among the Quaker City smokers at first, has been obeyed pretty closely by the patrons. Since carrying lighted cigars and cigarettes in cars was done by only a few unthinking persons, the rule was easily enforced.

The "Rameses" cigarettes have been pushed in this market recently through the Stephano sales manager, Mr. Dixon. This has been an unusual procedure for the Stephano factory, as they have never been represented by salesmen. The "Rameses" depended upon its quality alone to become better known. As is known, the company is partly controlled by the Tobacco Products Corporation, which concern recently took over a part interest.

A most attractive window display of cigars was shown last week in the Tenth and Market Streets store of George B. Evans. Among the cigars noted were the "Stratford," El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company; "Bold," Bobrow Brothers; "Royal Peer," Jeitles & Blumenthal; "Sanchez y Haya," "William Penn," Theobald & Oppenheimer Company; "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Brothers Company; "Tom Keene," Bondy & Lederer, and "El Palencia," Boltz, Clymer & Company.

Manufacturers to Form Permanent Organization

Organization Committee Named.

It is the object of the cigar men also to interest other cigar interests throughout the country and work with them. This organization committee, which is ordered to call personally upon all manufacturers possible and get their support, is composed of the following:

J. F. Gallagher, Allen R. Cressman's Son; G. I. Watson, Sig C. Mayer Company; John T. Dee, Theobald & Oppenheimer; Nathan Baum, Baum-Jaffe Company; Robt. J. Boltz, Boltz-Clymer Company; G. M. Lex, "44" Cigar Company; J. J. Shea, Bayuk Brothers Company; H. Dietsch, Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers; A. V. Pent, Pent Brothers; M. D. Neumann, Neumann-Mayer Company.

Then the matter of taking immediate steps for the combating of the proposed increase in the tax on cigars was taken up. It was suggested that a committee be appointed to confer with counsel toward preparing a brief, to be presented to the Ways and Means Committee, showing the far-reaching injury which the cigar manufacturing industry would sustain were there any changes. Several speakers proved that in order to put cigars equal in quality to those made at present on the market, the manufacturer would be compelled to charge the jobber more, who in turn would increase his prices to the retailer. This was shown to be an impossibility, and since the price of labor could not be changed, it was shown that the entire selling system now in practice would have to be changed. And since in times past any changes such as proposed would redound to the injury of the manufacturer, it was reasonable to suppose that such would be the case in this instance.

This discussion took the form of a motion by Mr. Lex, of the "44" Cigar Company, that a committee of five be appointed to prepare the brief and all other steps to be taken regarding present legislation, both state and national. Before it was voted upon, Mr. Boltz asked that an amendment be added to the motion giving the committee the power to increase its membership to seven or nine as they saw fit.

Robt. J. Boltz, Boltz-Clymer Company; H. Dietsch, Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers; Isador Langsdorf, A. Roig & Langsdorf; G. M. Lex, "44" Cigar Company; J. J. Shea, Bayuk Brothers Company.

Robt. J. Boltz was chosen chairman of this committee.

A meeting will be held in the near future, at which time the organization will be formed. The date will be decided by the organization committee. At that meeting permanent officers will be elected and steps taken toward the adoption of a constitution and by-laws.

Among those present were:

B. Lipschutz, G. M. Lex, and M. A. Funk, of the "44" Cigar Company; H. Dietsch, Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers; A. C. Fisher and G. A. Balsey, of L. S. Valentine & Son; J. J. Shea, Bayuk Brothers Company; Charles Bobrow, Bobrow Brothers; J. W. Hillier, Hillier & Thomas; N. S. Frechie, Nathan Baum, Baum-Jaffe Company; M. D. Neumann, Neumann-Mayer Company; S. Grabosky, G. H. P. Cigar Company; Wm. Dohan, El Draco Cigar Company; Robt. J. Boltz, Boltz, Clymer & Company; A. V. Pent, Pent Brothers; Herman Vetterlein; Ralph Levine, H. Duys & Company, of New York; H. Dusenberg, Gumpert Brothers; G. J. Watson, Sig C. Mayer Company.

The Independent Cigar Stores, on Thirteenth Street below Market, and on North Thirteenth Street, recently had a sale of "Mascot" smoking tobacco, which they claimed was close to a record for one store in this city. The sale lasted two days.

TWO BRILLIANT GENERATIONS OF WERTHEIM FAMILY

Jacob Wertheim

Maurice Wertheim

Jacob Wertheim, until recently president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, has been known as one of the most dominating and influential persons in the independent cigar manufacturing circles of the country. He retires to take a much-needed and well-earned rest. Maurice Wertheim, his son, who has been secretary of the same concern, of which his father was president, has severed his official connections to enter upon a diplomatic career. He is a graduate of Harvard University.

January National Output of Tobacco Products

THE production of cigars and tobacco products of the country, as compiled from the internal revenue receipts during the month of January, and as compared with the corresponding period last year, shows the output to be far ahead of that period generally. Small cigars and cigarettes at $3.60 continue to decrease. But all other lines are much ahead of 1912.

Large cigars show an increase over the same month last year of about 14 per cent.; cigarettes of almost 25 per cent., and snuff about 30 per cent. Manufactured tobacco also did its share, having an increase in output over last January of 2,180,565, about 6¼ per cent.

	January
	1913	1912	Increase
Cigars	588,680,183	519,647,260	69,032,923
Little Cigars	86,012,840	97,948,920	*11,936,080
Cigarettes	1,257,582,600	1,007,860,920	249,721,680
Cigarettes at $3.60.	1,708,600	1,757,072	*48,742
Tobacco, Mfd., lbs.	34,610,890	32,430,325	2,180,565

*Decrease.

The Co-operative Cigar Dealers' Association, of Manhattan, has been organized to deal in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, with a capitalization of $20,000. The incorporators are Jacob Fox, Joseph Schoenbrock and Charles Cyrus Bullock, of 1495 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, New York.

Bill in Indiana Legislature Arouses Cigar Men

The cigar interests of the state of Indiana are much aroused over a measure introduced in the last session of the legislature, which will almost revolutionize the distribution of goods in that state. The bill, which has been in the hands of the House Committee, has been reported on favorably. It is aimed at the middleman. The idea of the measure is to prohibit discrimination in any form in the selling of the product by the manufacturer to any person or firm. At a meeting of the cigar and tobacco dealers of Indiana, L. C. Hamilton, of Hamilton, Harris & Company, of Indianapolis, was appointed as the man to take care of the interests of the trade before the legislature.

Baltimore Leaf Association Elects Officers

At the meeting of the Baltimore Cigar Leaf Association, held in that city, on February 19, A. W. Gieske, of the leaf tobacco house of Gieske & Niemann, was elected president of the association. The other officers elected were Samuel Dealham, Jr., vice-president; G. Howard Lentz, secretary; and A. Fader, treasurer. Mr. Gieske succeeds the late Isaac L. Kemper in the presidency.

The entire packing and selling organization, name and good will of the business of M. Kemper & Sons, of Baltimore, Maryland, is up for sale. I. L. Kemper, head of the concern, died recently, and this step is taken to settle the estate.

The Tobacco Trade in Norway

Heavy Annual Tax on Land Causes Crops to Decrease Each Year—A Splendid Field for Americans

THE amount of tobacco raised in Norway is very small, as there is an annual tax of $8 per acre on all land devoted to this crop, which compels farmers to demand so high a price for their product that they have much difficulty in competing with foreign tobaccos. All that is raised is produced on the west coast; but the industry has failed to make any headway owing to the tax, and the annual crop has not only decreased in amount each year but has also ceased to be a factor in the local market. The grade raised is "dark" tobacco, used chiefly in making cheap smoking mixtures when combined with imported tobacco.

The local demand for tobacco is active. While Germany is credited with about 50 per cent. and the United States with 43 per cent. of the total value of the raw tobacco imported in 1911, the United States actually furnished a larger proportion, as the imports from Germany were partly made up of American tobacco. It is imported via Germany owing to the fact that most of the Norwegian manufacturers depend upon Bremen dealers for their supplies, as the latter grant long terms for payments. Bremen dealers in turn obtain their stocks from Virginia and Kentucky, and from Borneo, Java, Sumatra, and the West Indies. Part of the American tobacco imported direct is bought in Virginia and Kentucky by the resident agent of a large Norwegian factory. This factory also keeps a resident agent in the West Indies.

Bremen Prices—Import and Duty.

The great bulk of the leaf imported from the United States and Germany is "dark" and is used for manufacturing smoking and chewing tobacco either alone or mixed with better grades. This is imported in hogsheads weighing 800 to 900 kilos (1,764 to 1,984 pounds), small manufacturers buying 10 to 15 hogsheads at a time and the largest ones 70 to 80. Local manufacturers pay, at Bremen, about 50 pfennigs per ½ kilo (11.9 cents per 1.1 pounds) for this grade, transportation to Christiania, insurance, and import duties being additional. The better grades, from Virginia and Cuba especially, are imported in smaller quantities, in burlap packages, and are used for manufacturing smoking tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, and for mixing with cheaper leaf. For these grades the price is 65 to 68 pfennigs per ½ kilo (from 15.5 to 16.2 cents per 1.1 pounds), if bought in Bremen, while a very small amount sells for as much as 78 pfennigs (18.6 cents).

In 1911 Norway's imports of raw tobacco amounted in value to $566,027, Germany being credited with $286,760 worth and the United States with $244,845 worth. Imports of cigars and cigarettes in 1911 had a total value of $404,198, and were supplied chiefly by Germany ($207,673), the Netherlands ($90,321), Belgium ($25,674), Egypt ($23,021), and Denmark ($22,592). No records are kept of the country of origin of imported smoking and chewing tobaccos or of snuff. Norway's purchases of which were valued at $42,934 and $3,323, respectively, in 1911.

The Norwegian import duty on raw tobacco is 27.4 cents per pound if with stems, and 10 per cent. additional for leaves without stems. On smoking and chewing tobacco it is 32.8 cents per pound, and on cigars and cigarettes 72 cents. On smoking tobaccos and cigarettes the immediate packing is included in the dutiable weight.

Domestic Prices—Trade Methods.

Domestic manufacturers make nearly all the chewing and smoking tobacco consumed in Norway. A small amount of both is imported from the United States, England, and other countries, but it is classed among "miscellaneous imports." Norwegian factories also supply about one-half of the demand for cigars and cigarettes. The cigars sell at wholesale for $12.05 to $24.10 per 1,000 and the cigarettes for $3.20 to $3.60. Cigars imported from Germany wholesale for $16.10 to $40.20, and from the Netherlands at $18.75 to $26.80; a few Habana cigars are sold at $80.40 up. Imported cigarettes are priced at $3.20 per 1,000 up, Egyptian and Turkish being the most expensive at $13.40. Both cigars and cigarettes are extensively advertised by domestic and foreign manufacturers. Newspapers, the sides of buildings, billboards, and street cars are used for this purpose, especially for cigarettes.

Wholesalers and manufacturers, as already stated, buy most of their supplies of raw leaf through Bremen dealers, even though the latter may not even see the tobacco, making shipments to Norway direct from the country of origin or from the Netherlands, Great Britain, or Belgium. American growers find a ready market here, but their sales would be larger and their profits greater if they would grant terms of 3, 6, and 9 months, as do the Bremen dealers, and in this way sell direct.

Wholesalers and large retailers buy cigars and cigarettes from traveling salesmen, from resident agents of foreign manufacturers and from foreign factories direct. For cigars the terms are 3, 6, or 9 months; for cigarettes they are usually 30 days, but 3 months is frequently given.

A Favorable Market.

This market offers a splendid field for American tobacco manufacturers, but all who have so far tried to enter it have failed because they have refused to grant long terms for payment. Without these terms it is hopeless to endeavor to make sales. American cigars and cigarettes are well liked and already have a reputation, owing to the many Norwegians who have lived in the United States, but dealers complain that when they try to buy they are always asked to pay cash against bill of lading, which they cannot afford to do.

Lists of Christiania tobacco manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers may be had upon application to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C.—Consul General Charles A. Holder, Christiania.

NEWEST ATLANTIC CITY SMOKE SHOP

Store of E. S. Jones, 2807 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, N. J., opened on January 25th, showing window display of "Stratford" cigars, made by El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia

C. J. Selvage, a small manufacturer and retailer, at Fourth and Main Streets, Louisville, Kentucky, has removed to 133 South Fifth Street, where he will have a retail store on the first floor and a manufacturing establishment on the second

all that's new with JOBBERS and DISTRIBUTORS

Lee Mercantile Co., Takes on Five Philadelphia Brands

THE H. D. Lee Mercantile Company, of Salina, Kansas, a wholesale house which recently added a cigar department to its business, has announced the lines to be distributed by them in that territory.

They are the "Flor de Jeitles," Jeitles & Blumenthal, Philadelphia; "El Wadora," Sig C. Mayer & Company, Philadelphia; "Royal Lancer" and "El Proposa," Theobald & Oppenheimer, Philadelphia; "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Brothers Company, Philadelphia; "Dan Sully," E. M. Schwarz & Company, New York; "Salome," Heineman Brothers, Baltimore; "Optimo," A. Santaella & Company; "El Dallo," Wertheimer Brothers, Baltimore.

Mr. Walter Clark, who was appointed manager of the cigar department at the time it was formed, is much gratified at the results obtained, and predicts a good year for the concern's new venture. Mr. Clark was formerly with Theobald & Oppenheimer, of Philadelphia, as their Middle West representative, with headquarters in Chicago.

To Distribute "Bold" in Wilkes-Barre and Vicinity

M. H. Abelson, owner and manager of the Wilkes-Barre Cigar and Tobacco Company, of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, was in Philadelphia the past week and made arrangements for jobbing more extensively the "Bold" and "Discriminator" cigars, made by Bobrow Brothers, of that city.

This concern has been handling the "Bold," to an extent, for some time, but wanted to make arrangements for distributing it more widely in that section of the state.

The "Flor de Moss" in California

Herman Moss, Western representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, has spent but little time at his San Francisco office since returning from the East, being strenuously occupied with the new specialty campaign on the "Flor de Moss." He has been looking after the trade in Southern California, and is expected to start a campaign in San Francisco soon with H. L. Judell & Company, who have the distribution of the "Flor de Moss." They report an active call for this line and are getting repeat orders right along.

Good Demand for "Reynaldos"

A good demand for the "Reynaldo" cigar, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, is reported by Arthur Opler, the jobber of that brand in Buffalo, New York. Harry Swerdlof has been appointed a specialty salesman for this cigar in Buffalo and vicinity, working from the Opler stand at 362 Broadway.

The sub-jobbing firm of F. B. Bourg, Incorporated, of Seattle, Washington, has been reorganized and will do business under the title of Bourg & New, Incorporated. The new member of the firm is Charles New. One of the big lines of this house is the F. Garcia Brothers' line of cigars, which they carry in fourteen sizes.

M. A. LaFond & Co. Give Up Wholesale Store

M. A. LaFond & Company, who have been conducting a wholesale cigar and tobacco business at 162 West Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, have relinquished the same and will move the stock to their new store on Woodward Avenue, that city. They will continue to do a jobbing business, but only in a small way, devoting their entire efforts to their eight retail branches. They argue that conducting eight of the leading retail stands in a large city like Detroit is enough to keep them busy ten hours a day without having a wholesale business on their hands. The operation of a retail and wholesale store are totally different, and no one can do justice to both.

The "Sanchez & Haya" cigar, made by that concern in Tampa, has been doing extremely well on the Pacific Coast within the past year. Edgar J. Stachelberg, vice-president and general manager of the firm, was a visitor to the jobbing connections on the Coast recently, and from Tillman & Bendel, of San Francisco, received an order alone of 2,000,000 "Sanchez y Hayas." Mr. Stachelberg stated in an interview that this well-known brand would be made one of the biggest sellers on the Coast, and pointed out that every jobber handling the cigar was strictly a jobber, a matter that should interest the retailer.

Inter-City Cigar Co. Incorporates in Boston

The Inter-City Cigar Company, of Boston, Massachusetts, which distributes the "Girard" cigar in that city, has incorporated under the laws of that state with a capital stock of $6000. The officers of the concern are: Louis Aaron, of Cambridge, president; Edw. M. Davis, treasurer, and J. M. Farron, director. Mr. Davis has been the representative of the Philadelphia house of Roig & Langsdorf, makers of the "Girard," for some time, and has been the means of having the brand placed with a number of first-class concerns.

Pushing "Charles the Great" in South

Since taking on the distribution of the "Charles the Great" cigars for the state of Georgia, outside of Atlanta and Savannah, the A. J. Long Cigar and Grocery Company, of Macon, Georgia, have been developing big business on this brand. They are featuring this high-grade piece of goods and the duplicates that they have been receiving indicate that it is likely to be one of their biggest sellers.

New Size "El Merito" Makes Good on Coast

The new size of the "El Merito" cigar is reported to be making good headway on the Pacific Coast. This brand, which is manufactured by Boltz, Clymer & Company, of Philadelphia and Tampa, is now being made in a smaller size than formerly. J. D. Waterman is the Coast representative of the manufacturers.

Frank Radoce, formerly the agent of the Enterprise Cigar Company, of Trenton, New Jersey, in that city, has started a jobbing business for himself. He is using an automobile.

David Glickman & Co. Take On "Fifth Avenue'

David Glickman & Company, of 820 South Meridan Street, Indianapolis, Indiana, have been appointed as the representatives for the cigarette firm of I. B. Krinsky, of Brooklyn, New York, in that territory. They will devote their time to seeing that the "Fifth Avenue" cigarettes get their share of the trade in that territory. The Krinsky factory is working at present to its fullest capacity.

Additional arrangements have also been made by the I. B. Krinsky Estate, so that in future, Walter G. Maloney & Company, of 158 East Main Street, Rochester, New York, will represent them in the sale of "Fifth Avenue," "Egyptian Lotus" and their other well-known brands of cigarettes in the upper New York territory.

Ehrman Bros. & Co. Make Alterations

With the intention of broadening the lines of their business, Ehrman Brothers & Company, the wholesale cigar house of San Francisco, are making a number of changes at their store, 138 Front Street. The first floor, formerly occupied by the offices, will now be used for stock rooms. The offices have been removed to the second floor.

New Quarters for Branch of Stone-Ordean-Wells Co.

The Minneapolis cigar branch of the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, the large wholesale grocery and cigar house of the Northwest, with main offices in Duluth, has been moved to its new quarters in Minneapolis. The whole place has been furnished in a most up-to-date manner. A humidor, holding 500,000 cigars, has been placed.

Month's Campaign on "La Mega" Profitable

The "La Mega" cigar of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, Tampa, has been marketed with splendid results in Portland, Oregon, through Mason, Ehrman & Company, of that city. They have only had this brand slightly more than a month, during which time their fifty salesmen have placed it in many of the most prominent cigar stands.

Sales On "Zig Zag" Increasing Nicely

J. A. Adams, of the Enelow Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, has returned to that city after a trip through the East, where he found conditions encouraging for the Enelow brands. Mr. Adams has been pushing the "Zig Zag" brands; also the "Little Dutch and German Panatelas."

Larus & Bro. Co., to Sell Reed Tobacco Co. Brands

Under arrangements recently made the Larus & Brother Company, of Richmond, Virginia, will market the entire output of the Reed Tobacco Company, of that city. A number of brands lately introduced by the Reed Tobacco Company are the "Shirley," a ten-cent cigarette, and the "Pekin," retailing at a nickel.

Niles & Moser Cigar Co. Opens Oklahoma City Branch

The Niles & Moser Cigar Company, of Kansas City, which recently took over the Wm. A. Stickney Cigar Company in that city, has opened its new wholesale and retail branch in Oklahoma City. The retail stand is under the management of H. F. Carroll, of Kansas City. The manager of the wholesale department is J. Ward Gates, at one time connected with Schnorr & Company, of Wichita, Kansas. The first cigar to be pushed heavily in that territory by the wholesale branch is the "Chancellor," of the American Cigar Company.

Firms Buying Tobacco Stems

BATTLE CREEK, MICH., February 17.

Editor of THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Dear Sir—Kindly supply me with the names and addresses of firms buying tobacco stems, and oblige,

Yours very truly,

F. C. EMERY.

H. O. Newcomb, Bridgeton, N. J.

Stachelberg cigars are being heavily distributed through the Crescent Cigar and Tobacco Company, of New Orleans. The "Cremo" cigar, of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, is another one of their big sellers.

"Little Lawrence Barrett" on Coast

A new five-cent cigar which is being introduced to the cigar dealers of Washington, is the "Little Lawrence Barrett," made by Bondy & Lederer. The preliminary plans for the distribution of the brand have been carried out by Harry Dalton, the Coast representative, together with a number of assistants.

Address of Nicholas Ehrlich Before Independent Tobacco Advertisers

IN response to a number of requests from cigar dealers of New York and Brooklyn, THE TOBACCO WORLD publishes the address of Nicholas Ehrlich, delivered before the Independent Tobacco Advertisers recently, a body of which Mr. Ehrlich is head. He is also president of the Independent Cigar Dealers' Association of Brooklyn, and is known as one of the most up-to-date, thinking men of the retail trade. While not agreeing with all of Mr. Ehrlich's sentiments, we consider the address worth the perusal of any cigar dealer.

Last Sunday, February 2, the Brooklyn papers reported that the Secretary of State, Mitchell May; Chief Magistrate Otto Kempner, and many other speakers criticized the "tobacco trust" at the Independent Retailers' Association's annual dinner. "They made a strong appeal for the restoration of the competitive system, each of the speakers found a new hope in the incoming administration at Washington." Now, gentlemen, we have been living in hopes for quite a number of years. It is time to look this grievous situation straight in its face; we cannot pay our bills, run our business with hope, something practical must be immediately undertaken to save our existence from perishing.

Tonight I want to appeal to your reason, logic and common sense. Leaving out all phrases of sympathy and sentiment, I will give you dry facts. First I want to say a few words about the tobacco industry in general.

The tobacco industry today may be divided into four branches, namely: cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff. The last three are almost completely controlled by a few tobacco concerns. They order the quality of production, they also dictate the smallest profit to the retail end of it. The manufacturing in these three branches by the independents is living out its age. There will be merely a few left, here and there, for a memorial of these three great industries.

The only industry left in the hands of the independent manufacturers is the cigar industry. It appears to be a strong and healthy industry from the manufacturers' standpoint, but if you will watch it more closely and examine it thoroughly, you will find that the trust-germ has entered the independent cigar field, here and there, and is consuming it very rapidly.

You, gentlemen, the real captains of the cigar industry, have labored very hard for many decades, with the best of your abilities to make the manufacture of the cigar a skillful art, a comfort and pleasant enjoyment for the American smoker.

Florida and New York make the best cigars on earth, and the citizens of this country enjoy smoking the best cigars in the world. And what do we see today in our great tobacco industry? We find: straw substituted for tobacco; molasses and maple sugar substituted for the natural tobacco flavor. Virginia tobacco replaces the high-valued Turkish, Porto Rica goods are pushing out clear Havana, Manila is taking place of seed, and before long, the new generation will be educated to get the bait of smoking alfalfa, and Pennsylvania seed instead of your tastefully blended and skillfully made tobacco products.

The production of cigarettes increased twenty-five and one-half per cent. last year. The increase in manufactured tobacco was about 13,000,000 pounds. The increase in snuff was about 2,000,000 pounds, and the production of clear Havana cigars instead of rising fell back 223,000,000. The importation of Porto Rica and Manila cigars is rapidly increasing. The Porto Rica-American Tobacco Company is shipping 8,000,000 cigars, and 2,000,000 little cigars to the United States every month.

The question is now before us, what will become of our great American clear Havana cigar industry? What shall the independent manufacturer do? Shall we wait for the president-elect to recommend supplementary anti-trust legislation? Let us assume that it will be possible. Then the question is, will it help to restore fair competition? Will it give you an equal opportunity in the market to fight the legalized, law-obedient, organized, concentrated wealth which incorporates over night a $50,000,000 concern, and is able to incorporate million dollar concerns every sixty minutes? The most of the bonds and the preferred stocks are in the hands of the trust magnates, and the biggest amount of the common stock is in the hands of the common people.

Any government that will try to take serious action against the trusts, will at the same time close the doors of the banks and factories. Business will come to a standstill. The majority of the stockholders who invested their last savings in those stocks, will be driven to poverty and we will have to face a general crisis.

The retailers' organization is fighting only one side of the "tobacco trust," that is the illegal methods they have used in swallowing their rivals. There is another side of the "tobacco trust," which we cannot injure or harm, which is in perfect harmony with the existing laws and constitutional rights of every institution in this country.

The accumulation of enormous wealth in one center enables it to erect the biggest, most modern factories in the land, to use the latest inventions, to have the best equipped machinery, to hire the highest experts for the production, to have the most efficient management inside. They can reach every consumer in the land at a very small expense. They can sell their products with profit at a price at which the individual independent manufacturer will not be able to produce it. You charge less to the jobber than to the retailer. The producing price per thousand will be much less when you manufacture a million cigars a month than when you manufacture one hundred thousand, or less.

The "tobacco trust" has another way of getting the cigar trade. They are doing it every day, and you do not realize it. The "tobacco trust" is taking away your foundation and your structure itself is falling. Your foundation is the independent retail trade. The "United," "Schulte," etc., are demoralizing and destroying the independent retail trade. The cigar industry is suffering the consequences. The number of retail cigar stores is rapidly decreasing. The mercantile agencies of Dun and Bradstreet report regularly every month the failure of over one thousand business firms every month through bankruptcy. The National Association of Credit Men states that out of every hundred business men starting with small capital, ninety-five fail; only five remain in business. The necessity of the "Tobacco Trade Alliance" shows that the retailers' existence is not so sure and safe as it used to be. We feel that the retailer is losing ground. But the purpose of the alliance should be not to save a few dollars entrusted to some retailers, but to save the whole business to which the manufacturer entrusted his existence, his whole life.

It makes no difference how bitter we are against the "trust," we must admit that the "trust" is a new chapter in our economic system. It is dominant and has come to stay. The "trust" is not the child of unfair competition, but the mother. Unfair competition is the result, not the cause, and the only reason for it is, to eliminate the middleman. It is true that the "trust" gives benefit only to a few magnates, nevertheless, in a general way the development of the "trust" institution is a progress because it saves a lot of waste in time, capital and energy; and we cannot turn the wheel of progress back. We have ninety millions of citizens in the United States, and only one per cent. retailers, and I do not see how the one per cent. will be able to change a system that ninety-nine have lived up to. The independent retailers and manufacturers themselves, their wives, sisters and mothers, their friends and relatives who are worrying so much about their welfare are helping the very same "trusts" to develop and stay by purchasing their food, clothes and shelter from the big department stores, Woolworth's Five and Ten-Cent Stores, or Butler's and Roulston's Grocery Stores. Every other man patronizes the United Cigar Stores, or the tobacco trust's products for the same reason that you go to some bargain aisle in any of the department stores.

We live in an age of concentration, co-operation and consolidation. The concentration of wealth, the development of machinery and industries, the division of labor in production, as well as in the place of distribution. The United Cigar Stores Company, in this country is only an example of the revolution in the retail trade which is coming in the near future in every line of distribution of commodities, from the producer direct to the consumer. The rapid growth of Woolworth's Five and Ten-Cent Stores Company, the consolidation of three large groceries, retailers (Butler's, Roulston's and Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company), Ward's Tip-Top Bread Corporation, the National Cigar Stands Company, the Riker & Hegeman's Drug Store Company, the development of the United Cigar Stores Company, etc., show the success and power of combination and consolidation, in the retail trade.

The New York Investigation Committee (of the high cost of living), which has reported, recommends, as a means of reducing the cost of distribution, the development of food department stores. The committee reached the conclusion that such establishments, buying direct, receiving direct and selling direct, represent the best economic type in point of efficiency, minimum of waste, satisfactory distribution and due rewards for management and capital.

Extraordinary industrial changes have come over this land, and reached also the tobacco trade. As it is certain that the sun must rise and set every day, so is it certain that we cannot restore the old individual competitive system in our retail tobacco trade. There is only one salvation for the independent cigar manufacturers and that is, to select a certain percentage of the reliable cigar dealers and good paying cigar stores, to unite and organize a co-operative chain of stores, managed independently by an impartial board of directors. At present you depend upon the retailer only who is disappearing from the market. Fifteen years ago with a much smaller population in New York, we had over ten thousand cigar stores, now with a population of over five million we have only about one thousand cigar stores. The "tobacco trust" has a country-wide market, that is the consumer. Why don't you also go direct to the consumer? With the energetic assistance of the old-experienced, able retailer save the independent cigar industry from perishing. We have a great number of intelligent smokers who usually patronize well-known independent brands. They often have trouble in getting those brands, as every cigar dealer is interested merely in one or two brands. It is impossible for every cigar store to carry very many brands, and keep them in a condition to satisfy the consumer. Some dealers are short of funds. Others have no experience of handling stock and some don't care to follow good advice to improve their conditions.

It is not advisable for an independent manufacturer to open stores and sell exclusively his own products, because an individual manufacturer may be successful for a limited time in a certain section. It may be good temporarily, but I cannot see any future for this kind of stores, because the future belongs to amalgamation and co-operation, not to individual effort. As a rule the nature of the smoker is to change the brand of cigars he smokes as often as he changes his diet or clothes. There are some exceptions to the rule, but exceptions don't count.

A co-operative chain of stores will be able to carry a full line of independent manufactured clear Havana cigars. A store of that kind will perfectly satisfy every good smoker all the time. He will find in those co-operative stores, plenty of well-known, good brands to select from. The popular brands in all sizes and colors will please him. You will have a courteous, respectable, intelligent gentleman behind the counter to meet him, and you are sure of success.

I have tried to organize and combine some retailers, and met with no success. Now I warn you, gentlemen, don't delay! The sooner you do it, the better for you. Organize, co-operate and develop a chain of stores where the respectable, intelligent smoker will be sure to get quality, not silk stockings, or safety razors.

Now I want to call your attention to a few facts and statements about the development of the United Cigar Stores Company:

It was organized in New Jersey, May 16, 1901. Mr. George J. Whelan, founder of this company, who came to New York about a dozen years ago with only $2500 in his pockets, suggested to the owner of the Admiral Cigarette Company, for whom he had previously worked, to open a chain of retail cigar stores in New York. He also traveled with this suggestion to the largest manufacturers in New York, but they all turned him down. Mr. James B. Duke, of the American Tobacco Company, gave him the first $50,000 to begin the chain of retail cigar stores (quoted from Mr. Ellison's address, editor of the U. S. Tobacco Journal, on March 28, 1912, in Terrace Garden, New York).

In the report of the Com. of Corporations on the Tobacco Industry on February 25, 1909:

(p. 313)—In June, 1907, the entire list of the United Cigar Stores was 392, of which New York had 152, Brooklyn 14, Chicago 34, San Francisco 31, Boston 12, Philadelphia 10, and in many other cities one or two.

(p. 314)—And their business in 1906 amounted to $12,727,906.11. All this business was built up in less than six years.

(p. 17)—In 1906, its preferred stock was $750,000. Common stock $450,000. Bonds $750,000.

(p. 17)—And their subsidiary United Merchant Realty Company had preferred stock $100,000, common stock $100,000.

Now a consolidated statement of United Cigar Stores Company (signed by Elliot Everett, treasurer) of July 25, 1912—cash on hand $2,251,248.86, cash to be received on sale of preferred stock $4,527,000, property account, real estate, buildings, mortgages, lease-holds, trade-marks, trade-names, good will, brands, $25,525,915.04.

It is plainly seen by this last item that they estimate their good will, brands, trade-names, which are actually an intangible asset in the tens of millions. They must do the business when they pay dividends on twenty-five millions of watered stock.

Dow, Jones & Company, the Wall Street Journal—News Bulletin, May 29, 1912, states: "The United Cigar Stores Company aims to turn its business every fortnight. The central warehouses are not permitted to keep over fifteen days' stock.

Cigar Industry Quiet—Cortez Cigar Co. Sustains Loss and Inconvenience by Fire, Insurance Covering Damage—Moreda & Co. to Have New Factory—Key West Cigar Co. to Increase Working Force

KEY WEST, February 23.

ALTHOUGH the more important cigar factories have sufficient orders on hand to keep them operating for some time, the situation in the industry taken as a whole is quiet. Nevertheless, the general impression prevails among the factory men that 1913, when it gets fairly started, will be a good year for the cigar men.

Part of the stock of the manufactured goods of the branch factory of the Cortez Cigar Company, at Grinnell and Catherine Streets, was destroyed by fire last Tuesday. A member of the firm stated that there was considerable stock in the building and that they were just making preparations to begin work on a larger scale. The loss is completely covered by insurance. The fire was well under way before discovered, but through hard work the building was saved. They have procured the use of the factory building at the corner of Dey and Simonson Streets, recently occupied by R. Fernandez Havana Company, and have opened a branch factory there until the other plant is again in running order.

The E. H. Gato Cigar Company reports business as improving satisfactorily. Recently they have been sending heavy shipments to the Pacific Coast, one of their strongholds. They expect to take on more men today and will be working their factory to full capacity. One thousand employees is usually their limit.

Moreda & Company are making preparations for the erection of a new factory building in this city. They report that they have been compelled to increase their working force during the past month. Preston Herbert, president of the concern, arrived at Key West last Saturday from Havana. He expects to leave shortly for Tampa and New York.

Business is slightly above the average with George W. Nichols & Company for this time of the year. Albert H. Gannerson, a jobber and heavy distributor of the "Solace" cigars in Chicago, stopped off here last week on a trip to Havana and paid a visit to the local factory.

After a short tour through the southern section of the country, John Wardlow, president of the Ruy Lopez Company, is again in town. When seen Mr. Wardlow said that he had a most enjoyable trip from a business as well as a social standpoint. In commenting on trade conditions, he said that business has been improving to his entire satisfaction.

Manager Phillips, of the Key West cigar factory, stated a few days ago that with the new plans they have made for the distribution of their goods in 1913 they will probably be compelled to largely increase their working force in a short time. He predicted that their factory will have one of the best year's business that they have ever experienced and that they expect to reach the 9,000,000 mark during 1913.

Rain and Dampness Hinder Operating of the Cigar Factories—Cincinnati Business Men Given Cordial Reception—Max Roth Cigar Co. to Distribute "El Palencias"

TAMPA, February 23.

OWING to the fact that much rain and dampness prevailed in Tampa during the past week, the cigar manufacturers were hampered in their operations. We have had enough cloudy weather to last us the rest of the spring. For the first time in 1913 cigar shipments fell below the 5,000,000 mark. This was due in part, also, to the fact that almost every cigar factory in Tampa closed on Washington's Birthday, and the fact that next week will see all the baseball fans out in force to witness the games between the Chicago Cubs and Cuban Athletics will probably cause a continuation of this decrease in output. The cigarmakers, as a rule, are ardent followers of the national sport and will come out in force, particularly since one of the contestants is one of the best ball teams in Cuba.

The party of Cincinnati business men who paid this city a visit about a week ago on their trip to the Panama Canal were given a cordial reception by the Tampa business men. The Board of Trade Committee gave each of the tourists a souvenir in the form of fine Tampa cigars. Spoons were given to the ladies in the party. A party of newspaper men escorted the delegation of Cincinnatians to the cigar factories, where they were given a courteous reception.

J. J. French, of Quiros, Villazon y Ca., is again in town after a trip to the South and Middle West. He has reported conditions in those sections as being exceptionally good for this time of year.

A visit to the Boltz-Clymer factory discloses the fact that a number of desirable accounts have been secured for the "El Palencia" cigar. Included among these is the Max Roth Cigar Company, of Los Angeles, a large distributor of cigar and tobacco products in Southern California. This account was secured through J. H. Boltz, Jr., who covers the West for the concern.

The Chicago Cubs enjoyed the courtesy of a number of the Tampa factories the past few days. The managers made it a point to personally conduct them and present them with samples of some of their choicest goods.

A. H. Gohring, who attends to the sales management of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, was recently honored by being elected secretary for the state organization of the Travelers' Protective Association.

Celestino Vega, after a short trip to the Cuban tobacco fields, is again in town. When questioned he stated that the new crop is all that has been claimed for it.

The Cuban Market

WE have to record a considerably better market during the past fortnight, as on account of the more numerous buyers in town larger transactions have taken place, as will be seen by the sales lower down, and the prices for all good lots, or vegas, have been fully sustained, while naturally the less desirable styles were disposed of by the owners at concessions to the buyers. While the stocks in our market have been greatly reduced, and partly consist of undesirable goods for cigar manufacturers, eventually having to find an outlet in being sold to the cigarette manufacturers, there are, however, some prime goods still to be found in Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta and a very limited quantity of first Capaduras of Remedios. These goods, however, are held very firm by their owners, as they fully believe that they will be wanted ere long, or, as there are always some buyers that are looking for old tobaccos even after the coming crop is upon our market. According to our figures we calculate that of the remaining stocks of about 26,000 bales in all, there are perhaps one-half of them good, serviceable styles for cigar manufacturers, while the balance may only suit for cutting up and mixing with lighter grades of cigarette tobaccos. A few more lots of new libra de pie, and hojas de semilla, from the Vuelta Abajo have come to hand, which have been sold to cigarette manufacturers at moderate figures, while the better grades are still unsold, as our cigar manufacturers prefer to see how the leaf may look after it has passed the fermentation in the bales.

We have heard that some escogidas are at work in Artemisa, but as far as we can ascertain it refers only to the one very early planted and cut tobacco of a General Nodarse, who commenced to set out his plants late last August (the end of that month, and therefore had commenced his harvest by the end of October already). Besides, we ascertained, that the administrator of the Luis Marx Tobacco Company had some tobacco piled a short time ago, and possibly may commence packing before very long. Still these are the few early swallows that do not count in declaring that the summer has come to stay. As long as there is no continuous humidity, neither the dry leaves can be touched or made into bundles, nor ought they to be piled. There may be a little humidity during the very early morning hours, but as long as the prevailing winds continue to be from the North, or Northeast, the temperature during the day is too dry to admit of any fermentation in the piles, and the tobacco would be only precipitated to the injury of the quality later on.

Buyers were: Americans, 10,117; the French Regie, 503; exporters to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, 706, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 658 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from February 3 to February 15, inclusive, were: To all ports of the United States, 8450; to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, 831; to Oran, 75, and to London, 10 bales; making a total of 9366 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

	From February 1 to February 13, 1913.		Since January 1, 1913.
Vuelta Abajo	132	bales	198	bales
Partido	23	"	116	"
Remedios	186	"	337	"

If we could believe the reports that are circulated by some people, there will be a tremendous crop in the Vuelta Abajo and in the Partido region, but as we have not forgotten the exaggerated reports last year of the Remedios crop in particular, we have become skeptical and prefer not to join in the wild chorus, only to be disappointed later on, and to be obliged to rectify the earlier erroneous reports. Facts are that it has rained all over the Vuelta Abajo, and in the province of Havana on the 15th and 18th inst., which undoubtedly has benefitted the later set out plants, as well as the sucker crop. Should all the growing tobacco be cut in good conditions, dry off and pass safely through the fermentation process later on, then there may be a very large crop of fillers, because for wrappers it is now already too late in the season. However, there is a big "IF" to be taken into consideration yet, which the lightening calculators forget to take into consideration at all. The Remedios crop in all probability will be smaller, as no rains have fallen in the Sancti Spiritus district, and which represents half the quantity of the crop. The quality may be good on the other hand, owing to the mostly dry weather, but the lighter styles may be missing.

There have been some rumors of sales in the Vuelta Abajo for future delivery which we have not been able to confirm, except in one instance, which was the famous vega "La Higuera" of San Juan y Martinez, and which has been acquired by the "La Escepcion" factory, makers of the renowned "Hoyo de Monterey." The reported prices were: $500 per bale for 1a/14a & Qdo 1a/3a; $320 for 15a R., Qdo 4a & Qdo 1a M.; $200 for 16a R. & Qdo 5a; $70 for 16a/17a, Qdo 6a, Amarillo R., Sentido R. & Qdo 2a M.; $40 for Sentido, Amarillo and Cascara, and $20 for colas and botes. These prices appear very high, but it remains to be seen how the contract was worded, as in reality all these sales are nothing else except in the shape of a mortgage, which prevents the veguero from selling to any other party, but leaves a loophole to the buyer when the time of delivery comes, either to claim that the escogida was not exactly in accordance with the terms of the contract to reject the same, or to insist upon a material reduction in the prices. If the crop should turn out in reality to be very large, there should not be any reason why the manufacturers, or dealers, should be so anxious to purchase vegas at such an early period, although on the other hand we should warn buyers from thinking that the bottom might drop out from the prices. If the tobacco has a fine quality, it is more than likely that the big manufacturers here, as well as in the United States, would make an extra effort to provide themselves with a two years' supply, as we in all probability would not have a repetition of a really fine crop the next year, judging by the long number of poor crops in succession, and this extra demand would result in a correspondingly larger demand, and which would not allow the prices to come down too much.

Leaf Buyers That Come and Go.

Cigars.

As we stated in our last correspondence we shall not give any detail of the semi-monthly exports, as we are under the impression that the figures are again not exactly what they should be, as by them there has been a decline when we are almost convinced that there should have been an increase, because from all reports the majority of our manufacturers are well supplied with orders from all the chief countries, and are working with full forces. It seems that the fine quality of the 1912 crop cigars has found universal recognition among the smokers all over the world, and in consequence thereof the demand has increased notably, therefore the importers of cigars have not been slow to take advantage and are ordering heavier than they used to do at this season of the year.

Romeo y Julieta state that they are busier than they have been for the last ten years at this season of the year.

Partagas is employing all the cigarmakers that their two factories will hold.

Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, are working strong in their principal factories. Mr. L. S. Houston left for a flying business trip to the United States, but is expected to return here on the 26th inst. Mr. H. C. Thompson left today for New York, having accepted a position as manager of the cigar department of Wm. J. Clubb, of Winnipeg and Victoria, British Columbia.

Sol is doing a very satisfactory business, as orders are arriving very freely from all parts of the globe.

Flor de P. A. Estanillo states that orders for their "Flor del Fumar" brand are coming in continuously, mostly for high-priced sizes.

Other factories like Allones, Limited; Eden, C. E. Beck & Company and Por Larrañaga have neither any complaints to utter. La Flor de José Otero reports a very good continuous demand for its cigars from the United States, Canada, England, and to a lesser extent from the German Empire.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Menendez & Company were big sellers, having closed a deal of 4520 bales of first and second capaduras of Remedios, thus liquidating their stock on hand.

Waitt & Bond, of Boston, the makers of the celebrated brand of "Blackstone," were the buyers of the above quantity of choice Remedios escogidas.

Mr. J. S. Janover, of the firm of Teodoro Perez & Company, of New York, has made some very choice purchases of mild and heavy Vuelta Abajo fillers, about 1040 bales, and as we had the pleasure to taste some of the vegas acquired by him, we are sure that perhaps other houses may have bought as good tobaccos, but better, none.

Sylvester & Stern were buyers of 658 bales of all kinds of leaf for their customers.

Gutierrez & Diehl were sellers of 600 bales, prime Remedios, the balance of their excellent escogida and first capaderas.

The Havana Tobacco Export Company disposed of 500 bales of their holdings of Oriente leaf to local buyers for home consumption.

Don Leslie Pantin is never without orders, even if he should have no customers in town, as he bought 500 bales upon cable orders in this manner during the past fortnight.

A. M. Calzada & Company bought for account of their friend, Mr. Max Rosenblum, of the Edwin Cigar Company, of New York, 459 bales of very desirable leaf.

José M. Muñez was a seller of 350 bales of leaf, Remedios and Partido, to his customers in the last two weeks.

Key West Interests Want Flat Rate of Duty

At a meeting of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of Key West held recently, a paper was drawn up and mailed to the Florida Congressmen and Senators stating the wishes of the Key West cigar manufacturers relative to the proposed changes in the tariff. The Key West cigar men argue for a flat rate of duty on all imported tobacco.

With the present rate of duty, the cigar manufacturers are often at sea when they purchase tobacco from Cuba. The classification of the tobacco by the examiner is often disconcerting to the manufacturer when he wants to work the raw product to advantage. The flat rate of duty will do away with all examiners. Under that system the tobacco would be weighed when withdrawn from bond and the duty would be levied according to the weighers' figures.

Anti-Cigarette Bill for Colorado

A bill recently introduced in the Legislature of Colorado prohibits the sale of cigarettes or cigarette papers within the limits of that state. The penalty for an infraction of the law is a fine or imprisonment, or both. The measure is not expected to become a law. A bill somewhat on the same order was introduced several years ago in that state, but since public sentiment was not in favor of it, it died a slow death.

Late Trade Jottings

Rumor is current that D. E. Decker, an Indiana cigar manufacturer, will erect a cigar factory at Sanford, Florida, this coming fall.

Claude Carter has acquired the interest of Everett Lee in the business of the E. J. & E. cigar store, Rossville, Illinois.

The Imperial Tobacco Company, Nebo, Kentucky, suffered $15,000 loss as the result of fire which recently visited their factory at that place, burning same to the ground.

Alexander R. Thomas is named as the assignee of the tobacco store of T. E. D. Hackney, Columbia, Missouri, stock and fixtures being valued at $3500. The assignment is made for the benefit of the creditors.

E. H. Smith acquired 145 bales of tobacco for his firm of Hinsdale, Smith & Company.

Carlos Arnoldson & Company sold 120 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to their customers during the last two weeks, but we hear they are in treaty upon more vegas.

J. F. Berndes & Company were buyers of 121 bales of leaf.

Mr. H. C. Gresh was a visitor in our market for a few days.

Our friend, Mr. Herman Diehl, was married in Christ Church on the evening of the 17th inst., and will leave today on a honeymoon trip to Germany.

Max Schatz, the representative of the Sol factory, and who has had a very successful business trip in Europe in the interest of the Sol factory, has left London homeward bound on the 16th inst., and is therefore due to arrive on the 23d inst. at New York.

H. H. Strater bought some lots of tobacco for his customers.

José C. Puente has issued a circular, under date of the twenty-seventh of December, 1912, but only distributed last week, admitting as a partner Manuel Vigil, and giving power of attorney to Ismael Iglesias and Luis Valle. The style of the new firm will be henceforth José C. Puente & Company, but remains at the old stand of Principe Alfonso Avenue, Nos. 166-170. The building has been newly painted and the entrance hall and office have been wainscoted upon a modern style.

Shippers above 300 bales of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from February 3 to February 15, inclusive, were: Sylvester & Stern, 1090; Leslie Pantin, 794; Diego Montero, 706; J. F. Berndes & Company, 614; I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 495; Garcia & Company, 481; Bridat & Company, 320, and M. A. Suarez & Company, 312 bales.

May Not Change Tax on Tobacco Products

General Feeling in Washington Is That No Radical Measures Will Be Taken

(Special to the Tobacco World.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 26.

ALTHOUGH the schedules for the revision of the tariff, as proposed by Congress, have not yet been made public, it is the general impression here that nothing radical has been planned pertaining to the rates of duty on tobacco products. The first reading of the measure has already been completed by the Ways and Means Committee.

The personnel of the Committee will undergo a decided change with the incoming of the new administration and this may probably have a pronounced effect on the bill as it will go before the country's legislators.

Chairman Oscar Underwood, of the Ways and Means Committee, has announced that the new Democratic tariff measure will have been prepared when Congress is called in extra session by President-elect Wilson. The committee will probably revise the tariff schedules again between March 10 and April 1.

Resigns from Ruy Lopez Ca.

A recent announcement which has caused much comment in cigar circles has been the resignation of Thomas G. Thompson, vice-president and general manager of the Ruy Lopez Ca., of Key West and New York. Mr. Thompson has been largely instrumental in building up the business of this concern to a high mark, and has been connected with the concern for more than seven years. He has not as yet announced any plans for the future.

The San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Michigan, recently incorporated in Lansing, Michigan, with a capital of $500,000, to manufacture cigars.

Minnesota Dealers Urge License Law

Measure Provides That Dealers Shall Pay $50 Annually for Selling Cigarettes

AN amendment to an anti-cigarette law now before the Legislature of Minnesota has caused much discussion among the retailers of that state. It provides for a $50 annual license for selling cigarettes. Opposition from small dealers on the outskirts of the larger cities is much decried by the larger dealers, who claim that a license such as is proposed would allow the strictly tobacco dealers a more reasonable chance of earning a living and keep it out of the hands of the small confectionery and stationery stands.

H. H. Chapman, a large cigar dealer of St. Paul, Minnesota, has declared to be heartily in favor of the measure. "The trouble with our business," says Mr. Chapman, "is that cigars and cigarettes are sold in shoe-shining parlors, restaurants, small grocery stores and many other places. I would rather see the license made $100 instead of $50. This would confine the business to legitimate channels."

H. W. Johnson, another St. Paul dealer, is advocating the adoption of the amendment. He pointed to the fact that there are twelve hundred dealers in Chicago, paying a license of $100 a year, and that no one hears any complaint from them.

Another dealer asserted that this measure would do away with the selling of cigarettes to children, as no reputable cigar store having any amount of capital invested, sells to minors. The complaints from this source are usually from the small stores.

Louis Nathanson, president of the Minneapolis Tobacco Dealers' Association, says, "It would be a mighty good thing to legalize the sale of cigarettes by a license fee of $50. Law violations then could easily be controlled by revocation of licenses. I believe that such a law would wipe out sales to minors by small dealers."

Address of Nicholas Ehrlich

Bulletin 13, May 20.—It takes time as well as talent to develop such a business as the United Cigar Stores Company is now building up. But the future year should be watched and studied by business and investment interest; for President Whelan may be right in his faith that manufacturing and retailing are to be the basis in the future for the profitable investments in this country.

Bulletin 37, August 1.—We understand the United Cigar Stores Company is selling twenty per cent. more cigarettes than last year. In fact its sales at the present time are at the rate of 1,200,000,000 per annum, of 10,000,000 boxes per month.

Mr. Carl Werner, editor of The Tobacco Leaf, in an address on April 11, 1912, stated: "In only three boroughs of this city there are over thirteen hundred stores which are either exclusively retail cigar and tobacco establishments or in which cigars are the chief articles of merchandise."

I am certain that the majority of these thirteen hundred stores are sentenced by the present system of chain stores, slowly, but surely to go out of business and disappear, since no individual retailer with all his best abilities will hold out very long against the pressure and keen competition of the systematized chain stores.

Mr. C. Fred Crosby, editor of the New York "Tobacco," in an address to New York Retailers on April 25, 1912, stated, "There will be fewer independent cigar dealers in New York, one year, two years or five from tonight. I believe that it will be a case of the survival of the fittest."

The United sells eighty per cent. "trust" goods. The United has not yet the patronage of the most and best smokers. The United cannot get the patronage of the critical and intelligent smoker. Therefore they are organizing subsidiary companies to mislead the intelligent smokers—all conditions are ripe for a great co-operative chain of stores.

Where an individual store has to carry a stock of $5000 worth, a chain store has enough with a $2000 stock. A chain store saves money on advertising, and on buying goods. The division of labor specializes the window dresser, the man behind the counter, the man who takes care of the stock, etc. This is not a dream, it is an existing fact, and there is a great opening for a real independent manufacturers' co-operative chain of cigar stores.

Some manufacturers say: "What do we care for New York trade? We go north, west and south, there we have our Gibraltars; there we sell our productions at a good profit." Gentlemen! If you would look into it with open eyes you would see that you lose the New York market not because you don't care for it, but because you are pushed out of it and it will not take very long before you will be pushed, with your business into the Pacific Ocean. If you will not co-operate and unite you will have to disappear from the market. In 1896 we had 31,000 manufacturers, in 1911 we had left only 10,000. How many will be left in 1915? Every one of you might think that he will be the fittest to survive. Well, the 31,000 of 1896 also had the same idea. Only united effort can safeguard us. We must hang together or we will be hanged separately.

Now a few words about New York. For the New York manufacturer it is always better, surer and cheaper to sell his production in his home town than to send men out in the country to look for trade which it is hardly possible to control. New York is big enough and its trade is worth fighting for.

The United go after New York with all their vigor and might; and let me tell you, they know why. New York is growing every minute. Thirty-eight new houses are built in New York every day. The increase of population is seventeen thousand every month or one hundred and sixty every day. The increase of Brooklyn population is sixty-five thousand every year; the increase of Brooklyn buildings is twenty-five every day. Manhattan Island has 166 persons living on each acre. Brooklyn has only thirty-three and Bronx seventeen, so she has plenty of room yet for the growth of its population. New York has now twenty-six thousand factories which produce annually the amount of two billion dollars worth of goods. This is one-tenth of the goods produced all over the country. New York prints twenty-five per cent. of all the books, journals and magazines used in the country. New York makes fifty per cent. of all the clothes used by the population of America. Seven hundred thousand men and women are working every day in New York factories. That is the reason why the United is spreading so vigorously all over the city. Therefore I advise you to co-operate and build the fortress of your salvation in New York. It is worth while not to lose New York. The difference and mistrust between one manufacturer and another should be left for the outside trade in the South and West. We all ought to unite so as not to lose the New York market. Our enemy is watching every step we make. Their selling agencies, distributing stations report every move we make, forward or backward. They enjoy our individuality in the cigar business. As long as you stay disunited, you will be eaten up one by one. Slowly but surely you will have to go out of the cigar business. You will lose a little here and a little there and when the storm comes and wakes you up, you will be lost, helpless, like Jacob Stahl, Ferdinand May and many others. Now is the time for action.

Unite, organize, at least co-operate in distribution. Make your motto: "One for all and all for one."

San Francisco

February a Quiet Month for Coast—Consolidation of M. A. Gunst & Co., and U. C. M. Co. Expected to Have Far-Reaching Results—Retailers Take to "Egyptian Heroes"

SAN FRANCISCO, February 20.

FEBRUARY has been a rather quiet month as compared with January, both in retail and wholesale circles, though some of the local stands in the hotel district have had quite a rush owing to the large number of commercial travelers in town. The delay in the country trade is attributed to the rather uncertain crop outlook, as the country is again getting very dry, and the trade is not disposed to stock up heavily until more rain falls. The trade has not yet opened up in the lumber and mining districts of this state, though orders from this source should begin to come in during the next month. The north coast is also quiet at present, the leading industries there being curtailed through the winter, and the most favorable reports come from Nevada and Arizona, where large developments are under way both in agriculture and mining. Of course, a plentiful supply of smoking and chewing tobacco will be taken north by the large fleet of Alaska salmon ships leaving this port and Seattle within the next two months.

The consolidation of M. A. Gunst & Company with the United Cigar Manufacturers Company is expected to have important results for the Coast trade, though nothing is yet known as to what changes will be involved by this action. Milton H. Esberg, vice-president of M. A. Gunst & Company, says: "There will be no change in the name of any of the stores operated by M. A. Gunst & Company. The field here, as elsewhere, will be expanded, and the present trade we enjoy on the Pacific Coast will, if anything, be increased. All our local stores will remain just as they are and the future may bring forth bigger business and more development." The growth of business in the United Cigar Manufacturers' brands, such as "General Arthur," "Owl," etc., has been closely connected with the rise of M. A. Gunst & Company, who have held these agencies for many years, and it may be predicted with reasonable safety that the "Henry George," "Tom Moore," "Little Tom," etc., will soon be added to the Gunst lines. The impression prevails about town that the territory covered by the Gunst retail and jobbing organization will be greatly expanded, but this cannot be known at present. M. A. Gunst & Company have not yet launched their advertising campaign, but Mr. Blakely, the new publicity manager here, is about ready to set things in motion. It is understood that the work will involve a number of improvements in the various Gunst stores.

Rumors are going the rounds regarding a number of other impending changes in the local trade, one being that a prominent firm which has hitherto specialized on cigars will take in some new blood and go into the tobacco business on a large scale. The firm in question refuses to give out any statement on the matter, but it is known that some changes are being made. Another rumor of more indefinite form is that one of the local chain-store firms of considerable importance has been absorbed by a similar company now operating in the East, with the object of developing a national business.

W. I. Pixley, who recently took up the "Egyptian Heroes" and "Fifth Avenue" cigarettes, made by I. B. Krinsky Company, of Brooklyn, reports steady progress with his introductory campaign. He now has quite a complete line of cigarettes, the demand for moderate-priced goods being filled by the above lines, while the "Pera" is featured as a high-priced line. The strongest seller has so far been the "Egyptian Heroes," retailing at ten cents. These goods, Mr. Pixley says, have been cautiously tried out by the local retailers, and received strong indorsement for quality. He says, however, that the introduction of a new line of cigarettes is a hard game, owing to the gratis deals in cigarettes constantly being pulled off by a number of large wholesalers here. The cigarette business is not interfering with Mr. Pixley's regular work on Dill's tobacco, which is going better than ever. Last year Mr. Pixley put in his time at specialty work in the small towns of the Coast, visiting about every town on the map, but will this year confine himself to the cities. He expects to make a trip to Los Angeles in the near future.

C. E. Whalen, of East Orange, New Jersey, president of the United Cigar Stores Company, who has been spending the winter in Southern California, is now making a tour of inspection of the Coast organization, and called at this city a few days ago.

Since the recent visit of Vice-President Stachelberg, of the Sanchez & Haya Company, it is fairly assured that this line, for many years one of the most popular clear Havanas on the Coast, will soon be brought back to its old standing. Tillman & Bendel, the well-known agents for the Sanchez & Haya, are said to have placed an order with Mr. Stachelberg for two million cigars, which is sufficient indication of their intention to give the line their heartiest support.

When the city council of Palo Alto, California, recently passed an ordinance intended to regulate the use of tobacco by minors, the words "Or use" were inadvertently omitted, and the dealers of that town are making strong objections, as under the provision as passed minors can get tobacco in neighboring towns and smoke at will on the streets of Palo Alto.

A. Determann, of the Manila Commercial Company, who has been looking after Manila cigar interests in Europe and the East, has been in the city for about two weeks past, but will leave shortly for the Northwest, accompanying I. Danziger, his Coast representative, as far on his trip as Salt Lake City, whence Mr. Determann will proceed East, while Mr. Danziger will return via Nevada. Mr. Determann has great confidence in the future of the better grades of Manila goods, which he says are now being recognized and called for by brand in this country, indicating that consumers are gaining the same familiarity with Manilas as with other lines.

Geo. Kraus, representing the lines of the Jose Lovera Company, and E. M. Schwartz & Company, has been in the city for several days visiting the Coast representative, Major F. S. Burrows.

E. M. Elam, representing the P. Lorillard Company, has just returned from a trip South, and will leave shortly on a visit to the Hawaiian Islands.

I. Dahlman, traveling for Wm. Demuth & Company, the pipe house, has returned from a trip South.

Recent Incorporations and Changes in the Tobacco Trade

Gust G. Contos, of Chicago. To do a general cigar and confectionery business. Incorporators: Gust G. Contos, James G. Contos and Soter G. Contos.

The Sanitary Salesman Company, of Birmingham, Alabama. To manufacture a device for the distribution and sale of cigars and chewing gum. Incorporators: G. W. Lindsay, H. M. Jones and M. K. Moore.

Putnam Cigar Company, of Ottowa, Ohio. To manufacture and deal in cigars. Capital stock of $5000. Incorporators: John A., Laura M., and August M. Unverferth, Earl E. Kuhn and Guy M. Cartwright.

Co-operative Cigar Dealers' Association, of New York City. To deal in cigars and tobacco. Capital, $20,000. Incorporators: Jacob Fox, Joseph Shoenbrod and Charles Cyrus Bullock.

Myers-Cox Company, of Dubuque, Iowa. To manufacture tobacco. Capital stock of $150,000. Incorporators: D. D. Myers, Walter G. Cox and George W. Myers.

The East Hartford Tobacco Storage Corporation, of Hartford, Connecticut, has filed a certificate of increase in capital stock from $10,000 to $21,000.

Sheldon-Trimble Corporation, of Manhattan. To sell cigars and all forms of tobacco. Capital, $25,000. Incorporators: John E. Sheldon, John J. Trimble and Thomas Hyland, of New York City.

Central Cigar Company, of Detroit. Increase of capital from $3000 to $25,000.

A preliminary certificate of dissolution has been filed at Hartford, Connecticut, for the Hartford County Tobacco Growers' Protective Association.

Late Trade Items

It is the intention of the American Cigar Company, now occupying three floors of the building located 9 and 11 Green Street, Albany, New York, to move to new and larger quarters about August 1 next, at which time it is expected that the four-story and basement building now being erected at Arch Street and Trinity Place, that city, will be completed.

Daley & Abbott recently opened an up-to-date cigar store at 24 Central Street, Bangor, Maine.

George J. Kuhn, the cigar merchant, New Brunswick, New Jersey, will be one of the occupants of the new building now being erected next to the Bijou Theatre, that place. It is hoped to have the structure completed May 1.

Local Cigar Industry May Be Represented at Panama-Pacific Exposition---Central Cigar Company Takes Over Charles Coombs Store, Mr. Coombs Becoming President---United Takes Long Lease On Location

DETROIT, MICH., February 24.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Panama-Pacific Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915 has been spending several weeks in Detroit endeavoring to interest the large manufacturing companies to make exhibits. While he has not closed any deals as yet, it is reported that several of the large cigar firms are favorably inclined towards his proposition and that it is very likely they will sign in the near future.

When you ask a cigar manufacturer "how's business" he just looks at you and smiles or grins as he would at an old vaudeville joke; in other words, its getting to be a chestnut to have to answer back "we are still behind in our orders." Feminine labor is very scarce; manufacturers are making every inducement they can, such as sanitary workrooms, rest parlors, light lunches, reading rooms, etc., but the increase in the number of girls doesn't begin to compare with the actual number needed.

Mrs. Frances Swart, wife of James H. Swart, one of the former proprietors of the Hotel Cadillac, died suddenly in her apartments in the hotel ten days ago from an acute attack of uraemic poisoning.

The No. 2 store of the Central Cigar Company at 8 Monroe Avenue is now open for business, and when you say "there's some class of it" you are expressing yourself in a nutshell, because it is one of the prettiest places in Detroit, considering its small floor space; the only fault is that the entrance door is a trifle small, but this has been remedied by shortening the end of the outside window, making it slant instead of straight. The fixtures are opal onyx humigars of the very latest design; the cuspidor stands are of marble, as is the base of the cigar lighter, and the chandeliers are of the indirect lighting type. Mart Winnie, of Traverse City, Michigan, is in charge, and is assisted by George Woodwin and Wilbur Goldman.

A third store has been added to the Central Cigar Company—that of Charles Coombs at 295 Woodward Avenue—which is an excellent stand, having been established for many years. Mr. Coombs turns over his lease and stock to the new company and becomes actively interested in the same; he has been president, with a block of stock, and will act as general manager for all the stores and will do all the buying and hire all the help. Herbert Weil is secretary and treasurer of the company, which recently increased its capitalization from $3000 to $25,000. A full line of cigars made by E. Regensberg & Son has been put in at the Monroe Avenue branch, as well as the "Partagas" in the leading sizes. Mr. Coombs is now preparing to open a No. 4 store for the company, same to be located at the corner of Woodward and Erskine Streets, which part of town is fast coming to the front for business places.

L. H. Stradley, formerly with the Harry W. Watson Company as general manager, is now in business for himself with offices in the Majestic Building; he recently took into partnership Theodore Becker, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, who has traveled for several of the larger cigar firms.

Frank Lopez, of the Garcia & Vega Company, has been in Detroit for two weeks working among the trade and has done a remarkable business putting in the line in over a hundred stands. Payette-Walsh Company are the local jobbers. Mr. Lopez finished here on the twenty-fourth and will do some missionary work in Canada for a few weeks.

Claude Howell, the popular jobber, is putting out a private brand under the name of "Howl" and is being strongly featured this week by the Robinson cigar store on West Grand River Avenue.

George H. Woolley, manager of the Hotel Ponchartrain, left a week ago for Los Angeles; he will visit all the principal cities on the Pacific Coast, making it entirely a health trip. He expects to be away from six to eight weeks.

"They have promised to give me the store by March 15," said Mel Soper, referring to his store in the Dime Bank Building. "If they keep their word, it will only take me about ten days to get my fixtures in and have the decorating done, which would let me open easily by the first of April."

Edward Lichtig, of the Philip Morris Company, has returned from a two weeks' trip through Indiana and Ohio.

The recent announcement that C. H. Clement would erect a new modern hotel at the corner of Lafayette and Wayne Streets is not to be a reality; the option held by Mr. Clement on the property expired the other day, and Mr. Clement has dropped the matter as he found it too difficult to raise the necessary cash. It is also very questionable whether the Hotel Hannan, announced to be erected on Bagley and Washington Avenues, will be put up. The only sure new hotel is that of the Hotel Washington, which David Stott, millionaire capitalist, says will positively be started within six months; it is to be at the corner of Michigan and Wayne Streets, and will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000.

Paul Saks, Canadian representative of the Philip Morris Company, who has been working in Windsor, Ontario, for the past few days, came over to Detroit for a few hours to have a chat with Edward Lichtig, the Michigan representative.

Hi Hammer, of the Corral-Wodiska Company, which makes the "Julia Marlow" and "Lucius" cigars, was a late visitor to Detroit. Like his brother, Mort, he is well-liked among the local trade and is always sure to receive the sincere glad hand.

Max Maier, of A. Blumlein & Company, has decided to make his permanent residence in Detroit and to this end has already secured for himself a beautiful home in the North Woodward district. He expects to move here with his family early in March.

The United Cigar Stores have taken a long lease on the four-story building at the corner of the Campus Martius and Monroe Avenue, and will occupy it with a cigar store starting with the first of next January, at which time the building will be remodelled to suit their particular wants; the rest of the building will be rented. It is the ultimate purpose of the company to erect a new eight-story building on the site, which is probably one of the most valuable in Detroit. The annual rental is said to be $30,000, rising to a maximum about $10,000 higher.

Damage to the extent of $2000 was caused to the cigar box factory of T. A. Wadsworth at 363 Monroe Avenue from fire which started at the rear of the building.

Owen McMahon, of the Royal Cigar Company, who makes his permanent residence in Petoskey, Michigan, is spending the winter in Florida and Cuba accompanied by his wife.

For the purpose of making improvements and opening up additional stores, the Detroit Drug Company has increased its capitalization from $25,000 to $50,000. A feature of the various stores operated by this firm is the cigar departments, which always receive special consideration.

Herbert Steffens has opened a first-class cigar store at Manistee, Michigan, on First Street.

T. P. Garritt, formerly with the P. Lorillard Company, has been engaged to assist Gordon Bailey in Michigan with the Surbrug products, and will give his attention to Michigan and Northern Ohio.

G. J. Johnson, who operates a cigar store at 193 Monroe Avenue, Grand Rapids, Michigan, says he has four years more on his lease, and that if the owners of the proposed new Pantlind Hotel want him to move sooner they will have to "come across." This they refuse to do, as the price asked is too high, so they intend to go ahead with their building, and if necessary will build right over the part used by Mr. Johnson, and then complete the job when he gets out.

Recent visitors: Steve Herz (Henry the Fourth), Mr. Walker (S. S. Pierce Company), Joe Roser (Flint Cigar Company), Art Catharin (Catharin Cigar Company), Thomas F. Gray (Garcia Pando Company), Jack Planco (El Planco), Doc Easton (Falk Tobacco Company), Harry Nathan (Spingarn & Company), and S. L. Friend (Friend & Company).

William F. Reipschlager has opened a cigar factory at 508 South Webster Avenue, Jacksonville, Illinois, "The Speaker" being the title of the cigar to be featured.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company recently awarded the contract for the erection of a modern concrete building, to be located on Church, Fourth and Chestnut Streets, Winston-Salem, North Carolina. The new building, which will be ninety feet wide, 270 feet long and five stories in height, is to cost over $100,000, and is to be used as a storage building for fine tobacco that is to be used in the manufacture of cigarettes.

Four High-Speed, Live-Wires of the Northwest

THE likenesses shown here are the four men who direct the cigar department of the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, the Northwest wholesale house. The Stone-Ordean-Wells Company has been in existence for about thirty-five years. It now has branch houses at Fargo, Grand Forks and Minot, North Dakota; Billings, Bozeman, Great Falls and Missoula, Montana; and cigar branches at Helena, Montana, and Minneapolis, Minnesota. The concern is known as the largest wholesale grocery house in the West and within the past few years has been doing good work in the cigar line. The Minneapolis branch was opened two years ago and is now one of the big factors of the cigar business in the Twin Cities.

Harry A. Earnshaw, who took charge of the cigar department the first of the year, succeeded W. T. Mishler, who severed his connection with Stone-Ordean-Wells in order to enter business for himself. Mr. Earnshaw was with the firm for five years as traffic manager, in addition to publishing the concern's breezy house organ, "Ginger."

In a statement recently, Mr. Earnshaw said that the feature of the 1912 business had been the extraordinary increases in their five-cent trade, not due, he thought, to more nickel cigars being smoked, but indicating that the aggressive policy of the salesmen has caused the increases. The big brand of the house is the "El-Roi-Tan" of Seidenberg & Company.

According to the new selling system of the firm, the field covered by the representatives is divided into three sections—each in charge of a man with salesmen under his direction. Dave H. Cargill will be stationed in Duluth, covering the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan; Flint B. Aniba, stationed at Helena, Montana, covering Montana, Idaho and Wyoming; and William A. Shea, who will cover North Dakota, with headquarters at Fargo.

Cincinnati

Cigarette Wrecking Crews in Town Popularizing "Satins", "Fatimas" and "Hassans"—Shortage of Cigarmakers Receives Attention—Peebles Take on "La Insurgent"

CINCINNATI, February 25.

WALTER L. FORNO, who was with Albert Bejach for the past two years, will sever his connection the middle of next month. He is going to San Francisco to take a position with his father, who is in the hotel business.

G. Arial, of A. Santaella & Company, the "Optimo" people, was busy with his order book among the local trade this week.

The "Satin," the "Fatima" and the "Hassan" wrecking crew have been in much evidence during the past couple of weeks. All of the offices in the down-town sections have been visited and a trail of cigarette smoke has followed. The giving away of this brand of smoke to office boys came to the notice of the local suffragette contingent, and at a meeting of the dear ladies held Tuesday severe denunciation was given to the practice. Even threats of prosecution were made and a motion to bring the matter to the notice of the chief of police was passed.

The possibility of a shortage in cigar help was given quite a write-up in one of the local daily papers this week, with a review of what means had been taken to counteract such a stringency. The conclusion of the writer of the article was that the manufacturers were no nearer the solution than they were years ago.

H. C. Culbreath, representing the V. Guerra Diaz & Company, Tampa, Florida, manufacturers of "La Mega," was among the visitors of last week. George Jacobs, the smiling salesman of Cobas, Mendez & Company, New York City, also made a bid for local business with his lines of imported goods. Leo Schoeneman, representing Celestino Vega & Company, ably assisted by M. O. Schoeneman, his good wife, made a call on the Cincinnati trade for orders during the week.

Peebles have added to their cigar department "La Insurgent," a brand gotten out by Hernsheim & Company, of New Orleans.

S. Levy, of the American-West Indies Sales Company, was in town last week looking after trade.

Mike Ibold, the local manufacturer, was one of the party of Cincinnatians who took in a commercial expansion trip to Panama and the West Indies which started last week. He will visit Cuba while en route and will place his spring buying orders.

W. B. McBurnet, of the Logan Tobacco Company, New York, was among those of the commercial tourists who placed orders last week.

Lee Heine's "El Classo" is having a good run and the brand, though placed on the shelves only a week or so, has already become a favorite.

S. Hirschberg, of L. Newburger & Brother, spent a week out of town on business.

Western Association Endorses Anti-Coupon Bill

The Western retail cigar dealers, through the Western association, is at present putting every effort forward in having the state anti-coupon bill passed by the Washington legislature. The measure, which is now in the hands of the legislators, puts a license of $6000 on cigar stores using coupons, virtually taxing them out of existence. The proposed bill has the backing of the Western Association of Retail Cigar Dealers, with headquarters in Seattle.

Sol Coleman, Memphis Dealer, Passes Away

Sol Coleman, one of the best-known cigar merchants of the South, died in Memphis, Tennessee, recently. Mr. Coleman had a wide experience in the trade, having formerly been a salesman, and in later years head of a retail and wholesale cigar house in Memphis. He was born in Liverpool sixty-one years ago and came to this country when but three years of age. He was vice-president of the Business Men's Club of Memphis, a thirty-third degree Mason, and active in many civic improvement affairs.

Strike in Porto Rican Factories Settled

A strike of the cigarmakers in the Bayamon factory of the Porto Rican American Tobacco Company, which had been threatened for some time, and was called about ten days ago, was quickly settled. The cigarmakers in another factory of the company struck in sympathy with the movement. The strikers had demanded the reinstatement of all discharged cigarmakers, better stock from which to make goods, and a committee of the workers to act upon the quality of workmanship in the goods turned out.

Another Snyder Store in Buffalo

The twenty-third cigar store of Joseph T. Snyder, proprietor of a chain of stands throughout the East, was opened in Buffalo on February 15. It is located at Chippewa and Franklin Streets. Mr. Snyder also opened his new warehouse and offices for his various stands in Buffalo recently. The warehouse which is located at Washington and South Division Streets is used as a cigar vault, from which the stock is transferred to the branch cigar stands in other cities. Tobacco and cigarette humidors were also installed.

Addition to Germinal Factory Almost Completed

Benito Legarda, head of the Germinal factory in Manila, who sailed for Europe recently, on his way home to the Philippines, announced that a new annex to the factory will shortly be completed. The annex is 105 feet by 1200 feet, four stories in heighth, and is constructed of concrete. The plans for the building, according to Mr. Legarda, call for one of the best lighted, ventilated and sanitary factories in the world.

Minneapolis Dealers Hear Trade Papers Praised

At the first annual banquet of the Cigar Dealers' Association of Minneapolis, held several weeks ago, President Louis Nathanson presided. Speaking on behalf of the retailer, R. E. Braden delivered a very interesting address and called upon his fellow members to war against price-cutting.

Responding to the toast, "The Jobbers," W. H. Burd made some very interesting remarks affecting conditions in that branch of trade. Other speeches were made by W. S. Gilkerson, Ed. Walters and C. S. Bertram, the latter speaking on "Advertising," emphasizing the value of trade paper advertising in assisting the cigar manufacturer attain national markets.

Rosenfeld-Rovig Co., New Jobbing Concern—C. E. Smith Entertains Cigar Dealers and Their Wives—Retail Dealers' Association Plans for Ball

SEATTLE, WASH., February 17.

A NEW jobbing firm has been organized in this city which will do business as the Rosenfeld-Rovig Company. C. H. Rovig, the new member of the concern, has for many years been manager of the tobacco department for the National Grocery Company. He is very popular among the tobacco trade and has many friends, which should be a big asset with him, as Rosenfeld-Rovig Company handle a big line of tobaccos and the following cigars: "La Sinceridad," Gonzales, Fisher & Company; "The American," E. Regensburg & Sons; "La Natividad," "Dry Climate," "La Anthena," "Fifers Union," "Charles Denby," "El Toros," "Fritz Brothers Imperials," "San Telmo Records" and "Washington Cabinets."

C. E. Smith, of the firm of Battersbury & Smith, entertained a number of cigar dealers and their wives at his home February 6. Everybody reported having had a most enjoyable time.

C. A. Senker, the busy Bellingham cigar dealer, spent a few days in Seattle.

The Seattle Retail Cigar Dealers' Association is arranging for a big dance for Easter. This is their first attempt and undoubtedly will be a big success.

E. H. Gerlach (McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company) has been in Eastern Washington in the interest of his various brands. He reports a big sale on "Union Scout Plug" and "Scrap," also on "Sweet Loma Fine Cut," a new brand he is introducing.

Nearly every window in Seattle and Tacoma has a display on cigarettes. "Fatimas" and "Imperials" are the brands being displayed.

"Royal," the new granulated tobacco, is taking a good hold in this market. The Retail Dealers' Association are all boosting it.

Geo. H. Leghorne, president of the Morgan Cigar Company, returned recently from a trip East to Chicago, New Orleans and back by way of Tampa, where their factory is located. Mr. Leghorne was accompanied by his wife.

Interesting Trade Notes

Fire recently destroyed the cigar factory of Edward Marquardt, at Elkhorn, Wisconsin.

A meeting of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association was held in that city on February 14. Dan Carter, the president, was in the chair. The outlook for increased membership is reported to be very good, as well as the prospects for carrying out plans for better buying methods.

Considerable loss was sustained in a fire which gutted the store of the United Cigar Stores Company, at Market and Grace Streets, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, recently. Almost the entire stock was a loss, those cigars not being actually consumed by the fire, being damaged badly by water.

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Cigar Industry Holds Up Well in York

YORK, February 22.

THE cigar industry, while having none of the holiday snap, is far above the average for this time of year. The smaller factories out of town, as well as the larger establishments in this city, are running in most cases on full time. This is most encouraging and should mean a big year for the Ninth District. The salesmen for the cigar firms that are now on the road are doing well considering the time of year.

There is little doing in leaf tobacco circles. The York County growers are awakening to the benefits to be derived from having growers' associations and want to form such a body, which they feel sure will be of benefit to all concerned. Since the Lancaster County farmers have one and praise it as helping them, the York growers need not hesitate about following along that line.

H. W. Heffener & Son are doing a nice cigar box business considering the time of the year. Trade kept up remarkably well after the holidays for some time.

In one of the biggest fires that Columbia has known for some time the Booth Tobacco Company lost several thousand dollars. The building in which they are located is known as the Opera House, and is a large one. The firm was confined to the basement, which was occupied by the tobacco concern.

Charles S. Plitt, of the C. H. Plitt Cigar Company, is home again after a week's trip to Philadelphia, Baltimore and other Eastern cities. He opened several desirable accounts for the "Liar" and "Twentieth Century" cigars. The Plitt factory is working with a full force of hands at present, with prospects satisfactory for the spring trade.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a barn of John Siple, in Druck Valley, recently. There was quite an amount of tobacco in the barn, which was a complete loss.

Late reports from Dover state that the cigar industry is in a flourishing state in that town.

Several departments of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers' cigar factory were operated for some time at night. A number of the cigarmakers, strippers and other employes worked every evening until nine o'clock. The whole plant has been working to its full capacity for several months.

The Yoe cigar factories are also working to their limit. One of the concerns a short time ago was oversold 100,000, but has again caught up.

There has been a persistent rumor for some time that one of the larger York cigar manufacturers had made arrangements for selling his factory. This was denied some time ago, but a reliable source states that there was more to the rumor than most people understood, and that an announcement may be made soon.

Fire last Tuesday did considerable damage to the warehouse of Charles Pollock, of New York City, located on Perry Avenue, between Duke and Queen Streets. A large lot of tobacco was stored in the building. It is not known exactly what the damage will amount to.

Franklin Knisely, a cigarmaker of Red Lion, becoming suddenly deranged last Monday, took his life. He shot himself through the head and died soon after. It was believed that his mind was deranged from excessive drinking.

Many Lancaster Growers Still Have Tobacco

LANCASTER, February 24.

THE tobacco growers are now wondering how they will get rid of their crops. Although sales are going on at a fair rate, there is still a good proportion of the new crop left in the hands of the farmers. It has been estimated that a conservative estimate of the balance of the crop unsold is around twenty per cent.

The old tobacco is selling fairly well, but not in the way the leaf dealers would like to see it go. They state that they are conjecturing as to where the cigar manufacturers are securing the tobacco for their goods, for little is selling in this market compared to the cigar output.

The new crop is sweating nicely and from all indications will be all that can be desired. The packers seem satisfied with their selections and say that there was little friction between the farmers and buyers regarding the prices to be paid when the tobacco was delivered at the warehouses.

It cannot be said with any degree of certainty just what the acreage will be for the following year. But a safe estimate would put it about the same as last year—16,000 acres.

The new year so far gives every indication of being a good one for the cigar manufacturers. While the trade does not have the holiday snap, it is encouraging. The larger factories state that they could use more hands and the smaller ones have no complaint to make.

E. L. Nissly & Sons have been receiving tobacco heavily at their Lancaster warehouse, wagons in several instances being lined up most of the day waiting to be relieved of their loads.

The S. R. Moss Cigar Company is making very satisfactory progress on their brands, the "Flor de Moss" particularly showing good results. This cigar is being pushed hard on the Pacific Coast, where Herman Moss has charge of its interests.

John F. Heiland & Company have been appointed the Eastern representatives for the Griffin Neuberger Tobacco Company, of North Bloomfield, Connecticut, a big grower of Connecticut tobacco, with the main offices in New York City.

The Seven Valleys Cigar Manufacturing Company is using the cigar factory of E. A. Bubb at that place until their new plant is finished.

Heavy Sales of Revenue Stamps in Reading

READING, February 22.

JUDGING by the sale of stamps at the local revenue office, the cigar manufacturers are not slackening up very much in the matter of output. The past month was unusually good for this season of the year. The First Pennsylvania District, of which Reading is a part, broke all records in cigar production in January, and it is a safe bet the local factories helped materially to make this record. Philadelphia and Norristown are also in this district.

A number of the local factories have made arrangements for opening factories outside of town. As far as can be learned, none of these plants have as yet been put in operation.

J. H. Cooper has succeeded his father, H. W. Cooper, in the manufacture of cigars in Stouchsburg. He filed a $500 bond.

The retail line of the trade is dull, as is customary at this period of the year. There has been an improvement generally with the leaf houses.

A bond of $500 was filed recently at the revenue office for a new cigar manufacturing firm in Womelsdorf, to do business as Rabold & Leininger.

A visit to the establishment of Yocum Brothers finds conditions there about the same. This concern has been oversold for some time and is now trying to increase their facilities. Owing to the scarcity of hands in this city, they contemplate opening a factory in a nearby town.

A. Hirleman, a cigar manufacturer doing business at 317 Penn Street, has been succeeded by C. L. Zerbe. A bond of $500 was filed.

A trip to the cigar factory of Charles Yetter finds Mr. Yetter most optimistic as to his prospects for the following year. He reported that 1912 had been good to him.

Lehr Assets to Approximate $30,000

Nearly $30,000 is said to have been obtained as the result of the sale of the properties owned by George W. Lehr, the Reading, Pennsylvania, cigar manufacturer, who recently went into bankruptcy. Included in the sale were the four-story brick store and apartment building at 912 Penn Street, the four-story brick factory building with basement, in the rear and extending back to an alley, the three-story brick residence with lot 20 by 100 feet, in which Mr. Lehr resides at 1148 Perkiomen Avenue, the vacant lot adjoining it, and the cigar factory building in the rear of them.

Newsy Trade Jottings

The cigar business of the Max Baumann Cigar Company, at Manistee, Michigan, has been acquired by T. A. Kenney.

The El Pavo Cigar Company has been incorporated in Chicago, to do a general cigar and tobacco business. The incorporators are Emanuel Weinberger, Nathan R. Cerf and Edwin Weinberger.

A recent death in the trade was that of A. M. Slaughter, a prominent tobacco dealer, of Owenton, Kentucky. Mr. Slaughter was formerly a member of the State Board of the Burley Tobacco Society.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Cigar Industry Brightens New York Market---Philadelphia Dealers Doing Fairly Well---Connecticut and Wisconsin Growers Unloading Heavily at Warehouses

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, February 20.

THE promising condition of the cigar industry has had a very good affect on the leaf tobacco trade. Although sales are not large in volume, there seems to be a demand for pretty near all kinds of stock. The new tobaccos are meeting with favor in most cases.

The Connecticut and Georgia and Florida shade grown and primed tobacco is selling well. They are coming up to expectations in most every case, and are said to be desirable in every way.

A number of the Sumatra buyers are already on their way to the inscriptions. The first one will be on the seventh of next month. The manufacturers are now playing a waiting game, and sales in this leaf are likely to be slight until a line can be secured on the new Dutch leaf. The factories are only buying for immediate needs on Sumatra at present.

Although some samples of the new Havana crop are on hand, they can not be taken as an example of what the crop will be. It is generally agreed that unless something extraordinary turns up it will be all it was cracked up to be.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, February 24.

THE leaf market remains about the same. Dealers report sales of small lots at regular intervals, and although no one appears to be rushed, a general feeling of optimism prevails. The healthy condition of the cigar factories has had an enlivening effect on the trade and it is now far better than a month ago.

Interest has been centered to an extent on the situation in Lancaster County and also in Wisconsin, where a number of the local houses have warehouses. In Lancaster there is quite an amount of the new crop still on hand, which the growers are trying to get rid of before their spring work begins. The Wisconsin field is pretty well cleaned up, and reports from that section are satisfactory.

The feature in the Lancaster tobacco market the past week was the efforts made by belated growers to get their holdings off their hands in order to be relieved of its care before spring work on the farm opens. Instead of the packers going after the growers with offers to buy, the growers are now seeking the packers and offering to sell. Most of the week's sales were at eight and nine cents a pound for wrapper goods and three cents for fillers, while plenty of hail-cut tobacco was offered at three and one-half to five cents a pound, according to the extent of the damage done by hail.

Estimates of the quantity of tobacco still remaining in the growers' hands range from fifteen to twenty per cent. of the crop, and it is freely predicted that before it is disposed of the price will drop below eight cents a pound. Lancaster packers are doing little business now with Pennsylvania broadleaf, most of their trading being done with Ohio, Wisconsin and Connecticut goods, the only tobacco there is any profit in at present.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, February 20.

EVERY day now loads of tobacco can be seen going towards the warehouses. This looks as though some of the buyers, at least, have made adjustments with the growers. The buyers claim that they have not docked a grower unless there was good and sufficient reason for it and the fact that the growers have been willing to adjust gives color to the claim. All trouble would have been avoided if the buyers had not been so eager to secure the crop and purchased four-fifths of it in the field before it had attained its growth.

WAREHOUSE POINT.

The growers in the town are still delivering their tobacco and it is said that in several cases the buyers have cut from two to three cents off the price agreed on for the tobacco when it was bought last fall. Some of the growers object to this cut and do not deliver their crops, but sell to another packer. It is hoped that the experience of both the growers and packers will do away with the system of buying the crops in the field, which can never be satisfactory. Neither the grower nor the buyer can know the real value of the crop until it is cured and stripped from the stalk and there will always be differences to adjust. It is reported that the primed tobacco was up to the quality of the other years crop. According to the government reports, however, the Connecticut growers received a higher average price than in any other year since 1908. These figures were based on the prices contracted for in the field and not after any adjustments were made. Considering the season the growers did very well and it is expected that the acreage of the weed will be increased rather than decreased in the coming year and many of the farmers are planning on increased shed room.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, February 21.

AN almost continuous stream of tobacco teams is coming daily at the receiving points as the crop is being transferred from the farms to the warehouses. Fine weather and good roads that have prevailed most of the time this winter have facilitated the work of delivery greatly. It begins to look now as if the crop would be in the hands of the warehousemen at a much earlier date than usual for the receiving has gone forward more expeditiously than most other years. Buying of rejections as well as the unsold fraction of the crop is all the time being conducted, but generally at prices somewhat reduced from earlier quotations. Among recent sales are: Fred Green, 5a at 10c; O. M. Turner, 5a at 10&4c; John Hyland, 5a at 8¼&4c.; Alfred Bratlie, 4a at 9&3c; N. C. Nelson, 12a at 7c.

The work of preparing the crop for the cases in the warehouses is progressing quite satisfactorily as the help is well organized and everything working smoothly.

There continues a steady demand for all leaf that meets the demands of the binder trade, but local markets are becoming well cleaned of such goods. The Johnson packing of '11 at Morrisonville of 294 cases has been sold to A. S. Flagg. O. C. Moen also sold a 210 case lot of '11 to Weil & Company.

VIROQUA.

These may, with propriety, be termed "tobacco days." There is a hustling in country districts among buyers. Unsold, rejected and withdrawn crops are being gathered in. The highways are lined with wagons and sleighs making deliveries. Saturday and Monday were among the big days in Viroqua. We should judge that fully one-half of the tobacco acreage of Vernon County has been delivered.

One of the really best returns from two acres of ground we have heard of this season is reported by John Williams, who lives south of Viroqua. He received $561.15, selling at fifteen and three-fourth and five cents. The ground on which this was grown has been cropped continuously with tobacco for sixteen years. N. E. Fortney, for Eisenlohr Brothers, received the crop.—Reporter.

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON, February 19.

TOBACCO at this point last week continued very active, that is the new crop did. With the old stock there was little doing, the buyers having about all they could attend to in keeping up with the trading in loose offerings of the 1912 production.

There is much speculation as to what per cent. of this crop has been sold and delivered to date, and those who have made a study of the matter and inquired into the facts disagree. Based on the claims of farmers and the speculators, it would seem conservative to say eighty-five per cent. of the crop has been delivered, and if this be true we shall not sell more than 35,000,000—and the highest estimate we have heard on the percentage basis is eighty per cent., which would give us 37,500,000. While the lowest estimate of the crop remaining unsold is ninety per cent. delivered, which would give up little to sell, and a stopping place of about 33,000,000. There are a few who are willing to wager we will sell 40,000,000, on even money, but candidly we do not hold to this extreme view. In our opinion we may reach 35,000,000, and if we go beyond this it must come from some quarter other than the vicinity of Lexington.

Already we have been selling a great deal of stuff shipped in here from border counties, including Boone, Kenton, Pendleton, Grant and the mountain counties, also some shipped in here from Missouri in hogsheads, and taken out and sold loose, and while these car load shipments some weeks ago were blocked in the yards, and forced to take their turn, they are cleared up now, and we hear of little prospective shipments of this class.

VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, February 18.

THE first real cold snap of the season came in good time to cut off the heretofore heavy receipts of loose leaf tobacco, and the buyers of the same, as well as the warehousemen, were glad of it. The manufacturers and the other buyers of sun-cured and other dark tobaccos had their leaf houses crowded to suffocation, and they wanted a little time for "ordering" and bulking their heavy purchase of several weeks past so that they might make room for more leaf, and the warehousemen wanted a little chance to clean up floors and a chance also to assure their farmer friends of a firm and steady market. They well knew the latter was impossible if the growers continued to flood the market with stock when the manufacturers and dealers had nowhere to store the stuff. Therefore, all the tobacco people rejoiced that the past week was that cold and that crisp that the too eager farmers could not handle their leaf for marketing purposes.

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

The grand jury of Henderson County, Kentucky, recently returned an indictment against the Imperial Tobacco Company, of Kentucky, and the Imperial Tobacco Company, of Great Britain, accusing them of combining to depress the price of leaf and strip tobacco in that county at the price below the real value. The indictment charges that the defendants have "become parties to an alleged conspiracy with other firms in order to fix a price on tobacco below its real value." A number of bankers, independent tobacco dealers, railroad agents and several officers of the Stemming District Association are named as witnesses. The fine, in case of conviction, is from $500 to $5000, and the firm found guilty also automatically forfeits its charter as an incorporated company to do business in the state of Kentucky.

According to a recent consular report from the Province of Leece, in Italy, the efforts which have been put forth to sell the tobacco produced in that district in foreign markets have proved a total failure, and caused considerable loss to the tobacco growers. They have consequently turned to the Italian monopoly, and as the leaves produced are said to be of a light, aromatic color and of good quality, they should not lose by the venture. The output of the growers in that district in 1912 was 1,465 metric tons, which was valued at $330,000, of which 1450 tons was consumed in Italy, and only six tons, valued at $1358, exported to foreign countries.

Bad feeling has been caused in Kentucky by the differences the tobacco growers have had with the buyers of their crops. Reports of night riding have been heard, although no outrages are heard of. One member of the Stemming District Association of the state, with his residence in Morganfield, was warned to resign from the Union County board of the body, and a bundle of switches laid on his doorstep. He has been one of the conservatives on the board, advocating the upholding of the law.

Late reports from Henderson, Kentucky, state that the Stemming District Tobacco Association has voted in favor of selling 9,000,000 pounds of pooled tobacco. It is said that an error was first made when the vote was taken, and that after going over the figures carefully it was found that the balloting was thirty-one against the sale of one-third of the crop and thirty-three in favor of the sale. This will mean that 9,000,000 pounds of tobacco will be sold at seven and six and one-half cents. Many farmers say they will not sell their crops at the above price, insisting that eight cents should be paid.

The cultivation of tobacco has attained considerable importance in Canada, but prices are not always remunerative for the planters, because they do not deliver a well-cured product. With the object of improving this culture and the preparation of the tobacco, the Canadian Department of Agriculture has organized an agricultural co-operative association in the county of Rouville, with a capital of $34,800. It is administered by an expert, who has a salary of $3000. The warehouse of the association has received this year 550,000 pounds of tobacco. It has been carefully cured, and a considerable part of it has been sold at much higher prices than those obtained by the members of the society before its organization.

The present tobacco crop now being gathered in Cuba is pronounced to be one of the best in quality seen for several years, says Consul-General James L. Rodgers, of Havana. It is said to be of good development in most districts, of fine burning characteristics and of light texture, as well as good aroma. In the Province of Pinar del Rio, where the great majority of the good filler tobacco is grown, the weather has on the whole been favorable, with the result that a good grade of staple filler will be produced and in ample quantity. However, in this district it is stated that the percentage of wrapper tobacco will be low, and that causes the growers of the wrapper in the Partido district to hope that their product, which is also of good quality, will be in great demand, and especially since the market has almost been swept clean of the 1912 crop.

There has been a deficiency of rain in both the Partido (Habana Province) and the Remedios (Santa Clara Province) districts, and while in the first named this is not so serious a matter owing to irrigation facilities, it may have a great effect upon the latter, where the bulk of the cheaper filler grades is grown. An occasional rain during the next six weeks would relieve the condition and would mean that the present crop would be ample in quantity. The reverse, however, would certainly jeopardize the outcome both in quantity and quality.

The general expectation of the growers is for good prices, and that hope seems justified in view of the quality of the 1913 crop and the known fact that but little of stock remains in Habana or other market centers.

Late Trade Items

The plant of the Imperial Tobacco Company, Amelia, Virginia, was damaged by fire lately, having started in the drying-house, where tobacco was being dried.

The Stenger Building, 505 Main Street, Johnstown, Pennsylvania, has been leased by William Lampropolis, possession to be taken March 1. A cigar stand is named among the enterprises which Mr. Lampropolis will conduct.

The American Cigar Company has opened a branch at Terre Haute, Indiana, with about 500 employees. J. R. Golden, manager of the Evansville, Indiana, factory, who made the arrangements for the opening of the factory, is planning to increase the number of his employees to 1000.

R. J. Reynolds Co. to Manufacture Little Smokes

Awaiting Decision on Anti-Cigarette Bill Before North Carolina Assembly Before Finally Settling on Location

THE announcement of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, that it will shortly engage in the manufacture of cigarettes, has been received with alarm, it is said, by other companies now engaged in that line of business. As is known, the competition in that line of the trade is very keen and another entrant in the field will make it an even closer fight. The machinery and other equipment for the factory are being purchased.

"If the anti-cigarette manufacturing bill, now before the North Carolina General Assembly, does not become a law," says the Winston Sentinel, "the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company will, within the next two or three months, begin the manufacturing of cigarettes in Winston-Salem. The machinery has been purchased for the new plant, which will be located in factory No. 5, the modern new building erected the past year.

"The output of the little smokers will be at least one million and a half per day, and it is the purpose of the company to increase this number each month and year. Six cigarette machines will be installed and operated as a beginner.

"President R. J. Reynolds said that if the anti-cigarette manufacturing bill passes the Legislature his company will necessarily have to move the new enterprise to Richmond, Virginia, where the company has two large storage houses for leaf. They have bought a large stock of bright leaf for making cigarettes and the large expenditures in getting ready for manufacturing will necessitate their going forward and executing the plans mapped ott for making cigarettes. The company has purchased a large quantity of bright leaf on this and a number of other markets since the tobacco season opened last fall, and the high price paid for this class of the weed makes it too expensive to be used in either plug or smoking goods."

The estate of William Buchanan, for many years prominently connected with the tobacco and jute business, New York City, is reported to amount to $1,906,808.

Sudden Cold Spell Fails to Affect Business—Stace & Vincent to Occupy New Store March 1st—Fred G. Gollmar Co. Adds More Humidor Space—Sig. C. Mayer in Town

CLEVELAND, February 24.

AFTER a period of regular spring weather this city is again experiencing a cold spell. Nothing of this, however, has affected business in any way. The trade seems to keep right on buying hot or cold.

The Shields-Wertheim Company are still oversold, working day and night trying to catch up with orders. The salesmen are scattered to all quarters of the states and each mail is bringing in more orders.

Cleveland has taken on a holiday attire from the writer's observation in regard to "Saramitas." The windows are beautifully trimmed and causing a great deal of talk.

Stace & Vincent, the aggressive young cigar concern of Cleveland, are advertising their big opening for March 1, when they go into their new quarters, corner 105th and Euclid Avenue, in one of the finest fitted up cigar stores and billiard parlors in the country. The boys are well-liked and everybody is wishing them much success. All of their stores have a very beautiful window display.

The Fred G. Gollmar Company have added more humidor space to their cigar store in order to carry a larger assortment of cigars. They have now a humidor built to the ceiling in which they show one of the finest assortments of cigars in the city. Their business is holding up nicely. They also report business good in their Ratskellar stand.

Morris Glicksmann, who has the cigar privilege for the new Leader Building, is not as yet able to give the proper date of his opening.

Leo Mayer, of Neumann & Mayer Company, Philadelphia, and I. J. Mittelberger, also connected with that firm, are making a trip very successfully through the Middle West.

Sig. Mayer, also of Philadelphia, passed through here the other day. He had his hand bound up. I believe he did tell us the nature of the ailment, but we had very strong suspicions that the whole trouble with his hand was that he was taking too many orders.

Lee Burton, Miles Theatre Building, Huron Road, just opened up a very attractive cigar stand. Mr. Burton has a good location and the writer believes that he will do a very nice business.

Mrs. Harry Fagin, wife of the manager of Jenkinson's Scofield stand, passed away this past week.

Mr. McGuire, manager of Stranahan's cigar stand in the Arcade, is satisfied with business conditions and says that things are going along nicely.

Willus Andrus, of F. Garcia Company, was in town this past week.

Joseph T. Snyder, of the Joseph T. Snyder Cigar Company, was in town in the interest of his business. Mr. A. E. Campbell, of Buffalo, the pipe specialist, is here conducting their pipe sale, which they are running at 742 Euclid Avenue.

Saturday, the twenty-second, was the second anniversary of their store at 523 Euclid. They did a wonderful business on that day. They gave away a glass ash receiver as a souvenir.

Late Trade Items

Braeger & Gratzer is the firm name of a new concern which succeeds Braeger & Birchler, of Olympia, Washington.

The South River Cigar Company, South River, New Jersey, a branch of the New Brunswick, New Jersey, Cigar Company, is now thoroughly installed in its new factory in that city. About 220 hands are employed.

The Wayne Cigar Company, Detroit, Michigan, operating one of the largest factories in that city, and which has only been in existence a short time, recently tendered a banquet to its employees to celebrate the opening of its new factory, which was formerly used as a Polish seminary. At the conclusion of the banquet speech-making was indulged in.

Francis E. Timnin, a cigar dealer, of Stockton, California, has sold his store to T. J. Linn.

The J. Stacy Hill Company, of Cincinnati, has just put a new cigar on the market, which will be known as the "Hil-Co." It is a nickel proposition.

A late report of Consul General Griffiths, of London, states that there were 121 failures in the tobacco trade in Great Britain in 1912, as compared with 110 in 1911.

W. A. Young has sold his cigar store in Alameda, California, to Fred Kaufman.

The cigar business formerly operated by Fox Brothers, of Modesto, California, has been acquired by Hughes Brothers.

The new retail stand of the Metropolitan Cigar Company, of Denver, Colorado, was recently opened. It is said to be one of the best in the city.

M. Montreville, the agent of the French Government, is now in this country on a purchasing trip. He buys each year the leaf tobacco for the monopoly of France, amounting to nearly $1,500,000.

A cigar store has been opened in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, by W. S. Chain.

The M & M Cigar Company, of San Francisco, is opening a branch store of the concern. It will be a unique store in the respect that it will be for night trade only. The hour of opening each day is to be 6 P. M. and it will close up at 4 A. M.

A. J. Austing, the well-known Cincinnati cigar dealer, has been compelled to look for new quarters in that city. He was located at Sixth and Main Streets for a number of years. This location has been purchased and will be torn down to make way for a skyscraper. Mr. Austing has leased a store at the southeast corner of Eighth and Main Streets.

Mrs. Bessie B. Hubbard, until recently proprietor of a cigar factory in Brattleboro, Vermont, has been sued by the present owner, James Randall, who claimed that he was defrauded when he purchased the plant. He asserts that Mrs. Hubbard said she had many more customers and a larger output than proved to be the case when he took over the factory.

The Bungalow Cigar Store, 113 East Main Street, Fort Wayne, Indiana, has been taken over by Davenport Thomas, of Warsaw, being formerly conducted by Ely & Warner, who in future will devote themselves to their other stores, one being the old Blitz-Becker store on Calhoun Street, and the other in the Centlivre Hotel.

The cigar store conducted by Mooney & Stokes, North Main Street, Pocatello, Idaho, was destroyed by fire recently.

A dividend of five per cent. has been declared on the stock of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company, payable March 7, to holders of record February 15.

W. S. Chain recently opened a cigar and tobacco store on North Street, Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Hand-made cigarettes will be one of the features of the products to be distributed.

Wm. Krefft, until recently president of the Weidmann Cigar Box Company, of St. Louis, has associated himself with the newly organized leaf concern in that city, Nunn, Buse & Company.

A. Traband, a cigar dealer in Guthrie, Oklahoma, for many years, has discontinued his business.

The Central Cigar Company, of Detroit, recently increased its capitalization from $3000 to $25,000 and took over the cigar stand of Charles Coombs, in that city. Mr. Coombs was made president of the new concern.

The sales committee of the Equity Home Warehouse Company, of Owensboro, Kentucky, has announced that the American Tobacco Company has made an additional purchase of 2,500,000 pounds of tobacco pooled with the organization. The prices range from $3 to $5 for leaf and lugs and $5 for all trash.

An announcement has come from the officers of the American Snuff Company, of Memphis, Tennessee, that plans are now under way for the erection in that city of an addition to the present factory. It will cost upwards of $50,000. The building is to be 180 by 200 feet in size, and to be made of steel and concrete, with a capacity of 20,000 to 25,000 pounds of snuff a day.

C. J. Thorne, who recently took charge of the Wm. A. Stickney chain of cigar stores in St. Louis, added three stores to the chain through the purchase of the Meinhard Cigar Company, of that city. The retail stores of the Wm. A. Stickney Company will be operated separately from the wholesale business of Niles & Moser.

Union-American Cigar Co. Elects Officers

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Union-American Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, on February 10, the following directors were elected for the year: G. P. Waidely, president; J. M. Philbin, vice-president and treasurer; E. S. Hurt, secretary, and N. D. Lean, auditor.

Late Trade Bulletins

Francis E. Timmin, a cigar dealer, of Stockton, California, has sold his store to T. J. Linn.

The J. Stacy Hill Company, of Cincinnati, has just put a new cigar on the market, which will be known as the "Hil-Co." It is a nickel proposition.

A late report of Consul General Griffiths, of London, states that there were 121 failures in the tobacco trade in Great Britain in 1912, as compared with 110 in 1911.

W. A. Young has sold his cigar store in Alameda, California, to Fred Kaufman.

The cigar business formerly operated by Fox Brothers, of Modesto, California, has been acquired by Hughes Brothers.

The new retail stand of the Metropolitan Cigar Company, of Denver, Colorado, was recently opened. It is said to be one of the best in the city.

M. Montreville, the agent of the French Government, is now in this country on a purchasing trip. He buys each year the leaf tobacco for the monopoly of France, amounting to nearly $1,500,000.

A cigar store has been opened in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, by W. S. Chain.

The M & M Cigar Company, of San Francisco, is opening a branch store of the concern. It will be a unique store in the respect that it will be for night trade only. The hour of opening each day is to be 6 P. M. and it will close up at 4 A. M.

A. J. Austing, the well-known Cincinnati cigar dealer, has been compelled to look for new quarters in that city. He was located at Sixth and Main Streets for a number of years. This location has been purchased and will be torn down to make way for a skyscraper. Mr. Austing has leased a store at the southeast corner of Eighth and Main Streets.

Mrs. Bessie B. Hubbard, until recently proprietor of a cigar factory in Brattleboro, Vermont, has been sued by the present owner, James Randall, who claimed that he was defrauded when he purchased the plant. He asserts that Mrs. Hubbard said she had many more customers and a larger output than proved to be the case when he took over the factory.

The Bungalow Cigar Store, 113 East Main Street, Fort Wayne, Indiana, has been taken over by Davenport Thomas, of Warsaw, being formerly conducted by Ely & Warner, who in future will devote themselves to their other stores, one being the old Blitz-Becker store on Calhoun Street, and the other in the Centlivre Hotel.

The cigar store conducted by Mooney & Stokes, North Main Street, Pocatello, Idaho, was destroyed by fire recently.

A dividend of five per cent. has been declared on the stock of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company, payable March 7, to holders of record February 15.

W. S. Chain recently opened a cigar and tobacco store on North Street, Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Hand-made cigarettes will be one of the features of the products to be distributed.

Wm. Krefft, until recently president of the Weidmann Cigar Box Company, of St. Louis, has associated himself with the newly organized leaf concern in that city, Nunn, Buse & Company.

A. Traband, a cigar dealer in Guthrie, Oklahoma, for many years, has discontinued his business.

The Central Cigar Company, of Detroit, recently increased its capitalization from $3000 to $25,000 and took over the cigar stand of Charles Coombs, in that city. Mr. Coombs was made president of the new concern.

The sales committee of the Equity Home Warehouse Company, of Owensboro, Kentucky, has announced that the American Tobacco Company has made an additional purchase of 2,500,000 pounds of tobacco pooled with the organization. The prices range from $3 to $5 for leaf and lugs and $5 for all trash.

An announcement has come from the officers of the American Snuff Company, of Memphis, Tennessee, that plans are now under way for the erection in that city of an addition to the present factory. It will cost upwards of $50,000. The building is to be 180 by 200 feet in size, and to be made of steel and concrete, with a capacity of 20,000 to 25,000 pounds of snuff a day.

C. J. Thorne, who recently took charge of the Wm. A. Stickney chain of cigar stores in St. Louis, added three stores to the chain through the purchase of the Meinhard Cigar Company, of that city. The retail stores of the Wm. A. Stickney Company will be operated separately from the wholesale business of Niles & Moser.

Union-American Cigar Co. Elects Officers

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Union-American Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, on February 10, the following directors were elected for the year: G. P. Waidely, president; J. M. Philbin, vice-president and treasurer; E. S. Hurt, secretary, and N. D. Lean, auditor.

WANTED

One Thousand Live Men

UNDER the new management which took hold three years ago, The Tobacco World has been making quick strides forward in every department. The improvement in our reading pages, the enlargement of our correspondence staff and the distinctive style, have combined to place The Tobacco World in a class by itself.

Our method of building, has been first, to produce the best trade paper in the tobacco field, feeling sure that such a standard would be sure to win recognition in the form of thousands of new subscribers.

That this recognition is coming, is evident in the increase of more than 75% in our circulation, as well as substantial gains in our advertising accounts.

With the opening of the New Year, it is our ambition to extend this circulation in every State by an aggressive campaign for subscriptions. To that end, we have an excellent proposition for traveling salesmen who would wish to take subscriptions on a commission basis. Only men of high standing and unquestioned character are wanted.

At one dollar per year, The Tobacco World is the best trade journal proposition in the country to-day. In most cases, all that is necessary to get a subscription is to show a copy of the paper, and point out its distinctive features. Solicitors who have taken hold of our proposition are making a good side, income from it.

Why not, Mr. Live Salesman, do the same?

Niles & Moser Cigar Company To Abolish Use of Factory Missionary Salesmen

Significant Move Made By Western Wholesalers—Prefer to Sell Goods on Merit Rather Them Through Artificial Demand Created by "Boosters"

KANSAS CITY, MO., March 12.

ANNOUNCEMENT that the Niles & Moser Cigar Company, the largest distributors of cigars and tobacco products in the territory west of the Mississippi, had decided to abolish the use of missionary men in the introduction and sale of their merchandise is one of the most significant moves that has been made in the trade for many months.

This company, having its main offices here and branches in St. Louis, Denver and Omaha, covers the great West and Southwest, and is regarded as one of the most powerful factors in the trade. A radical departure in the plan of selling goods on the part of such a firm, therefore, will prove not only of interest in that section, but an object lesson to distributors everywhere who have used and abused the missionary idea.

While it would be impossible for any firm to work such a revolution in its sales policy over night, it can be stated authoritatively that the Niles & Moser interests are working definitely towards the total elimination of the missionary men, and that within a very short time, not a single salesman of this character will be working for this house. Such a move has already cost a number of highly-trained salesmen their positions and it would be difficult for them to land good berths elsewhere.

Philadelphia Cigar Interests Hold Another Meeting and Select Name of New Organization

Body Will be Known as the "Cigar Manufacturers Association of Pennsylvania"—Committees Make Reports—Draft Letters, Which Will be Sent to all Concerns in State Possibly Interested

AT a representative gathering of the cigar interests of Philadelphia, held at the Mercantile Club on Friday night, it was decided to name the new organization "The Cigar Manufacturers Association of Pennsylvania." This was decided upon after much discussion regarding the advisability of using the word "independent" in forming the body.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Nathan Baum, of the Baum-Jaffe Company, who had acted in a similar capacity at a meeting held in the Bingham House a short time ago. All were unanimous in the opinion of speedily organizing and electing officers and adopting a constitution and by-laws.

It was agreed that the manufacturing of cigars in the state of Pennsylvania had reached such proportions that the manufacturer's interests could be advanced by closer co-operation and that an organization such as proposed would have as its object the better personal acquaintance of its members, the promotion of joint action on matters which arose from time to time affecting them, particularly injurious legislation. The dissemination of information regarding credits was also touched upon as one of the benefits to be derived.

Tampa Manufacturers Hold Enjoyable Banquet

Under Auspices of the Association, More Than 60 Representatives of Cigar Firms Dine and Discuss Trade Problems

ON Saturday night, March 8, over sixty of the representative clear Havana cigar manufacturers in Tampa, resumed again a very pleasant custom of other days, that of holding a banquet. While the invitations for the dinner were issued in the name of the Tampa Cigar Manufacturers' Association, all were urged to attend.

The function took place in the well-known El Pasaje Restaurant, in Ybor City, and the arrangements were in the hands of a committee composed of Celestino Vega, acting for West Tampa, and Manuel Sanchez, of Berriman Brothers, acting for Ybor City.

The excellent menu was as follows:

Martinez Cocktail
Entremes
Jamón Gallego Salchichón de Lion Mortadella de Ytalia Anchoas
Asparagus Pimientos de Calaorra Rabanos Apio
Aceitunas y Mantequilla
Sopas
Sopa de Puré San German
Frituras

Pescados
Tronchos de Pargo Caracolillo
Aves
Pollo Salsa Salmi
Carnes
Filetes de Ternera á la Macedonia
Ensalada Mixta de Vegetables
Postres
Charlota Rusa

After the dinner, Attorney C. C. Whitaker, the toastmaster of the evening, presented Mayor D. B. McKay, of Tampa, as the first speaker and he made a felicitous address, which was followed by a speech by A. L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, who is president of the association.

Mr. Cuesta made a most telling argument for co-operation and association on the part of all Tampa manufacturers for the uplift of the cigar industry and his speech met with deep approval.

Others who spoke included Mayor James G. McFarland, of West Tampa; Kenneth McKay, and E. L. Stachelberg, vice-president of Sanchez & Haya, who advocated the establishment of a co-operative box factory in Tampa, which was to be owned by local manufacturers.

The affair was voted a big success and it is hoped that it will become an annual fixture.

Niles & Moser Eliminate Missionairies

The reasons which have led to the change of policy have not been announced, but it is learned from sources close to the firm, that they have for some time been dissatisfied with the principle of introducing goods through missionary men. They believe that the demand for any brand of cigars or tobacco products which has its foundation solely on the frantic efforts of missionary salesmen, who are striving to make good, is not a natural demand and is so artificial, that should these missionaries be withdrawn, the sales would fall off immediately.

In the race for business, competition has become so keen that the situation has narrowed down to a fight between missionary men representing rival brands, and as soon as one crew of missionary men are withdrawn from a certain territory and sent into another, they are succeeded by the crews of their competitors who immediately start back fire which is not at all helpful either to the wholesalers or retailers handling the brands.

In some territories, missionary men are sent out by the manufacturers and maintained there for years at a time, just to call upon the retail trade, sell their goods and turn the orders in to the jobbers. This is not an unusual situation, but prevails almost everywhere missionary men are employed. A growing tendency in this direction would finally reduce the jobber to a point where his store would be merely a clearing-house for orders which are taken by outside salesmen and simply pass through his hands. Such a condition would eventually rob the distributors of their identity and weaken their own organization to such an extent that they could not long survive.

When asked for a statement as to the reason for the change of policy, Mr. F. C. Niles, of the Niles & Moser Company, informed THE TOBACCO WORLD that they preferred not to be quoted at this time, although he confirmed the news that such a change was taking place.

Tampa Has New Cigar Manufacturing Firm

Cabrera-Heimer Cigar Co. a New Concern Which Has Taken Over Carlos Toro & Co.—Will Continue at Same Factory

CARLOS TORO & COMPANY, who have been one of the smaller progressive manufacturers of Tampa, sold out their business on March 11, to a newly organized company, which will be known as the Cabrera-Heimer Cigar Company.

This organization includes A. H. Cabrera, who has been a well-known leaf dealer of Tampa, and Leon Heimer, an energetic young business man of the city. Mr. Cabrera will look after the making of the goods and Mr. Heimer will take care of the office and selling.

The new firm will continue at the Toro factory, 912 Eleventh Avenue, and will feature the well-established brands of "Tampa Elite," "Piedmont Girl" and "Bomosa."

Carlos Toro, who has been in ill health for three years, leaves Tampa in a few days for Havana, where he will undergo a surgical operation, and take a much-needed rest from business cares.

Philadelphia Cigar Interest Hold Another Meeting

The matter of securing the signatures of the manufacturers of Philadelphia agreeing to join the organization was put in the hands of a committee, which had been given every assurance that all the larger houses were in favor of the movement.

After this has been covered in the city, it will be taken up with all cigar manufacturing firms in the state of Pennsylvania. Then a general meeting will be called, and the further steps to be taken carried through. It is the intention, at present, to establish a permanent office and employ a secretary, whose duty it shall be to attend to all matters pertaining to the welfare of the body.

Americans Take 3600 Bales at First Inscription

At the first inscription held at Amsterdam, March 7, American importers and manufacturers purchased between 3600 and 3700 bales of the tobacco. Competition was keen and the tobacco appeared to give universal satisfaction. Prices as a rule were as high, if not higher than had been expected.

Among the American houses who were successful bidders and the quantities they purchased in bales, are: H. Duys & Company, 1275 bales; E. Rosenwald & Brother, 1725 bales; Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, 257 bales; A. Cohn & Company, 200 bales; G. Falk & Brother, 182 bales; Joseph Hirsch & Son, 85 bales, and H. Smith & Company, 100 bales.

William J. Sadtler has just opened a cigar store at 328 Park Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland. The stand at 426 North Calvert Street, that city, until recently was conducted by Mr. Sadtler.

NO less a merchant prince than John Wanamaker once said that some of the best ideas and most helpful inspirations he ever received, were from his study of the biographies and methods of famous men, both in this country and abroad. The remarkable success achieved by Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, in the building up of their tremendous business on "Cinco" cigars, furnishes a similar object lesson, well worth the study of retailers and manufacturers generally, in the cigar trade.

In probing for the secret of the success of this house, one finds that unswerving loyalty of its men from the heads down to the lowest errand boy, is one of the prime reasons for the "Cinco" being a name to conjure with from Coast to Coast.

True, the loyalty of the men behind the "Cinco" and pushing it, would not build up the business, but this virtue, backing a high class piece of goods, uniformly maintained at a fixed standard, goes far towards explaining the success of the Eisenlohrs.

The men who sell the "Cinco" in Philadelphia, are typical of the men who sell the "Cinco" everywhere, and a study of the faces of the sixteen men and their chief, who sell the "Cincos" in the Philadelphia territory, will reveal that they are above the ordinary type.

The head of the Philadelphia selling organization is Forman P. Hollinshead, Jr., who has been with the house of Eisenlohr for seventeen years continuously, nine years of which were spent as salesman on the street and the last eight years as sales manager of the local forces.

It is the policy of this house to encourage cohesive action on the part of the sales force and to make each man feel that he is a vital part of the organization. To this end, monthly meetings of the salesmen are held when ideas for the promotion of the business are exchanged, new methods suggested and conditions in each territory studied. Suggestions are invited from the salesmen for the improvement of the service generally. As a result, every "Cinco" salesman has the interest of his firm at heart and pulls strong for its success.

No missionary men are employed in this territory and every man who takes an order, takes it on the strength of his proposition and without any free deals, or artificial sales boosting. As indicating the type of salesmen, the men on the street are permitted to do their own collecting and are under no bond to make or keep them honest.

With such men and such methods, it is not surprising that the "Cinco's" supremacy is maintained.

There is no danger of getting too much courtesy, but there are many chances to misunderstand the meaning of the term and get too much of what we consider certain features of it.

The more desirable stock you can manage to carry that the other fellow has not got, the less worry you will have about price competition.

The Crackerjack Salesman Versus the Order Taker

An Observing Tobacconist Contrasts the Various Types---Gives Credit to the Real Article, Who Earns a Large Salary

Written for The Tobacco World by The Onlooker

"SPEAKING of salesmen," said an enterprising dealer to me the other day, "have you ever noticed the difference between the various kinds. I have two men in mind who called upon me today and I couldn't help contrasting the methods employed by these knights of the grip.

"The first man had been in to see me several times. I told him that I did not believe we could do business together and that it was almost a waste of time for him to try. He was the real thing, though, and a little setback like that did not phase him one bit. We had a nice chat together, during which time he gave me a line on their factory and the kinds of goods they were manufacturing. After that, he got busy and asked me a few questions about myself. When I come to think of it, he asked some pretty pertinent questions, but it was done in such a gentlemanly way—in no prying manner—that I unbosomed myself of my idea of a good cigar, one for which I would have a heavy sale. I had considered my ideal too high in that direction and had never been suited. I wanted a brand for myself, that would be a good, clean, mild smoke; a cigar that would be known as mine, and a number one smoke. He agreed with me that that would be a good seller and left shortly afterward.

"About a week ago I received three boxes of cigars, put up twelve in a box, and they were the neatest little pieces of goods one could find in a long while. The boxes carried my name and brand name also, and the packings were in boite nature form. I knew where they had come from and gave them due consideration. Instead of smoking them in the store, after I had been smoking many more and could not get a good line on them, I took the cigars home and tried each box in turn for three nights after dinner. One of the samples was all that the heart of the discriminating smoker could desire and I determined to get a line on that fellow when he came again.

"Several days ago he blew in again and after a little preliminary conversation he asked me how I liked the cigars he had had made up for me. I told him that they were pretty good and asked him what the kind I had most enjoyed sold for. He gave me the price and also an extra inducement if I handled a certain amount each year. Well, I couldn't decide that day, but told him to call again when he came back this way—and I know now that we are going to get together. If I try the cigar it will be for one hundred thousand, at least, the first year. That fellow is a salesman and an artist at the game. It is a pleasure to do business with him. His first reception was almost a freeze-out, but that had no effect on him. He was such an out-and-out gentleman that one would have to be a cad to treat him in anything but a right manner.

"About a month ago a young fellow came in to see me. I have seen so many salesmen in my time that I could spot this fellow in a minute. He was altogether too apparent in his intentions. I was very busy at the time and almost before he could state his business I told him, in a rather short manner that I could not see him at that time. Without a word he turned around and walked out. He came in several weeks ago again, at which time I was able to listen to him. I had never heard of the factory and the fellow was such a crude salesman that I did not give him much thought. He left a few samples with me and I smoked them that night. The fellow was in again the next day and asked me what I thought of his cigars. I replied that the cigars were altogether too dry to be able to get a line on them, and that I was not interested. He replied that he would have a sample box sent to me when he returned to the factory, as those he had offered me had been carried around by him so long that they were not fit to smoke. That statement nearly floored me. Passing a prospective customer cigars which were 'not fit to smoke.'

"Yesterday I sold several cigars to a man whom I recognized as one of our District Court Judges. He showed me a cigar and wanted to know how nearly I could match it. He carefully explained its qualities, after which I sold him five cigars I thought should just about suit him. Today he came in again and in no uncertain terms told me what he thought of the cigars I had sold him. According to him the cigars he was accustomed to smoke were made by a certain factory, which had not entered our market, and as a result he secured his smokes straight from the factory. He had run out of them the day before and had tried to get some as near like them as possible from me. He asked as a favor whether I could not carry the cigar, and said that he would purchase at least five hundred every three weeks. In addition he was sure he could get a number of friends of his to buy the cigars from me, men who had smoked the brand either at his office or home, and had liked them. When he gave me the name of the manufacturer I nearly shied off, for it was the same one which had sent its representative to me with the dried-out cigars. I took a trial order of one thousand and am doing very nicely on them. The class of men who are smoking the cigar assure me that it is all right. They buy them by the box.

"These cases only illustrate what a poor chance a salesman has with the big cigar dealers unless he has the art of selling developed to the highest degree of efficiency. I know almost every crackerjack salesman of the country, the high-salaried men, and let me tell you those fellows are as sharp as a whip. I have matched my wits against them many times, often to see what they would do, and I take my hat off to them. They may get some big salaries, but they earn them every time."

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business

If a cigar dealer has been in business for some time and would like to get rid of "stickers" in his store, an anniversary sale should be a good means of getting the stock out of his hands and also in getting beneficial advertisement. There are a number of dealers in many cities, who have a pipe sale at a certain time each year, at which time they clear out the lines which clutter up the stock.

An Anniversary Sale to Clear Out "Stickers"

One retailer used this scheme some time ago, and the results proved very satisfactory. He had a sign painted which could be placed in front of the store, above the door, each year. He had been in business only five years, but he was able to put on his sign in all truth, "Jones' Anniversary Sale—But five years in business, but doing fifteen times the business he did the first year."

Many of the cigars he wished to clear out were displayed in the windows at rock bottom prices. Those which he considered too inferior, he sold to smaller stores at less than cost price. He would not have allowed them to be sold over his counter. His pipes were sold at prices that appealed to many of his regular customers—in fact, so much so, that many purchased for future needs. He emphasized the fact in selling them that they were slightly soiled, but that their smoking qualities were not destroyed by any means.

In having a sale of this kind a merchant should be most careful of his window displays. Even if the goods are reduced, do not fill up the window with a heterogeneous collection of "junk" and poorly written price cards. Do not overlook the fact that the goods are not trash and any cheap display puts them in that class.

Gives Away Cases for Holding Lighted Cigars

During the course of a war in one of our larger cities against the evil of bringing lighted cigars and pipes into street cars, a war which resulted in some lively skirmishes, one dealer conceived the idea of giving away small cigar cases with every purchase of a quarter's worth of cigars.

He secured about two thousand of small aluminum cases which cost him about three and one-half cents apiece, each one of them holding one cigar. By means of these cases the smoker could smoke his "punk" almost up to the minute the car stopped. Then, before entering the car, stick it into one of the cases without the trouble of putting it out and probably destroying part of it. When the smoker alighted it was only the work of a minute to again have the pleasure of smoking.

Since these cases were durable and carried an advertisement of the dealer's best known and biggest selling brand, he considered the money well spent.

Demonstrates Wearing Qualities of Pipes for Hard Usage

One of the Cincinnati cigar stores is using quite a novelty in making sales for their pipes. The contrivance is a black box about one foot wide and two feet long, which contains a mechanical trap at the bottom. This throws a pipe attached to a string about a foot and a half in the air, allowing it to hit the board at the bottom "Ker-flop." The demonstration carries with it a sign "A pipe for hard usage." It has been the means of clearing out odds and ends of heavy stocks of cheap pipes for which little sale was had.

Mechanical Dice Game Attracts Attention

A mechanical dice game, which was tried by a Brooklyn cigar dealer recently, came close to causing a riot among the people who crowded the sidewalk watching the display in the window. The contrivance was so arranged that at regular intervals, a dice box containing the cubes revolved and threw its contents on a board. Each time four of a kind or better was thrown, the onlooker was allowed to press an electric button attached to the window, which stopped the machine, and come inside and apply for a free cigar.

It is not known whether this scheme doubled his business, but it is reasonable to assume that he lost nothing by the advertisement.

Raffles Off Card Set Which Was Being Carried in Stock

It is often a problem with some cigar dealers to get rid of some of their holiday side lines after the season closes. Most customers would be much surprised to see the collection of articles carried over from year to year by some concerns, such as playing cards, cigars in expensive packings, smoking tobacco in large humidor jars, etc.

One enterprising dealer in one of our large cities recently had a fine poker set which was left over from last Christmas. He disliked the idea of carrying it for some time, so determined to get rid of it. "It is getting on my nerves," he said, "standing there on the counter day in and day out."

A scheme was suggested to him and he soon carried it out. Slips of paper, numbered from one to fifty, were put in a box. Each person trying for the set pulled out a slip and paid the number of cents each figure called for. In less than a day he got rid of the poker set, which was becoming an eyesore to him. And he did not lose anything on the deal by any means.

Starting Work on New "Diligencia" Factory

KEY WEST, March 13.

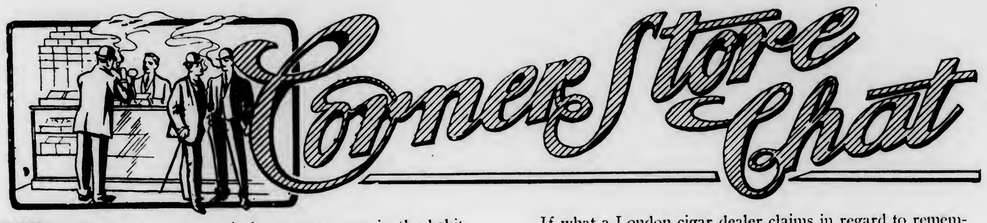
J. Pendas, manager of the "La Diligencia" factory, returned today from Tampa, where he has been consulting with the architects, Bonfoey & Elliott, about their new factory here, upon which work will start in a few days.

The plans call for a model one-story factory of concrete construction, 130 by 220 feet, built with a central court and heavy tiled roof. The factory will be located near the Ruy Lopez factory, one block this side, coming from the centre of the city. And it is needless to say that every up-to-the-minute idea is embraced by the plans.

The contract for building has already been awarded to a prominent Key West contractor, and work will begin as soon as the approved contract is returned from New York.

As is well known, the "La Diligencia" plant now belongs to the United Cigar Manufacturers Company.

A cigar store has been opened at Plattsmouth, Nebraska, by Paul Staterman. The cigar business of M. Hyatt, of Kearney, Nebraska, has been taken over by Robert Ludlington.



LISZT, the eminent musical composer, was in the habit of smoking one cigar a day. But that one cigar was an exceedingly choice one. When he was starting on a journey he told his valet how many days he would be away and his valet put into the valise a corresponding number of those favorite cigars.

Once when Liszt was going to Italy the chief customs officer at the frontier post of Chiasso asked him if he had anything to declare. The musician, with his thoughts centered on his music rather than his cigars, made signs to the effect that he had nothing. The officer opened the valise without the traveler agitating himself over the search. Presently a number of choice cigars were brought to light. The whole lot was confiscated and he was ordered to pay a fine of $100.

When Liszt reached Milan he told his agent of his unpleasant adventure. Ricordi laughed at the whole affair, took a stroll to the Italian treasury and recovered the cigars and the fine. On returning to the artist he offered him with a smile one of his own precious smokes.

"No, my dear friend," said Liszt, "I have taken a vow never to smoke again, so as not to expose myself a second time to such a humiliation."

Ricordi says he kept his vow. Other authorities recall Reger's visit to the virtuoso in 1870.

"Liszt smoked and offered me a cigar," said Reger, "and while I took my ease he walked up and down, sending out clouds of smoke in the direction of certain terra cotta figures."

I was sitting in the office the other day, waiting for an inspiration for this column, when a well-known cigar salesman strolled in, and inquired if I were superstitious.

Upon receiving a negative reply, he asked how many combinations of the number "13" I had actually run across.

"Well," said I, "I think Friday, the thirteenth day of the month, is my limit."

"Well, then," said he, "Listen to this. I will vouch for the positive truth of every statement.

"On Friday, the thirteenth of last August, I hung a sign numbered 13-13 at 13 South Thirteenth Street, after which I made a purchase of a piece of glass that was thirteen by thirteen inches, and for which the price was thirteen cents. In making change the cashier gave me thirteen cents, being one cent too much. The proprietor then took me to the rear of the store where he showed me thirteen cases of glass that had been received on this thirteenth day. The cost had been thirteen dollars. A deduction of thirteen cents had been made for cash, making the discount thirteen cents. Thirteen combinations of the number thirteen, and I am still well and hearty. Can you beat it?"

I collapsed.

When I came to, I glanced at the card my friend had left and discovered that his name contained just thirteen letters.

If what a London cigar dealer claims in regard to remembering names and brands of cigars is true, he comes mighty close to holding the record in that line. But——

"Quite recently," said this merchant, "a man walked in my shop and stopped before a box of cigars. Before he spoke, I addressed him by name and told him that the cigars he was looking for were the same brand that I served him with in another shop in London twenty-five years ago. He was dumfounded, but admitted that what I said was correct."

"Customers have come into this store after intervals of months and years and in other shops in which I have worked during my twenty-eight years' experience in the cigar business, and immediately I have put in front of them the goods they wanted before they asked for them. When they have expressed surprise, I have simply said: 'Oh, you bought those the last time you were here on such and such occasion.'

"The faces, voices and fancies of customers I never forget. Even if my back is turned when a customer comes in and I hear his voice, I know him in a moment."

Next!

A bookkeeper friend of mine, who was a heavy smoker, had worked late one night on his books, and naturally when he arrived home that night his head was full to overflowing with figures. I met him coming to town the next morning, at which time he unburdened himself of the following:

"Bill, I dreamed last night that I was out strolling. I came to a cigar store. I went in and happened to buy 1 cigar at No. 2 North 3rd Street, 4 doors from the corner, paying my usual price, 5 cents. There were 6 other customers in the store at the time and the proprietor having done a good day's business, he treated 7 of us to cigars that were specially priced at 8 cents for 9 days only. The funny part of it was that the regular price of the smokes were 10 cents."

Hellup!!!

I met an old-time friend of mine about a month ago, visiting in New York. I had not seen Jim more than once or twice since the day we used to have some pretty good times together. He had gone the pace for a time, but I had heard that he had settled down about a year ago. Jim looked very prosperous and I inquired after his health. "Fine," he replied. "And Bill, when you come to Chicago I want you to stop with me. Don't you go to any hotel. You come straight to my apartments, even if it is four o'clock in the morning. I won't mind that."

About a week ago I had occasion to take a business trip to the Windy City. It just happened that I arrived in the place about 2 A. M. I hesitated for a time, then decided that Jim's invitation was so sincere that I would go up there. I got a cab and arrived at the place about a half hour afterward. I alighted and told the cabby to wait, thinking perhaps that no one would be at home. After pulling the bell I waited for about five minutes and was then faced by a very sleepy man—evidently his valet.

"Is this where James Jones lives?" I inquired.

In the news columns of this issue appears a dispatch from Kansas City, announcing the very significant move on the part of one of the largest distributors of cigar and tobacco products in the West. It is stated that this firm after years of experience has arrived at the conclusion that it can do business better without missionary salesmen, furnished and paid by the manufacturers, than with them, and that hereafter, they intend to sell their merchandise direct to the trade through their own salesmen and rely upon their own sales efforts and the merits of the goods themselves, to bring about a more permanent condition than can be achieved through the artificial demand created by the spasmodic and hysterical efforts of "brand-boosters."

Will the Missionary Men Survive?

THE TOBACCO WORLD has repeatedly pointed out in its columns from time to time the abuses of the missionary idea, and has repeatedly warned both manufacturers and jobbers that the day was coming when the jobber would become too excessive in his demands for sales assistance and that the manufacturer would some day find himself so loaded with increased selling expenses through missionary men, that there would have to come a halt.

Therefore, the move on the part of this Western firm at this time is very significant, since they are among the first to see the light and have voluntarily announced a revolution in their sales policy, eliminating an incubus that has been growing apace and preying upon the very vitals of modern merchandising.

In some territories, jobbers no longer will accept orders turned in to them by missionary salesmen working on the behalf of some one brand, whether it be tobacco or cigars. These jobbers have learned their lesson very dearly, having frequently found that missionary salesmen in their efforts to make good are prone to turn in fake orders from the retailers, and that when the jobbers deliver these orders, the goods are refused and turned back on their hands. An experience of this character has destroyed much of the confidence of the jobbers in the missionary idea, and as a result some manufacturers are compelled to deliver the goods themselves, collect for them and then turn the order, after it is filled, over to the local distributor.

The above condition prevails at present in the Philadelphia market on certain brands of smoking tobacco and we understand that jobbers elsewhere are gradually adopting the same policy as a matter of self-protection.

However, the abuse of the missionary idea is not entirely at the doors of the manufacturer. When a new brand is to be introduced into any market the first question that the distributor asks of the manufacturer is, "What are you going to do for me to place these goods in this market? How many missionary men can you furnish?" Demands of this kind have grown so pressing that manufacturers seeking new markets are constantly called upon to outbid each other in their efforts on behalf of the distributor, and as a result the selling expenses have been increased enormously.

It seems to us that the missionary idea has about reached its limit, and that as manufacturer and jobber are awakened to the utter folly of continuing this mad race for business, the missionary men will be gradually eliminated, and that a sounder sales policy, based on quality and legitimate demand, will supplant it.

Indiana's New Cigarette Law

The passage of a law prohibiting the selling of cigarettes to persons under twenty-one years of age, in Indiana, is another example of the extremes to which legislative reformers are going nowadays, in their alleged efforts to regulate the morals and habits of the people.

Under the new law, the age limit is fixed at an extreme period and whether the trade will find it objectionable, will depend altogether on how it will be enforced. It is impossible for the man behind the counter to know whether he is selling cigarettes to a youth of eighteen or twenty-one, and must of necessity rely upon the statements of the purchaser as to his age. To enforce this law rigidly it would be necessary for every cigarette smoker to carry a birth certificate with him, certifying to his exact advent into this cigarette-smoking world.

What "The World" Thinks

¶ A bill has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature to prohibit the sale of snuff. Something not to be sneezed at!

¶ The new Sumatra crop seems to be turning out better than the croakers had predicted. The colors are light and the yield good, although the tobacco as a whole is unusually dry. As to whether the tariff yield is to be light or heavy, the reports are silent.

¶ Although the Warburton bill, providing for the construction of a military road from Maine to California, by the increased revenue to be squeezed from the cigar and tobacco trade, died just as the last Congress adjourned, it is reported that the energetic father of this iniquity is preparing to spring it again at the next session of Congress. The tobacco trade had better be prepared to scotch it.

Dissolution Decree of A. T. Co. Being Carried Out

At Annual Meeting of Corporation in Jersey City, Report Shows That Nearly All of the Bonds Have Been Retired

THE annual meeting of the American Tobacco Company was held in Jersey City, last Wednesday, and the treasurer's report for the year 1912, ten months of which were subsequent to the dissolution of the old combination, was submitted.

It showed that of the $52,882,650 of 6 per cent. bonds $50,311,900 had been retired, of the $51,354,100 of the 4 per cent. bonds $48,992,050 had been retired, and of the preferred stock $25,751,900, leaving only $477,800 of the one-third of preferred stock that was to be retired. This, with something less than $5,000,000 of the two kinds of bonds must be retired within three years under the decree. The bonds were paid off from the proceeds of the property sold to the P. Lorillard and Liggett & Myers Companies. The preferred stock was received in exchange for preferred stock of the two new companies.

Of the other stocks and bonds that the decree required should be disposed of by January 1, 1915, $12,029,913 have been sold, leaving a balance of $2,631,481. The F. F. Adams Tobacco Company, B. A. Petterson Tobacco Company, and F. R. Penn Tobacco Company, of which the American owned all the stock, have been wound up and their assets taken over.

Sales of the American Tobacco Company and those companies all of whose stock it owns were $67,950,257, and the net earnings were $10,123,885, or nearly 15 per cent. of the sales. Dividends from companies, part of whose stock is owned by the American, were $1,626,223. After interest and preferred dividend payments the net income was $12,242,662. Three dividends of 2½ per cent. on the common stock amounted to $3,018,180, leaving the surplus, which was $40,095,048 the year before, at $49,319,530. Cash distributed to stockholders from the sale of securities and the par value of the shares of the American Machine and Foundry Company, also distributed, amounted to $9,248,480, leaving the surplus at the end of the year $40,071,050. The capital stock, outstanding bonds, and average surplus during the year aggregated $146,633,142, of which the net income was 10⅞ per cent.

Preferred and common stockholders numbered 5959, and preferred stockholders now have the same voting rights as the common stockholders.

E. P. Oakes Taken Suddenly Ill

While taking lunch at Louis Martin's last Tuesday, E. P. Oakes, president of the Cuba Cigar Company, and general sales agent for the "King's Club" cigar, was suddenly stricken with apoplexy. Mr. Oakes was taken to the Hotel Hermitage, where he was made as comfortable as possible. The latest reports from his attending physicians are to the effect that he has shown but slight improvement. While he is expected to recover, there is great fear that his left side will be permanently affected. It has been decided to remove Mr. Oakes to a hospital as soon as his condition will permit. He has the sincere sympathy of his many friends in the trade, who hope for his speedy recovery.

S. G. Ellis Joins "Pera" Sales Force

Associates Himself With H. Table Porter as U. S. Sales Agent—Now Have Five Assistants

S. G. ELLIS, formerly of M. Melachrino & Company, has associated himself with H. Table Porter as United States sales agent for the entire output of the "Pera" cigarette factory. Since taking over this proposition, the above gentlemen have made most rapid strides in the distribution of this well-known and favorite international cigarette. Mr. Ells is a cigarette salesman of marked ability and his amiable personality has gained for him a host of friends and acquaintances throughout the country. H. Table Porter is equally well known, he having represented Philip Morris and the American Tobacco Company for many years.

With a cigarette of such excellent quality as the "Pera," success should follow Messrs. Ellis and Porter from the start. They have already engaged the services of five men. Three of them are located in Manhattan, one in Brooklyn, and one in New Jersey. Mr. Ellis left on Monday for Philadelphia, where he is exceedingly well known to the trade, and from the orders that are now being presented to the New York office, it is easily to be seen that his activities in that territory have been rewarded. H. Table Porter leaves for New England and the Eastern States.

Suit Against British-American Cigar Stores Co.

The British-American Tobacco Company has made application for an injunction against the British-American Cigar Stores Company, a New Jersey corporation, operating four cigar stands in New York City, to restrain them from continuing in business under that name. In the complaint, the assertion is made that the using of this name is misleading to investors in stocks, as well as causing confusion among the cigar trade. James B. Duke, of the English corporation, is the chief complainant.

When interviewed regarding this move, against his concern, W. W. St. John, president of the Cigar Stores Company, who formerly conducted retail stores in New York, said: "It is only an effort of the big concern to stifle competition. Ours is a domestic corporation, organized in New Jersey with a capital of $3,000,000, designed to operate cigar stores. The British firm are manufacturers. We have four retail stands in New York City now and expect shortly to open a fifth one."

Salvador Rodriguez Presents Useful Souvenir to Friends

Salvador Rodriguez, of New York and Tampa, manufacturers of the "Charles the Great" cigar, have recently sent to their many friends in the trade, a souvenir in the form of a humidor. The contrivance is made of brass metal, having a sliding arrangement which allows it to be adjusted to the inner surface of a cigar box lid. The user of the humidor is advised to use but little moisture after removing six or more cigars from the box. This should supply a long-felt want of smokers who do not care to use the larger humidors, and should certainly be appreciated. It carries no advertisement whatsoever.

Sam H. Harris to Pay Creditors in Full

At a meeting of the creditors of Sam H. Harris, Incorporated, last Tuesday, Mr. Harris offered to buy the assets of the company bearing his name and pay the creditors in full. This was approved by the court and the receiver was ordered to sell the assets of the corporation to Mr. Harris after he had paid its debts.

Mr. Harris has been the recipient of congratulations during the past few days upon the result of the bankruptcy proceedings. And rightly so, for it is a rare thing for the creditors of a concern that has failed to receive one hundred cents on the dollar.

Melachrino's Canadian Plant to Start April 1st

It has been definitely decided that the recently incorporated cigarette factory under the title of M. Melachrino & Company, of Canada, Limited, will start active operations on April 1. G. S. Merrick, of the New York office, leaves for Montreal shortly to take charge of the office and factory. W. H. Munson, vice-president, is to assume active charge of the selling end of the Canadian business, and is now en route to Montreal to take up his new duty.

Burglars Crack Another "United" Safe

The denizens of the underworld in this city appear to have a grudge against the many stands of the United Cigar Stores Company. The latest move in the campaign of safe-breaking was the forcing open of the strong-box in the United store, at 451 Fulton Street, on Monday last. In this raid five hundred dollars in cash and a quantity of silverware and jewelry are said to have been carried away. Detectives are working on this case, and also the former robberies in connection with the United stands, in an endeavor to run down the leaders of the gang, but so far nothing has been accomplished. At least half a dozen of the United stores have been robbed within the year.

L. Harry Fisher is president of the Brooklyn branch of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, instead of Nicholas Ehrlich, who is secretary of the association. This correction is made because of the confusion of the officers of the association in an article published in the last issue of the WORLD.

The Boucher Cork and Machine Company, formerly located at 36 Gold Street, New York City, have moved to their new quarters at 216-222 West Eighteenth Street.

J. Pink, a cigar dealer at 35 Nassau Street, Manhattan, New York, has sold his stand to William Warren, proprietor of the cigar store in the Nassau Trust Building, Brooklyn, New York. The same line of goods will be carried in both places.

At the yearly meeting of the Ruy Lopez Company, held on March 6, the following officers were elected: John Wardlow, president; Anthony V. Jockel, vice-president; Robert W. Nassauer, treasurer; and Samuel O. Barnett, secretary.

The Pappas Manufacturing Company, of Buffalo, are exceedingly pleased with the extension of business, that has been derived since placing their cigarettes in the New York market. Their "Pappas" cigarette, for which a demand is steadily growing, is now being featured at the Hotel Cadillac cigar stand, as is also the "Snyder de Luxe" and "Haldenna," which are specially made up for John F. Snyder, proprietor of the above cigar stand.

Lozano Factory to Increase Facilities—Centro Asturiano Contract Awarded, Club House to Cost $100,000—General Condition of Trade Good

TAMPA, March 12.

OPINIONS are divided in the city as to the general condition of trade, but sizing up all the reports, it looks as if the manufacturers as a body are in better shape today than they have been for several years.

No one will attempt to deny that the crop of last year and the outlook for the present year's crop has given the manufacturers much encouragement, and the cigars which are being turned out today are of a much better quality as a run than they have been for some time, all of which will undoubtedly be felt.

Jerome Regensburg, of E. Regensburg & Sons, tells me that their volume of business for the past sixty days has been heavier than he has recorded for a long time, and he is optimistic that the present condition is not a spasmodic one.

Additions are shortly to be made to the Lozano factory, which will increase materially the facilities for manufacturing there. F. Lozano, of the firm, stated that he would remain probably a week or ten days longer in Tampa before returning to New York.

Gerald Stanley, son of Charles P. Stanley, of the C. P. Stanley Cigar Company, of St. Louis, has been stopping in Tampa for a few days as the guest of Vice-president Stachelberg, of Sanchez and Haya. Mr. Stanley is en route to Havana and the Florida east coast, where he will take a vacation.

Simeon Gonzalez, who was for a number of years factory superintendent of the Sanchez and Haya factory, returned from a protracted visit to France and Spain on the eleventh of this month, after a stop in Havana. It is understood that Mr. Gonzalez will again join the Sanchez and Haya force in some suitable position.

J. T. Robles, who formerly covered the Southern States for Streeter, Fernandez y Ca., has located permanently in Tampa, and taken charge of the office work of that firm. He tells me that their business is improving in every way and they are meeting with special success on their "Clarencio" brand. F. D. Pelote is now working the southern territory for Streeter, Fernandez y Ca., with good results.

T. H. Hart, the well-known Philadelphia manufacturer and jobber, arrived in Tampa yesterday for a brief visit. He goes from here to Havana.

The contract for the re-building of the Spanish Club, Centro Asturiano, which was destroyed by fire, has just been awarded to McGurkin and Hyler, of this city. The club will spend over $100,000 and when the building is completed they will have one of the finest clubhouses in the South.

Jaime Pendas, manager of the "Diligencia" factory, in Key West, has been in Tampa for several days. Mr. Pendas has been elected a life member of the Tampa Automobile and Golf Club, which shows his interest in this city despite his residence in Key West.

Harry Roberts, of J. W. Roberts & Son, returned from a trip to New York last week. He says that their factory is full up with orders.

Paul Nahon, formerly manager of Schulte's 96 Broadway store, has severed connections with this firm, and is taking charge of the cigar department of R. H. Macy & Company.

FIREMEN'S CIGAR COMPANY, Newark, N. J., manufacturers of union-made cigars for the jobbing trade, would like to interest jobbers by submitting samples. 3-15-c

PHILADELPHIA.

The Quaker City Trade Outlook

THE trade, taken as a whole, is quiet. The retail end has shown a slight improvement, particularly where the merchant used the "open door" policy, but it could stand much improvement. The factories in most cases are working to full capacity. The figures taken each month from the internal revenue receipts, show that the manufacturing end of the trade is in a healthy state. There was an increase during the month of February, over the same period last year, of 4,383,260 cigars, no mean stride. Still it must be taken in consideration that 1912 started off poorly for cigar manufacturers everywhere.

The main topic of interest at present is the association now forming among the manufacturers. There was a meeting in the Mercantile Club on Friday night, an account of which is given in another column. The responses the organizers have received from many sources has been most encouraging, and it would be most surprising if the plan fell through.

Bobrow Bros. Open Stemming Plant

Bobrow Brothers have opened another building at 113 Arch Street, which will be used as a stemming, drying and sweating plant. This move was imperative as floor room in their present factory at 112 South Second Street, was at a premium. This gives them facilities in their Second Street factory for installing benches for about one hundred and fifty more cigarmakers.

"United" Looking For More Stands

The United Cigar Stores Company is reported to be negotiating for a number of new stands in the central section of the city. It is said that the stand of A. H. Lauer, at Eighth and Walnut Streets, is one of them, although Mr. Lauer says his lease has yet some time to run. When approached by a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD, Mr. Raymond, district manager of the United stands, stated no definite arrangements had been made, although plans are now under way for opening new stores in the near future.

C. S. Buck, Philadelphia district sales manager of Strater Brothers Tobacco Company, of Louisville, Kentucky, has twelve men in Pennsylvania, Maryland, District of Columbia, New Jersey and West Virginia fields pushing the introduction of their new brand of smoking tobacco, "Satisfaction." They are also introducing the new tin package "City Club," which has had such a remarkable sale in Louisville.

Pushing "Havana Ribbons" in Wisconsin

C. W. McFARLAND, Wisconsin and Minnesota representative of Bayuk Brothers Company, has just closed an aggressive campaign in Milwaukee, where he was working in conjunction with the Badger Tobacco Company. The latter firm was so pleased with the work done and the immediate popularity attained by "Havana Ribbons," that they placed orders with the factory for substantial weekly shipments. Mr. McFarland is now inaugurating a campaign with the W. B. and W. G. Jordan Company, of Minneapolis, and is being assisted by Mr. Harry McConnell, from the advertising department. The Jordan Company are very enthusiastic on "Havana Ribbons," but have been handicapped by the factory's inability to make prompt shipments.

T. H. Hart, of the T. H. Hart Company, is now on a trip to Tampa and other points in Florida. He expects to be gone a month.

Terry & Duncan have been featuring "Ensign" tobacco and gave a special offer to smokers in the form of a pipe, tobacco and cleaners. This mixture is manufactured by the Monopol Tobacco Works.

Michael Horn, who has had a number of retail cigar stores about town, usually having a manufacturing display in his windows, has started another stand at 332 Market Street.

Yahn & McDonnell's expect to have the formal opening of their new cigar stand in the Stock Exchange on St. Patrick's Day. There has been a slight delay in the final preparations.

Showell, Fryer & Company, of Market and Juniper Streets, are making preparations to remove to their other store, at 1517 Chestnut Street. A notice to that effect has already been posted.

J. G. Atherholt has had a fetching display of "El Palencia" cigars, Boltz-Clymer Company, in his window. Mr. Atherholt's window is a small one, but the space is paying big dividends for him. One instance which came to the writer's notice a short time ago, proves this pretty conclusively. The window contained a display of a lot of Manila cigars at the time. A customer, who had seen the brand, inquired where it was made and bought a few. The same man was in the store about an hour or two later and bought the entire contents of the window, 1800 cigars. When one's customers buy at this rate, "it pays to advertise."

Another Cigar Record for First Pennsylvania District Manufacturers

THE First Pennsylvania District cigar, cigarette and tobacco manufacturers may well congratulate themselves on having done the best month's work ever done in a February. The production figures, as compiled from the Internal Revenue receipts, show increases in every branch over the same period last year. Large cigars made another record for February, the output being 61,735,340, an increase of 4,383,260 over February, 1912. There was also an encouraging "come back" on little cigars, the increase being over five million and a half, although this is many millions behind the highest figures. Cigarettes and manufactured tobacco also show that the First District has not been idle the second month of the year.

The complete figures as compared with February, 1912, are as follows:

	February. 1913.	1912.	Increase.
Cigars	61,735,340	57,352,080	4,383,260
Little Cigars	20,252,000	14,730,000	5,522,000
Cigarettes	9,471,360	8,454,800	1,016,560
Cigarettes at $3.60	14,400	7,300	7,100
Manufactured Tobacco, pounds,	88,527	85,374	3,153

The output for the month of February for the past ten years is as follows:

1910	49,594,450	1905	45,842,050
1909	47,362,690	1904	45,557,120
1908	43,455,970	1903	41,084,560

Quaker City Notes

A. J. Lynch, of the El Draco factory, will visit the trade in Atlantic City next week in the interests of the "Stratford."

An attractive window display on "Charles the Great" cigars (Salvador Rodriguez) was made during the past week in John O'Boyle's store, Ninth and Walnut Streets.

John T. Dee, of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, is again back at his desk after a short trip to the many "T. & O." jobbers throughout the Middle West.

The Speed-Goodloe Cigar Company has taken on for distribution in this territory, the "La Folwin" cigar, made by the Folwin-Wingo Company, of Charleston, South Carolina. The manufacturers claim that this is a solid Havana cigar. It is made in the conchas size and goes to the trade at thirty-five dollars.

W. J. Noonan, who had been district sales manager for the Melachrino Company for some time, and latterly stationed in Detroit, has resigned his position and is now back again in Philadelphia.

The Cores-Martinez Company, cigar manufacturers, moved their Philadelphia office from 335 Walnut Street to 2115 South Eighth Street, where they will occupy an entire building, modern in every respect and ideally adapted to the manufacture of cigars.

H. C. Caldwell & Company, Fifteenth Street and Columbia Avenue, Philadelphia, report a big sale on a number of their private brands of cigars, as well as all their leading popular brands in this market.

Fred R. Hoisinger, of the "Savarona" factory, was calling with the big dealers the past week. M. J. Dalton & Company distribute this brand in Philadelphia. It is a Porto Rican cigar.

New and Beautiful Label For "Statesman"

Jeitles & Blumenthal, the well-known cigar manufacturers of Philadelphia, are showing to their customers their "Statesman" brand in a new and most attractive label. The beautiful contrasting colors of the label, red, blue and gold, catch the eye and please by their artistic contrast. The reproduction shown herewith gives but a faint idea of its beauty.

The "Statesman" cigar is one of the leading brands of Jeitles & Blumenthal, and has been before the smokers of this country for over thirty years. It is now made in sixteen sizes. It is of seed and Havana construction and wrapped with the best grade of Sumatra procurable. This firm prides itself on the superior workmanship of their goods and if the "Statesman" is taken as the standard this is easily proven.

Among the other brands of this representative Philadelphia house are the "Flor de Jeitles," "Royal Peer," "Tungsten," and "Masterpiece," which are acknowledged to be in the front rank with cigars of their class.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

U. C. M. Co. Takes Over George M. Conway Business

BY an order of the probate court in Sioux City, Iowa, recently, the United Cigar Manufacturers Company of New York becomes owner of the $65,000 worth of stock in the George M. Conway Company, Incorporated, of Sioux City, Iowa.

Mr. Conway died on January 4. Prior to this, he is said to have endorsed notes for the Conway Company to the United Cigar Manufacturers Company. By the order of the court, six hundred and fifty shares of the preferred stock and seventy shares of common stock is transferred to the New York concern.

Legal steps for the transfer of the stock of the Conway Company to the United Cigar Manufacturers Company were taken on a recent visit of Jacob Wertheim to Sioux City. Mr. Wertheim is named as one of the executors of the estate.

The George M. Conway Company is one of the leading jobbing and retailing houses of Sioux City. They have maintained a branch cigar store in Lincoln, Nebraska, for several years.

Boston Jobbers Association Elects Officers

At a meeting of the Tobacco Trade Association, of Boston, composed of the leading jobbers of that city, the following were elected as officers for the ensuing year: M. Hanauer, of the Bieringer Brothers Company, president; Samuel Rosenthal, of Rosenthal Brothers & Bendetson, vice-president; and W. Hunter, of McGreenery & Manning, secretary and treasurer. Out of tribute to the late J. McGreenery, the association did not hold its annual dinner.

Beebe-Crum Co., New Wholesale House

W. W. Crum, formerly the East St. Louis representative of the Rice Mercantile Company, of St. Louis, Missouri, has become associated with Louis Beebe, of that city, and will do a wholesale business at 425 St. Louis Avenue, as the Beebe-Crum Company. Both of these men are well known in St. Louis and state that they will go after the business in a big way. They will wholesale exclusively.

Appoint Southern Representative for "Optimo" Cigar

R. F. Donovan, the proprietor of a retail cigar store in Shreveport, Louisiana, has been appointed Southern representative for the "Optimo" brand of cigars, manufactured by A. Santaella y Ca. He will cover Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Arkansas and Texas. The retail store will be managed by an assistant.

To Handle "Stratford" in St. Paul

The E. Wolf Company, of St. Paul, Minnesota, have taken on the distribution of the "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia. They will carry a full line of sizes and they expect to push this well-known brand in this territory.

Pushing "La Saramitas" in Illinois

THE Eby-Loser Company, of Aurora, Illinois, have taken on the distribution of the "La Saramita" cigars, made by the Shields-Wertheim Company, Cleveland, and are pushing them with much success through their section of Illinois.

Another distributor in Illinois for the "La Saramita" is J. W. Benston, of Freeport, who is having great success through his section of the state with this brand.

Newsy Jobbing Paragraphs

One of the most widely distributed and heaviest sellers of nickel cigars in Richmond, Virginia, is the "Cinco" brand. The jobbers for the "Cinco" in that city are E. A. Saunders & Sons Company. They also distribute the brands of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, of Lima, Ohio.

The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of St. Louis, has removed its offices from St. Joseph, Missouri, to No. 1028 Broadway, Kansas City, Missouri. This concern operates branches in four other Western cities.

D. J. Sweeney has been appointed as the representative in Schenectady, New York, for the house of I. B. Krinsky, of Brooklyn. This concern manufactures the "Fifth Avenue" cigarette, which has a wide distribution all over the country.

The W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, of Pittsburgh, distributors in that section for the cigars of the Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, have been having a drive on these cigars recently, with most substantial results.

F. J. Stern, a cigar dealer, of 904 Ninth Street, Washington, District of Columbia, has been appointed the distributor in that city for the "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia.

E. R. Godfrey & Sons Company, of Milwaukee, will celebrate the first anniversary of the installation of their cigar department on May 1. This concern is a leading distributor of the cigars of T. J. Dunn & Company.

Allen R. Cressman's Sons, makers of the well-known "Counsellor" cigars, through their Pacific Coast representative, Ed. Marshall, have perfected arrangements whereby their goods will be handled in San Francisco through Charles Mattheas & Company. This is the first introduction of the "Counsellor" to the people of San Francisco.

The "La Mega" cigar of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, of Tampa, has been receiving excellent distribution in Portland, Oregon and vicinity, through its jobbers, Mason, Ehrman & Company. They have lately received a shipment of 50,000 "La Megas." These are being pushed by their salesmen with the assistance of Harry W. Robare, the factory representative for the Western territory.

Denver Cigar Company Fails

A number of cigar manufacturers throughout the country are interested in the failure of the Imperial Cigar Company, of Denver, Colorado. This concern went into business about six months ago in that city and after having the fixtures installed, and the place opened up in a fairly expensive manner, two lady clerks were put in charge. The place was attached by creditors about ten days ago and it was found that the stock amounted in value to only about four hundred dollars. The proprietor of the concern, Dock Parks, has disappeared with his books. As a result it is not known what the liabilities of the business will amount to.

C. A. Bueker, of Dayton, Ohio, Fails

C. A. Bucker, doing business as C. A. Bueker & Company, dealer in cigars and tobacco, at 129 East Fifth Street, Dayton, Ohio, on Friday, February 21 last, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court in Cincinnati. His schedules, filed with the petition, lists liabilities at $4339.12 and assets of $1627.62, of which $1127.62 represents debts due the petitioner on open accounts. All of the liabilities are unsecured.

H. F. Kohler May Locate in Spring Grove

A new cigar enterprise has been promised the town of Spring Grove in York County, by H. F. Kohler, Register of Wills of the county, and a large manufacturer of cigars, with a factory now in the city of York, if business men of Spring Grove will assist him in the movement. His plans are to have the business men of the town erect a factory large enough to accommodate from seventy-five to one hundred cigarmakers. The building will then be leased by him.

Mr. Kohler formerly had two factories in this county, one in Nashville and another at Jacobus. Last spring he moved his plants to York, where he is now located. One of the handicaps in that place is the difficulty in securing sufficient hands to operate a factory such as Mr. Kohler contemplates.

Lancaster Growers to Cut Tobacco Crops

In View of Prices Received Recently, They Decide That Too Much Is Being Produced

LANCASTER, March 11.

THE Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, at a meeting held today, decided for the first time that too much tobacco is being grown in this county. The market conditions at present do not warrant the acreage of the past few years, amounting to about sixteen hundred acres. A resolution was adopted toward the members exerting their influence to decrease the quantity of the crop and improving the quality.

A number of the members advocated a radical departure in the kind of tobacco to be grown, one man saying that Havana filler-binder would be preferable to Pennsylvania broadleaf. Reports from various sections the past few days show a decided break in prices. Earlier in the season, when the larger concerns were purchasing large quantities, the average price was ten and three. Many farmers are now willing to dispose of their entire holdings at seven cents per pound. It is estimated that about twenty-five per cent. of the tobacco is still in the hands of the growers. A discussion of the quality of tobacco brought out the belief that many farmers are sacrificing quality in an endeavor to have as large a crop as possible. The poor quality of some crops was attributed to the kinds of fertilizers used.

The question of "how many growers would advocate growing one-quarter less tobacco and stand by it" was put before the members when nine voted affirmative and six negative.

A new cigar factory is being opened up in Nazareth, near Easton, Pennsylvania, which will employ almost altogether foreign female labor. The name of the concern has not yet been made public.

James Procita and Andrew Provost are making preparations to open a pool room and cigar store on South Main Street, Gloversville, New York. They will be open for business about March 15.

ARTISTIC "PASTORA." WINDOW TRIM

The illustration herewith shows how Bertram Bros., enterprising tobacconists of Detroit, use their show window.

This display attracted quite a bit of attention, and it cannot be denied that from an artistic standpoint it shows good taste and judgment.

Milwaukee

Activity Continues in Retail Circles—Dadds to Vacate Present Store in Few Months—Murphy & Knight, of Beloit, Dissolve Partnership—Many Other Changes Noted

MILWAUKEE, March 12.

BUSINESS with the local dealers continues good and prospects for a continuance seem bright.

Steve Surman, of the Cuba Rica Cigar Company, is featuring the "Perry" pipe, also the "S. G. Brown" and "Alphonso" cigars. He reports a nice business on all lines.

Fay Lewis & Brother Company are doing their usual good business at both retail stores and the wholesale department reports a very satisfactory trade in "Webster," "El Sidelo," "Tom Moore" and other leaders. The Pabst Building store is featuring the "El Sidelo" in all sizes.

Leo Abraham reports a good business both wholesale and retail. Joe Feiger is converting the Third Street store into a pipe store. He reports the pipe business there already exceeds that done at the former Caswell Block store, which long held a reputation as a pipe market. They are featuring calabash pipes at attractive prices. Oscar Chapman continues to smile his way into the good graces of the retail stores about town, and is selling a lot of "Jose Lovera," "Charter," "La Verdad" and other popular cigars handled by the firm.

A. S. Goodrich Company continue to do a good business with the "Cinco" and "Equity" cigar, reporting a nice increase in business.

Freitag Brothers are making a showing of pipes at their downtown store.

Dadds have not yet decided on a new location for their drug store. They will be compelled to vacate in a few months, as building operations on the new Plankinton Hotel, theater and office building will soon be started. They are at present making a display of the "Robert Burns."

Allanson's will continue at their present stand in the Plankinton Building for some time, as building operations will start on the other end of the block, and it will be a year or so before they will have to vacate. They are also displaying the Perry pipe, which seems to be taking hold good in this city.

Among the manufacturers business continues good. The Milola Company and the Harvester factory are working all hands full time.

At Superior, Wisconsin, Stiles & McDonell have dissolved partnership, W. B. Stiles succeeding to the business.

The Palm Cigar Store at Madison has been sold by Wm. Schulkamp to Frank J. Pecher.

Murphy & Knight, who conducted a cigar store and billiard hall at Beloit, dissolved partnership. J. E. Knight succeeds to the business.

Hascall's billiard parlors, which burned out about a year ago, are now nicely located on the third floor of the new six-story Chinese Temple Building on Second Street. Mr. Hascall has one of the most up-to-date parlors in the Northwest. All popular brands are handled.

A new cigar manufacturing firm has been formed by Frank, Dan and John Strickland at Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin. The business will be managed by Dan Strickland.

York County Tobacco Growers Form Association

For the purpose of obtaining higher prices for York County grown tobacco, through packing and selling direct to the buyers, tobacco growers, at a meeting held in Red Lion, March 7, formed the Farmers' Tobacco Packing Association. D. A. Miller, Red Lion, was elected president of the association. The other officers are: Neal Dougherty, Chanceford Township, vice-president; C. E. Nate, Red Lion, secretary; Daniel F. Brenneman, Winterstown, treasurer. The directors are: D. A. Miller and C. E. Nate, Red Lion; Daniel F. Brenneman, Winterstown; Neal Dougherty, W. H. Wise, C. H. Schall, Chanceford Township; Milton W. Wineka, York Township.

Three warehouses will be established in Red Lion, which will be the shipping point for the association. It is the object of the association to make each grower his own packer. The growers have heretofore sold in bales. It is proposed that hereafter they pack their tobacco in cases, either at their farms or at the warehouse. At the latter place they can have their crop packed in cases for them. From the warehouse the tobacco will be sold direct to the consumer. Efforts were made to have every grower who is holding his crop, to join the association at a meeting held in the Red Lion market house, Wednesday afternoon, March 12, when the plans of the association were further explained. Last year county growers obtained only three and three and one-half cents per pound, while before that the crop averaged eight cents for wrappers and two cents for fillers.

C. J. Hinman, who has been a traveling salesman for the Tampa cigar manufacturing house of L. Sanchez & Company, died recently in an Omaha hospital, aged fifty years. He had been with the Tampa concern for more than eighteen years, and is succeeded by W. H. Terrill.

Rene Van Crombrugge has remodeled his store at Green Bay. New fixtures have been installed and the place now presents a very attractive appearance.

Jos. Bimberg, of Elmira, New York, and Mr. Lichtenstein, of I. Lewis & Company, Newark, were visitors in the state markets.

Detroit

Rothschild Bros., Wholesale Leaf Dealers, to Retire—Buhler Tobacco Co., Successors—Geo. L. Storm Looks Over Detroit Situation

DETROIT, MICH., March 9.

ROTHSCHILD BROTHERS, wholesale leaf tobacco dealers, 77-79 West Jefferson Avenue, who have been in the business twenty-five years, are to retire within the next few weeks and the business will practically be taken over by the Buhler Tobacco Company, who will retain the same quarters. Since the first of the year Mr. Buhler has been in the brokerage business, previous to which time he was for fifteen years connected with the Rothschild Brothers. With Mr. Buhler will be associated F. C. Boland, for twelve years with the same firm, and R. F. Misch, also for a number of years connected therewith. The new firm will do a general brokerage business and carry a stock on hand as well.

The writer asked a prominent dealer the other day what cigarettes were selling the best, and he said, "Melachrino," "Philip Morris," "Fatimas," and that "Hassans" were picking up. He spoke of the fact that, notwithstanding the keen competition among the various brands, "Fatimas" were more than holding their own. Of course, the rugs have helped "Hassans," and it is now reported that Navajo rugs are to be given with "Arabs" and that an active campaign will be started at once throughout this territory. "The manufacturers don't know what a hardship this works on the retailer," said the dealer. "It's a lot of extra work and does not mean any more profit; it simply switches the cigarette smokers, compels the dealer to carry a larger assortment of brands, and is extra annoyance."

George L. Storm, of the Tobacco Products Company, spent March 4 here consulting with the leading jobbers. He left the same night for Chicago. He expressed himself as being very much elated over present conditions and said the new company was working out matters very satisfactorily. "We are getting rid of the old stock and will discontinue the poor selling brands formerly put out by the subsidiary companies. This will give us greater efficiency in pushing such brands as 'Milo,' 'Melachrino,' 'Rameses' and 'Arabs.'" Gordon Bailey had the honor of escorting Mr. Storm around the city during his stay here. Gordon is to have additional territory besides Michigan for the Surbrug Company and hereafter will also cover Northern Ohio.

The Central Cigar Company, at 8 Monroe Avenue, is giving away as an opening souvenir a handy match container and ash tray which customers are accepting with the usual "Gee, much obliged; that's all right."

W. J. Schloss, manager of the Spietz & Worch Company, states that his company is now making a new brand, "Reputation," for the Best & Russell Company, of Kansas City, same to be sold in tins at five cents. It is on the order of "Hand-Made," handled in the western territory by Niles & Moser, and also made in Detroit by the Wayne Cigar Company.

F. & E. Cranz, Sumatra importers, New York, have opened a Detroit office at 500 Sun Building, with C. S. Sarluy in charge.

Art N. Apple has been in Detroit for the past two weeks boosting for "Rameses." It is quite singular, in view of the fact that it is the first time in many years that the manufacturers of this brand have adopted any policy outside of "silent salesmanship" to push their goods. Mr. Apple, formerly in Kentucky for the Surbrug Company, will now cover Michigan, part of Ohio and Indiana.

The police have again started a crusade against the shaking of dice among the cigar stores and have been making the rounds the past week and informing the proprietors that they will have to "call an officer" should they be caught in the act. Dealers are adhering to the new command, although they believe that after a few weeks there will be no objection.

A former salesman for Y. Pendas & Alvarez, Gilbert Smith, is now with the Harry W. Watson Company and is in charge of the down-town stores; he has been calling on the dealers this week getting acquainted.

The Frank Smith who recently became associated with the Watson Company, looking after the western part of the state, is not the Frank M. Smith formerly at the Hotel Ponchartrain and who is now engaged in the brokerage business for himself at 29 McGraw Building. The latter is doing very nicely and is now arranging to broaden his sphere by taking larger quarters somewhere in the down-town district.

A full line of "La Mega" cigars, made by Guerra Diaz & Company, is carried by LaFond & Company, who feature them very often in their attractive windows.

E. M. Harris & Company are this week featuring a full window of "Flor De Jeitles" cigars. "They are getting to be one of my best sellers," said Mr. Harris. "Every time I make a window of them I am always sure of a big sale; most of the people that come in buy a quarter's worth." Jeitles & Blumenthal, Limited, Philadelphia, are the makers of this popular brand.

The sale of the baseball tickets which for many years has always been handled by the E. M. Harris Company is to be transferred to the Soper cigar store in the Dime Savings Bank Building.

Mel Soper is the busiest man in town these days. Everybody either wants to sell him something or else they have some great scheme to help him build up his business. No less than a thousand of his friends have promised to buy the first cigar. Mel says there will be no flowers, orchestra or cabaret entertainment; that when the time comes to open the doors they will just open naturally and that the "welcome" sign will prevail ever afterwards.

The "All Alike" nickel brand of the Juan F. Portuando Cigar Manufacturing Company is handled by a number of dealers in Detroit, who report that the sale is going along nicely and picking up.

The Hotel Ponchartrain have recently added the "Sol" brand, invincible chicos. Other brands added recently are "Castaneda," "Lucius" and "Aploma"; also "Unis" cigarettes put out by Philip Morris Company. Al Thornberg, manager of the cigar stand, says that "Carona-Carona" in boite nature packing is selling exceptionally well.

M. Rosenfeld, representative of the "Charles the Great" cigar, was a visitor this week, and said that business was never better. One of his best accounts is at O'Brien & Company, who feature them very strongly. While the writer was standing at the counter waiting to see Ed Heineman, manager of the cigar department, a prominent business man came in and asked for two boxes of this brand. "We have any number of such customers," said Ed.

The Detroit Hotel Men's Association went to Lansing on March 5 on some legislative matters; they took along a large assortment of "Webster" cigars.

A former friend of Hugo Waltzer of the proprietors of the Smoke Shop in Mount Clemens sent him the other day a hugh cigar, ten inches long and about six inches in diameter, with this enclosure, "It's better to smoke here than hereafter."

Scotten-Dillon Tobacco Company shares on the stock exchange the past week jumped two and one-half points in one day, going to 127 asked.

Latest statistics gathered by the Detroit Women's Club shows that there are between seven and eight thousand girls working in the Detroit cigar factories, doing piece-work and earning an average of from $8 to $14 per week. And then they talk about woman suffrage and more wages for the working girl. Where are the stenographers who as a whole will average as much?

F. H. Mertz Company, cigar manufacturers of Saginaw, are pushing the sale of their "La Merto" cigars in that vicinity and have them at practically every cigar stand in Saginaw and Bay City.

C. J. Morse's cigar store, at Greenville, Michigan, was destroyed by fire March 3.

J. J. O'Meara, a prominent cigar dealer in Kalamazoo, pulled off a clever publicity stunt the other day in connection with a new nickel cigar, "El Mara," which he is putting out. He took a liberal supply of them to the members of the editorial staff of the various papers in the city, with the result that he received some very flattering "free" notices. Talk about your Anna Held la Annette Kellerman press agent stories. Isn't this a new one for the cigar business and then get away with it?

No definite information can be secured regarding the rumor that Joseph T. Snyder, of Buffalo, would open a store on Woodward Avenue, Detroit. It is Mr. Snyder's idea to have a buffet in the rear and the cigar stand in the front.

Bert Johnson, of the G. & R. McMillan cigar department, is back from a few days' visit in Cleveland.

C. J. Holton, at the corner of Adams and John R. Streets, is using cards in the street cars, which read as follows: "I can save you thirty per cent. on smokers' articles. Why? I own the building."

There is a possibility that cigar stands will be installed in both the Board of Commerce Building, now in course of erection, and the Detroit Athletic Club, which will be ten stories high and soon to be erected on Madison Avenue.

W. J. Thorne, formerly at the Republic House, Bay City, is now operating the cigar stand at 28 Michigan Avenue, formerly owned by A. J. Klotz.

La Fond & Company have given up their quarters on Jefferson Avenue formerly devoted to the wholesale trade and moved the stock to their new Woodward Avenue store.

Harry Lichtig, who has the cigar privileges in the Medea, Park and Eastman hotels, Mount Clemens, Michigan, announces his candidacy for city treasurer on the Republican ticket. His many friends are glad to know that he has consented to enter the race.

George W. Spitzner, of George W. Spitzner & Company, tobacco dealers, is a prominent guest at the Park Hotel, Mount Clemens, where he will remain three weeks for the "cure."

Recent visitors: N. B. Shapera (M. A. Gunst & Company), A. J. McBlair (Marcelino Perez & Company), E. S. Trezevant (Park & Tilford), Tom D. Branyan (Jose Escalante & Company), Manuel Fernandez, Tampa; Alexander Herbert, vice-president of the Philip Morris Company, with Ben Bloch; Hi Hammer (Julia Marlowe).

Utah Senate Kills Street Car Smoking Bill

The Senate of Utah in a recent session in Salt Lake City, enjoyed a pleasant half hour in the gentle occupation of amending a bill to death. The measure was the Cottrell bill to prevent smoking on the platforms of street cars. Several amendments were tacked on the bill, making it ridiculous and then it was humanely put to death. The Cottrell bill made it a misdemeanor for any person to smoke on any platform of any street or railway car or in any part of the car except that reserved as a smoking compartment.

Seven Per Cent. Increase in First Ohio Output

ALTHOUGH there was one less working day this year than last in February, the First Ohio Internal Revenue District shows a gain for the month of seven per cent. in the manufacture of large cigars. Part of this may be accounted for by the addition of territory made a few months ago in that district.

The total production of large cigars during February amounted to 15,528,350, as against 14,584,330 the corresponding month last year, making an increase of 944,020, or seven per cent. The total production of manufactured tobacco, including all smoking and chewing brands, amounted to 2,279,692 pounds, a decrease, as compared with February of last year, of 238,567 pounds, or nine per cent.

The record for the expired two months of the current calendar year reveals the following comparisons in contrast with the corresponding period last year: Large cigars increased 2,310,413, or eight per cent.; cigarettes increased 3000; snuff increased five pounds; manufactured tobacco decreased 301,270 pounds, or six per cent.

The record for the expired eight months of the current fiscal year reveals the following comparisons in contrast with the corresponding period of the last fiscal year: Large cigars decreased 6,718,973, or five per cent.; cigarettes increased 1050; snuff increased eighty-five pounds; small cigars decreased 1200; manufactured tobacco increased 2,146,152 pounds, or eleven per cent.

Where to Get Good Scrap for Cigars

Cigar manufacturers who have use for scrap filler tobacco, will find exactly what they want in the line of select scrap filler that is being put out by the Horner Tobacco Company, of Dayton, Ohio. This concern has unsurpassed facilities for producing the very best scrap, free from stems, siftings and artificial flavoring, so that there is not an ounce of waste in working up their product into cigars. Samples will be furnished cheerfully by addressing the company at Dayton.

Christian Handel, one of the prominent growers of tobacco in Connecticut, died at his home in Hockanum, that state, on March 5. He was seventy-two years of age and came to this country from Germany at the age of thirteen years. He is survived by four sons and five daughters.

"Reform" Wave Started by Over Zealous Mayor Hits Cigar Stores—Albert Bejach Adds Pipe Repair Department—L. Newburger & Bro. Put Out Ten Cent Cigar, the "Fremosa"

CINCINNATI, March 12.

JUST now a wave of reform with a strong political flavor is sweeping over this city and our good mayor has singled out the cigar stores as being abiding places of hand-books and what not in the gambling line. Mister Mayor is the same gentleman who gave one of the Cincinnati stores a regular policeman for a guardian angel for fear that race horse bets would be made unless the blue coat was on the job.

This time he singled out the Walnut Street cigar store as being an abiding place of gambling. One noontime the Flying Squadron of plain clothes men descended and arrested Julius Schwalbe, the proprietor. They searched his clothes, took from him $15 in cash as evidence, threw him into jail, couldn't make a case against him and charged him with being a known gambler.

Schwalbe has never been known as a gambler, but as a cigarist, and the trade generally wonder at the rapacity of the mayor to stamp all cigar stores as being gambling nests and draw down the stigma that follows such raids.

The shortage in cigar help is getting to be almost a nauseous subject to bring up in a group of the local manufacturers. The old scheme of creating a school for learning the trade is again receiving close attention, and real action is promised within the next few months along this line.

Fool legislation is placing Ohio and Kansas in the same category. A nine-hour law for women has been passed in this ,state. Rush seasons call for night work in the short-handed cigar factories, and one of the most prominent manufacturers in the city said that it would work havoc with him when he was in his busy season.

"Picadura Export" has a running mate in "Fremosa," a new ten-center that is being placed on the market by L. Newburger & Brother.

Morris Burke, the smiling correspondent for THE TOBACCO WORLD, was a visitor to the local trade last week while on his way East. He came clean from Los Angeles, California.

L. Hirschberg, of D. Rosen & Company, called on the trade with a line of Sumatras last week.

Strauss Brothers & Company report a heavy sale of "Cuesta Reys." This line has made a big hit locally.

A cabled report received from Amsterdam to one of the big factories here states that the sales have not been favorable for light colors, and due to the heavy competition from the continent for the better marks prices will be stronger than ever.

Fred Rosenbusch, the Cincinnati jobber, is visiting friends in Memphis. He will be gone three or four weeks.

W. S. Teague, of Indianapolis, is a new addition to the sales forces out of this city. He is now with L. Newburger & Brother.

A. Boyd Wilson, the oldest in years but the youngest in spirit of the boys on the road, was in town last week putting out E. C. Fulweiler & Brother's Philadelphia line.

J. C. Neumann, of the J. C. Neumann Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, put in several days stirring up business among the local trade.

Albert Bejach is adding a pipe repair department to his Vine Street store. The department will be placed in the window for the time being to get the advertisement that the feature should draw.

Window trimming has been acknowledged an art, but no better display or more tasty designs have been seen for quite some time than are going into Krohn & Company's Walnut Street store. This week a window in red has attracted more than ordinary attention.

Ralph B. Oppenheim, of the El National Cigar Company, was hiking for orders this week.

The contingent of American Tobacco Company's men were headed by D. C. Kelley, of New York, and W. P. Moody, of Cleveland.

Stephen Herz, with Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, Tampa, was among the order-getters of the week.

Sol Rasener was busy with the orders for "Lovera" and the other of the Schwartz lines last week.

Charles Jacobs, of Carlos Fernendez & Company's Manila cigars, passed through on his way East.

Albert Weisert, of the Weisert Brothers' Tobacco Company, St. Louis, was a trade visitor.

Oscar Gassman, the Vine Street cigarist, has been ill at his home for the past two weeks with the grippe. It was feared the beginning of the week that it had turned to pneumonia.

Albert Bejach is seriously considering the establishment of a chain of cigar stores in Southern Ohio. L. Chickering has already put in his bid for manager of one of the new plants.

Tobacco Concerns Submit Annual Reports and Declare Dividends

Extra Dividend of 4 Per Cent. Declared by Liggett & Myers---Net Earnings of American Snuff, $2,090,559---New Plan for R. J. Reynolds Co.

Liggett & Myers Declare 4 Per Cent. Extra Dividend

THE Board of Directors of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company declared on March 10 an extra dividend of four per cent. upon the common stock. This is payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 21. In making the announcement C. C. Dula, president of the concern, says that the financial statement of the company for the year ended December 31, 1912, shows that the cash balance at the end of the year was $6,284,107.01, from which it might be inferred that a larger distribution could safely be made. He explains this by stating that heavy purchases of leaf tobacco and other supplies are to be made during the early part of the year, which accounts for the moderate extra dividend. The extra dividend, if any are to be made it is announced, will be declared hereafter at this time each year. The regular dividend is now twelve per cent., paid quarterly.

The report for the year in assets and liabilities is as follows:

ASSETS.

Havana Tobacco Company's Year

The report of the Havana Tobacco Company for the year ended December 31, 1912, shows a deficit of $567,486, against $570,192 incurred the previous year. The income account compares as follows:

	1912.	1911.
Dividends on Stock Owned	$50,822	$17,300
*Operating Expenses	243,308	212,492
Deficit	$192,486	$195,192
Bonded Interest	375,000	375,000
Deficit	$567,486	$570,192

*Including interest on bills payable and amount written off for depreciation of equipment.

American Cigar Co. Earns Less

The report of the American Cigar Company for the year ended December 31, 1912, shows net earnings of $1,540,185, a decrease of $72,647. The income account compares as follows:

Net Earnings	$1,540,185	— $72,647
Interest	41,667	— 200,000
Balance	$1,498,518	+ $127,352
Preferred Dividends	600,000	.....
Balance	$898,518	+ $127,352
Common Dividends	450,000	+ 300,000
Surplus	$448,518	— $172,648
Previous Surplus	7,428,576	+ 2,108,526
Profit from Sale of Securities	.....	— 930,869
Profit from sundry other sources	166,418	— 381,043
Loss in deposit of Interest in American Stogie Company	356,917	+ 356,917
Profit and Loss Surplus	$7,686,595	+ $258,019

The foregoing statement does not include this company's share of the undivided net profits of companies in which it holds stock, which have not been declared as dividends.

R. J. Reynolds Company's Tobacco Plan

Stockholders of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company have received circulars calling a special meeting on April 2, to authorize an issue of $10,000,000 seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock, which is to be returnable at 120 after three years. The company has $7,525,000 of common stock outstanding out of $10,000,000 authorized.

The subsidiaries cut loose from the American Tobacco Company, by which they were formerly financed, have found necessary considerable surpluses for handling purchases of leaf tobacco, and it is understood that the object of the preferred stock issue of the Reynolds Company is to supply this need, with the intention of retiring the stock after a sufficient surplus has been accumulated out of earnings.

Another Dividend of 2 1-2 Per Cent. for Melachrino Co.

The dividend of two and one-half per cent. on the Melachrino Company's stock announced last week makes a total of four and one-half per cent. declared by this concern since the incorporation of the Tobacco Products Corporation. The Melachrino concern has $3,500,000 stock outstanding, all of one class. All of its stock is owned by the Tobacco Products Corporation, and the dividends declared so far will amount to $157,500.

The initial dividend on the preferred stock of the Products concern, which is the holding company, will be payable about April 1. Directors will take formal action within a few days. The Products Company has $10,000,000 of a seven per cent. preferred issue outstanding, on which the initial obligation will amount to $175,000 for the quarter beginning January 1 last. In other words, the dividends paid on the Melachrino Company's stock alone will be nearly enough to meet the first dividend on the Tobacco Products preferred stock, without touching earnings of the other four operating companies.

The Stephano Brothers, the Philadelphia concern manufacturing the "Rameses" cigarette, is showing earnings approximately as large as those of the Melachrino Company, but no action has yet been taken by the Stephano directors relative to a dividend declaration.

British American Tobacco Co. Declares Dividend

The British American Tobacco Company, Limited, has declared an interim dividend of two and one-half per cent., free of income tax, on the ordinary shares, payable March 31. Transfers received in order in London up to March 20 will be in time to be passed for payment of dividend.

In connection with the dividend declaration directors of the British American Tobacco Company, Limited, state: "Whilst the progress of the business is quite satisfactory, the immediate engagements of the company render a conservative policy with regard to interim dividends desirable."

Favorable Report of American Snuff Co.

The report of the American Snuff Company for the year ended December 31, 1912, shows net earnings of $2,090,559; preferred dividends, $266,634; balance, $1,793,925; reserve for insurance, advertisement and guarantees not used, taken out of previous year's earnings, $314,568; total, $2,108,493; common dividends, $1,595,000; surplus, $513,493; previous surplus, $2,136,782; total surplus, $2,650,275; surplus reserve for working capital, $698,273; profit and loss surplus, $3,348,548. At the annual meeting of the stockholders J. Murtland was elected to succeed E. W. Somers on the board.

Newsy Trade Jottings

James H. Whitney, who conducts a cigar and tobacco store in Dewey Block, Bennington, Vermont, recently suffered a loss of $2000, through fire which started in a Chinese laundry and extended to the buildings adjoining. The loss is covered by insurance.

F. E. Watkins is now operating a new cigar store at the corner of Saxon and East Fourth Streets, Waterloo, Iowa.

A. Duwart, who opened a cigar store and factory at 266 Main Street, Gloucester, Massachusetts, late last fall, is now in position to supply the trade with domestic and imported cigars, tobacco of all kinds, and a full line of smokers' articles. His store, which is modern in every respect, is one of the attractions of Gloucester. "Top Notch" a five-cent cigar, and "Regal," a ten-cent Havana cigar, are being featured by Mr. Duwart.

HAVANA, March 8.

OUR leaf market during the past two weeks has been considerably quieter, as fewer buyers from the United States have visited us, and some of them have either come upon pleasure bent, or with an idea to post themselves personally as regards the coming crop. If it had not been for the purchases of one house that operated quite liberally in old Vuelta Abajo of the 1911 growth, we should have had to record a very dull market indeed. Very likely we shall have to wait now for the advent of the new crop before we can expect to see more life again in our market.

While there is still tobacco growing in the fields, we have had, however, enough humidity, particularly in the early morning hours, to permit the taking down from the poles of those dry leaves, which the anxious vegueros were disposed to handle, bundle them and to throw them into piles. As this class of tobacco constitutes the light, early harvested leaf, and which will not require too much fermentation in the pilon, it ought not to cause any surprise that two packers expect to start trial escogidas in the Vuelta Abajo and in the Partidos already on the fifteenth of this month, while others state that they intend to do so early in April. As many farmers are, however, not disposed to sell part of their crop, particularly when they have plants still in the fields, it is not likely that the packing season will commence in earnest until the month of May. This refers naturally only to the Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta and Partidos, as the Remedios crop, on account of its heavier quality, needs a longer time in the piles to undergo the fermentation process, and as the growth has been more backward this year also, therefore the escogidas cannot begin the earliest before the month of June. Of course, this does not preclude that some of the lighter styles might not be commenced to be packed in May. Unless it should still rain heavily this month, it is almost a foregone conclusion that the Remedios crop this year will be of a heavier quality, and there may be greatly reduced quantities of the lighter classes. We are now too far advanced in the season that we could expect, even if it should rain hard for a few days, to wash the gum out of the leaves, that such late cut tobacco would have a chance to dry off sufficiently before the rainy season should set in. Under these circumstances all tobacco that has not been harvested this month might as well be considered as useless, and the growing season can be considered as terminated.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 4369 bales of all kinds, or, divided, were: Vuelta Abajo, 3045; Partido, 314; Remedios, 530, and Oriente, 480 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 1198; exporters to Europe, 480; shippers to South America, 357, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 2334 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the two weeks ending March 1 were: To all ports of the United States, 9701; to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, 893, and to Hamburg, 480 bales; thus making the total exports, 11,074 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country:

	For two weeks ending February 27, 1913.		Since January 1, 1913.
Vuelta Abajo	477	bales	675	bales
Semi Vuelta	60	"	60	"
Partido	127	"	243	"
Remedios	117	"	454	"
Oriente	345	"	468	"
Total	1126	"	Total 1900	"

On the nineteenth of February it rained sufficiently in the Sancti Spiritus region to give a new impulse to the retarded growth of those vegas on account of the prolonged drought, and this may help to increase the quantity. In the Vuelta Abajo and the Partidos light rains have occurred more or less off and on, which have not alone been beneficial to the later set out plants, but also have given enough humidity to handle the dried leaves. Under these conditions the crop all over the island promises to be large in quantity, but as far as the quality is concerned it is best to await the further developments as to the drying and fermentation processes of the late harvest. The early cut tobacco indicates a fine character and ought to be of a superior quality, as far as we can judge now.

Little country buying has taken place so far as we have learned, as partly the vegueros have too high pretentions, which, in view of a large crop, are not justified, and partly because neither vegueros nor our leaf dealers are in a hurry to commence operations as long as there is still part of the crop in a growing state. In due course of time both opposing parties are bound to find the happy medium, and come to mutual satisfactory terms.

Cigars.

We now beg to give to the readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD the following figures of the exports of cigars from the port of Havana during the month of February, as per our official customhouse returns, and the comparison with the previous year, which we are very glad to note show a more satisfactory result for our cigar manufacturers:

From February 1 to February 28, 1913,	14,431,875	cigars
From February 1 to February 28, 1912,	12,494,267	"
Increase in the month of February, 1913,	1,937,608	"

The figures for this year, as compared with last year, are as follows:

From January 1 to February 28, 1913,	27,593,260	cigars
From January 1 to February 28, 1912,	23,902,647	"
Increase for the first two months of 1913	3,690,613	"

If the Democratic party in the United States should see fit to grant us a liberal reduction on the present exorbitant tariff, and if the high prices for Vuelta Abajo fillers and wrappers should give place to more moderate prices this year, then there is a hope at last that our cigar manufacturers should have a year of making some money, after so many disastrous poor years in succession.

By countries the following seven show increases during the month of February over last year, viz.:

Great Britain and Ireland	1,360,307	cigars
The United States	517,051	"
Canada	420,087	"
Austria	119,350	"
Italy	106,300	"
British Africa	89,000	"
Spain	34,965	"

Germany	191,362	cigars
Peru	120,400	"
French Africa	118,000	"
Argentine Republic	111,336	"
France	108,138	"
Canary Islands	36,830	"
Australia	21,923	"

H. Upmann & Company stated that they are busier than ever before at this season of the year, and that they are working as much as during the holiday season. They have a good-sized order slate to fill yet, and notwithstanding this new orders are coming forward in good shape from all the principal consuming countries, a proof that the cigars of the 1912 crop have found the deserved recognition of all smokers in the world.

Romeo y Julieta are as busy as previously reported, and there is no slackening up in the receipt of orders from all parts of the globe. Don Pepin Rodriguez was heartily welcomed by a very numerous contingent of friends, that went out in a tug to bring him ashore, as soon as the "Morro Castle" had passed the quarantine station on the 4th inst.

Partagas, according to Don Eustaquio Alonso, is exceedingly busy likewise in executing orders of large quantities for South America, England and the United States.

The Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, are working with very large forces in their principal factories. Director L. Stuart Houston returned here already on the 24th ulto. from his flying trip to the United States, and is head-over-heels busy.

Castañeda cigars are selling like hot cakes wherever they have been once introduced, and it seems that 129 Virtudes Street is a very lucky building, as it was in this location that Don Pepin Rodriguez commenced the wonderful rise in Romeo y Julieta cigars. Quien sabe, whether Cardenas & Company may not attain the same success in course of time?

The old reliable Sol factory, according to a circular issued by Behrens & Company, has made an arrangement with Don Manuel Campos to manufacture his brand "La Devesa de Murias" under a royalty plan, and with the option to purchase the same outright later on at a stipulated price. This arrangement ought to be a mutual satisfactory one, as in this manner both the manufacturing and selling expenses are reduced. The Sol and Luis Marx brands are in excellent demand in the principal markets of the world.

La Flor de José Otero is fully occupied for Canada, England and the United States.

Felipe Rodriguez & Company, owners of the Flor de P. A. Estanillo factory, have no reason to complain, as orders for their brands "Elite" and "Flor del Fumar" are coming forward at a lively clip, and specially the latter for high-priced regalia sizes.

Other factories that are working well are: Allones, Limited; C. E. Beck & Company; Eden; Por Larrañaga and La Escepcion.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Company were buyers of 1224 bales of Vuelta Abajo for export, and it is said that they will go to the South American republics.

F. Rocha & Company were sellers of 370 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to their customers.

Herrera, Calmet & Company disposed of 125 bales of Remedios to local and Northern buyers.

Calixto Lopez & Company are reported to have purchased 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Silas H. Haas invested in 240 bales of Vuelta Abajo, the best in our market, for his firm of M. J. Lopez & Company.

José Otero was a buyer of 125 bales of a select vega of Vuelta Abajo.

Muñiz Hermanos finally sold the last remnant of their stocks, consisting of 20 bales of Remedios, and they are now preparing for the coming campaign.

Don José C. Puente has taken passage to leave here on the 15th inst. by the French S. S. "Espagne" for his native country, Spain, to take a needed rest and join his family.

Shippers above 300 bales of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the last two weeks ending March 1 were: Sylvester & Stern, 2363; Seeler Pi & Company, 747; Leslie Pantin, 716; Mark A. Pollack, 697; Adolfe Moeller, 528; J. F. Berndes & Company, 501; J. Bernheim & Son, 472; H. Upmann & Company, 460; Ernest Ellinger & Company, 459; Miguel V. Perez, 446; Garcia & Company, 365; Diego Montero, 307; Rodriguez, Menendez & Company, 303, and Monroe Commercial Company, 303 bales.

Reorganized Ways and Means Committee Making Rapid Progress With New Tariff Bill

It Is Generally Believed That No Radical Departures Have Been Made—President Wilson's Final Verdict May Change Aspect of Affairs

WASHINGTON, March 11.

INTEREST in the tariff just now centers in the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, which is drafting a bill to be reported to the extra session of Congress next month. However, the real writer of the tariff bill will be President Wilson, according to the opinion held by many careful observers of national affairs. As soon as the old Congress expired the Democratic members of the new Congress caucused and elected three new Democratic members to serve on the Ways and Means Committee in place of those who were retired from public office.

The new committee has been in session ever since March 7, and has made rapid progress with the final reading of the bill to be reported to Congress. According to present prospects the new committee will report a very conservative bill, unless President Wilson interferes with its labors. The general understanding is that Chairman Underwood will consult with Mr. Wilson over the revised bill before a Democratic caucus is called previous to the assembling of Congress.

Your correspondent has been assured that the Ways and Means Committee does not contemplate making material changes in the duties on tobacco. It is the plan of the leaders in the House to leave the duties of this schedule stand just as they are. It was declared to your correspondent by one of the internal revenue experts who has been consulting with the committee that if the internal revenue tax on tobacco is increased, it will place tobacco upon the same basis as whiskey. It will necessitate placing an inspector in every factory, and will so increase the cost of collecting the tobacco tax as to lose all the benefits that might be derived from an increase in the revenue. The more conservative of the Democrats are converted to this line of reasoning and from the present outlook the conservatives are going to have the balance of power in Congress.

New Cigar Manufacturing House for Havana

Havana is to have a new cigar manufacturing firm which will do business under the title Compania Tabacalera Petronio. The president of the concern is C. Rovira; vice-president, Rafael Garcia Marques; general manager, Francisco Llopart, and secretary, E. Zanon. This concern controls the following brands: "Petronia" and "El Gavilan," of Llopart & Company, and "High Life," "Flor de Joaquin Ortiz," "Lord Nelson," and "La Granadina," of Rafael Garcia Marques.

The factory and offices of the concern are at 19 Estrella Street, Havana. In addition to manufacturing cigars, they will also make cigarettes and state that only the most select vegas from the Vuelta Abajo district, will be used for their products.

S. B. Postus, C. C. Richardson, J. L. Cook and J. D. Haselden are the organizers of the Pee Dee Warehouse Company, which was recently incorporated at Columbia, South Carolina, with a stated capital of $4000.

Joseph M. Jones has been appointed receiver for the Chapman Cigar Company, which operated a cigar store at Twelfth and Main Streets, Kansas City, Missouri.

Chicago

Majority of Cigar Factories Busy—Dealers Scrambling for Cigar Privileges in Loop—Price Cutting War Injuring Many Tobacco Men—H. R, Swezy Takes On Distribution of New Havana Cigar, the "El Finero"—Changes in Retail Stands

CHICAGO, March 12.

DISTRIBUTION is reported fairly good and most of the factories are about as busy as usual. While trade is reported fairly steady, the volume has not been so large as many had anticipated for February. However, dealers feel that there will be an awakening by the forepart of March, and that business will then continue brisk throughout the spring.

George L. Storm, of the Tobacco Products Company, made a hurried trip West this month, visiting Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, and stopped off at Buffalo on his return to New York. This is Mr. Storm's first visit to this territory since he became vice-president of the Tobacco Products Company.

Jacob Burger, representing Reiss Brothers & Company, the pipe house, has returned from an extended stay in California.

The Best & Russell Company are giving their customers a clever counter contrivance, which holds two cans of cigars, and the top is furnished with moistening attachment.

The Gene-Vall Cigar Company has opened an office in the Boyce Building. Lee Sandos has been added to the sales force.

E. L. Adams, manager of the Tom Jones cigar store, is again able to attend to business after a brief illness.

The store at the northwest corner of Jackson Boulevard has been leased by Fred Wells, the cigar man, for a term of ten years. The rental is understood to be $4500 for the first five years and $5500 for the second five. The acquisition of this corner will give Mr. Wells three stores in Chicago.

The United Cigar Stores Company has opened a new store at the corner of Fifty-first Street and Calumet Avenue.

William Campbell, formerly buyer in charge of the cigar department of the Grand Pacific Hotel, has become a city salesman for Celestino, Vega & Company.

The premium department of the United Cigar Stores Company is now installed in the new quarters on Jackson Boulevard, near State Street.

S. P. Hubley, representing Benson and Hedges, visited his friends here.

There is quite a scramble among both large and small cigar dealers for the stand privileges in three new office buildings that are now about ready for occupancy in the "Loop." The buildings are the Conway in West Madison Street, the State and Quincy Building in State Street, and at 209-19 South Wabash Avenue.

A. Weiss & Company have rented the basement in the new State and Quincy Building, and will conduct a restaurant similar to the well-known North American restaurant in the basement of the North American Building. A. Weiss & Company will install a line of imported and domestic cigars. This concern has just taken a lease for cafe and cigar purposes in the building at 139-41 North Wabash Avenue.

W. A. Yochem has entered the employ of the Charles Donovan Cigar Company, and is now engaging in organizing a field force.

Reid, Murdoch & Company, wholesale grocers and cigar dealers, have purchased the site on the north side of the Chicago River, extending from Clark Street to La Salle Avenue, with a frontage of 320 feet.

The price-cutting war that has characterized Chicago's cigar trade of late has proved very injurious to some interests. By giving special inducements a few cigar manufacturers won over a few dealers. This inducement consisted in giving an extra dollar on each box, handing out free cigars, and possibly making cigars much inferior than ordinary. Steele-Weedles have been carrying half-page advertisements in the local daily papers, using this argument in behalf of the "Tom Keene" cigar.

A. Reiss, of Alonso, Rejas Ca., Key West, has returned from a visit to the factory and a trip to Cuba.

F. A. Roller has been succeeded as manager of the Post-office cigar stand in the rotunda of the Federal Building, by B. A. Superfine. Mr. Superfine had been with the Best and Russell Company for many years, and more recently was manager of this concern's Otis Building cigar store.

Walter Sutter, of James Sutter & Sons, will leave shortly for Cuba.

The Best & Russell Company plans to open its store in the new Westminster Building, Dearborn and Monroe Streets, about March 15.

George J. Whelan Predicts Bright Future for "United"

GEORGE J. WHELAN, the guiding spirit of the United Cigar Stores Company, returned from a trip of several months' duration in Europe recently. Much of this time he had spent cruising in his yacht in the Mediterranean Sea. Upon being interviewed, Mr. Whelan was inclined to be very optimistic as to the future of the large chain of retail stores he organized.

"Basic conditions here are too sound to permit of any long continued depression," said Mr. Whelan. "The main uncertainty to my mind, at the moment, concerns pending tariff legislation. When that is once cleared up, I think an improvement will be shown all around."

As to conditions in the United Cigar Stores Company, Mr. Whelan said that all the reports he had received from the company officials while he was abroad, were of a most favorable character and indicated that the policy of expansion was being carried forward with excellent results. He said that business within the last two months had been running at the highest rate in the history of the concern. The store extension program will be continued during the present year at a rate proportionate to that of 1912.

Late Trade Items

The Bourbon Tobacco Warehouse Company, of Paris, Kentucky, has decided to erect another warehouse.

A cigar factory will shortly be opened in the Robert Gelly Building, Nakomis, Illinois, by H. G. Frederick.

Floyd Remington and Ernest Mitchel have purchased the Interurban Cigar Store of W. H. Arthur, at Bloomington, Illinois.

Following extensive alterations, Burdick A. Stewart has moved his cigar business to the Arcade Store, 170 North Street, in the Miller Building, Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

R. Clayton Green, and Dennis M. Howley, formerly employed as salesman for Oscar F. Rawson, have purchased the retail cigar business from their employer and will continue the business at 395 Main Street, Worcester, Massachusetts.

H. R. Swezy, known among the local tobacco trade as "Dad," and son Lou, who conduct the liberally patronized cigar store at 116 North La Salle Street, have recently taken the distributing end of a Havana cigar in Chicago that has made a "hit" from the start. The cigar is manufactured from a special brand of tobacco purchased by two local Spaniards, who made a trip to Cuba during the early winter and selected a lot that they were confident would produce just the kind of cigar there would be a good demand for. The cigar is known as "El Finero," and sells for ten cents straight and two-for-a-quarter. The Spaniards were undecided for some time as to who would best handle the selling end, but finally entered into negotiations with Mr. Swezy, and the latter realized that they had a good proposition. To date Mr. Swezy has been successful in introducing the cigar among about twenty jobbing interests, and it may be found in scores of retail stores.

According to reports, O. Schrader & Company will give up their East Randolph Street location May 1.

Sachs Brothers have opened up a new store at Fifty-first and Prairie.

The new "Tom Palmer" factory, of the Wengler and Mandell Company, at West Madison and Robey Streets will soon be ready for occupancy. This will be one of the most sanitary cigar factories in the world. Matt Wengler, who has been on the Pacific Coast for some time, is expected to return to Chicago any day.

The store recently opened by S. F. Grimes, at Evanston and Lawrence Avenue, has been purchased by A. E. Mandell. Mr. Grimes will devote his time to his cigar stand in the Central Drug Company.

HARRY E. RODENBAUGH.

Seattle

Charles W. Murch to Manage Alfred Stand—H. M. Prince Purchases Cigar Stand in Olympus Hotel, Tacoma—J. G. Seacamp Has New Store at 1406 Third Avenue

SEATTLE, March 5.

THE Tacoma Grocery Company, of Tacoma, reports a very big business. Mr. Gibbs, manager of the tobacco and cigar department, says the year is starting much better than last year. Some of the cigars marketed by them in Havana goods are the "El Telegrafo" and "Ruy Lopez"; in five-cent goods "Cuban King" and "Prefect."

All dealers that belong to the Retail Cigar Dealers' Association are boosting independent brands and getting big results.

Tim Caughlin, of Tacoma, reports the sale on "Union Scout Scrap" bigger than all other scraps combined. Tim says it's a world-beater, considering it being a new piece of goods on the market.

Miss La Voy, manager of the Donuley Hotel cigar stand at Tacoma, is taking a month's vacation to California and other points.

Sam Lavroff, who recently went into the sub-jobbing business in Tacoma, reports a steadily increasing business. Sam says he has to order "Lovera" cigars nearly every day.

J. F. Koch, proprietor of the Crown cigar factory at Hoquiam, Washington, reports a growing demand on his brands, which are "Crown of Washington," in ten and fifteen-cent cigars, and the "Little Hoquiam," in a five-cent cigar. These brands are exceptional big sellers in the Gray's Harbor district, which is a very strong union district. Mr. Koch says quality did it.

Cigar dealers will be interested to know that Chas. W. Murch, of Spokane, has been made manager of W. L. Alfred's cigar business in Tacoma. Mr. Murch is a very capable business man and understands the cigar and tobacco business from the ground up. Mr. Alfred is to be congratulated upon having obtained so capable a man to look after his interests.

H. M. Prince has purchased the cigar stand in the Olympus Hotel, Tacoma, Washington. This stand was formerly operated by R. C. Van de Grift. Mr. Prince now has three stores in Tacoma and is doing a steadily increasing business.

C. A. Whelan, of the United Cigar Stores Company, was a recent visitor in Seattle, that being his first visit here.

J. G. Seacamp, who formerly had a cigar store on First Avenue, but who lost his location some time ago, now has a new store at 1406 Third Avenue.

Opening Western Territory for Detroit Concern

It is no easy matter to open up a new territory for a concern entering a certain section of the country. And when it comes to breaking in the trade on the Pacific Coast, it takes a man who can "make the fur fly." The illustration herewith is of one who has made a point of studying the best manner of going about this proceeding and no person who has watched his operations in the states of Oregon and Washington can deny the fact that he knows a thing or two about selling products to the tobacconist. E. H. Gerlach, the aforesaid traveler, has been opening up the Western territory for the McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company, of Detroit, Michigan, and in the time he has been pushing these goods—six months—has made a pronounced dent or two in placing his brands. He sells "Union Scout Scrap," "Winegold," "Katahdin," "Country Club," "Royal Smoke," and other brands made by the Detroit concern. He had been with the American Tobacco Company, working as a salesman for six years, and in that time became well acquainted with the conditions and the best selling methods now existing on the Coast.

E. H. Gerlach

Mr. Gerlach believes that to make a success of his line of work a salesman should have absolute confidence in his goods, work the Golden Rule in all his dealings, give the manufacturer a square deal, and in working have confidence in his ability to make good.

C. E. Smith, J. R. Brewster and N. E. Nelson have been spending a good deal of time lately in Olympia looking after measures of interest to the trade.

N. Eckstein, vice-president of Schwabacher Brothers & Company, Incorporated, has been elected vice-president of the Potlatch Association.

J. F. Lang, president of the National Grocery Company, has been in California for several weeks.

"ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME"

Window display in Wee Cigar Store, Wenatchee, Washington, Jacob Heimberger, Proprietor. It will be noticed that "La Famosa" cigars, made by E. Kleiner & Co., of New York, are the main attraction.

The Different Processes of Tobacco Curing

Department of Agriculture Publishes Interesting Bulletin Compiled by W. W. Garner, Expert in Charge of Tobacco Investigation

ONE of the characteristics of the tobacco industry is the fact that there are a large number of distinct types of tobacco produced, and the methods of curing often differ radically as applied to these different types. There are two distinct methods of harvesting tobacco, but aside from this there are three essentially different ways of carrying out the curing. These are (1) air curing, in which little or no artificial heat is applied; (2) flue curing, in which the tobacco is entirely cured by artificial heat and in such way as to prevent smoke from coming in contact with the leaf; and (3) fire curing, in which the tobacco is largely cured by artificial heat applied by means of open fires made on the floor of the barn, thus allowing smoke to come in contact with the leaf. It will be necessary to consider separately each of these methods, together with the modifications made in them in curing the various types of tobacco.

The Ripening of Tobacco.

In all cases the first requirement for good curing is that the tobacco be harvested when "ripe." The young growing leaf has a deep-green color, showing that it is quite rich in the nitrogenous constituents which go to make up the living or vital part of the leaf and which are active in building up the food supply of the plant. At about the time the leaves of the plant as a whole have reached their maximum power of manufacturing this food supply, the flower head begins to develop, and the food supply, consisting of starch and other substances, is carried from the leaf through the stalk into the seed head to furnish the necessary food for the development of the seed. In practice, however, the plant is topped, so that the seeds are not allowed to develop. Making a further effort to reproduce itself, the plant then sends out secondary shoots or suckers, which receive food from the leaves, but these, too, are removed by the grower. Under these circumstances the food built up by the leaves is not carried into the stalk to any considerable extent, but accumulates in the leaves themselves. The result is that both the size and body or thickness of the leaf are increased.

The surplus food supply which accumulates in the leaf, largely in the form of starch, replaces in part the green coloring matters, thus causing the appearance of a lighter shade of green and of the light-tinted flecks characteristic of the ripe leaf. The accumulation of the starchy material in the leaf also causes it to become brittle, so that it snaps when folded between the fingers—another sign of ripeness. This replacement of the green coloring matter by the starchy material has a most important effect on the color, aroma, elasticity, and finish of the cured leaf. Much of the success in curing tobacco depends on harvesting it at just the right time, when it is neither too ripe nor too green. The degree of ripeness, however, which the leaf must attain to secure the best results in curing varies greatly, depending on the type of tobacco grown.

Nature of the Curing Process.

If a ripe leaf of tobacco is quickly dried with heat it does not show the desirable properties of cured tobacco, so that curing is not simply drying out the leaf, but it involves other important changes in composition which can take place only under certain favorable conditions. Again, if a fresh leaf is exposed in a closed vessel to the vapors of chloroform or formaldehyde for a few minutes and then placed in the curing barn it can not be made to cure properly. The effect of the chloroform or formaldehyde is to kill the leaf quickly; hence, we see that prematurely killing the leaf prevents curing, or, in other words, curing is largely a living or vital process. The surplus supply of food which the leaf accumulates during the ripening period enables it to continue to live for several days after being harvested. When this reserve food supply is exhausted the leaf dies and is then nearly cured.

Curing, then, is forcing the leaves to undergo a process of gradual starvation under proper conditions. Anything which kills the leaf prematurely, such as bruising or breaking in harvesting, freezing, or very rapid drying, will prevent good curing. Moreover, the leaf, when harvested, contains a large quantity of water, most of which is lost during the curing, and the rate of drying has an important effect on the result of the curing.

Curing Picked Leaves Compared With Curing on the Stalk.

There are two general methods of harvesting the tobacco crop and of arranging it in the barn. In one method the leaves are picked from the stalk as they ripen and are arranged on strings or sticks suitable for hanging in the curing shed, while in the other the leaves are not removed from the stalks, but the latter are cut off near the ground and hung up in the barn, with the tips downward. The leaves on the plant do not all ripen at the same time, so that the stalks are cut at such a time as will give the greatest number of the best leaves at the proper stage of ripeness. This causes a considerable sacrifice in both bottom and top leaves, since the former are overripe and the latter still immature, but this process saves labor. In many cases both methods give satisfactory results when properly carried out, and the question as to which is the better in any given case must be decided largely by the local conditions, such as the amount and kind of the labor supply, the barn space available, and the like, as well as by the relative value of the crop to be cured. Much of the highest priced tobacco is now being cured after the leaves have been picked from the stalk by the method generally spoken of as "priming."

Although either method may give good results, there are undoubtedly differences in the yield and character of the cured product. To understand the differences brought about by the two methods, it must be remembered that the leaves and the stalks remain alive for several days, or even weeks, after harvesting, depending on the conditions in the curing barn. During this period of gradual starvation they are enabled to remain alive by means of the reserve food supply stored up during the ripening process, so long as they retain sufficient moisture. The loss in weight of the dry matter of the leaf as a direct result of the starvation process usually amounts to from twelve to twenty per cent. in either method.

When the leaves are cured on the stalk there is a further loss in weight from another cause. It has been pointed out that while the plant is growing in the field there is a movement of food materials from the leaves into the stalk, and exactly the same thing happens in the curing barn when the tobacco is harvested by cutting the stalk. When the leaves are primed, there is, of course, no chance for this movement from leaf to stalk to take place. The result is that leaves cured by priming are ten to twelve per cent. heavier than if cured on the stalk. It has also been found that if suckers are left on the stalk at the time of harvesting, there is a still greater loss of weight in curing the entire plant. But this is not all, for when the lower leaves are picked from the plant it causes those left on the stalk to increase in size and weight, so that altogether there is a gain in weight of fully twenty to twenty-five per cent. when the tobacco is harvested by picking the leaves from the stalk.

The longer curing period and the movement of materials from the leaf into the stalk, when curing on the stalk is practiced, also affect the quality of the cured tobacco. Other things being equal, the picked leaves will have more of the so-called "oil" or "gum," greater elasticity, and more body than those cured on the stalk. Which method gives the better quality must be determined separately for the different classes or types of tobacco.

The above-mentioned facts apply more particularly to the usual methods of harvesting and curing cigar tobacco. In most of the manufacturing and export districts the greater portion of the stalk is split open in harvesting, which greatly shortens its life in the barn, and in flue curing the life of the stalk is further shortened by the higher temperatures used, so that there is less opportunity for the transfer of food materials from the leaf to the stalk. Under these circumstances there is less difference in yield and quality of cured leaf between priming and curing on the stalk. The applications of the two methods of harvesting are considered in detail in later paragraphs of this bulletin relating to the curing of the various types.

Air Curing.

Nearly all the cigar tobaccos, wherever produced, the immense quantities of Burley and other manufacturing tobaccos grown in Kentucky and adjoining states, the Maryland export, and the Virginia sun-cured types are all air cured; that is, they are cured without the use of artificial heat except, in some cases, during periods of wet weather. The tobacco is placed in the barn in the ripened state, usually after having been wilted, and the curing is controlled simply by regulating the ventilation.

During the first stage of curing, while the leaf is undergoing starvation, it is also gradually losing the water which it contains, and one of the most important features of the curing is to properly regulate the rate of drying. If the leaf is dried too rapidly it is killed prematurely, and the curing is stopped, while if the rate of drying is too slow the curing goes too far. The rate of drying depends principally on the humidity in the barn. The fully ripe leaf is very rich in starch, and one of the important changes in the curing is the disappearance of this starch, which is consumed largely by the living portion of the leaf itself. If the leaf is killed by bruising, rapid drying, or heating too high, there is no means of removing this starch, and the tobacco is harsh, lifeless and "strawy." Some of the nitrogenous constituents are also changed during the starvation period. These are the first changes necessary for curing. Along with these changes in composition the green color is replaced by a lemon yellow. If, by bruising or rapid drying out, the green leaf is killed outright soon after harvesting, the green color can not be removed by any later treatment the leaf may receive; but if the leaf remains alive two or three days under good curing conditions, any green color then remaining may be removed by sweating or fermentation.

The full development of the yellow color marks the end of the first period of the curing. The changes taking place in the second stage are for the most part quite different from those occurring in the first stage of the curing. After the leaf is dead no more of the starch is consumed, nor are the insoluble nitrogen compounds further changed. One of the most important changes in the second stage is the change in color from yellow to brown or red, which is caused by a process of oxidation that does not take place till the cells of the leaf are dead. The two conditions necessary for the development of the brown color are a supply of air and sufficient moisture. In air curing the principal danger is that the change will go too far, because of excessive moisture, causing the tobacco to cure too dark.

As regards quantity, the most important change in the curing is the loss of water. The tobacco leaf ordinarily loses about seventy-five per cent. of its green weight in curing, and by far the greater portion of this loss is water. Thus, the tobacco from an acre yielding 1800 pounds of cured leaf weighs when harvested something like eight tons, including the stalks. Of these eight tons fully six tons are water. To cure tobacco successfully this vast quantity of water must be removed under such conditions and at such a rate as will best allow the other important changes to take place.

Conditions Most Favorable for Air Curing.

The living cells of the leaf are killed by excessively low or high temperatures and by loss of water. In practice the most favorable temperatures for the first stage of air curing lie between 70° and 100° F., and the relative humidity should be about eighty-five per cent. Under these conditions the leaf will gradually lose its water, but will not become brittle, and the curing will proceed smoothly. If the humidity becomes much higher, pole-sweat will develop on the leaves most advanced in the curing, while if the humidity falls much below this figure the leaf will dry out too rapidly. In the second stage of the curing, when the leaf begins to turn brown, there is no longer any need for keeping the air in the barn so moist, and the leaf should be allowed to dry rather rapidly until the stems have become brittle. It is desirable to prevent the tobacco from coming into very high "case"—that is, from becoming very moist, after curing and before it is taken down—so it should be stripped and assorted as soon as possible after the curing is completed.

Unfortunately, growers at the present time have very limited means of controlling the temperature and humidity in the barn in the air-curing process. If the season is too dry the tobacco "hays down"—that is, simply dries out like hay—while if it is too wet the tobacco is also seriously damaged.

Serious damage to the tobacco crop results annually from lack of means for maintaining the proper conditions in the barn during the curing period, and this loss can never be overcome until satisfactory methods are provided for conducting the cure independently of outside weather conditions. All experienced tobacco growers are aware of the serious damage likely to result from pole-sweat, or house-burn, during periods of very wet weather, but few fully appreciate the extent of the injury in quality caused by the opposite extreme of excessively dry weather.

Pole-sweat or House-burn.

Pole-sweat, or house-burn, which is especially to be looked for during periods of prolonged wet weather, accompanied by rather high temperatures, occurs the world over where tobacco is cured without the use of heat. It is caused by minute organisms, which attack those parts of the leaf that give it toughness and stiffness, causing it to soften and decay. Pole-sweat does not occur until after the leaf tissue dies, but, of course, some parts of the leaf may die much sooner than others, so that the disease may appear before the entire leaf is dead. The organisms which cause this trouble are not active at very low temperatures, so that pole-sweat does not appear to any extent in cold weather. Furthermore, they thrive only in the presence of an abundance of moisture. The three necessary conditions for the rapid spread of the disease, then, are (1) tobacco which has passed through the first stage of the cure or which has been killed by bruising or other injury, (2) a temperature ranging from 60° to 100° F., and (3) a relative humidity of ninety per cent. or more, which checks the evaporation from the leaves, causing them to become soggy. Of course, conditions favorable to pole-sweat may exist for short periods without the appearance of the disease, but it will certainly develop if these conditions continue for twenty-four to forty-eight hours. There is no doubt that the remedy for this trouble lies in controlling the humidity in the curing barn during periods of excessively damp weather, and the only practicable means of accomplishing this is by using artificial heat. This subject is considered in the discussion of methods of curing cigar tobaccos.

Effect of Heat and Ventilation.

Air curing, pure and simple, gives satisfactory results only when weather conditions are favorable. When the weather is unfavorable, more or less artificial heat must be applied to insure success. At the time the tobacco is hung in the barn water is evaporating from the surface of the leaves, and this evaporation continues until the surrounding space is saturated with moisture. Hence, the evaporation from the fresh leaves will soon cease unless the moisture is removed by circulation of the air. In moderately dry weather ventilation is all that is needed to secure favorable curing conditions, provided the temperature is not too low. In very dry weather the evaporation from the leaves can be kept in check by having the barn built as tight as possible and by keeping the ventilators closed during the day. If the temperature is low, the curing changes are stopped, although the tobacco may continue to dry out. In this case the leaf is simply dried and not cured.

During rainy or foggy weather the air is practically saturated with moisture, and since it can not take up any more, ventilation alone is useless under these circumstances. The capacity of the air in a given space for holding moisture is greatly influenced by the temperature, and by raising the temperature about 20° F. we double the capacity for holding moisture. In wet weather artificial heat is required to reduce the humidity in the barn. With suitable means of maintaining the temperature in the barn from 15° to 20° F. higher than that of the outside air, combined with proper ventilation, the problem of controlling the curing conditions is solved. An insufficient quantity of heat is worse than none, and enough must be applied to warm the barn to the top and thus drive out the moisture. When the temperature is below 50° F. heat is needed for good curing regardless of the humidity, for while the tobacco may dry, it can not cure properly at low temperatures. Available methods of applying artificial heat in air curing are presented in the paragraphs relating to cigar tobaccos.

Curing Cigar Tobaccos.

The bulk of the cigar-tobacco crop at the present time is grown in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Ohio, Florida and Georgia. The finest grades of wrapper leaf are grown in the Connecticut Valley and in a few counties of Western Florida and Southern Georgia, while Wisconsin is known as a binder state, and New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio mainly produce filler grades. All cigar tobaccos are air cured, and the general methods of procedure are essentially the same in all the states that grow cigar tobacco. Artificial heat is being used more and more, however, in curing the wrapper types.

Police Shut Down on Dice-Shaking and Raffling, Which Injures Trade —"New Bachelor" Cigar Going Strong—Stace & Vincent Co. Takes on "El Perco" in Eight Sizes—Richland Cigar Co. to Open New Store

CLEVELAND, March 10.

AT a recent ruling of the police department of this city, which went into effect last week, dice shaking and raffling of all kinds has been prohibited. This has had a marked effect on dealers, as they say that this practice was a stimulating influence on their business. As a consequence of this ruling there has been a falling off in business amongst the dealers.

The Pyle & Allen Company report that the general outlook for business is better than any previous year that they have been in business. Their wholesale business has shown a substantial increase over the same period for last year. The retail business also shows a healthy increase. They have been handicapped by the shortage of "Bachelors" as usual, and the factory reports as being unable to fill orders on same. The sales on this brand are running stronger than ever.

They report the "Sanchez and Haya" brand as going very strong and the new goods coming in look and smoke very fine. The brand is a large seller in this vicinity.

George Meigs, general representative of the Sanchez y Haya factory, was in Cleveland on Monday, March 3, and with him was Mr. Bert Johnson, of Detroit. Mr. Johnson is the proprietor of the cigar department of the G. & R. McMillan Company in Detroit.

Mr. Victor Thorsch, general representative of the T. J. Dunn Company, of New York, makers of the "New Bachelor" cigar, was in Cleveland Wednesday last. Mr. Thorsch reports trade conditions throughout the country as looking very prosperous.

Fred Suss, of the Liederkranz factory, and Alex. Herbert, vice-president of the Phillip Morris factory, were also recent visitors in Cleveland.

Mr. Allen, of the Pyle & Allen Company, left Saturday for a short business trip to New York.

W. A. Bonn, who is working with the salesmen of the J. B. Moos Company in the interests of "El Yutan" and "La Natoma" brands, reports some very fine orders.

John L. Miller, Jr., manager of the local house of Moos, has just returned from Cincinnati, where he went to get some ideas as to the proposed extensive campaign on "Permit" cigars, as outlined by President Brown, who recently returned from New York.

"Stag," the five-cent brand of tobacco being introduced here by the Lorillard Company, is responding very rapidly to consistent newspaper and other advertising.

Edward Trezevant, representing the cigar department of Park & Tilford, New York City, was in the city this past week.

M. E. Loeb, of M. E. Loeb & Company, Canton, Ohio, distributors of the "La Saramita," was a visitor to the Shields & Wertheim factory this week placing his spring order for "La Saramitas." He reports a great sale on this brand during January and February, and the only objection he has to offer is that he can't get them fast enough. Mr. Loeb is one of the best-thought-of men in Canton and he has made the dealers sit up and take notice with his general activity.

The London Whiff factory is making a big effort on their "Moses Cleveland," which is proving successful in all sections of the country where it is placed.

Mr. Heane, manager of the Joseph Snyder cigar stores in this city, was in Buffalo for a few days last week in the interest of his business.

The Stace & Vincent Company have stocked the brand of "El Perco," of M. Perez, Key West, Florida, in eight sizes, for the retail business only. This firm expected to open their new store by now, but on account of the fixtures being delayed in arriving here the opening was postponed.

Amongst the local visitors in town this past week were Mr. John Easton, of the Falk Tobacco Company, and Mr. L. E. McKitterick, of the Melachrino Company.

A new cigar store by the Richland Cigar Company will be opened up this month at 521 Euclid Avenue.

Gunst-U. C. M. C. Consolidation Has Made No Changes on Coast—Southern Pacific Lowers Rates on Tobacco—Retail Dealers' Association Affiliates With Chamber of Commerce—Gunst & Co. Introduce Two New Lines of Cigars

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.

MARCH has opened with the finest of spring weather all along the Pacific Coast, and retail trade has been very good as a result. The dry weather in some sections and the fear of short crops in many of the grain-growing sections of the West have made the wholesale business a little smaller than it otherwise would have been, but jobbers are confident that the spring's business will come fully up to the average. Building and financial conditions, as shown by the records for February now made public, show all of the larger Coast cities to be in an unusually prosperous condition.

Much interest still attaches to the recent consolidation of M. A. Gunst & Company and the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, but so far there has been absolutely no change in the Pacific Coast branches of M. A. Gunst & Company. Morgan Gunst, of San Francisco, is now in Seattle on a visit to the company's northern headquarters, and other officials of the company are still in the East.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company has arranged for a change in its carload rate on plug and smoking tobaccos, which will be of considerable benefit to the San Francisco jobbing trade. A new schedule will be published granting a rate of $1.75 per hundred pounds on plug and smoking tobaccos in mixed lots from eastern common points to Pacific Coast terminals, the minimum weight to be 40,000. Heretofore the shippers have been compelled to ship a full straight carload of each kind of tobacco in order to get the benefit of the carload rate. The rate and the minimum weight requirement are unchanged.

In common with other retail trade associations of this city, the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association has affiliated with the recently organized retail wing of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, and will hereafter act in unison with the city's central body. J. C. Connor and W. Martin, of the Cigar Dealers' Association, have been chosen to represent the association in the Chamber of Commerce. The retail trade seems to appreciate the work of the organization, particularly the service performed by the "Sifting Committee."

M. A. Gunst & Company are doing their share in getting out new goods this spring. Two new lines are announced this week. One of these is the new ideal size of their clear Havana leader, the "Van Dyck"; the other is a five-cent straight size of their "Alhambra" line of Manila cigars, to be known as the "Pacifico." The new "Van Dyck" goes to the trade at $100 and the new "Alhambra" at $38.50. M. A. Gunst & Company got in a cool million "Alhambras" from Manila on the steamer "Korea" this week. Another million is expected on the next trans-Pacific steamer.

A. Determan, of the New York house of the Manila Commercial Company, and I. Danziger, of this city, Coast representative of the Manila Commercial Company, who left here for the northern end of the Coast about ten days since, are now reported as about through with their Coast business and ready to tackle the Mountain States. At Salt Lake or Denver the two will separate, Mr. Determan going to New York and Mr. Danziger returning to California via Reno, Nevada.

The Edward Wolf Company, San Francisco, distributers for the "Nestor" line of cigarettes, is without advices from the Tobacco Products Company, the new owners of the American end of the "Nestor" business. News of the sale of the American business of the Nestor Gianaclis Company, of Boston, and Cairo, Egypt, to the Tobacco Products Company, of New York, reached here early this week.

W. W. Linn, head of the "Bull Durham" department of the American Tobacco Company, who reached San Francisco a couple of weeks ago, is now spending a few days in the Hawaiian Islands. He was accompanied on the trip by T. W. Harris, of this city, president of the Tobacco Company of California.

Emil Judell, who has just completed his regular Oregon trip in the interest of H. L. Judell & Company, has closed with a round-up of the trade of the Coos Bay towns in Southern Oregon and is now on his way home by steamer. He had a good trip, notwithstanding some adverse conditions which have been reported as prevalent in Oregon and Washington. H. L. Judell & Company are having a run on the "Chimo," the new five-cent line of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and on the "Watt" cigar of the Bondy & Lederer Company. H. L. Judell expects that 1913 will show a decided increase over 1912 in the total volume of business.

Boltz, Clymer & Company report that their traveling men are now all out in their respective territories and that almost without exception they are sending in good returns. J. A. McHenry is now working the Salinas Valley, where the farmers are reported a little short of rain for the year's crop, but he seems to be getting a nice business nevertheless.

Ehrman Brothers & Company now have their new office quarters nicely fitted up on the second floor, which is almost wholly given over to them. The ground floor space heretofore occupied by the offices is now used for salesroom purposes. "Optimos" have begun the first month of spring with a good showing, running considerably ahead of the same time last year.

Buying Up Lancaster County Tobacco at Seven Cents

LANCASTER, March 7.

WHILE business among the cigar manufacturers in this city and vicinity does not have the snap it had a month ago, there is no reason for complaint. The smaller concerns state that they have a much better trade than at this time last year and expect to have a good year. The larger concerns have standing orders on hand and are running to full capacity.

The big feature of the trade in a news way at present is the leaf situation, and this is depressing in a way. There has been little doing for packers lately for Pennsylvania and their principal transactions have been in other tobaccos.

There has been but little buying the past two weeks, but from present indications there will soon be more activity. Packers positively refused to pay the prices asked by the growers and buying almost came to a standstill. Now the growers realize that, owing to the large amount of Pennsylvania in the hands of local packers, they will have to lower their prices.

Since there has been a drop buyers have been taking over crops at 7 and 8 cents a pound which would have brought 10 cents earlier in the season. In some cases the original demand for the leaf was 11 cents. At the rate at which the tobacco is being taken over it will be months before the crop is cleaned up.

In spite of the disappointment that many of the planters experienced this year, present indications point to about the same acreage this year as last—16,000 acres.

Plans now under way for building a drug store on the corner of Chestnut and Queen Streets necessitate a number of changes in that neighborhood. The Steinfeldt cigar store will be moved across the street on April 1. This is just as good a location and should not affect the business in any way outside of the inconvenience of moving. Mr. Steinfeldt has a catching display of "Bold" cigars, made by Bobrow Brothers, of Philadelphia, in his window this week. He has taken on a man to place the brand with the retailers and has it already placed with sixty stores throughout the county.

Swartz & Company, just around the corner from the Steinfeldt store, who operate the cigar store in the shoe shining parlor, will also be compelled to remove and will go to 60 North Queen Street.

Mr. Sherts, of the Sherts Cigar Company, is on a trip through Eastern Pennsylvania in the interest of his cigars.

The Booth Tobacco Company, which sustained a loss of about $6000 in a recent fire, is again doing business. They wired for more goods as soon as the fire was over and lost little time in again getting in running order. The loss was covered by insurance.

D. W. Keller has been appointed foreman of the Eisenlohr cigar factory in Boyertown, where about 500 hands are employed. He was formerly connected with the Sig. C. Mayer plant at Red Hill.

Henry J. Rindskopf, the leaf dealer, is making preparations for moving his office on April 1 from his present location at 11 West Lemon Street to larger quarters at 341 North Queen Street.

Latest Doings in York and Vicinity

YORK, March 8.

THE cigar industry has slackened off to an extent, although the manufacturers are not alarmed by any means. The majority of the factories are running with a full force of hands. The indications are that the spring trade will open up nicely this year. The retail trade is quiet. The leaf men also are resting on their oars.

Charles H. Plitt, head of the C. H. Plitt Cigar Company, was a visitor in Washington during the inauguration proceedings. While in the city Mr. Plitt called upon his jobber there, W. A. Hall, who distributes the cigar made for him by Mr. Plitt, "Hall's Star," also the "Twentieth Century," both nickel brands. Mr. Hall has only recently secured a new building at Pennsylvania Avenue and Seventh Street.

The Eisenlohr plant is one of the busiest in town. It has been running at night some time in order to catch up with the orders.

A new manufacturing firm has opened up in the building occupied formerly by Herman Warner & Company. Although the entire plans for the conduct of the business have not been made public, the concern will be known as Hene & Hyams.

The D. & K. Cigar Company, of Dallastown, although a comparatively young firm, is making good headway with their products. Their biggest seller is the "D. & K. Special." They now have plans under way for putting out another nickel cigar, also a ten-cent brand.

John Fidler, who travels in the interest of the firm of J. W. Minnich & Son, of Dallastown, is again home after a trip to western points. He is more than satisfied with the prospects for the coming year.

The Popper Cigar Company, of McSherrystown, Pennsylvania, have made arrangements for distributing their cigars more widely throughout the Pacific Coast States. For this purpose they have closed a deal with Morris Burke, a well-known cigar broker of Los Angeles, who will cover the western part of the country for them from Washington to Southern California, also a number of interior points like Salt Lake City and Denver.

Young & Busser, the retail and wholesale cigar house of this city, have made a deal with the National Retailers' Coupon Company, of New York City, whereby they will use, and also distribute among retailers of this city to use, the coupons made by the New York concern. The system as used so far has been a success. It is planned to place these coupons with all the cigar dealers, also saloons handling cigars throughout the city, so that they will be prepared in case one of the stands of the United Cigar Stores enters this city.

A visit to outlying points shows that the cigar business is in a most flourishing condition. The Yoe factories, also those in other towns, have in some cases been working overtime.

Ezra B. Bear and William H. Emlet, of Hanover, and John Neiderer, son of Peter Neiderer, of near Mount Rock, Adams County, have returned from Porto Rico, where they spent nearly three months on the plantation of the American-West Indies Tobacco Company, at Caguas, situated twenty-eight miles from San Juan. H. N. Gitt, Hanover, one of the officers of the company, who spent three weeks on the island, returned with them. The men report that the early tobacco was the finest leaf that they had ever seen. Hundreds of acres on the plantation yielded a crop, standing ten feet in height, in sixty-five days. Some of the leaves were thirty-two inches in length. They may return to the island in October.

Lebanon Factory for Yocum Bros., of Reading

READING, March 7.

THERE has not been much of a let-up in the bustle around the cigar factories. Every plant of size in town is doing a fair business and some of them have more than they can handle. Efforts have been made by several firms to secure additional quarters for manufacturing their products, but only one concern has made any definite selection at this writing. The retail trade is quiet, although better than at this time last year.

Yocum Brothers, who have been on the lookout for another factory for some time, have selected a location in Lebanon, which it is expected will be open next Monday. It is planned now to open with about twenty-five hands and increase the force just as fast as additional cigarmakers can be secured. The Yocum business has been increasing wonderfully the past few years and they have been oversold for some time. The new factory in Lebanon is located in the Rauch Building, Cumberland Street, near Seventh, and occupies the second and third floors of the place. The Board of Trade of the city interested the Reading concern in the advantages of locating a factory there.

Charles M. Yetter, the cigar manufacturer of this city, has added another factory to his business. The new plant will be known as the Policy Cigar Company. Mr. Yetter has been exceptionally busy for some time and expects to do a record-breaking trade during the year 1913.

The cigar manufacturing firm of C. R. Lutz has filed an additional bond of $6000, so as to increase their working force to seventy-five employees. This concern is located at 133 North Third Street, and has been increasing their output to such a point that the necessity of securing more hands was imperative.

Breneiser & Sons, at Seventh and Penn Streets, have an attractive display of "Bold" cigars in their front window this week. They report this brand as being one of their biggest sellers in the nickel line.

John G. Spatz has been on a visit to western points. He traveled as far as Chicago.

The leaf firm of J. U. Fehr & Son have been buying some exceptionally fine lots of leaf the past month. They recently received a shipment of 1912 Little Dutch, which, they say, is of a superior quality. They report conditions as being good for this time of year, and have made several good deals recently.

Newsy Trade Jottings

Calvin W. Dierdorf, of the Dierdorf Cigar Company, Grand Rapids, Michigan, has disposed of his retail cigar store to Carl H. Olsen and Edward G. Hodges, who will continue the business. Mr. Dierdorf will continue his manufacturing and wholesale business at this place, same having been the original location of the firm.

Mr. Prochaska, an experienced cigarmaker, New Hampton, Iowa, has taken over the Kelly Cigar Factory, of that place, and will continue the business. It is probable that some new cigars will be added.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Binders Quickly Absorbed by New York Market---Connecticut Warehouses Closing for the Season—Lancaster County Growers Now Receiving 7½ to 8 Cents for Tobacco

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, March 8.

THE leaf dealers have been doing a brisk business recently. There has been a healthy demand for the binders arriving on the market. They are being force-sweated and are being sold almost as fast as they are available. This was to be expected nevertheless, as the situation on this leaf has become acute. Most of the binders so far have been supplied by the Wisconsin packers.

Interest centers at this moment in the inscriptions at Amsterdam This has not affected the sales of Sumatra to any extent this week so far and deals are reported every day. Nothing definite has been learned so far regarding the new Sumatra. About the only thing that we can be sure of is that the crop is a large one, and taking that in consideration Americans should have no difficulty in being suited.

The Havana tobacco continues to hold its own. This leaf has more than come up to expectations and the activity continues unabated. There is not much of the 1912 tobacco left on the market and it is believed that before the 1913 comes along the holders of the older tobacco will be given an opportunity to dispose of their stock.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, March 9.

BUYERS are again after the unsold portion of the 1912 tobacco crop of Lancaster County, the fifteen per cent. of the crop that is still in the growers' hands because they demanded more during the period when buying was going on actively than the packers considered the goods worth in the present depressed state of the leaf tobacco trade. Recently the growers having tobacco have sought buyers instead of waiting to be visited, and the prices offered now, and which are being accepted, are what would have been considered ruinously low earlier in the season. The past week crops have been disposed of at 7½ and 8 cents a pound, which earlier would have brought 10 and 10½ cents, but the owners wanted 11 and 12 cents. At the present rate of buying it will be months before the growers are entirely clear of holdings. From reports it is believed that, in spite of low prices, the year's acreage will be as large as last year's—about 16,000 acres.

At the present time the leaf trade in Lancaster County is at a low ebb and it is estimated that our packers have in their warehouses fully $5,000,000 worth of old goods, for which there is little demand. That is, tobacco raised in this county. What trading is being done is of a jobbing character and the packers are doing as much business with Ohio, Wisconsin and Connecticut goods as with Lancaster County tobacco. Whether justified or not, the trade at large complains of the quality of the Lancaster County tobacco, alleging its quality is not what it was a few years ago, when Pennsylvania tobacco was so much in demand. Our own packers have warned our growers repeatedly against sacrificing quality for quantity, but the advice, it is said, has not been heeded.

Of the 1909 crop alone, which amounted to about 85,000 cases, it is estimated that fully 30,000 cases, some dealers claim 40,000, are still in our warehouses. It was tobacco that was bought at an average price of 10¾ cents a pound, yet it proved such undesirable goods that any quantity can be bought now from the packers for 10 cents a pound.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, March 4.

SOME of the tobacco warehouses are getting ready to close for the season, while others are still buying at reduced rates. While the crop has not proved to be gilt-edged, it is said that the Havana seed has come out of the sweat fairly well and the packers will not be badly cheated after all. The broad leaf, however, for the most part suffered from poleburn, and runs largely to low grades.

The tobacco warehouse of John F. Barnett, Jr., in West Suffield, who packs for Kutinsky, Adler & Company, of New York, is nearly ready to close for the season, and last night over twenty-five sorters were discharged, which leaves the force about fifteen hands. This gang will be kept at work for a couple of weeks sorting broad leaf tobacco, of which Mr. Barnett puts up about 1000 cases in a season. The large Spencer warehouse, operated by Matthew Leahy for the American Cigar Company, is expected to close in about two weeks. In the neighborhood of 1500 cases of the Havana seed variety of tobacco has been packed here. At the warehouse of James E. Hastings, where nearly ninety hands are employed, it is expected that a shut down will take place in a few days, probably Wednesday or Thursday. Over 1000 cases of the weed have been packed in this warehouse this season. All of these warehouses are situated in West Suffield, with the exception of the American Cigar Company's, which is in Depot Street, and was the first to open in town at the beginning of the season.

MANCHESTER.

Tobacco dealers who are at present buying up last year's crop say that the tobacco is not turning out as well as had been hoped for. The trouble is with pole sweat. The farmers who dried out their tobacco by the use of charcoal fires in the sheds fared better than those who did not. Altogether last year's tobacco crop is a disappointment to many.

The rapid growth of the tobacco industry in the Wapping and Buckland sections has resulted in the building of many new tobacco sheds, and now Hackett Brothers, who occupy the old Major Owen farm, are planning to put up shed room for twenty acres of tobacco. They will build four sheds, three of them 31 x 128 feet each and one 31 x 256 feet.

POQUONOCK.

Deliveries of 1912 tobacco continue to be made and, from a canvass recently made, practically all of the tobacco which was sold in the bundle has now been delivered or will be during the coming week. This is the time of the year that most of the tobacco growers take their vacations, and it is understood that a number will be at the inauguration of President-elect Wilson today.

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON, March 4.

EVERY scrap of tobacco which was in the Lexington auction warehouses was cleaned up by the sales Friday, and for the first time in three months the warehouse floors were absolutely clear. With the exception of a few wagon loads which were under the sheds waiting to be unloaded, there was no tobacco for sale in the warehouse district on Saturday. However, an ample supply arrived from the country when the sales were resumed Monday.

The Board of Control of the Green River Tobacco Growers' Association are agitating the reducing of the acreage in tobacco this year. "Better quality and less quantity" will be the slogan of the association, as they claim it was with the greatest effort that the 20,000,000 pounds controlled by them was sold this year at satisfactory prices.

The acreage of tobacco in Nicholas County, Kentucky, last year was about 3200, but it is estimated that the acreage this year will be over 5000, weather permitting. Preparations for plant beds are being made.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, March 7.

THE work of receiving the crop has gone forward under such favorable conditions this year that quite a number of firms will soon finish accepting their purchases, except an occasional lot that is not yet entirely off the poles. The end of warehouse work, too, is almost in sight with a few concerns, allowing the help to be absorbed by those who have been short handed so far in their packing. A quiet hunt is still being kept up for the unsold remnants of the crop, and the near approach of spring makes the growers quite willing to accept offers even though they do not reach the expectations of the farmers.

There seems to be plenty of a demand for everything in the line of cured leaf that meets the demand of the binder trade, though the local markets are probably as bare of old stock as ever in the history of the trade. The Brictson packing at Stoughton of 139 cases of 1911 has been sold to C. Jones & Son for account of I. Lewis & Company, who also picked up a car load or so from local packers.

The Paul bill relating to the sale of tobacco in particular has been recommended for passage by the assembly committee on agriculture. The measure provides that the crop shall be paid for "at the price or amount specified in the contract, without regard of the quality or condition of such crops or portions thereof at the time of delivery unless such inferior quality or unsound condition shall be due to the negligence or willful act of the vendor, subsequent to such purchase." The measure is made applicable to all crops, but it was stated before the committee that this measure would save the tobacco growers of the state many thousands of dollars from dockage at the time of delivery. If the bill becomes a law it will also affect the beet sugar factories as well as buyers of other produce where contracts are made for future delivery. The bill has the endorsement of the Wisconsin Society of Equity.

VIROQUA.

The days are not long enough nor the receivers alert enough to handle with comfort the great quantity of tobacco that has found its way to Viroqua the past month. There is strife to see who can head the procession to different receiving houses and stations, crops being delivered from remote distances at daybreak, and darkness sets in before all can be accommodated. It has been one big rush.

So far as we have learned, Severn Tally, of Franklin, leads in largeness of crops and money. He sold to Bekkedah eighteen acres, 26,000 pounds, and the check for the same spelled $2685.72.—Edgerton Reporter.

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

The warehouse season in the Connecticut Valley is now approaching an end. From the latest reports a number of the establishments have already closed up. Some tobacco which has not been sold is being taken over by other parties than had contracted for the crops. The disagreements which arose over the docking has led to a number of lawsuits. Considering the number of cases where the growers objected to the docking and sold to others after the dealers had tried to dock them, there are really few lawsuits. This matter will never be settled until the growers agree to keep their crops and sell from the warehouses, or until the growers come to the same understanding. It arises each year. A bill such as has been introduced in the legislature of Wisconsin would do away with the practice altogether. The Wisconsin measure makes the contract between the grower and buyer binding. Any buyer will be wary in contracting for tobacco in the field under those circumstances.

As far as can be ascertained by the earlier visitors to Amsterdam, the new Sumatra is of a light color and the yield a large one. This is nevertheless uncertain in part. One source says that the crop will have a good proportion of tobacco suitable for the American houses, while another just as reliable source says the contrary. Not enough data is available at this time to give a definite reliable statement. It is admitted by all nevertheless that the tobacco is of a good quality generally.

A mass-meeting of the Burley tobacco growers of that section of Kentucky was held in the City Hall of Harrodsburg, that state, recently. It is planned to erect a warehouse at a cost of $40,000.

The Holmes Bill, now in the Wisconsin legislature, aims to do away with the practice of contracting for tobacco in the field. This measure is being backed by many growers and also packing interests. It has been suggested that the farmers organize. In that case it was claimed the bill would not be necessary. This was considered impracticable by some authorities. It had been attempted many times and failed on each trial. The new bill will tend to eliminate that gambling spirit which has caused dissatisfaction in both Wisconsin and Connecticut this year in the final arrangements for getting rid of the crops. The docking practiced was not satisfactory to either the buyer or the seller. The Holmes bill specifically states that after the contract is made the buyer's responsibility begins and the seller's ends. It has been asserted by one authority that ninety per cent. of both the growers and the buyers are in favor of the bill. Under present conditions, the contract is considered a contract at the time it is made, but is not any more binding than an option when the tobacco is delivered.

The Growers' Tobacco Sales Company, of Dayton, Ohio, claims to have made most satisfactory progress in the furthering of their plans for marketing their products. Under their arrangements the tobacco will be handled by the growers, packed by them, and sold to the manufacturers direct, instead of selling through the packer or leaf dealer. It is said that most of the 1911 tobacco now held by this concern has been sold. The tobacco is sampled by the Linde-Hamilton Company, of New York City, before being sold.

Manager William Elliott, of the Stemming District Association, of Kentucky, which controls 25,000,000 pounds of tobacco, stated recently that every member of the association who sold any part of his tobacco to independent tobacco buyers would be prosecuted and a hundred-dollar fine imposed, as provided for. It is said that a number of the farmers were dissatisfied with the sale of a part of the pool and since they received only part cash, have been selling independent of the association.

From expressions of farmers in different sections of the state of Kentucky it can safely be said that the crop of tobacco this year will be smaller. Many of them say that they have pinned their faith to tobacco too long and have been disappointed. It is said that many farmers raise tobacco and buy their potatoes and other vegetables and even buy corn to feed their stock. One farmer said recently that planters of tobacco in his section have been making slaves of themselves for tobacco and that instead of having a plot of ground for themselves for raising fruits and garden vegetables they have put every available piece of land in tobacco, purchasing their necessary vegetables for the table from neighbors.

People not familiar with the tobacco business often wonder why it is necessary for larger manufacturing concerns like the American Cigar Company, the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, or Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers to invest so large sums in permanent storehouses in the localities producing the leaf, says the Edgerton "Reporter." And why more central storage facilities nearer the manufacturing plants would not be preferable. The question was partly answered in an interview which a reporter had with Mr. Otto Eisenlohr when in the state to accept a new $75,000 warehouse just completed for his firm. "If we were to lose by fire the cured tobacco stored in any one of our large warehouses today we would not know where we could replace the stock—we simply couldn't do it. So we go on erecting storehouses as nearly fireproof as possible without regard to cost."

Here you have the reason in a nutshell. These concerns are continually expanding their business and the enormous amount of raw leaf consumed makes it imperative that they fortify themselves with at least one full year's supply on hand at all times. In binder leaf especially the market has been so thoroughly cleaned up of surplus stock the past few years that none of the larger concerns could depend upon their needs to a certainty without buying direct from growers' hands. The fear that they could not get enough has been the main incentive for the rush to the green fields. Their chief concern has been to be sure of their supply, not only for one season, but to guard against a failure the next year. Big business demands big investments and that is why two million dollars would hardly pay for the warehouses scattered about the packing points in Wisconsin.

Two New Factories for New Brunswick, N. J.

A new cigar manufacturing concern, which will be known as the Commercial Cigar Company, has leased a factory in New Brunswick, New Jersey, and is now advertising for hands. They occupy the Shapiro Building. The Bayuk Brothers Company, of Philadelphia, manufacturers of the "Havana Ribbon" nickel cigar, opened up in New Brunswick several weeks ago and are now making their brand there. They are located in the King Block.

Late Trade Bulletins

The Wyandotte Cigar Company is now located at Detroit, Michigan.

Murray & Tibballs are now the proprietors of the cigar store in Linstead's Block, Waterbury, Connecticut, formerly controlled by William F. Porter.

J. A. George, a cigar manufacturer on Main Street, Norwich, Connecticut, recently enlarged his facilities and expects to increase his force shortly.

New equipment was recently installed in the cigar store of Carpenter & Gwynn, 108 East Second Street, Mishawaka, Indiana.

Walter Cecil and Samuel Coppock have purchased the cigar store on North Main Street, Piqua, Ohio, formerly controlled by Foehl & Schaffer.

A loss to the amount of $700 was sustained by Mitchell Brothers through a fire which recently damaged their store in Oakland, California.

The Smokewell Cigar Company recently opened a cigar store in the Star Theatre, Coffeyville, Kansas.

J. F. Paus has again entered the cigar business, having established a factory at Newark, Ohio.

Having decided on an extended trip through the East, John Lempfert, proprietor of the cigar store 303 Twentieth Street, Davenport, Iowa, recently disposed of his business to his father, Ferdinand Lempfert.

Kinney Brothers, cigar manufacturers, Oneida, New York, whose factory was recently destroyed by fire, are now occupying rooms over the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank, that city.

Glen Crane, Noblesville, Indiana, has taken hold of the cigar stand in the Ben Hur Building, that place, having purchased same from J. F. Stephenson, whose attention in the future will be wholly devoted to his cigar store on Washington Street.

B. Jensen & Company have started the manufacturing of cigars in the old Teich residence, Johnson Creek, Wisconsin.

Having decided to branch out for himself, H. H. Reuter, for many years connected with the Holmes-Dakin Cigar Company, Hannibal, Missouri, has resigned his position with that firm and will hereafter engage in the manufacture of cigars.

J. E. Knight, of the firm of Murphy & Knight, who conduct a cigar store at Beloit, Wisconsin, has taken over the interest of Mrs. Murphy and will hereafter be the sole proprietors.

The cigar business of H. Garmony in Los Angeles has been taken over by M. F. Pope.

The lease stock and fixtures of the Carlisle Cigar Company, 1000 Fourth Avenue, Birmingham, Alabama, has been purchased by the Baum Cigar Company. H. J. Baum, of the firm, stated that the old stock will be disposed of to make way for new. The firm is also contemplating entering the wholesale cigar business.

T. J. Kennedy has taken over the cigar store on Ridge Street, Glen Falls, New York, formerly owned by Leo DeHart. It is Mr. Kennedy's intention to operate his store along up-to-date lines, carrying a varied assortment of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos.

Atlanta

Good Gains in Business for First Two Months of New Year—"Webster" Cigars Win Out in Publicity Campaign by "Atlanta Constitution"

ATLANTA, March 12.

THE cigar and tobacco business in this city and contiguous territory shows a gain over the first two months of last year of fully twenty-five to thirty per cent. when compared to January and February, 1913. This is remarkable, following, as it does, just on the extraordinary volume of holiday trade.

Each month Atlanta is growing more in importance as a tobacco distributing center, and the demand includes all grades from the five-centers up to the best Tampa and imported goods.

Folks down here are still talking about the big advertising and selling campaign which was recently conducted by the Atlanta Constitution to prove the value of intelligently directed publicity. The scheme embraced a voting contest for certain sums of money to be given to local charities. "Webster" cigars, Uncle Sam bread, Pyle's Pearline and about a dozen other trade-marked articles were locally advertised and the trade-mark on each article counted as one vote. One hundred thousand five hundred and seventeen "Webster" cigar band votes were cast, thus indicating somewhat the popularity of the Y. Pendas & Alvarez product in this city.

Manager E. F. Malone, of the Capital City Tobacco Company, whose headquarters are at 176 Marietta Street, reports the very best business in the history of this wholesale house—their mail orders showing big gains. W. B. Carlton, of this company, who has been laid up with a severe attack of neuritis, is about again all sound and ready for hard work.

E. N. Sickles, of the K. P. F. Pipe Company, of New York, was here last week and did a satisfactory business.

The Lamar & Rankin Drug Company, of 69 and 71 Forsyth Street, who are one of the most important tobacco jobbing houses here, have been having a splendid run on their Gonzalez & Sanchez "Diplomaticos," for which they are sole distributors in this section.

The "United" stores have been featuring several grades of cigarettes during the past month, especially favoring "Fatimas."

PIEDMONT.

England's Tobacco Bill for 1912

THE Englishman is often heard to express wonderment at the enormous quantity of cigars consumed in this country per capita, but when it comes down to figures and comparing facts, our brother across the sea is something of a smoker himself. Last year $149,517,215 of the British nation's money went up in smoke.

The total represents 96,754,361 pounds of tobacco, and includes $11,063,540 spent on pipes, matches and tobacconists' sundries. Apart from the raw tobacco made up in British factories, $134,415,435 worth, the largest is $9,015,285 spent on cigars.

Now England is anxious to raise more of its own tobacco. Last year the tobacco growers' reports state that the tobacco yield from one hundred acres under cultivation was not "half bad," though it is admitted that it requires to be blended with the American and other varieties to make it fit to smoke. It is suggested that some of the uncultivated tracts of Scotland should be utilized for the cultivation of tobacco. Hitherto only five acres of Scotland have been occupied by tobacco planters.

Work has begun on the new annex to the American Snuff Company's factory in Memphis, Tennessee. The plans call for four buildings, the largest to be five stories in height, the approximate cost to be $175,000. This addition to the plant will make Memphis, the largest snuff centre in America.

THE TOBACCO WORLD REGISTRATION BUREAU

The Tobacco World, established in 1881, has maintained a Bureau for the purpose of Registering and Publishing claims of the adoption of Trade-Marks and Brands for Cigars, Cigarettes, Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and Snuff. All Trade-Marks to be registered and published should be addressed to The Tobacco World Corporation, 102 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

One Dollar for each title must accompany all applications. In case title or titles cannot be registered owing to prior registration, same will be returned immediately, less our usual charge for searching and return postage, or it will be credited if desired.

☞ Positively no responsibility assumed for errors, duplications or any controversies which might arise. We will not under any circumstances act in a legal capacity in cases concerning disputed titles. We maintain a bureau of records only.

Late Trade Jottings

The cigar factory of F. J. Williams, at Genoa, Illinois, was recently gutted by fire, entailing a loss of about $500.

C. M. Parker, of the cigar firm of Parker & Rodgers, of Frankfort, Indiana, has purchased the interest of his partner, Walter Rodgers, in the concern and becomes sole owner.

The Drum Cigar Company was recently formed in Binghamton, New York, the incorporators being Harrison G. Cook, Raymond D. Dewey and William S. Drum.

Scott Owings, proprietor of the cigar store in the Manufacturers Hotel, Davenport, Iowa, has opened another stand in that city in the People's Bank Building. He has employed two young women to act as clerks.

Four creditors have filed a petition in bankruptcy against the State Cigar Company, of Buffalo, New York. They allege that the concern is insolvent. Everette H. Hunt, of Buffalo, was appointed receiver for the firm.

Interesting Trade Items

John J. Rude has taken over the cigar store of Frazier & Ray, located in the Coleman Block, Eugene, Oregon. He will have as his assistant J. C. Branstetter.

The new United Cigar Store, located Main and High Streets, Nashua, New Hampshire, is now in operation.

J. W. and C. D. Wiggenhorn and H. B. Richardson, are named as the incorporators of the Billings Cigar and Tobacco Company, Helena, Montana, recently incorporated with a capital of $50,000, of which $30,000 has been subscribed.

A factory has been opened at Eugene, Oregon, by J. Hansen, of Portland. A wholesale and retail business will be carried on in conjunction with the factory.

The Hart Cigar Company, of Portland, Oregon, the distributor in that section for the "R. B." cigar of Rosenthal Brothers, of New York City, has had a most satisfactory distribution of this brand since taking it on. Julius Riesenberg, the Coast representative of the manufacturers, and Isaiah Rosenthal, of Rosenthal Brothers, recently visited this section, calling upon the different jobbers.

The Tobacco Buyers' Association, Limited, of Montreal, Canada, was recently incorporated in that city with a capital stock of $1,000,000.

Heinrich Neuberger, leaf dealer, is now located at 130 Water Street, New York, just across the street from his old location.

Frank Berning and Fred Plohr, of Cincinnati, have been visiting in New York during the past week, having stopped here en route to Washington, to attend President Wilson's inauguration ceremonies.

The Apte Cigar Company, of St. Louis, reports having placed the "Flor de Moss," a ten-cent cigar made by the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, in all the prominent clubs of that city.

An auction was recently held closing out the cigar business of the late William Pond, of Washington, District of Columbia. The sale realized about $3000.

W. C. Kreplin has secured the lease on the corner of Second, South and Main Streets, Salt Lake City, Utah. This is in the old Walker Bank Building.

City Club

The 20th Century Wonder in Smoking Tobacco

It's Better

Expert judges of smoking tobacco have said that CITY CLUB is worth 20 cents a can compared to imitations.

Why?

The Answer: We own the land. We grow the tobacco. CITY CLUB is the "cream" of 200,000 acres of the finest Burley tobacco grown in the famous Bluegrass section of Kentucky. The first pipe-full will convince you.

CITY CLUB is only one hundred days old, yet it is duplicating and selling from coast to coast. Ask your jobber. Quality is doing the trick. Dealers are authorized to refund money to any customer not satisfied that CITY CLUB is better.

We Prepay Express on Trial Orders

MR. DEALER: Our national advertising campaign on CITY CLUB will start in a very short time, and you will have calls for CITY CLUB because it's better. Independent Tobacco Manufacturers to Be on Hand When New Tariff Bill Is Introduced

At Extra Session of Congress to Convene on April 7, Many Interests of Trade Will Bring Influence to Bear on Congressmen—Sizes of Tobacco Packages and Coupons Points at Issue

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 28.

A DELEGATION of independent tobacco manufacturers are planning to march on Washington soon after the convening of the extra session of Congress on April 7. This delegation is designed for the particular purpose of looking after the interests of tobacco men when the tariff bill is taken under advisement.

Two particular points are at issue and it is a peculiar fact, according to information here, that the tobacco men are divided on both of these. The first refers to the size of packages and the other to the use of coupons in packages of tobacco. Representative Stanley and Senator James particularly have been deluged with letters from their Kentucky constituents on these two points.

Certain manufacturers are said to favor reverting to the old sizes for tobacco which were authorized under the McKinley tariff. They point to the fact that by reducing the sizes of tobacco the internal revenue tax has been increased. These manufacturers argue that they obtained but little benefit from the change in the matter of sales, and believe that if the old regulation sizes had been continued their sales would have been larger. Other manufacturers are opposed to reverting back to the old sizes. They prefer to have the law continued just as it now is. They have told their representatives in Congress that they have on hand a large supply of bags and other containers designed to meet the sizes authorized under the Payne-Aldrich law, and to make a change again would force them to spend a large amount of money for new containers.

A similar controversy is going on over the coupon feature of the law. Certain independent manufacturers claim that coupons should be declared illegal, as it promotes the interests of the large manufacturer and plays into the hands of the "trust." There are other manufacturers, and some of these are recognized independents, who would counsel no change in this regard. They cannot see that permitting the inclosure of a coupon in a package of tobacco injures anyone.

Tobacco interests, however, are understood to be somewhat uneasy, judging from the communications being received by members of Congress. Representatives have been in the city for some time looking over the situation and all kinds of influences are being brought to bear upon various members of the Ways and Means Committee to divulge their deliberations. Chairman Underwood, however, has issued strict instructions that the conferences are secret and that nothing whatever shall be made public relative to the Democratic tariff bill until it is introduced in the House when the extra session convenes on April 7.

There have been five readings of the Democratic bill, and now the committee is going over the final print of the measure. This will be submitted to a Democratic caucus next week, probably, when it will be decided whether to submit the revision to Congress schedule by schedule or in an omnibus bill.

In the meantime President Wilson has held frequent conferences with Chairman Underwood and members of the Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee over this legislation. He believes in holding numerous conferences with Congressional leaders, submerging differences and devising such a measure that all members of the party can get behind and fight for.

New York Leaf Houses Heavy Losers in Disastrous Flood Which Sweeps Ohio Valley

Dayton Cigar and Tobacco Dealers Will Probably Sustain Loss of Stocks and Expensive Furnishings—United Cigar Stores Co. Who Have Stand in City Telegraph $3000 for Sufferers

ACCORDING to the latest reports there is little doubt but that the tobacco trade will be a heavy loser in the devastating flood which swept through the Ohio Valley last week. News is meagre, owing to the fact that telegraph and telephone wires are down, and all efforts by outsiders to communicate with those in the affected zone have been fruitless.

The largest losers will be the tobacco concerns with warehouses in Dayton and vicinity. A number of the New York houses have representatives and buildings in Dayton and other cities near by, and the loss on the contents of the buildings will in all probability run into millions of dollars.

Tobacco dealers in Dayton itself will probably lose their entire stocks. Among them is the stand of M. J. Schwab, under the Phillips House, which is standing. The stock and fixtures can be said to a certainty to be a loss. The store of Eisenberger Brothers, styled the "Cigar Store Beautiful," at Third and Main Streets, under the Conover Building, is probably badly damaged. The press reports give it that these buildings are standing, but the stock and interior fittings can be put down as a loss. The Eisenberger store was opened about May 1, 1912, and is considered to be one of the best appointed stands in the Middle West.

The United Cigar Store, on Main, between Third and Fourth Streets, will also be a heavy loser, as will the Benson stand, on Fifth Street, above Main. J. B. Moos & Company are on Main Street, between Second and Third, right in the district affected, and can be reckoned as being among those who lost heavily. Their stand is within a few doors of the Leonard Building, which collapsed when the foundations were undermined.

Among the other tobacco stores in the centre of the city are the Arcade cigar stand, on Third street; Joseph Wienreich, East Fifth Street, and the factory of the American Cigar Company, on East Third Street.

By direction of the board of directors of the United Cigar Stores Company, who have a stand in Dayton, C. A. Whelan, president, telegraphed to John H. Patterson, chairman of the relief committee at Dayton, that $3000 had been deposited to his credit in the National Bank of Commerce, subject to his draft, and was to be used for the relief of flood sufferers.

Governor Cox, of Ohio, has declared a ten-day holiday, dating from March 27, to protect negotiable paper, which might be subject to protest.

Is The Missionary Man An Absolute Necessity?

Written for The Tobacco World by James Fordyce

NEW YORK CITY, March 18.

Editors THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Gentlemen:

An article appearing in your journal, which came to hand this week, has caused me to write to you and get your opinion on a few matters. The article states that a certain Western jobbing house has discharged a number of missionary men and in the future will do its work without the assistance of these men.

It would interest quite a few manufacturers in this part of the country if you could tell us how the manufacturer is going to get his goods introduced in a certain territory—because the jobber does not do the work a missionary does—getting the dealer acquainted with the new brand, particularly in the way it should be done.

It has been proven that the missionary man is an essential factor in the proper introduction and distribution of cigars and other tobacco products. In nine cases out of ten the jobber will do a little in pushing the stuff, then let it grow stale on his shelves. And in other cases the jobber will not take on the brand unless you do something for him in the way of missionary work.

How is the manufacturer going to have his goods introduced under those circumstances? If you can give a solution to this problem, there are many manufacturers who would be greatly indebted to you for the information.

Very truly yours,
CIGAR MANUFACTURER.

THE above letter and many others of a similar nature were received at the office of THE TOBACCO WORLD recently. They seem to represent the sentiment of manufacturers in many lines of the tobacco trade and are worthy of attention. The arguments are good and open much discussion on the matter.

The writer is of the opinion that the missionary man has filled a very important niche in the business of tobacco products in former years. He has done this work, which few jobbers do, and has made the account of the jobber with his firm a valuable asset to the distributor. This cannot be denied, but the fact also stares the manufacturer in the face that often he had gone in a certain territory and by means of missionary men and expensive advertising put his goods right in the hands of the best dealers and induced the consumer to use his goods until he had an enormous business there.

Yet when he came to balance his accounts at the end of the year he found that the business had been an expense to him, instead of bringing him profits. The missionary man had secured the business, but he had eaten up the profits. If that is the case, what good did the missionary and his work accomplish?

A short time ago the writer was talking with a well-known missionary and broker of cigars on the Pacific Coast. This man has been in the thick of the fight in that part of the country for more than fifteen years and a statement from him undoubtedly carries weight. He has been representing an Eastern firm for more than a year, and in that time had sold almost two million cigars. He had secured the distribution and the cigar was in right; but in that time he had given away 26,000 cigars to get his goods in that market.

When the concern he represented looked over their books at the end of the year they estimated that the business had cost them entirely too much money and discontinued their contract with him. The second year he was to get five per cent. commission, less than half of what he had formerly secured. He refused to continue his dealings under these terms and started to look for another firm wishing to enter the Pacific Coast field.

The manufacturers estimated that the next year they would more than make up the expenses incurred the first year. When this man told them that the cigar would fall down—might, indeed, fall out of sight—unless it were pushed on the scale it had been before, they scouted the idea. Subsequent events proved that the missionary was right. He had started pushing the goods, making attractive inducements in the way of free deals and discounts, and when the dealers were approached with a new proposition, where the profits were smaller, they refused to carry the goods.

If this plan must be followed in placing new goods in a certain territory, what good does the missionary accomplish? He gives the dealer the impression that he is going to get something that is miles ahead of anything else of its kind ever introduced, and when the deal is discontinued, the sales either discontinue or take a decided drop.

Then there is another phase of the missionary problem with which many firms have had experience. They have sent men through a certain territory, giving them instructions to get results. The missionaries knew they had to make good. When it was a case of bread and butter they went to extremes to get business, even forging orders and sending them to the jobber. It did not give the jobber a very kindly feeling toward the manufacturer when the goods were turned back on him. The missionaries also in some cases made propositions to the dealer, in the way of free deals, that any one but a fool would have taken up. The worst part of the free deal idea was that when the jobber compared the different orders he found that often one dealer received more free cigars than another. If he was a man who did business on the square the manufacturer fell greatly in his estimation. When the dealers found out these things, they also lost confidence in the jobbing houses. This may seem far-fetched to some, but any man who is in touch with missionaries and knows anything of their methods will vouch for instances such as these.

Perhaps the whole substance of the problem can be summed up in a statement by James W. Duke, at one time president of the American Tobacco Company and lately connected with the Imperial Tobacco Company, an English corporation: "You can't do business with the jobber and you can't do business without him." This expression applies in part to the missionary.

While the missionary man, as stated before, has been an important link in the business of distributing tobacco products, no one will deny the fact that he has been used so much that missionary work is becoming an evil. The whole question will resolve itself into the problem of using him where goods are to be first introduced in a certain territory—and using him in a saner manner, not in the fashion many manufacturers now follow.

When the missionary is used to such an extent that serious inroads are made in the profits of manufacture, the limit has surely been passed.

Late Trade Items

Incorporation papers have been filed for the Foler-Wolfe-Kinney Corporation, at Union Hill, New York. They will manufacture and deal in cigars and tobacco.

The Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, Ohio, have moved into their new quarters on Park Place. The new plant is one of the most modern in that part of the state. The full complement of hands will be six hundred and the capacity a half-million cigars weekly.

The Sanchez Cigar Company, Tampa, Florida, has purchased the "El Burello" cigar factory of I. W. Munden. The president of the new concern is Dr. Di Gamppetto, and A. Medeulla is treasurer.

Conditions in Florida Cigar Factories Declared Ideal

Magazine Writer States That Congenial Work and Sanitary Surroundings, Combined With Good Pay Are the Rule

A MAGAZINE, the "Common Cause," published in New York, printed an interesting article relating to the working conditions among cigarmakers in the Florida factories. The author is Mrs. R. A. Ellis, who states in part:

"No other class of toilers on the globe work amid pleasanter, more sanitary surroundings than the cigar operatives of our semi-tropical clime, and, again, no class of workers, whose occupation involves so little of personal hazard receive wages that can be compared with those prevailing in all the leading Tampa factories. The miners, who toil in subterranean darkness, peril dogging every step and stroke, earn from one-half to two-thirds the wages of these easy-going cigarmakers. The printer's work pre-supposes, at least a good rudimentary education and, a far higher grade of native intelligence and technical skill than that demanded in the cigarmakers, yet the printer usually works for much lower wages than are paid in the Tampa manufactories, where illiteracy is the rule among the rank and file, many of the operatives being unable to read or write even in their native language.

"The average pay drawn by the skilled men who work upon the finer sizes of the 'Clear Havanas,' is now from $25 to $40 per week, while that of the least skilled whose work is confined to cheaper grades, approaches $20 per week.

"Go among the cigarmakers of Ybor City and West Tampa, and ascertain the individual records lately established by the very expert, high-grade regalia workmen. If a stranger to the trade you will think at first that you are listening to Cuban hyperbole and braggadacio—no more. But the boastful-sounding statements can in most cases be readily verified at the factories.

"In the factory of M. Stachelberg & Company, a Cuban boy, only seventeen years of age, was recently pointed out to visitors as having rather distinguished himself by pushing his earnings up to $52.90 per week! This is not claimed to be an every-day instance, yet one that can be duplicated in almost any other of the leading factories. Being perfectly substantiated, this individual case may give you a clearer conception of the excellent opportunities here presented to the workman gifted with both industry and skill.

"A group of Syrian girls working in the Sanchez & Haya factory, have made another record worth noting. Five of these dark-eyed daughters of the East recently returned to their native land for a visit, they claim. They had been in this country less than half a dozen years, learning the trade as soon as they came over and working pretty steadily at it ever since. Incidentally, it may be remarked that, like other Oriental peoples, the Syrians know how to live hard and hoard closely. The superintendent of the factory refers to one of Tampa's banking houses as final authority for the statement that when these girls went home a few months ago, they carried as 'savings' an average of more than $4000 each.

"The public school teachers in West Tampa and Ybor City—the suburbs in which nearly all of the two hundred factories are located—point to instance after instance of their pupils leaving school—to go to work at cigarmaking and shortly earning more money per month than the teachers themselves.

"'The brightest girl in my grade—the fifth—quit school about Thanksgiving,' one of these teachers said to me. 'She is a Cuban, and not only alert mentally, but very deft of hand, as was remarked in our manual training department. She went into one of the factories in early December, to learn to make cigars. I have kept up with her, because of genuine interest in the child, who is pretty and affectionate as well as unusually bright. By the first of March, when she was barely past her fourteenth birthday, she ceased to be a "prentice hand," and began to work for pay. At the end of May, when I visited her home again, she was earning $22 per week, which is more than the school board pays me, although I am twenty-five years of age, and can show you a college diploma.'"

To Dedicate New Spanish Club Soon—Fernandez Factory Burns to Ground, Loss of $6900—Preparing Plans for Addition to Verplanck Plant--Manuel Arango Dies

TAMPA, FLA., March 29.

SPANISH ENVOY SENOR DON JUAN RIANO reached the city last night to help dedicate the new Spanish Club. A. L. Cuesta, of Cuesta Rey & Company, and A. Pazos, of Habana, met the distinguished guest at Jacksonville. Senor Riano will be in the city several days.

The factory of the P. G. Fernandez Cigar Company was burned to the ground last Tuesday night. The origin was unknown. The loss was about $15,000, with insurance of $6900.

Sidney Goldberg, president of the Simon Batt Company, of New York, is still in Tampa looking for a location for his factory, which he intends to move from New York. Although nothing definite has been arranged, it is understood that he will locate in Ybor City.

T. H. Hart, the Philadelphia manufacturer and jobber, has gone to Cuba after several days' stay at his Manatee orange grove.

Ortiz & Caras report nice business from the Southern territory. W. H. Hamilton, their representative, is at present in New Orleans.

Senor Celestino Lopez and wife, of Arguelles Lopez & Brother, have returned to headquarters in New York after several weeks' vacation in Tampa and Cuba.

Celestino Corral, of Corral, Wodiska & Company, has returned to Cuba after a two weeks' stay at the factory. He is well pleased with the prospects of the coming crop. Their popular secretary, E. C. Phillips, better known as Felipe, is up to his neck with work. During the month of March they shipped close to 700,000 cigars under the "Julia Marlowe" brand, and still orders are coming in.

E. Regenberg & Sons have got quite a run of orders on the finer sizes.

Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company report business as being very good. When they opened the factory in February, 1912, they had assured 547 accounts. Today they have 2300 regular customers. Most of their accounts are direct with the retail druggists. Treasurer E. Pons and General Manager E. Berger left last Sunday night for a three weeks' stay in Cuba.

Cuesta Rey & Company report a flattering increase over last year's business. In fact in January their increase over the same month of last year was thirty-three per cent.; in February the increase was twenty per cent. During the month of March they are away ahead of last year.

Jose M. Diaz, president of the Preferred Habana Tobacco Company, is back from Cuba. The Preferred Habana Tobacco Company is a consolidation of several of the Tampa factories.

Plans are being prepared for a three-story addition to the Verplanck factory. The new addition will be 70 by 50. The factory management will be directly under Felix Fernandez, formally in charge of the Lopez Hermanos factory.

Jorge Leon, president of the San Martin & Leon Company, arrived last night from a hurried trip to Mobile and New Orleans. He will leave tomorrow for Cuba. Jose G. Ramirez, resident manager, states that there is no dullness with them and that all available space in the factory is being used.

Harry Culbreath, sales manager of V. Guerra Diaz & Company, is sending in some nice orders for the popular "La Mega" brand.

Jose Cosio, formerly of Jose Cosio & Company, left last Thursday night for Cuba to look over the tobacco situation. He expects to be there about three weeks.

Manuel Arango, who for many years has been identified with the tobacco business both in Tampa and in Cuba, and a prominent officer of the Centro Asturiano Club, died Friday morning, March 21. Manuel Arango was a brother of Jose Arango, the present head of the Habana American Cigar Company in Tampa, and also a brother of Francisco Arango, head of the same concern's factories in Cuba. Mr. Arango leaves a widow and ten children. Francisco Arango arrived from Cuba last Sunday to attend to his brother's funeral. He returned to Habana Thursday night.

JAMES J. FERNANDEZ.

DR. WEKERLE, Hungarian Minister of Finance, had a country seat at Pilis, near Budapest, where he was in the habit of spending his Sundays. His only piece of luggage on these occasions consisted of a small hand bag, which never contained anything but the regulation bottle, four handkerchiefs and a traveling cap.

Returning one Monday to the capital, the minister met a friend, a gentleman named Von Fischer, who was carrying a bag exactly the counterpart of his excellency's valise. Baron von Fischer smiled a thoughtful smile as he noticed the similarity of the bags and whispered to the minister: "My bag is filled with smuggled Turkish tobacco. You will be good enough to shield me against the custom house spies, I hope."

The minister looked serious. "I will do nothing of the kind," he said, and when the two gentlemen arrived at the Pest depot the minister beckoned to a custom house official and said, "My friend desires to pay duty on a lot of Turkish tobacco he has in his bag."

"His excellency is joking," cried the baron, who meanwhile had changed bags with the minister. "See, I have no contraband articles about me," and he opened the bag in proof of what he said.

The Minister of Finance looked perplexed for a moment, then he resolutely grabbed his friend's bag and said to the official: "Well, assess me for the tobacco, but be quick about it. I have no time to lose." The official acted on the suggestion, and the minister paid three florins and fifty pfennigs into the treasury of his own department. Then he jumped into the carriage and drove off, shouting out his thanks to the baron for his present of twenty pounds of excellent tobacco.—Argonaut.

I was standing at a well-known cigar store during the noon rush, when a stunt was pulled that will catch all but the most wide-awake retailer.

Three well-dressed men approached the case containing cigars that sell at three for twenty-five cents, and desired to purchase enough smokes for their little party.

"Now, Bill," said the short one, "this is my treat; you never let me spend a nickel."

"Look here, Tom," said the tall one, "I tell you this is on me."

"Boys," said the medium-sized one, "I invited you in here and I insist on defraying the expense of a good cigar."

During this argument no money was handed the salesman, and others were waiting for an opportunity to select their favorite perfecto, but the three well-dressed customers began the same argument all over again, paying no attention whatsoever to the others.

Finally the tall one leaned over confidentially, and asked if it made any difference to the salesman who paid for the cigars.

"Certainly not," said the now thoroughly exasperated dealer.

"Well, then," said the short one, as the three edged toward the door, "Pay for them yourself."

Every smoker and user of tobacco has at some time made a noble resolve to do away with the weed. These spasmodic efforts are due to various causes, but one of the most amusing ones called to my attention lately was that of a man in a Middle-West town who determined to cut down the high cost of living by doing away with his favorite "fine-cut chewing."

Everything went all right for almost a day. He had been in the habit of chewing all day long, so the aching void caused by the absence of a quid in his mouth can be compared to the agony of a gossiping woman with lockjaw. Late in the afternoon he resorted to the first aid of the amateur abstainer and bought some chewing gum.

This failing to fill the gap, he tried in rapid succession peanuts, candy and finally a tobacco cure he saw advertised. In his meditations on his unhappy state he also consumed two rubber erasers, a small box of rubber bands and chewed up a dozen penholders, besides doing irreparable damage to a new spring model mustache.

At the end of a week he estimated the damages at about $2. His supply of chewing tobacco had been costing him about twenty cents a week. Needless to say, he has returned to the fine-cut—in the interest of economy.

* * *

At last the question of smoking or not smoking in Zion City, Illinois, has been decided. A test case was made by a cigarette smoker. When the judge was through with him the luckless defendant was $3 poorer. Don't know what this proves, except that the smoker had his curiosity as to the outcome satisfied.

A comely young matron came into the office of the city chemist of Cincinnati recently and asked him tearfully whether he would not test some cigars she bought for "hubby" last Christmas. He was asked to make a chemical analysis of the deadly Christmas "punks" for the lady claimed they were ruining her husband's health.

She told of having given her husband a box containing two hundred cigars as a Christmas gift. Since then, she said, he had been heroically smoking them. As a result he had lost nearly fifteen pounds and had developed a hacking cough.

The poor woman wept copiously as she told of the fate which she believed she had brought upon her lesser half. The chemist picked up one of the cigars after the woman had told her story.

"It looks all right," he said. He lit one and puffed for a time. "It smells good and burns well, too," he remarked. "Madam, there must be something extraordinarily wrong with these cigars and we will analyze them thoroughly." Whereupon he bowed the still weeping woman out of his office and later "tested" another of the "deadly" cigars. According to latest report, the chemist and his assistant are still in the land of the living and hoping they will have another chance like this to test their ability.

The Ehrlich Plan of Getting Aid from Manufacturers

The proposition submitted last week to the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of New York, by Nicholas Ehrlich, that a certain big cigar manufacturing firm was ready and willing to co-operate with the independent retailers in the promotion of their business, possesses many features worthy of consideration.

That the Independent retailers need the helping hand of the manufacturers cannot be gainsaid. How this help can best be extended is open to discussion. If the aid in dressing windows, trimming stores and giving special prices to independent retailers were offered by an association of cigar manufacturers, rather than a big individual firm, the plan would more likely prove feasible.

The Ehrlich plan, coming as it does from one firm, is likely to arouse considerable opposition. No matter what the motives of the manufacturer may be, it throws the plan open for attack from retailers, who detect in it the self-advancement of one factory at the expense of others.

In this respect the Ehrlich plan is weak.

The idea, however, is an advance along the right lines, and if other manufacturers can be induced to co-operate in the same manner, it is not beyond the range of possibility that it might go through successfully. Until then the plan is likely to be subjected to a hot cross-fire from dealers who regard it as narrow and ephemeral.

Flood Lessons From Stricken Ohio

Latest news from the flood-stricken districts of Ohio indicate that the tobacco growing, packing and manufacturing interests have suffered considerably through water and fire. The exact extent of the damage will not be known for some time.

In Dayton and vicinity a number of the tobacco warehouses, and quite a few of the cigar factories have been inundated, and are likely to be out of commission for many weeks. The manner in which the Daytonians have set about rehabilitating their city and their business interests since the water began to fall, reflects the spirit of persistency and progressiveness that has marked the upbuilding of this remarkable city.

Like other business interests in Ohio, the tobacco interests will not allow a flood nor anything else to interfere with their permanent progress. We look for a quick return to normal conditions as soon as the tobacco men have an opportunity to estimate their losses and set their faces toward the future, determined to retrieve their losses through their own efforts without any assistance from the outside.

The Tobacco Situation in Pennsylvania

Tobacco-growing interests of Pennsylvania are very much disturbed over the present unsatisfactory condition of the market, and look with anxiety upon the prospect of being forced to dispose of the balance of their 1911 and 1912 crops at sacrifice prices.

The slump in Pennsylvania is attributed to an over-production, rather than to any falling-off in the demand for this type of cigar leaf.

As a matter of self-protection in the future, the growers, through their various local associations, are considering a curtailment of planting this season until such a time as when the tobacco, now in their hands and in the hands of their brokers, will have moved along to the consumers at living prices.

If present low prices are not improved, the growers declare there will be no profit in raising tobacco. Perhaps eighty per cent. of the 1911 crop and sixty per cent. of the 1912 crop, have already been disposed of to big cigar manufacturers at good prices, and those cigar manufacturers who now go into the market for tobacco, will enjoy a marked advantage over their competitors who bought early.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.

And Now Tobacco is Blamed for High Living Cost

In moralizing on the high cost of living, the editor of the "Grocery World" points to tobacco as one of the causes, and cites such giant houses as Liggett & Myers and P. Lorillard & Company, as horrible examples of purveyors to the country's wasteful habits.

Quoting the millions of dollars spent yearly on tobacco, the "Grocery World" editor says: "Every dollar of this huge sum was spent for an article which nobody needed and therefore represents an absolute and unmitigated waste. It is a striking illustration of the power of perfectly unnecessary things to force themselves upon us. If we could strip all these things off, we would probably find living costing us very little more than it did ten years ago."

We must not take this effusion seriously, but we would suggest that the "Grocery World" editor throw away his old corncob pipe and clean out the fancy delicacies now being handled by all of his "Grocery World" readers to tempt the pocketbook of the consumer into luxurious expenditures before attacking the humble five-cent package of smoking tobacco or the innocent looking cigar. Perhaps this would give him a clearer vision—perhaps!

Retailers' Committee to Confer With Jacob Wertheim

At Well Attended Meeting in Terrace Garden, Three Representatives Are Appointed to Investigate Plan

AT the regular meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, held at Terrace Garden, Thursday, March 27, the largest gathering since the organization's forming attended for the purpose of discussing and taking action upon the proposition made to Nicholas Ehrlich by Jacob Wertheim, the retiring president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

After lengthy debate as to the advisability of accepting the offer, motion was made and seconded and placed to a vote, as to whether a committee should be appointed to call upon Mr. Wertheim in order to obtain further details. Their report is to be placed before the retail association at the next meeting. As a result of the vote a committee, consisting of Mr. Ehrlich, Otto Jonas and Lewis Gompers, will call upon the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company in the near future.

A motion was made and adopted in the interests of union-made tobacco, cigarettes and cigars, which enlists the co-operation of all retailers in pushing goods manufactured by union labor. This motion met with the hearty approval of all present and was unanimously adopted.

According to the plan of Mr. Wertheim, the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company will paint the fronts of stores operated by members of the association all one color, so they will be recognized as independent stands, will trim the windows, start a coupon system and supply cigarettes and cigars at the jobbing price through the George S. Storm Company.

After the adjournment of the meeting refreshments were served and a very pleasant entertainment took place in the meeting hall.

The proposition of Mr. Wertheim was outlined in an article by Nicholas Ehrlich, entitled "A message to the members of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of New York, Brooklyn, Westchester County, Jersey City and Newark.

It is in part as follows:

My Friends:

As a result of the address delivered before the independent manufacturers in Hotel Victoria, I received a number of letters from independent manufacturers with different propositions. The best one, to my estimation, I am going to submit to you in this communication.

Mr. Jacob Wertheim, the president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company (the largest independent concern in the country), invited me to his office and in the presence of Mr. Hirschhorn, the vice-president, Mr. Wertheim, in a sincere way, suggested the following plan for the members of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association:

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company will at its own expense paint the front of the stores belonging to the members of the association with one certain color and emblem of the independents. The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company will dress the windows of the independent stores twice a month, and will supply the members with a coupon system at two and one-half per cent. from the Hamilton Bond Company. I have also been assured that through the jobbing house of the George L. Storm Company the members will be supplied with all the leading brands of cigarettes, little cigars and tobaccos. The members will get all brands manufactured by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, such as the "Robert Burns," "Little Bobbie," "Bank Note," "Owl," "Capadura," etc., at a reduced price, equal to the jobbing price. All members should order a full line of the goods manufactured by the above-mentioned company and sell them on their merits.

I am sure there is no other independent concern in the country which would be willing to spend so much capital for the benefit of the independents. It is a splendid proposition and the best which can be offered to the independents. I advise every member not to lose this chance. Let us all come together in Terrace Garden, March 27, 1913, at 8 P. M., or let us hear from you if you can not come.

Cigarmakers in Anton H. Bock Factory Still on Strike

The strike of two hundred and fifty cigarmakers, which occurred suddenly last Monday morning in the factory of Anton H. Bock, 1230 Second Avenue, is still on. A demand for an increase of $2 a thousand on certain sizes of cigars, had been turned down by the firm, and the cigarmakers refused to return to their benches. The members of the firm say that the strike will not cause any immediate curtailment of shipments, as they have considerable stock on hand.

At the outbreak of the strike the cigarmakers were receiving $26 a thousand for this particular size, and asked for an increase to $28 a thousand.

E. P. Oakes Shows Improvement

E. P. Oakes, who was recently stricken with cerebral hemorrhage, which caused a paralytic stroke on his left side, is showing remarkable improvement, and is to be removed from the Polyclinic Hospital, where he has been confined for the past two weeks, to his residence, 400 West Fifty-seventh Street.

Garcia, Pando & Co. Settle on 75% Basis

At the meeting held last week of the creditors of Garcia, Pando & Company, an offer of 75 per cent. in settlement was accepted by the creditors as being satisfactory, and no proceedings will be instigated against the concern. It is the intention of the concern to continue their business as heretofore.

Ben. Lesser Returns to New York a Benedict

It was indeed a surprise to the many friends and acquaintances of Ben. Lesser to learn upon his return here to New York, that he had taken unto himself a wife from the Far West. He married, on February 27, Miss Rose Leo, of Duluth, Minnesota. Immediately after the wedding in Duluth, which was a simple affair, he left for Chicago and hastened East with his wife, where he is enjoying the congratulations and well wishes of his many friends.

Al Zeiling has displayed in the window of his new store at Broadway, Seventieth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, "Charles the Great" cigars in all sizes. The display is attracting attention at this point, which is a leading uptown retail store in this vicinity.

The Carmen Sylva Sales Company is a recently organized concern in this city which will act as a sole distributor in this country for the "Carmen Sylva" and "Ki-Ki" cigarettes. Their offices are at 10 East Forty-second Street. These cigarettes have already been placed in a number of New York stores and appear to be making good. The organizers of the distributing house are C. Cianchetti and J. M. Vos.

National Output of Cigars and Cigarettes Shows Gains

Every Line of Manufactured Products Shows Increase With Exception of Cigarettes at $3.60 and Tobacco

THE national production of cigars, cigarettes and other tobacco products for the month of February is most encouraging. The output of every line showed an increase over the same period last year with the exception of cigarettes at $3.60 and manufactured tobacco. The figures for cigars and cigarettes both show heavy increases, there being 36,221,790 more cigars and 193,161,408 more cigarettes than in February, 1912.

The figures, as compiled from the Internal Revenue receipts, are as follows:

	February
	1913	1912	Increase
Cigars	564,287,976	528,066,186	36,221,790
Small cigars	85,751,920	80,179,293	5,572,627
Cigarettes	1,102,449,128	909,287,720	193,161,408
Cigarettes at $3.60	1,047,000	1,344,347	*297,347
Snuff, lbs.	3,208,533	2,779,190	429,343
Mfd. Tob., lbs.	32,452,208	34,547,963	*2,095,755

*Decrease.

In addition to the above, $14,723.22 was received from stamps affixed to cigars from the Philippines and $243.75 for cigarettes from the same source.

New Cigarette Factory in Norwalk, Conn.

Thomas A. Skelly, of the well-known jobbing and retail firm of Skelly & Howard, will open a new cigarette factory in Norwalk, Connecticut. The new firm will be styled the Barrington Tobacco Company. They will manufacture a strictly hand-made article, from selected tobacco, to be called "Barringtons." The new brand will be ready about the first of June.

J. J. French Leaves Quiros, Villazon & Co.

J. J. French, secretary of the Tampa firm of Quiros, Villazon & Company, has sold his interest in the company to Messrs. Quiros and Villazon. The firm will continue the manufacture of their high-grade product, the "La Docilla."

They will be represented in the future by F. A. Ryan, who has been connected with Berman Brothers in the Chicago territory.

Charles H. Storm Out of Storm, Fisher & Co.

Storm, Fisher & Company, of New York, manufacturers of the "La Soneda" and a number of other brands of clear Havana cigars, with a factory at Warren and West Broadway, have announced that Charles H. Storm is no longer connected with that concern. It is understood that Mr. Storm has left the country for South America, where he will engage in another line of business. He has been the Chicago sales manager for the firm.

Campaign on "Pera" Cigarettes Planned by H. Table Porter

H. Table Porter, general representative of the Pera Cigarette Company, has been in Boston and opened an office there at 88 Broad Street. Mr. Porter placed Charles T. Ellis in charge of the new office and he will have entire charge of the New England territory. Mr. Ellis is planning a campaign for the spring and summer months which will call for a number of assistants in carrying out this work.

Smylie G. Ells, who has been working the Philadelphia territory, has been doing extremely well in that quarter. He also opened up a number of accounts in Atlantic City and in Baltimore.

United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. Elects New Officers

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, the regular quarterly dividend on common stock was declared and new officers were elected to fill the places of those who resigned.

Moses A. Gunst, Alfred I. Esberg and Preston Herbert are the new directors who take the places of Marc. H. Mack, Sol. Wertheim and Maurice Wertheim.

Jacob Wertheim's resignation as president was acted upon and Fred Hirschhorn was elected to the executive chair of the concern. Maurice Wertheim will not retire from the secretaryship until the new officers are thoroughly familiar with the details of the business. Paul Hirschhorn will be assistant secretary and Henry Esberg, though connected with the company, will be elected to office later.

Messrs. Alfred Esberg, John Kolb, Preston Herbert and Henry Esberg were elected vice-presidents. Other officers elected were: Treasurer, J. W. Schiffer; secretary, Maurice Wertheim; assistant treasurer, John T. Dee; assistant secretary, Paul Hirschhorn; second assistant secretary, Sig. Schlessinger.

Mr. Hirschhorn has been the subject of congratulation upon his election. He is admitted to be a most capable official and has the loyal support of all his associates.

Harry S. Loewenthal Takes to Himself a Bride

Harry S. Loewenthal, of S. Loewenthal & Sons, leaf dealers of this city, was married March 20, to Miss Ruth Berger, at the home of the bride. The wedding was very private, only members of the two families and a few friends being present at the ceremony. The house was richly decorated, and a wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony. The happy couple will make an extensive wedding tour through the South.

Mr. Loewenthal is the eldest son of Samuel Loewenthal, and has been actively connected with the firm for the past eight years. He has been a member of the firm for four years and makes several yearly trips, on which he has clearly demonstrated his selling abilities. He is looked upon as one of the most promising young men of the leaf trade.

Twenty-five Per Cent. Settlement for Oscar Schein Probable

The committee of creditors appointed to look into the failure of Oscar Schein, made its report and finds that the liabilities are $22,790.34. The assets, as appraised by the committee, are $6600, of which $1750 is for the merchandise in the store at 1488 Broadway. The factory assets amount to $1900 and outstanding accounts $1100.

In making its report the committee recommends that an offer of twenty-five per cent., payable in ten per cent. cash and fifteen per cent. in three notes of five per cent., be accepted. It is thought that this offer will be accepted.

Those hold-up men who seem to have it in for the United Cigar Stores, again renewed their gentle pastime by robbing two stands of the United. They did a good night's work on March 26, getting away with about $510. This time the store on Columbus Avenue above Seventy-fifth Street was first visited, where they tied up the clerk, Nathan Werner. The stand at Columbus Avenue north of One Hundred and Fourth Street was next visited, where they repeated their previous hold-up trick.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Quaker City Trade Outlook

THE retail dealers in the center of town report having done a fair week's business, although the week previous to that was rather quiet. The Easter trade was better than was expected. The weather the past few days has been fine and naturally has affected business favorably.

Although the majority of the factories have been running on full time, conditions are not as favorable as they were a short time ago, when every one appeared to be busy. Some of the plants closed down on Easter Monday. The manufacturers are now wondering just how hard they are going to be hit in the flood which has devastated the Middle West. That section of the country has been one of the strongholds of this market and the present upset conditions there are bound to have an effect. A number of the factories have discontinued shipments for the present until they can get more definite information as to just how much damage has been done. Telegrams to their different jobbers elicited no replies, the telegraph company evidently being unable to deliver the messages.

Committee Getting Signatures For Association

The committee of cigar manufacturers, which was appointed to secure signatures for starting the new association, has been busy the past two weeks in carrying on this work. The complete plans as they were outlined at that time are being pushed as fast as possible. Nathan Baum, of the Baum-Jaffe Company, has been instrumental in carrying much of this work to the point it has now reached. After the association has been formed definitely in this city, the manufacturers will be solicited in other Pennsylvania cigar manufacturing centers.

Theobald & Oppenheimer Open Nazareth Factory

A new factory has been opened by the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, at Nazareth, Pennsylvania. This concern has a number of factories throughout the state, the last one to be opened previous to the Nazareth plant being located in Reading. John N. Kolb, of the firm, is now on a trip to Amsterdam, where he will attend the later inscriptions. He expects to be back about May 1. Fred Hirschorn, newly elected president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, and Preston Herbert, of the same concern, were recent visitors at the local factory. John T. Dee, of Theobald & Oppenheimer, was a visitor to New York last week, where he took up several matters of business and also attended the dinner tendered to Jacob Wertheim, retiring president of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

New "El Wadora" Packing Makes Good

THE new packing of the "El Wadora" cigar of Sig C. Mayer & Company, which has been placed with their many jobbers throughout the country, is being received with general satisfaction. The "El Wadora" is put up in separate bundles, but packed as before, fifty to the box. The cigars are wrapped in tin foil, which insures their reaching the smoker in their original condition.

In addition to the foil-wrapped cigar, the cigar is now put out in tins, which is recognized as one of the most popular ways now in vogue for packing cigars. This firm announces that they are now in a position to place this brand with live jobbers in open territory. Since moving in their new factory they are in a position to handle their orders more expeditiously than before, and are taking steps toward increasing their output.

The new label of the "Statesmen" cigar has been the subject of much favorable comment by the many jobbers of Jeitles & Blumenthal, the manufacturers of the brand. This seed and Havana piece of goods is being pushed heavily by this firm with good results. They have been making this cigar for more than thirty years.

The Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company is now featuring the "Londres Grandes," one of the staple Portuondo lines. This was one of the first brands introduced by this old house, being put on the market in 1869, and has continued to be one of their best sellers since that time. It is a Sumatra-wrapped, Havana-filled piece of goods.

Bobrow Brothers, who recently opened their new stemmery at 133 Arch Street, allowing them more space in their factory at 112 South Second Street, are making alterations in their upper floors in that building in order to place more cigarmakers. They will have space for from one hundred to one hundred and fifty additional hands.

The E. Wolf Company, of St. Paul, Minnesota, who took on for distribution in that territory recently the "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, are doing well with the brand. Their first shipment was soon used up and they have ordered another lot. A. J. Lynch, who covers the East for this firm, was a trade visitor in Atlantic City last week, where he looked up the "Stratford" accounts. There were three attractive window displays on the brand in that city over the Easter holidays.

Quaker City Notes

Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb have taken on another representative in the person of F. D. Pixley, an experienced cigar salesman, who will cover the Middle West and South on the "Reynaldo" and "Luxello." He will work from Evansville, Indiana. William H. Orr is the Chicago territory representative for the above cigars.

Frederick Horn, 5205 West Market Street, has installed a fine new humidor in his store. He has recently added the "Stratford" cigar of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, to his large stock.

The new Riker-Hegeman drug store, located next to the Garrick Theatre, 1332 Chestnut Street, is rapidly being prepared for occupancy. The cigar stand of this concern, which has stores in New York City, is always an important feature of the business. The name of the manager of this department has not been announced as yet.

The H. C. Nolan Company, manufacturers of the "Waldorf" cigar, formerly located at 1215 Filbert Street, are now in the Denckla Building, Eleventh and Market Streets. They moved there last week.

Clarence W. Reynolds, 5202 Haverford Avenue, one of West Philadelphia's most progressive young retailers, has lately taken on the "Stratford" cigar of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company. He also reports a heavy demand for the "Bold," made by Bobrow Brothers.

Mr. Schwartz, advertising manager of Bobrow Brothers, is receiving congratulations on the receipt of good news from the flood district. Mr. Schwartz's parents resided in Dayton, and he was much concerned about their safety. He had made preparations to leave the city for Dayton, when he received a telegram from his mother stating that she was safe among friends. His father had been traveling and was not in Dayton at the time of the flood.

The Market Street window of the Bingham House cigar stand has a neat display of "Melachrino" cigarettes. The Eleventh Street window is taken over with a display of "Hernan Cortez" cigars.

William H. Dohan, of Dohan & Taitt, who was taken ill a short time ago and is now on a trip to the Bermudas, is reported to be much improved. Mr. Dohan was not very ill, but took the trip to recuperate from hard work and a run-down system.

The "El Vendura" cigar, made by the Emze Cigar Company, 212 North Twelfth Street, has been making good headway in this market. They are featured by the O'Keefe stores, on Fourth and Fifth Streets. The brand was taken on last week by the Aufderheider store at Fourth and Walnut Streets.

"Havana Ribbon" Boosters Escape Injury in Cyclone

BAYUK BROTHERS COMPANY have had a fine month's business in March. All of their factories are running full-handed and overtime.

A. G. Bucher, who represents the firm in Iowa and Nebraska, was fortunate in escaping injury at Omaha in the recent disaster. He got off with a slight shaking up and turned over his hotel accommodations to his less fortunate neighbors. Robert I. Gressitt, who covers Ohio and Michigan in the interest of "Havana Ribbons," with headquarters at Columbus, had just left for Toledo when the flood occurred. Mr. Gressitt feels thankful that he was "on the job" in his territory, otherwise he might have met mishap.

Samuel Bayuk arrived from Amsterdam last Wednesday, where he was attending the Sumatra inscriptions, and where he succeeded in purchasing some high-grade wrappers. On Mr. Bayuk's arrival at his office on Thursday morning he found his desk liberally supplied with bouquets of American beauties presented him by the office, sales and shipping force.

Cores-Martinez Open Local Factory

THE Cores-Martinez Company, cigar manufacturers, who removed their offices at 335 Walnut Street to their new factory 2115 South Eighth Street last week, and opened the factory shortly afterward, are now operating the place. The building is a two-story and basement affair and is ideally adapted for the manufacture of cigars. A number of alterations were first made, such as putting up partitions and building in a large humidor. The floor space amounts to about 15,000 feet.

The first floors will be occupied by offices, shipping rooms, a humidor and for storing purposes. The second floor will be utilized for benches for cigarmakers. This floor is well lighted, there being windows on all sides, and there are ample facilities for placing benches for accommodating several hundred hands.

The basement will be used for storing leaf tobacco and preparing it for the cigarmakers. A number of changes have been made there also, which were most satisfactory to the manufacturers.

One of the finest hotel cigar stands in Philadelphia is to be found in the bar-room of the New Ritz-Carlton, at Broad and Walnut Streets. The case and fixtures are solid Circassian walnut, natural finish. The genial manager, Mr. Middleton, has already made a host of friends among the hotel patrons. The Acker, Merrall & Condit Company, of New York, have the cigar privilege, and all their best brands are distributed there.

A. K. Moore, on Filbert Street above Thirteenth, who is a large dealer of "La Famosa" cigars, made by E. Kleiner & Company, of New York, has a solid window display on this brand at present.

Dusel & Goodloe have taken on for distribution in this territory the "Cubanola" cigar, made by E. Seidenberg & Company. It is a nickel proposition and preparations have been made for pushing it heavily in this city. They received some attractive advertising material, which will be used in the window displays.

TOO LATE FOR CLASSIFICATION

FOR SALE.—Two Progressive Power Bunching Machines; one Miller-DuBrul Power Scrap Cutter; one Branding Machine; one Electric Scrap Tobacco Fan; 5,000 moulds for sale. London Whiff Cigar Company, Cleveland, Ohio. 4-1-a

R. J. Reynolds' Cigarettes Ready for Market in July

Factory on East Third Street, Winston-Salem Selected—Will Manufacture Two Brands, to Retail at Five and Fifteen Cents

WINSTON-SALEM, March 29.

IN an interview with R. J. Reynolds today, he stated that his company were now equipping the factory formerly occupied by the Ripfkert-Scales Company, East Third Street at the railroad, as a thoroughly modern cigarette plant, and that they expected to have the goods ready for sale about July.

The company have purchased about $150,000 worth of cigarette machinery, and also large quantities of selected Turkish and domestic tobacco preparatory to entering the cigarette field. It is their intention to place two brands on the market at the outset, one a five-cent package for ten cigarettes of Virginia and blended domestic tobaccos, and a fifteen-cent package of blended Turkish and domestic tobaccos, twenty in the package. Mr. Reynolds stated further that their cigarettes must embody exclusive blends of such a high character that the goods would prove fit selling mates for "Prince Albert" smoking tobacco.

As has been stated, neither brand of cigarettes will be known as "Prince Albert," but suitable names have already been selected, but the company does not wish to make them public just yet.

The cleverest cigarette men to be obtained will both manufacture and market the product.

London Whiff Company to Move in New Factory

The London Whiff Cigar Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, is contemplating moving into its new factory in that city very shortly. Elaborate preparations have been made to make the factory most modern in every detail in order to meet all the requirements of present day cigar manufacturing. The "Moses Cleaveland" and the "London Whiffs" cigar of this company are in constant demand and have become standard goods with many dealers.

New Stemming Plant for United Cigar Manufacturers' Co.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company has leased a two-story brick building in Bayonne, New Jersey, and will shortly open a stemming plant at that place. The building has a floor space of about twenty-five hundred square feet and affords room for about three hundred hands. The new plant of the company in Bayonne is located at 9 West Twentieth Street.

Another Tobacco Tax Bill Now Ready

Representative A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, states that he has a new bill which he will place before the next Congress. The measure relates to a tobacco tax. It provides for a progressive tax, according to Mr. Stanley, on the amount of tobacco manufactured by a single company. If the concern manufactures a certain amount, it will be taxed a certain sum, and more in proportion to the excess manufactured over the maximum amount.

Anti-Cigarette Bill a "Dead One" in Missouri

Although the Missouri House of Representatives passed the anti-cigarette bill before that body prohibiting the sale or giving away, or offering for sale cigarettes or cigarette papers, this was the end of the measure, as the time was too short for consideration by the Senate before the adjournment of the Legislature. Even at that it is said that the Senate was opposed to the bill and looked upon it as a piece of freak legislation.

Pronounced Slump in Lancaster Tobacco Prices

LANCASTER, PA., March 30.

The past week, for the first time since the long-continued slump in the Lancaster tobacco market, prices have shaded off, and old goods were to be had below the prices that have prevailed for more than a year, the only exception being with the 1910 packing, of which there is now little in the local market. Goods of the 1909 crop could be had in any quantity at nine cents a pound, while the excellent 1911 goods ranged between fourteen and fifteen cents. At a meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association it was insisted that, instead of the reported fifteen per cent. of the new crop being unsold, twenty per cent. would be nearer the mark. The condition is a serious one for the growers who still have their crops on hand. The only disposition, apparently, that can be made of the goods is to case them.

Oscar Hammerstein Announces Perfection of New Machine

Oscar Hammerstein, inventor of the suction machine and the well-known opera promoter, has perfected his new machine which he claims will do away with the wasting of tobacco stems. The machine will utilize these stems by flattening, then corrugating them, in that way preparing them so that they will burn as well as the tobacco leaf itself. This machine, it has been announced, saves at least one-fourth of the raw product.

The machine is a small one, working something like a clothes wringer. The operator feeds the tobacco leaf through the rollers, thus flattening them. The stem of the leaf is made to pass a certain point, where it is corrugated in such a manner that it becomes combustible. No chemicals are used in the operation, but water is used at the spot where the stem is crushed.

George Martin to Have Fifth Store

The fifth store of George Martin, the cigar dealer of Davenport and Moline, Iowa, will be opened shortly; after a number of improvements have been made. This is the third store that Mr. Martin has secured this year, he having opened one in Davenport and another in Moline.

The new stand of Mr. Martin will be located in the Hotel Davenport. The deal was significant in that Mr. Martin secured the stand through W. H. Harrison, a man for whom he worked as a clerk about eighteen years ago. Mr. Harrison is a member of the firm of Harrison & Gorman, proprietors of the Davenport Hotel, in which the stand will be located.

Minnesota House to Act Soon On Cigarette Bill

The cigarette question will shortly be decided upon by the Minnesota House of Representatives. The committee has reported the bill repealing the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes without recommendation, so it will go on the calendar and come up for discussion in a few weeks. The law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes has long been a dead letter in Minnesota. It is not likely that the anti-snuff bill will be reported out by the committee.

The cigar factory formerly operated by the Wm. A. Stickney Cigar Company, on Fourth Street, St. Louis, who made the "Security" cigar, has been closed by the new owners, Niles & Moser Cigar Company, and the brands will hereafter be made in Detroit. The number of cigar factories in St. Louis and vicinity is steadily decreasing, one prominent leaf house reporting a shrinkage of one hundred factories in the past six months.

Anti-Coupon Bill For Washington Passes

Measure Passes Both Houses of Legislature by Almost Unanimous Vote—Provides for Annual License of $6,000

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON, March 21.

THE much discussed anti-coupon bill, which has been introduced in the legislature by the leading dealers of the state, passed both houses and is now in the hands of the governor for his signature. It is not known definitely what he will do about the matter, but it is understood he will sign it. The bill is a most drastic one and will legislate the coupon out of existence in this state, as it provides for an annual license of $6000.

A bill of this nature was advocated at the annual convention of the Western Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, in the city of Tacoma, on January 17-18, and was framed by a committee of that organization a short time later. Several members of the body have been watching the measure as it was being passed upon by the legislature, and the bill as it now stands is substantially the same as fostered by the association. N. E. Nelson, secretary of the body, and other officials have been instrumental in getting the proper support necessary for the passage of the bill.

The measure is as follows:

AN ACT

Relating to Stamps, Coupons, Tickets, Certificates, Cards or Other Similar Devices, for or With the Sale of Goods, Wares and Merchandise, and Providing a Penalty for Violation Thereof.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Washington:

Section 1. Every person, firm or corporation who shall use, and every person, firm or corporation who shall furnish to any other person, firm, or corporation to use in, with, or for the sale of any goods, wares or merchandise, any stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards, or other similar devices which shall entitle the purchaser receiving the same with such sale of goods, wares, or merchandise to procure from any person, firm, or corporation any goods, wares, or merchandise, free of charge, or for less than the retail market price thereof, upon the production of any number of said stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards or other similar devices, shall before so furnishing, selling, or using the same obtain a separate license from the auditor of each county wherein such furnishing, or selling, or using shall take place for each and every store or place of business in that county, owned or conducted by such person, firm or corporation from which said furnishing, or selling, or in which such using shall take place.

Section 2. In order to obtain such license the person, firm, or corporation applying therefor shall pay to the county treasurer of the county for which such license is sought the sum of six thousand dollars, and upon such payment being made to the county treasurer he shall issue his receipt therefor, which shall be presented to the auditor of the same county, who shall upon the presentation thereof issue to the person, firm, or corporation making such payment a license to furnish, or sell, or a license to use for one year the stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards or other similar devices mentioned in section 1 of this act. Such license shall contain the name of the grantee thereof, the date of its issue, the date of its expiration, the town or city in which and the location at which the same shall be used, and such license shall be used at no place other than that mentioned therein.

Section 3. No person, firm, or corporation shall furnish or sell to any other person, firm, or corporation, to use in, with, or for the sale of any goods, wares, or merchandise, any such stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards or other similar devices for use in any town, city, or county in this state other than that in which such furnishing or selling shall take place.

Section 4. Violation a gross misdemeanor.

Germans Outbid Americans at Amsterdam

At the second Amsterdam inscription, held on March 14, competition was more keen than at the first one, the German firms getting quite a bit of Sumatra which it had been expected would be taken by Americans. As a result prices were high. Up to the present Americans have not bought as heavily as during the past two years.

Among the American firms figuring in the purchases were: H. Duys & Company, E. Spingarn & Company, E. Rosenwald & Brother, S. Rossin & Sons, Hinsdale, Smith & Company, Charles K. Waxelbaum & Company, American Cigar Company, Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, A. Cohn & Company, Joseph Hirsch & Son and Cullman Brothers.

Retailers' Association Formed at Grand Rapids

In line with the widespread movement for organization, the best retailers of Grand Rapids, Michigan, have formed the Grand Rapids Dealers' Association. W. F. Rea was elected president and John Stanard secretary and treasurer.

The objects of the association are the raising of higher standards in the retail cigar business and the elimination of price-cutting. They also figure that they can concentrate their buying through organization. They hope to see their action followed by retailers in surrounding cities.

E. Rosenwald & Brother, the New York leaf tobacco firm, has appointed as their representative in Detroit and Canada, Alfred W. Penner, a well-known salesman. Mr. Penner has made a record for his kind of work and should more than make good for the New York concern.

TWO OF THE BIGGEST THINGS IN THE WEST

In the background on Second Avenue, Seattle's principal business street, can be seen the steel work for the 42 story Smith building, said to be the tallest building in the United States, outside of New York.

In the foreground is a "Star" painted wall, the largest in the West. The size of the "Star" tobacco advertisement on the Belmont Hotel wall is 75 by 110 feet, or 8250 square feet. The height of the letters in the word "Star" is 18 feet, 6 inches. The approximate size of the plug on this advertisement is 15 feet wide by 60 feet long.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Straightening Out Financial Tangle of R. & W. Jenkinson

It is Reported That the Majority of the Creditors Have Agreed to Extension of Time as Requested by Pittsburgh Concern

GREAT surprise has been occasioned in trade circles throughout the country by the reported financial embarrassment of R. & W. Jenkinson, of Pittsburgh, a concern with a country-wide reputation and one of the largest jobbing, retailing and manufacturing concerns of the East. They are well known as manufacturers of stogies.

Letters have been sent to the creditors of the firm asking for an extension of one year in order to straighten out the financial tangle. The liabilities are in the neighborhood of $300,000 with assets of about $270,000. A plan is now said to be under consideration for appointing a board to take charge of the business, two of the members to be representatives of banks interested and the others cigar manufacturers. It has not been decided whether this plan will be approved.

One of the largest creditors is the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, which firm has agreed to an extension as requested. It has been learned that other firms interested have also signified their consent to the extension. This old Pittsburgh house is well known and the business will probably be carried along as heretofore until the matter has been adjusted.

E. H. Gerlach, New National Grocery Co. Manager

E. H. Gerlach, who has been representing the McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company, of Detroit, in the state of Washington, has been appointed the new manager of the National Grocery Company, of Seattle, to succeed C. H. Rovig, who recently resigned to become a member of the newly organized jobbing firm of Rosenfeld-Rovig Company. Mr. Gerlach has had many years' experience in the tobacco business, having at one time represented the American Tobacco Company on the Pacific Coast. He has many friends in the trade, who extend their sincere wishes for his success.

Stallings Co. Pushing Number of Brands

The cigar department of the Stallings Company, of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, which was recently organized under the management of W. F. Sharples, a well-known Pittsburgh man, reports good progress on their brands. They have been making a drive on the cigars of Sig C. Mayer & Company; the "Charles Denby"; "Ology"; and the "La Saramita," of Shields-Wertheim Company, of Cleveland. They have recently worked the Pittsburgh territory with satisfactory results.

Headquarters of Parker-Gordon Co. Now in Kansas City

The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of St. Joseph, Missouri, which recently moved its headquarters to Kansas City, are now well established in their new offices. The executive business of the company will be handled from this point, although the branch houses in other cities will be maintained as heretofore. Ample provision has been made in the Kansas City establishment for the offices and for the storing of cigars and other tobacco products.

"Stiglitz Smoke Shoppe" New Wholesale House

LOUIS STIGLITZ, formerly of Cleveland, is opening up a very high-grade jobbing and retail business at Alliance, Ohio, under the firm style "Stiglitz Smoke Shoppe," at 426 East Main Street. It is said that this will be one of the most complete wholesale and jobbing houses in the state. Mr. Stiglitz has many friends in Cleveland who wish him the utmost success.

One of his leading lines of cigars will be the "La Saramita," made by the Shields-Wertheim Company, of Cleveland.

"Sarzedas" Account for J. G. Cohn Cigar Co.

The J. G. Cohn Cigar Company, of Seattle, has taken over for distribution in that territory the "Sarzedas" cigar, made by I. Teitelbaum & Company, of Cleveland, and is now working hand in hand with the Western representative of the manufacturers, V. B. Fisher. The deal was carried through by I. Teitelbaum, head of the Cleveland firm, on a recent visit to the Western field.

W. A. Hall Moves Into New Store

W. A. Hall, the Washington, District of Columbia, jobber and retailer of cigars, moved into his new store in that city at Seventh and Pennsylvania Avenue, recently. Mr. Hall, in his new establishment, has one of the really attractive cigar stores of the city. He is a distributor in that district for several brands of cigars made by the C. H. Plitt Cigar Company, of York, Pennsylvania, among them being "Hall's Star," "20th Century" and "King Rowser," the first two cigars being nickel propositions and the last one a ten-cent brand.

Lee Mercantile Co. Install Humidor

A most up-to-date humidor has been installed in their cigar department by the Lee Mercantile Company, of Salina, Kansas. The capacity of the humidor is one million and a half cigars. The cigar department of this concern was recently organized under the management of Walter Clark, formerly Middle West representative of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, of Philadelphia. Mr. Clark's office was in Chicago.

J. Schenker Takes Over Independent Tobacco Co.

Jacob Schenker, one of Brooklyn's largest independent jobbers, recently took over the Independent Tobacco Company, of Brooklyn. The acquisition gives him many new accounts and much additional territory.

Bernard Hecht, the former president of the Independent Company, will join the Schenker sales force and cover the Bushwick, Ridgewood and East New York sections of Brooklyn. There are now twelve men selling the Schenker lines.

The delivery facilities of the new company will be increased by the addition of an automobile and two new wagons.

The leading cigar of the Schenker line is the "3-20-8," made by A. B. Smith & Company, of Boston. A full line of the best brands of cigarettes is also handled.

Jobbing Trade Notes

A new jobbing house, The Halliburton Cigar Company, commences operations in Fort Smith, Arkansas, about the first of April. Their clear Havana leaders will be "Henry the Fourth" and the Stachelberg line.

F. W. Clarke, new Detroit representative for Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, is making things hum for that firm in the Indiana and Michigan territory. He reports large sales of the Roig line. The Cadillar Cigar Company is distributing their goods in Detroit.

A new jobbing house has been organized in Indianapolis which will do business as the Consumers' Cigar Company. It also expects to conduct a retail cigar and tobacco business. The store of Ritchie & Farrell, at 221 Indiana Avenue, has been taken over and will be used as headquarters. It is announced that a strictly jobbing trade will be conducted for the present. Mr. Ritchie, of Ritchie & Farrell, is head of the concern, and Mr. Farrell, of the same concern, will manage the store.

The first and second floors of the Wm. A. Stickney Cigar Company, of St. Louis, which concern was recently taken over by the Niles & Moser Cigar Company, of Kansas City, is being remodeled extensively.

Flint B. Aniba, head of the branch selling organization of the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, of Duluth, for the states of Montana, Idaho and Wyoming, with headquarters at Helena, Montana, reports that under the new methods of this large wholesale grocery and cigar house the states he covers are being worked with most favorable results. "I think this will be the banner year in the cigar business in the Northwest," said Mr. Aniba. The big brands of this house are the "El-Roi-Tan" and "El Portana."

J. R. Cohen, one of the pioneer cigar firms of Des Moines, Iowa, which was expanded a short time ago, will in the future do business under the title of J. R. Cohen & Son. This firm is known not only as one of the oldest cigar and tobacco firms in Iowa, but as one of the largest manufacturers and jobbers of cigars and tobaccos in the Middle West.

A number of changes have taken place in the cigar department of L. Singer, Candy Company, of Newark, New Jersey, among them being the appointment of H. G. Panetz as manager. Mr. Panetz had formerly traveled for this concern in different sections of the state. It is expected that a number of new brands of cigars will be added to their lines in the near future.

The R. D. Burnett Cigar Company, of Birmingham, Alabama, recently moved into their new quarters in that city. The new store is said to be one of the most finely finished and up-to-date places of its kind in the South. The interior furnishings are of mahogany and white marble. Mr. Burnett, of the concern, stated recently that he has spared no expense in making this establishment a model of its kind. The R. D. Burnett Company is one of the largest wholesale houses in that part of the country.

Light and Sanitation Features of New Wertheimer Bros. Plant

Floor Space of New Factory Three Times That of Old—Is Model for Places of Its Kind

PREPARATIONS are being made as speedily as possible for the occupation of their new factory by Wertheimer Brothers, of Baltimore. The new plant after it is finished will be one of the finest of its kind in the country. The building was erected by a baking concern of Baltimore, which subsequently was absorbed by another firm, and the place was never used.

It occupies an entire square in that city, facing Preston, Wolf, Durham and Gay Streets. The lot is 248 by 120 in size and the buildings will have a combined floor space of 50,000 square feet, which the members of the firm state will give them at least three times their present space. It is of steel and concrete construction, has light on all sides, and is conveniently located for shipping purposes, being on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

This concern manufactures the "El Dallo" nickel cigar, and the increase in their business on this brand has been so pronounced the past year that the securing of larger quarters was imperative. They have been manufacturing cigars in another building in that city the past few months, but they reached the capacity of this plant a short time ago. One of the features of the new factory will be the installation of a number of conveniences for the comfort of the employees, such as dining and rest rooms. From a sanitary standpoint the place will be all that can be desired.

S. M. Frechie Takes Over Louis Ash Business

S. M. Frechie has purchased the cigar manufacturing business of Louis Ash & Company, at 227 East Fifty-sixth Street, New York City. Mr. Frechie was formerly a partner in the firm of Barnes, Smith & Company, the Binghamton cigar manufacturers, but sold his interest last October. He hopes to build up the Ash line to the standards they once maintained. The leader of the new factory will be a seed and Havana cigar called the "Gretchen." The "Ashburn" will be another seed and Havana, while the clear Havana brands will be known as "Esperance" and "La Perlita." Private jobbers' brands will be made up as before.

Indiana's New Cigarette Law of Little Use

More severe anti-cigarette legislation has been passed in the form of Indiana's new law. By allowing the bill to remain in his hands the required length of time without a veto, Governor Ralston really gave his support, though he did not sign the bill. He is said to have stated that he did not believe it fair to brand a boy as a criminal because he smoked a cigarette, though he was willing to allow the bill to become a law.

A more rational law would be effective, but this one by its extremity is of little value and will probably become a dead letter. The authorities hope that it will make the smaller dealers more careful in the matter of selling cigarettes to young boys. The better class of dealers will, of course, be lightly affected by the new measure.

National Can Company Issues Attractive Booklet

An attractive little pamphlet is being sent to the trade by the National Can Company, of Detroit, Michigan, large independent manufacturers of tin cigar containers of all descriptions. The booklet is entitled "Tin Cans," and deals with the advantages of the tin can over other packings, pointing out the benefits to be derived in keeping the contents in their original condition. It also gives a full description of the cans manufactured by this concern. Samples and prices will be supplied upon request.

Death Takes Francisco L. Dominguez

In the death of Francisco L. Dominguez, a member of the firm of E. A. Calves & Company, Philadelphia has lost one of her best-known figures in the leaf tobacco trade. Mr. Dominguez has been identified with the above firm for many years and had been doing the buying for the concern in Havana.

He was born in Vejucal, Cuba, more than fifty-nine years ago. He first manufactured cigars, but later came to this country while still a youth and entered the leaf tobacco business. He entered the employ of E. A. Calves, founder of the Philadelphia leaf concern of E. A. Calves & Company, and several years before the death of Mr. Calves in 1894, became a member of the firm. He retained his interest in the business when the firm was reorganized, and was largely instrumental in its success and its growth to the present proportions.

Mr. Dominguez was considered an authority on tobacco. He had been in the business all his life, knew the Cuban market as few men do and several times each year traveled to the Island to purchase for his firm.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, March 18, at his late residence, 3028 Diamond Street. Mr. Dominguez is survived by a widow and two grandchildren.

W. A. Adams, Tobacco Expert, Passes Away

W. A. Adams, a well-known figure in leaf tobacco circles in North Carolina, died at his home in Oxford, that state, recently. He at one time spent three years in Japan as the adviser to the Imperial Government in the growing and manufacture of tobacco, for which he was decorated with the "Order of the Rising Sun."

At the time of his death, Mr. Adams was president of the W. A. Adams Company, which did a large domestic and export leaf tobacco business; also president of the Granville Tobacco Storage Company, of Oxford. He is survived by a widow, a daughter and two sons, C. B. Adams, secretary and treasurer of the W. A. Adams Company, and William Abner Adams, Jr.

"Uncle Sol" Hoffheimer Dies

In the death of Solomon Hoffheimer, who had been connected for many years with Hamberger Brothers & Company, of New York, the trade has lost one of her best-known figures. Mr. Hoffheimer was familiarly known to many as "Uncle Sol," and since 1879 had been employed by Hamberger Brothers & Company. He had traveled during this time throughout New York State and Pennsylvania. He had not, however, been active during the past three years, although he enjoyed good health until about six months ago.

Mr. Hoffheimer is survived by a widow, three daughters and a son. He was eighty years of age and resided at 1476 Lexington Avenue, New York.

James B. McKee

James B. McKee, proprietor of the McKee Cigar Company, of Wheeling, Virginia, died at San Diego, California, March 22. He had been in ill-health for some time and death was expected. He was well known to the trade in Wheeling.

Remainder of 1912 Crop Slowly Being Absorbed—Growers Talk of Cutting Crops—York County Tobacco Planters Perfect Organization—Contract Awarded for Boyertown Cigar Factory

LANCASTER, March 26.

THE remaining portion of the new crop is being absorbed slowly. The prices range from five to eight cents. It has been estimated that about ten to fifteen per cent. is still in the hands of the growers. While these prices are far below normal, the tobacco now being purchased is in many cases not up to the average in quality.

Many men are now wondering how the growers are going to reduce their acreages. This matter has been discussed before and nothing came of it. It is a question whether the planters will really cut their crops when the thing must be finally decided. It is all right to talk the matter over when it comes up, but the experience has been that there are few tobacco farmers who will do it. There is no doubt though that a number of farmers who failed to realize their prices this year will probably switch to other crops.

The cigar factories as a rule are busy. Orders are coming in with pleasing regularity from Middle Western points, but from all reports conditions are slow in the East.

The Farmers' Tobacco Receiving and Packing Association of York County met in Red Lion on March 21 and thoroughly discussed their plans. Over 3000 acres of tobacco have already been pledged to the association. Another meeting will be held on March 25.

The Topper Cigar Company, of McSherrystown, Pennsylvania, an account of which appeared in the March 15 issue of THE WORLD, have laid plans for further distributing their goods. Owing to a mistake the name of this concern was given as Popper in these columns recently.

George W. Schupp, the Reading cigar manufacturer, has opened his factory at 840 North Sixth Street. He will employ union hands.

The contract for building the new three-story factory in Boyertown, Pennsylvania, for the Boyertown Improvement Company has been awarded W. H. Herb, a local contractor, for $13,980. The building is to be completed by July 1. The specifications call for a plant forty by one hundred and fifty feet in dimensions, and to be covered by an asbestos roofing. The building will be steam heated and electrically lighted. It is located at Fourth and Jefferson Streets.

Charles H. Hayden, widely known in the tobacco trade in New York City, died recently. He was secretary of the Hilson Company, cigar manufacturers, for fifteen years. At the time of his death he was connected with Cullman Brothers, seed leaf packers. He leaves a widow and one son, a student at Columbia University.

Henry Davis, a retired cigar manufacturer, living at 126 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, died in that city recently. He was sixty-eight years of age and had been in business in Brooklyn for more than thirty years. He is survived by a widow and a son.

Frank Martin Schaub, a wholesale tobacco merchant of Pittsburgh, and son of Andrew Schaub, a pioneer tobacco man of that city, died there recently, aged thirty-eight years.

Joseph J. Perry, who enjoyed the reputation of being one of the oldest, as well as the best-known cigarmakers of New Bedford, Massachusetts, and vicinity, died in that city recently, aged seventy-six years.

Harry S. Roesch, a member of the cigar manufacturing firm of Roesch Brothers, Pottstown, Pennsylvania, died in that city several weeks ago, of a complication of diseases. He was engaged in business with his brother, Fred S. Roesch, and in addition to their trade in Pottstown and vicinity, had good distributing centers in New York and Jersey City. Mr. Roesch attended to the sales end of the organization and during his life had made many friends in the trade by reason of his jovial disposition. He is survived by a widow and one child.

Chicago

Cigarette Bills Interest Local Trade—Necessity of Missionary Man Discussed Among Jobbers—Reiss Bros. Co. to Move Pipe House—Monroe Cigar Co. Adds "Renaud" Brand—Pushing "Principe de Gales" in Ctiy

CHICAGO, March 27.

CONDITIONS remained steady in Chicago this month. Trade has been normal for both wholesalers and retailers and manufacturers are finding a good market for their goods. A number of new brands are being introduced by cigarmakers and their reception by the trade is being watched with interest.

The optimism long prevailing among the cigarette dealers continues. All of the representative brands are finding a liberal outlet for their product both in Chicago and the Middle West generally.

Two bills introduced in the state legislatures to govern the sale and consumption of cigarettes are receiving the scrutiny of cigarette manufacturers and dealers in this part of the country. The bills are pending in the legislatures of Minnesota and Indiana.

The Minnesota measure makes it unlawful for any person to sell cigarettes or the makings of cigarettes to minors and forbids the smoking of cigarettes by minors, except on the premises of the minor's parents or guardian. It also provides that no person or organization shall deal in cigarettes without a license—the amount of which is not specified—and a bond in the sum of $1000. Anyone under the age of twenty-one is construed as a minor by the bill.

The fixing of the age limit at twenty-one is being opposed by the trade. It is argued that a boy reaches the age of discretion long before he is twenty-one, and that what is a legitimate safeguard for his moral development at sixteen may be an obnoxious restriction at twenty.

The Indiana cigarette bill, which has been passed by both houses, but has had several amendments attached to it, is substantially the same as the Minnesota measure. Several of the most drastic clauses in the bill were stricken out and are now being considered by Governor Ralston. The clause forbidding the employment of persons under twenty-one as agents in the selling or disposition of cigarettes has been eliminated. The age limit of twenty-one, under which the use of cigarettes is forbidden, is retained in the measure.

Has the doom of the manufacturer's "Advance" or "Missionary" man been sounded? This is the question that cigar jobbing houses are pondering, some of them with no little delight.

This speculation is the result of the action taken by two firms in announcing that in the future they would not allow manufacturers' salesmen to accompany their own salesmen for the purpose of increasing the sales on particular brands. In certain circles these two announcements, made independently, are taken as the forerunners of similar ones to be issued by other houses.

The argument advanced by some of the jobbers is that the "missionary" is an unnecessary and unprofitable addition to their cost of marketing their goods. They say that in the end the salaries and expenses of the "missionaries" are paid by them and not the manufacturers. They say also that their own salesmen are capable of marketing the goods, if the quality is there, and that the manufacturer's representative is an unnecessary duplication. Incidentally, they point out that the existence of the "missionary" is the open door through which the manufacturer gains access to the business secrets of the jobber.

These are some of the reasons advanced by the middlemen, who are beginning to rebel against the "missionaries." Whether they will result in the abolition of the institution will be seen in the near future.

The present agitation in Illinois for a minimum wage for women workers is being discussed by the tobacco trade. Cigar manufacturers in particular have come out in opposition to the plan. They say that a minimum weekly wage of seven or nine dollars would mean that strippers of leaf tobacco could not be employed and that stripping would have to be abandoned in Illinois. The cost of stripping has long been counted as a fixed charge and could not be increased without working havoc with profits.

A branch of the Manufacturers' Hotel Cigar Stores was opened in the People's Bank Building in Moline, Illinois, with Scott T. Owens as manager. One thousand half-pound boxes of candy and as many ten-cent cigars were distributed at the stand on the opening day.

Reiss Brothers Company is going to move its pipe house from Lake Street to its own building at Erie Street and Fairbanks Court May 1. This building has been built to suit the particular needs of this company.

Frank W. Clarke will be the Chicago representative of Roig & Langsdorf after May 1. He will spend part of his time in the city and part in traveling over the Middle West territory.

Wood Hoffman, a cigar manufacturer of Winnipeg, Manitoba, was held up and robbed of $1375 in money and jewelry by three masked men here. He was here on a business trip. The men escaped.

George Martin has purchased the Hotel Davenport cigar stand, Davenport, Iowa, adding it to his string of stores. This makes the fifth store under the ownership and control of Mr. Martin.

The "Principe de Gales" cigar is being boosted in a brisk advertising campaign being conducted in the largest Chicago papers at the present time. J. & B. Moos distribute this brand.

The William F. Monroe Cigar Company is adding the "Renaud" brand to its line. This is a new cigar, named after George A. Renaud, secretary and manager of the company.

Fair Trade Conditions Among Manufacturers—Cortez Factory Increases Force—Two New Manufacturers, Daniel Morton and Rafael Pages—Principe de Golfo Cigar Co. to Have Separate Department for "Lilliosa" Cigar

KEY WEST, March 25.

THE report of local manufacturers indicate fair trade conditions, with a slight increase here and there. The outlook for the spring seems most encouraging. Future delivery orders are coming in steady.

Moredo & Company have increased their force to some extent and are planning an active spring campaign. It is probable that several new sizes and shapes of their popular brands will be introduced to the market. Manager Jaime Pendas has returned to this city after a brief business trip to Tampa.

There has also been some increase in force on the floors of the Cortez Cigar Company. Orders are coming in more briskly for their brand "Hernan Cortez," especially for the finer sizes.

Both immediate and future delivery orders are very fair with the M. Perez Company.

Among the callers at the factory of George W. Nichols & Company was P. Clatter, of Clatter & Sauben, the cigarists of Youngstown, Ohio, who handle the "Solace" brand exclusively. During his stay in the city he was the guest of Fred Artolozago, office manager of George W. Nichols & Company.

Sol Gans arrived here on this morning's train to call on the local trade in the interest of Max Gans & Son. He expects to leave for Tampa on the twenty-seventh to call on the trade there.

Thomas Gato, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, expects to leave for the New York headquarters about the end of this month. Eduardo H. Gato, Jr., who is now in Havana, Cuba, expects to return to Key West at the end of this month, and upon his arrival here Thomas H. Gato will take leave.

Among the departers was Fred Derizanz, manager of the West Indies Cigar Company, of Arecibo, Porto Rico, returning home after a pleasant stay in this city.

Application for a cigar manufacturer's license has been filed by Daniel Morton and factory No. 414 has been assigned.

Rafael Pages made application for a cigar manufacturer's license and factory No. 324 has been assigned.

Orders with Trujillo & Company are coming in more briskly and there is a very noticeable increase in the sales of their most popular brand "Polonius."

A. Aurelio Torres, president and general manager of the Principe De Golfo Cigar Company, is making arrangements for the establishment of a cigar department in which they will handle their popular brand "Lilliosa" only, in thirty-three sizes. This department, he states, will be of great interest to the cigar retailers, and it is expected to commence operation within one month, possibly less.

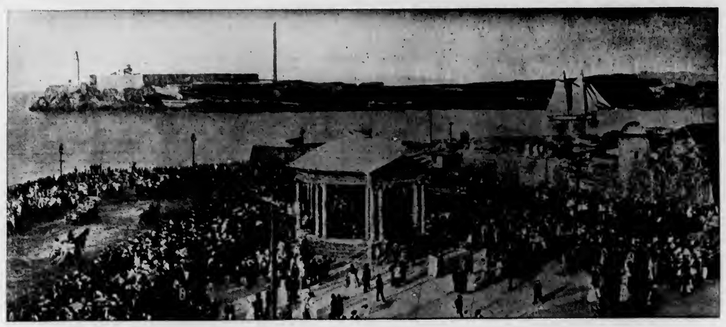
JOS. G. MARUCCI.

Late Trade Jottings

The three-story frame factory of P. G. Fernandez & Company, of Tampa, was destroyed by fire on March 25. The loss, which amounted to $23,000, was covered by insurance.

The cigar manufacturers of Tampa met recently to hear Representative Sparkman speak on the new tariff and the Custom House change. A resolution was passed to assist in securing a repeal of the order making Florida one customs district, with assistant collectors at Tampa and Key West under the direction of the Jacksonville office.

The final seal of approval has been put on the new Sumatra crop and it is generally regarded as excellent leaf. It is conceded to be even better than last year's crop. There is little danger that it will lose its color, as it has been thoroughly ripened. From its general quality the price will remain high and steady.



The Cuban Market

JUDGING by numbers only we should have to report a better market during the first half of this month, but if we take into consideration that over 5000 bales of old Vuelta Abajo (1911) had been liquidated at slaughterhouse prices, the apparent fair movement at this season of the year is not a satisfactory one for the sellers. On the contrary, the losses have been enormous, one house admitting that it lost $40,000 on one transaction of one thousand and odd bales of 1911 Vuelta Abajo. This money had been advanced to a veguero, who had consigned this lot of tobacco as security for the money advanced. Under ordinary circumstances the tobacco ought to have been worth considerably more, but unfortunately the leaf did not burn, and after having held it for more than a year and one-half, finally the leaf dealer ought to be thankful that our cigarette manufacturers could make use of this class of tobacco, and, relatively speaking, owing to the scarcity of colas, were willing to pay high figures. If it had not been for this the loss would have been still heavier. Naturally in all such cases the veguero, although an honest man, has no money to make good this loss, and under similar circumstances there is never a chance for the leaf dealer to collect anything from the veguero, therefore this amount can be written off to profit and loss. This experience is as old as the hills among the older leaf dealers, and strange to say, there are always some people that are willing to run the risk, although the burnt children are dreading the fire. One of our leaf dealers the other day stated that during the last thirty years there was not a single leaf dealer here that could be termed rich. He qualified this by adding that he meant who had made a million dollars, or a little less, in the leaf business, as there are in land speculations, or by sudden rises in stocks, since the war. We are almost inclined to believe that the conditions in the United States do not vary much in the leaf trade, although the cigar and cigarette manufacturers, as well as the ones of smoking and chewing tobacco, in the United States undoubtedly have been in a better condition than their brethren in the Island of Cuba. The former have had the protection of the government, while the latter had to fight singlehanded against the raising of duties and the consequent curtailing of their markets in the world.

It was like a bombshell in our market when a report arrived here today, giving the rumor from Washington of the nineteenth, that the Ways and Means Committee intended to report Schedule F by making the duty on all kinds of leaf tobacco in future one dollar per pound. We cannot believe that this rumor is based upon any authentic statement from the Ways and Means Committee, although our leaf dealers became greatly excited and took this rumor already as an established fact. If such a measure should in reality be enacted into a law, it would spell the ruin of our agriculture, leaf dealers, as well as of the clear Havana cigar industry in the United States. How our cigar industry would fare we are unable to say, but in such a case we can hardly hope that the same would be treated more leniently. The only people that would fare well would be the Sumatra importers, although even they would in the end derive no benefit from lowering the rate on wrappers, when our fillers should be raised about three hundred per cent. on the present rate, and therefore virtually be barred from being imported into the United States. This appears to us as either a hoax of a crazy man, or the American Government is trying to force us into annexation by this means. Well, we hope, that it is the former, and in the meantime await further developments.

The few buyers from the North that have come here have operated very sparingly and principally seem to be interested in the new crop. There is still some tobacco growing in the fields, while, on the other hand, it almost looks as if the rainy season might set in next month. In any event some people that have piled the temprano cut tobacco may commence to start their escogidas in April. Excepting some sample bales, the receipts from the country consist of libra de pie and hojas de semilla, which have had no fermentation in the piles. As the tobacco, even when light this year, has more life, it will require a longer fermentation in the piles not alone, but also perhaps a second sweat in the pigeon holes (casillas), after the hands have been made, before the leaf ought to be baled. At least this is the opinion of an old experienced veguero in the Vuelta Abajo. Remedios is still further backward, and the packings can hardly commence before the month of June. The vegueros are living in hopes of obtaining considerably higher prices than last year.

Sales during the past fortnight ran up to 7198 bales or divided were: Vuelta Abajo, 5821; Partido, 915; Remedios, 395, and Oriente, 67 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 963; exporters to South America, 597, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 5638 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the two weeks ending March 15 were: To all ports of the United States, 7074; to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, 618; making a total of 7692 bales.

Cigars.

We have heard that our exports during the first half of this month have again shown a decrease, as compared with last year, but as there may have been some clearances left out we shall follow our previous way of not taking any notice of the half monthly statements, and wait for the final one at the end of this month. Our large factories are at all events as busy as heretofore, so if there is a decrease it must be on account of the smaller ones.

H. Upmann & Company are fully occupied in their two factories and orders continue to come forward from all parts of the globe.

Partagas intends to build on the two adjoining buildings and carry them up to the same height as their original factory. This tells the story better than anything else.

"Romeo y Julieta" cigars are without question the most popular brand in the United States, which have the largest sale of any single factory, but now, thanks to the propaganda made by Don Pepin Rodriguez, it is gaining rapidly in the English markets, owing to the fine quality and workmanship.

Mr. Francisco Arango, the director-general of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, received a cable on Saturday, March 22, from Tampa, informing him of the sudden demise of his brother, Manuel Arango, and left at once for that city. THE TOBACCO WORLD begs to tender its deep-felt sympathy to Mr. Francisco Arango and the family of the deceased.

Sol is well supplied with orders from the United States and England, which to a great part consist of regalia sizes.

Castañeda is holding its own not alone in the dull season, but actually gains more and more in popularity in all parts of the world.

Flor de P. A. Estanillo reports the same cheerful news as regards the receipts of high-priced regalia sizes, and as Felipe Rodriguez & Company cannot find enough workmen to make these specially artistic shapes, they were forced to let their cigarmakers labor even on Good Friday, which otherwise is kept here as our greatest holiday, when all stores are tightly closed.

Other busy factories are Por Larrañaga, Eden, Flor de José Otero, Allones, Limited; C. E. Beck & Company, and La Escepcion.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Maximilian Stern was the biggest buyer during the past two weeks, having secured in all 4896 bales of leaf.

Avelino Pazos cleaned his warehouse by one transaction of 300 bales of Partido.

H. Upmann & Company were buyers of 200 bales of leaf for their factory.

C. E. Beck & Company had bought 200 bales of choice new libra de pie for their factory.

Sabrinos de A. Gonzales were sellers of 263 bales of various kinds of leaf to their clients.

José Escalante & Company added 200 bales by purchases in our market to their holdings.

Mike Friedman was lucky enough to find 200 bales that would suit his clients.

A. E. Landfield purchased 150 bales of leaf to tide him over until the new crop is ready.

José C. Puente & Company sold 100 bales of their stock during the fortnight.

Manuel Suarez was a buyer of 150 bales of leaf for account of his customers.

Carlos Arnoldson & Company sold 64 bales from their fine stock of leaf.

The firm of Elias Diaz & Company has been dissolved and a new one has been formed under the style of Bienes, Diaz & Company. The partners are Alejandro Bienes and Elias Diaz, while Antonio Granda remains as a silent partner. The circular is dated March 12, and the new firm remains at the old stand of 74 Virtudes Street. We wish them success.

The news of the death of Frank Dominguez has been severely felt here by the many true friends that he possessed. He will be missed, and Havana condoles sincerely his partner, E. A. Calves, and his widow in Philadelphia.

According to the Havana Post our government has given permission to start a cigar factory in the prison, on Principe Hill, to Juan Fraile Padron, and it is estimated that from seven hundred to eight hundred prisoners may be given work to learn this trade and thus earn some money. There are, however, some real cigarmakers among the 1500 prisoners confined there.

Gerald Stanley left here on the 22d inst. via Key West and the east coast of Florida. He intended to stop over at some of the places for a few days, thence leaving via Jacksonville for St. Louis. After that he will leave for the Pacific Coast.

Edgar J. Stachelberg has gone to the Vuelta Abajo to make a thorough tour of all the choicest spots, examining all the vegas and taking an exact and exhausting note of everything, so that he will be well posted when the buying opens, and that he may secure the very best kinds of leaf for Sanchez y Haya later on, as his idea is to make the No. 1 factory a number one in every respect. His idea is not to return to Tampa until the twenty-seventh of April.

El Dia, one of our daily papers, published an article today about Don Pepin Rodriguez, stating that he had given to Dr. M. Delfin—who tries to support a private poorhouse institution (casa del pobre) by charities given to him, mainly devoted to children—$5000. The article in question speaks in very laudable terms about all that Don Pepin, who is not a millionaire by a longshot, has done here in Havana as well as in Spain. In fact, any one that knows Don Pepin is always sure to find his purse open when there is a real case of charity, or for any object of merit that appeals to him.

Shippers above 300 bales from the port of Havana for the last two weeks, ending March 15, were: Maximilian Stern, 996; H. H. Strater, 900; Miguel V. Perez, 572; Leslie Pantin, 543; Mark A. Pollack, 497; Michaelsen & Prasse, 358, and Ernst Ellinger & Company, 311 bales.

Tobacco Extract Containing Nicotine

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 18.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:

Dear Sir—We have an inquiry from Europe for a tobacco extract containing eight per cent. of nicotine. We understand that such an extract is being shipped from here, but we are not sure of it. Could you tell us whether this is so, and if so, could you give us the names of a few reliable producers of such extract?

Respectfully,

A. KLIPSTEIN & COMPANY.

West Chester County Cigar Dealers Organize

At Meeting, Which Nicholas Ehrlich Addresses, Permanent Body is Formed and Officers Are Elected

THE cigar dealers of Westchester County, New York, were organized in Offinger's Hall, First Street and Sixth Avenue, recently. This had been planned for some time and was consummated through the efforts of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, of New York. After organizing, the officers were elected as follows: Gustav Reiss, Mt. Vernon, president; J. Platt, of Mt. Vernon, vice-president, and S. Friedman, of Yonkers, secretary.

Nicholas Ehrlich, of the New York Association, made an address to the members and urged them to take their responsibilities seriously. He emphasized the fact that the body could live only through the interest the members took in it and the support they gave to it.

Jacob Wertheim Presented With Loving Cup

A committee representing the office employees, salesmen and factory superintendents of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, called recently at the residence of the retiring president, Jacob Wertheim, at Fifty-eighth Street and Seventh Avenue, New York City, bearing a token of their esteem in the form of a beautiful silver loving cup. Such a handsome gift presented on the eve of his retirement from the company eloquently shows the high regard in which Mr. Wertheim was held by his associates. He had the cup photographed and sent a copy bearing his autograph to each employee concerned.

Burley Tobacco Co. Introduces "City Club"

A new smoking tobacco has been placed on the market called the "City Club," and from the progress already made in placing this brand it should shortly be one of the best known and biggest sellers. It is manufactured by the Burley Tobacco Company, Incorporated, of Louisville, Kentucky, who claim that it is desirable both for cigarettes and pipe smokers. The manufacturers own the land from which the tobacco is grown for "City Club" and stand back of their product to such an extent that they authorize dealers to refund the purchase price of the tobacco to any one who is satisfied that "City Club" is not the best. The plan for introducing this brand with dealers is explained on page nine of this issue.

Detroit

Joseph T. Snyder to Have Stand at 117 Woodward Avenue—Mel Soper to Open Up April 1st—Another Store for Central Cigar Co.—John J. Bagley Co. Pushing "Old Colony"

DETROIT, MICH., March 24.

IT has been definitely decided that Joseph T. Snyder, who operates a chain of cigar stores in the East, and who recently opened a new store in Toledo, will have one in Detroit at 117 Woodward Avenue, right next door to that of E. M. Harris, and making a link of six cigar stores in a row, as follows: McMillan's, O'Brien's, La Fond's, E. M. Harris, Millard's and Snyder's. The contractors have already started to remodel the store, which was formerly occupied as a lunch room, and it will be fixed up very attractively. The cigar department will be in the front, while the rear will be used for a high-class buffet. Some one said that Detroit's down-town district was being overdone, but no one reports any falling off in business since the advent of the new stores, and, in fact, if anything, they say that business is better than ever.

Mel Soper says he can see nothing to hinder his opening of the new store in the Dime Bank Building on April 1. The decorators are now doing their work, and then it is simply a case of setting up the fixtures. It will be the best day-lighted store in Detroit.

The Central Cigar Company on March 17 opened another store in the Peter Smith Building, in which is located the Peter Smith Grocery Store. Harry H. Marks has charge of it; he was formerly at the Broadway and Gratiot branch. The stand is so shaped as to have half of it facing the grocery store and the other half in the lobby of the building, which is ten stories high.

The Harry W. Watson Company have recently added the "Marcellus" brand to their various retail stands.

C. W. Berkley, who represents the P. Lorillard Company in this territory since the first of the year, is giving his exclusive efforts at present to push the sale of "Luxuries" and "Trophies" cigarettes.

Paul Lindner, who has charge of the cigarette department for the Middle West for P. Lorillard, was a visitor to Detroit last week. This makes his second Detroit visit this year.

Two bales of tobacco were received in Grand Rapids last week for Malick & Azkoul. The shipment was from Syria.

The Kern cigar store, 213 Genesee Street, Flint, is one of the live stores of the town. They are the sole agents for the "Perry" pipe, and have a big business in cigars by the box.

One of the most complete cigar departments in the village of Fairview, a suburb of Detroit, is that of Richardson's barber shop. Many of the high-grade brands are handled, the leaders being "Webster," "La Preferencia," "Julia Marlowe," "Garcia & Vega" and "En Boga," which is carried in four sizes. Mr. Richardson is having his entire place renovated. This particular section, called "Fairview," is building up very rapidly, due to the Chalmers, Hudson and Continental Motor Car companies being in the immediate vicinity, each of which employs thousands of skilled workmen.

Harry Elsey, manager of the cigar department at the Hotel Downey, at Lansing, was in town Saturday and Sunday of the past week and called on many of his friends in the trade. He reports that he has recently added the "Ben Merza," "Girard" and the new progress size of "El Planco." On account of the Downey being the only modern hotel in Lansing it receives the trade of all the Senators and Congressmen, as well as the hundreds of other business people who have to go to Lansing, the State Capital, on various legislative matters.

Moe Berger, who makes the "Battery" and "Governor Osborne" cigars, is operating the cigar stand in the Capitol building during the session of the State Legislature. All cigars are supplied by the Hotel Downey cigar stand.

Damage was done to a number of cigar stores throughout the city when the terrific gale struck here on March 21. Windows were blown in and signs blown down. Two large plate glass windows in the cigar store of H. E. Stamm, 100 Michigan Avenue, were blown in and hundreds of cigars scattered over Michigan Avenue.

Ambrose Marble, a leading tonsorial artist in Battle Creek, is to build an addition to his shop so that he can handle cigars and tobacco.

Frank A. Greene has sold his third interest in the Diamond Billiard Parlors on South Burdick Street, Kalamazoo, to Charles Wagner, manager of the Kalamazoo baseball team.

The death last week of Julius W. Winckler, of Detroit, marks the passing of one of Detroit's oldest Masons. He had lived in Detroit for fifty-seven years and much of the time was engaged in the cigar business. Mr. Winckler was seventy-five years of age and death was due to pneumonia.

A three-story addition to the Clifton House on East Main Street, Battle Creek, is being arranged for by John Callahan, the proprietor. It is expected that the work will start within sixty days. A billiard room and cigar store will be among the new improvements.

"Simply scrumptuous" is the opinion of everyone who steps into the Glenn Matthews new cigar store at 301 East Main Street, Kalamazoo. Glenn has moved his cigar and pocket billiard establishment one door west of the old location and has now one of the finest rooms for the selling of joy smokes in that part of the state. New steel ceiling, new floors and woodwork; in fact, the whole place has a Broadway look of up-to-dateness.

The Flint Electric Cigar Company, of Flint, Michigan, had a very attractive display at the recent Pure Food Show held in that city by the Michigan Retail Grocers' Association, who were in convention.

C. W. Bennett, the hustling druggist of Bancroft, Michigan, has the "National Cigar Stand" privilege in his city. In a contest which the cigar company has been running for sales, Mr. Bennett was sixty-second out of one hundred and seventy-five entered, which speaks very well for him, being situated in such a small town. Mr. Bennett keeps his cigar case up in the finest shape and the result is his sales went up with the average city stores.

Otto Saichet, of the American Tobacco Company, is working Marquette, Calumet, Houghton and other cities in the Upper Peninsula.

Detroit welcomed Ben Lesser and his bride, who recently paid us a short visit while on their honeymoon. Mr. Lesser is the "one best bet" of F. Lozano & Company, and has a large circle of staunch friends in this city.

A balcony is being built in the Woodward Avenue store of La Fond & Company, which will be devoted to the general offices of the company. The stock from the wholesale store on Jefferson has been moved to the basement of the new store. It is reported that La Fond & Company are about to take a lease on another store in the down-town district.

On Saturday, March 15, the John J. Bagley Company throughout Saginaw, Bay City and other Michigan cities, gave two full sized cans of "Old Colony" tobacco with ten cents and a signed coupon which appeared in the daily newspapers of the preceding date. The dealers who handled these coupons were then allowed to send the coupons in to the Detroit office of the company, who redeemed them at ten cents each.

After an eight-weeks tour, during which time he visited Switzerland, Italy and other points of interest on the continent, Frank S. Schauber, of the Owl drug store, returned to his home in Mount Clemens.

The Beuhler Leaf Tobacco Company at 79 West Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, has been incorporated with an authorized capital of $15,000, of which $7500 has been subscribed and $2700 paid in in cash.

Mrs. M. L. Hodge has purchased the retail cigar business of the Dierdorf Cigar Company on Crescent Avenue, Grand Rapids, and has already taken possession. Mrs. Hodge's son and Carl Olson will conduct the business. The Dierdorf Company will continue its wholesale and manufacturing cigar business.

A deal was consummated last week whereby the McGee cigar store at 39 West Main Street, Battle Creek, which has been maintained under that name for many years, was sold to C. N. Spaulding, proprietor of the Period cigar store on North Jefferson Avenue. Mr. Spaulding will run the West Main Street store along the same lines as the Period, introducing a line of candies. S. W. McGee, senior member of the firm of McGee & Son, was recently stricken with an attack of paralysis, and will retire from active business for the present at least. Ed McGee, junior member of the firm, is travelling on the road.

After several weeks at Hot Springs Virginia, Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, is back and says he feels very much improved in health.

Rumored That M. C. Patterson Will Again Manufacture

A rumor has been noted in trade circles of Richmond, Virginia, for some time relative to the re-entering of Malvern C. Patterson, former vice-president of the American Tobacco Company, into the manufacturing business. It is said that since he sold all his processes and patents for manufacturing smoking tobacco, he will go into the making of cigarettes.

Mr. Patterson resigned from the American Tobacco Company last December, and the last report states that he has sold his stock in this company also. The old R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company plant in Richmond is not now in use and it is possible that this will be utilized.

San Francisco

Several Bills, Now Before Legislature Affecting Tobacco Trade, Opposed—Alfred I. Esberg Tendered Dinner—Charles Mattheas & Co. to Do Lot of Specialty Work on "Counsellor"

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.

THE cigar men have experienced enough disturbance in the last year on account of the number of country towns that have gone "dry," but this winter the whole country has been going dry a good part of the time, and at the beginning of this week, with rainfall far below normal, it was feared that crops in many sections would be ruined. Rain came in the nick of time, but a more thorough drenching is needed, and until it comes no great activity can be expected. Under such conditions the volume of business of late has been rather disappointing everywhere, as consumers all over the country are trying to economize, and the retail trade will buy only what is urgently needed. Fortunately there are some good spots, as the logging camps are beginning to open up, and will operate on a larger scale than usual, while mining camps in California and Nevada are taking more than their normal share of goods. If the state receives a good drenching in the next few weeks, there is little doubt that summer and fall will bring unusual activity, as everything except the crop situation is favorable.

The number of bills introduced in the present California Legislature runs into the thousands, including a great number of extremely radical measures, which might be injurious to many industries, and thus tend to keep the business community in an unsettled state. Among the proposed bills which are of special interest to cigar men is one to prohibit the sale of cigarettes, and one to stop the use of dice or cards, or mechanical devices in which these play a part, in the sale of merchandise. Both bills are being strongly opposed, the former by all tobacco interests, and the latter especially by the retailers, as the use of the devices mentioned seems almost inseparable from the retail cigar business in this state, and their prohibition would work a material hardship on the majority of dealers. The local retailers are now being represented in Sacramento by John C. Connor, a live member of the association, who is well qualified for the work, and who expects to stay on the ground until the fate of the bills is settled.

Alfred I. Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Company, was the guest of honor at a complimentary dinner, tendered on the evening of March 14 by fellow-members of the directorate of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The dinner, which was given at the Bohemian Club headquarters, was arranged as a surprise to Mr. Esberg, and was given as a sign of esteem on the eve of his departure for New York, where he will take charge of the offices of the United Cigar Manufacturers.

Herman Moss, Coast representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, has just returned from a successful trip through the North. Charles Kohlberg, specialty man for the "Flor de Moss," is now carrying on his work in Nevada.

H. L. Judell, distributor of the "Moss" line, as well as of Bondy & Lederer's goods, reports a steady run of repeat orders for the "Flor de Moss." He is well pleased with the results of the specialty work done on the "Watt." W. B. Patillo, the lightning sketch artist working for this line, is now in Fresno, having covered several other valley points. One of his window sketches while at Sacramento was of Emil Judell smoking a "Watt," and this is now on display at the local office. J. J. Downing, formerly with Chas. Mattheas & Company, is now representing H. L. Judell & Company in Alameda County.

F. W. Schwarz, who has been on an extended trip through Canada in the interest of Chas. Landau, the H. Upmann agent, reached San Francisco last week, having stopped off at the principal points in the north Coast States.

Robert E. Lane, of New York, general agent for Cifuentes, Fernandez & Company, of Havana, is now making his first visit to San Francisco.

J. H. Davidson, who has been for some time with Glaser Brothers, a local jobbing house, is now with H. Bercovich.

Leo F. Weiss, representing the Ruy Lopez Company, is expected shortly on a visit to Bier, Saalburg & Company, the local distributors.

Monroe Gaw, clerk in the cigar store of S. R. Ryan at Sacramento, California, received notice recently from attorneys at Chihuahua, Mexico, that he had inherited the entire estate of his father, Erasmus Gaw, who died there recently. The estate includes a good-sized ranch, with a value of about $50,000.

Following the change of ownership of the Nestor Gianaclis Company, the resignation is announced of Geo. Cacematis, who has been doing specialty work on the Coast for this line for about a year past. The distribution is still in the hands of the Edw. Wolf Company.

Chas. Mattheas & Company, well known jobbers of this city, have taken up the "Counsellor" five-cent cigar, made by Allen R. Cressman's Sons, of Philadelphia, the agency having been placed by E. D. Marshall on his recent visit to San Francisco. They are preparing to do a lot of specialty work in introducing this line, for which they expect to get a wide distribution. Before returning East Mr. Marshall made a visit to the northern cities.

J. McHenry has opened a new cigar store at Roseville, California.

Incorporations and Changes in the Tobacco Trade

Consumers' Cigar Company, Indianapolis; capital stock, $10,000; to conduct a wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco business; directors, Edwin G. Ritchie, Charles E. Farrell, Ocie M. Jones, Robert F. Davidson.

John O. Frye & Company, Frankfort, Kentucky; $10,000; to deal in wholesale and retail tobacco, etc.; J. O. Frye, F. E. Lescure, L. M. Lescure.

M. A. Gunst & Company, Incorporated, Portland, Maine; to manufacture tobacco and smokers' articles. Capital stock, $3,100,000; par value of shares, $100; paid in, $600. President, Ernest E. Noble; clerk, H. M. Verrill; treasurer, E. V. Mann; directors, E. E. Noble, E. V. Mann, M. S. Newcomb, B. E. Hamlin, H. C. Wilbur and Arthur Chapman.

Creole-Carrott Tobacco Company, St. Genevieve, Missouri; capital, $18,000. Incorporators, J. W. Schwent, A. H. La Change and George V. Wecker.

Greenburg Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company, Green County, Kentucky, increasing capital from $15,000 to $25,000.

The Alfana Cigar Company, Boston and New York, $35,000. Incorporators, Pierce J. Grace, Michael Moskowitz, Willis Tuxbury.

The Cuban-American Cigar Company, Wilmington, Delaware. Capital stock, $50,000. To prepare for market tobacco in all its forms. Incorporators, Herbert J. Latter, William J. Maloney, Norman P. Coffin, all of Wilmington, Delaware.

Myers-Cox Company, Dubuque, Iowa, succeeding Myers, Cox & Company. Capital stock, $150,000. Affairs of concern to be conducted by board of directors.

The Connecticut Tobacco Corporation, of Granby, Connecticut, has filed in the office of the State Secretary a certificate of additional shares of capital stock. At a meeting of the directors some time ago it was voted to issue 1450 shares, making the outstanding stock $995,000.

The I. M. Gottlieb Mercantile Company, of Poughkeepsie, New York. To deal in tobacco, cigars, etc. Capital, $10,000. Incorporators, Israel M. Gottlieb, Isaac Gottlieb and Louis Lang.

The Cigar Register Wrapper Company, of New York. Capital, $12,000. Incorporators, David Strasser, Emanuel E. Kleiner and Benjamin H. Wasserman.

The Marshall Drug Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. To do a wholesale and retail drug, cigar and tobacco business. Capital, $500,000. Incorporators, W. F. Maurer, A. A. Lutton, A. L. Maurer, Charles Higlet and Otto Stauk.

Martin & Sons, Petersburg, Virginia. To deal in tobacco. Capital, $75,000. Incorporators, A. G. M. Martin, R. A. Martin and J. D. Martin.

The Diamond Tobacco Company, of New Decatur, Alabama. To manufacture twist and smoking tobacco. Incorporators, John Copeland, David Martin, J. C. McFarland and A. C. Walker.

The Rosenfeld-Rovig Company, of Seattle, Washington. To do a wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco business. Capital, $50,000. Incorporators, Walter J. Rosenfeld et al.

New Regulations to Improve Quality of Manila Cigars

Wm. T. Nolting, of Revenue Bureau, Investigating Tobacco Industry in Order to Eventually Raise Standard of Goods

NEW regulations to govern the tobacco industry, calculated to improve the quality of Philippine cigars, are in preparation by Collector Wm. T. Nolting, of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Manila. Mr. Nolting has been in the Cagayan tobacco district to make first-hand observations of the methods used in harvesting and baling the product to guide him in drawing up the new regulations.

"The present regulations provide only for inspection of the finished cigars by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and the purpose of the new regulations will be to subject the tobacco to inspection from the time it leaves the field until it is packed as cigars in boxes," said Mr. Nolting.

"As all cigars shipped from the Philippines bear the guaranty stamp of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, it is our business to see that the cigars are of the quality they are supposed to be. We will hereafter inspect the tobacco at each stage of preparation. We will then be sure that the cigars are of the quality stamped on the boxes. It is practically impossible to determine the quality of a cigar after it is once finished.

"I intend to consult the Manila Tobacco Association in drawing up these new regulations, for I am anxious that they should be adapted to the best interests of all concerned. There is a tremendous market for Philippine cigars in the United States, and we must give our American customers a quality of cigars that will suit the consumers if we are to get all we ought to get of the American trade."

James B. Duke to Devote More Time to British-American

In the resignation of James B. Duke from the directorate of the Imperial Tobacco Company, it is said Mr. Duke will now be able to devote more time to the affairs of the British-American Tobacco Company, of which he is chairman of the board of directors. The Imperial Tobacco Company confines its operations to Great Britain and its colonies.

United States Collector of Internal Revenue Bernhard Bettman, of the First Ohio District, has sent his resignation to President Wilson, to take effect when his successor shall be appointed. During his administration receipts of the First Ohio District have increased materially, and according to the last annual report stood fourth in the list of internal revenue districts of the United States.

"Cigar Box Clip" Latest Device of P. A. Becker

Brooklyn Manufacturer Showing Trade New Appliance to be Attached to Packing—Has Sanitary Feature

A NEW device for the cigar dealer is just being introduced to the trade by P. A. Becker, the Brooklyn inventor and manufacturer of cases, humidors and other conveniences for the tobacconist. Mr. Becker has put on the market in his time many original novelties and devices for the betterment of the dealer, as well as the smoker, and claims that in this new attachment he has a winner.

He calls it a cigar clip. It clamps over the edge of the lid and when closing, cuts the point of the cigar as clean and perfect as any cutter can possibly do. An added advantage is that the device is scarcely noticeable and does not interfere in any way in opening and closing the box. The clippers are made of steel, brass or nickel plated, and are made so neatly that no dealers need be afraid to place them beside the most expensive appliances on the counter. This clip will be placed on the market at such a price that it can be placed on every box of cigars and should be of great value to manufacturers as an advertising scheme.

Many of the most original devices now used by the up-to-date cigar store have been invented by Mr. Becker. They have a practical value, in addition to being novel and of use as advertising mediums. Among them are the glass humidor cigar-box lids, which are made in a variety of patterns, all of which are covered by patents. These lids are used by many dealers who lay stress upon the cleanliness of their stores and find them of advantage in keeping their stock in good condition and free from dust. Other practical features now in use are the sanitary ventilating moisteners, also price card signs and display attachments. Mr. Becker states that he has now a number of other appliances under way, which are being perfected as rapidly as possible, and that they will shortly be introduced to the trade.

Tampa on Top Wave of Prosperity

During the week ending March 15 there were 7,030,000 cigars shipped out of Tampa, and at that time the consignments were growing larger every day. The majority of the factories are now going full blast and every indication points to 1913 as being a record breaking year for the cigar factories of the city.

From January 1 to March 15 there were 51,145,000 cigars shipped from the city, as compared with 44,855,000 during the same period last year, an increase of 6,294,000.

The Different Processes of Tobacco Curing

Department of Agriculture Publishes Interesting Bulletin Compiled by W. W. Garner, Expert in Charge of Tobacco Investigation

CONSTRUCTION OF BARNS.

IN building a good barn the two principal considerations to be kept in mind are to construct it as nearly air tight as possible and at the same time to provide a good system of ventilation. A site should be chosen which is thoroughly drained and sufficiently removed from other buildings to allow free access of air. It should be as near the tobacco field as possible for convenience in harvesting. The width of barns may range from 30 to 40 feet, and they may be of any convenient length up to 300 feet or even more, but the shorter barns are preferable. The interior should consist of a framework carrying poles for supporting the laths bearing the tobacco. The spaces between the poles are called tiers. Many barns are built four tiers high, but the curing can be better controlled when the building is only three tiers high to the plate. The tobacco should not hang within three feet of the ground, so that the first tier of poles should be at least 7 to 9 feet from the ground and the other tiers 4 to 6 feet apart.

The posts, plates and beams used for the frame of the barn should be of stout timbers securely braced to carry the enormous weight of the green tobacco and to withstand heavy winds. In the usual type of barn, the posts, frames and girders are set up across the barn at intervals of about 16 feet the same as at the ends, thus dividing the framework into sections known as "bents." The girders on the ends and on the bents for carrying the lower tier of poles usually are made removable, while those for the upper tiers should be well braced. The tier poles on which the tobacco is hung are usually about 16 feet long, and should be stout enough to carry at least 800 pounds. The horizontal distance between the poles should be 4 feet. The boards for the sides and ends of the barn should be of uniform width, and all cracks should be battened with thin strips so as to make the structure as nearly weatherproof as possible. At least every third board should be hung on hinges as a ventilator, assuming that the boards are 10 or 12 inches wide. The siding may be put on either vertically or horizontally, and there are numerous ways of arranging the ventilators. If the boards are put on horizontally, those used for ventilators should be hung from the upper edge, while if the siding is put on vertically those boards used for ventilators may be hung either from the top or side. Extending along the entire length of the sides a horizontal ventilator should be provided at the bottom for admitting air near the ground. Comparatively few barns at the present time have any provision for ventilation in the roof, such as is shown in figure 1, but this is an important feature in applying artificial heat when the weather is unfavorable.

The barn usually has driveways extending through it, and doors are provided at each end of sufficient size to allow a team to be driven through without difficulty. The construction of the barns used for curing cigar leaf in the southern districts is essentially the same as that of the barns in northern districts, except that the ventilators usually consist of openings at intervals of about 8 feet, 2½ to 3 feet wide and 10 feet long, with shutters suspended at or near the top.

MANAGEMENT OF THE CURING.

The greater portion of the cigar tobaccos are cured with the leaves attached to the stalk, although in the wrapper sections harvesting by priming or picking the leaves from the stalk has recently become popular. The curing of picked leaves is discussed further in connection with the curing of shade-grown tobacco. The first step in curing is the thorough wilting of the leaves, for tests have shown that this promotes good curing. If the weather is cold or wet, it is desirable to apply artificial heat to hasten the wilting, and if the weather continues unfavorable the heat should be kept up for two or three days. Sufficient ventilation to take off the excess moisture must be provided. On the other hand, a too rapid drying out of the leaf must be avoided. Many growers in their anxiety to avoid damage from pole-sweat, caused by excessive moisture, injure their tobacco seriously by going to the other extreme of drying out the leaf so rapidly as not to allow sufficient time for those changes to take place which are essential to good curing. The aim should be to wilt the leaf as soon as possible and then to check the drying, but also to maintain a warm temperature until the leaf yellows. If no heat is applied, ventilation alone must be relied on to secure these conditions.

As soon as the yellow color begins to develop, the drying should be hastened, for the development of the brown color, which soon follows, indicates that the leaf is beginning to die, and this is the critical stage in the cure. If the humidity remains very high at this stage for any considerable period, pole-sweat will develop, which is to be especially feared if a season of warm, damp weather sets in. The only remedy lies in the use of artificial heat to keep down the humidity. Whether or not heat has been used in the first stages, it is absolutely necessary to prevent damage under the severe conditions of pole-sweat and must be kept up until the leaf is pretty well dried out. Ventilation alone will be of little value.

Aside from the danger of pole-sweat, however, there are other important reasons why the humidity in the barn should be reduced as soon as the brown color begins to develop. At the present time the demand is for bright colors in wrapper leaf, and the longer the second stage of the cure is protracted by a relatively high humidity the darker the leaf will be. Again, each time the tobacco comes into high case, after the cure is finished, the color will be further deepened. Finally, if the tobacco at this stage remains moist for a long period, it undergoes a sort of cold sweat and does not ferment so well when put in the case or in bulk. After the cure is finished, the tobacco should be prevented from coming into high case or order until it is to be taken down, as far as this is possible. Sunlight injures the color of tobacco; hence, the sun should not be allowed to shine on the leaf in the barn. Wind may bruise the leaves near the doors and ventilators, unless these are carefully watched and regulated.

The time required for completing the cure varies from five to eight weeks, depending on weather conditions. Quick curing may be depended on to give the best results, provided the first stage is not unduly hastened. The cure is finished when the midrib of the leaf is dried out so that it will snap when bent between the fingers. When the tobacco is ready to be taken down, the stalks may be still quite green.

METHODS OF APPLYING HEAT.

The importance of heat for good curing in cold or excessively wet weather has been pointed out, but it is equally important that the heat be applied in the right way. Artificial heat has not been utilized to any extent up to the present time in curing filler or binder types, but its use is becoming more general in the wrapper districts, particularly in curing tobacco harvested by priming the leaves.

Small charcoal fires built on the floors of the barn have been in use for some years in Florida and the Connecticut Valley, especially in curing shade-grown tobacco. To secure the proper distribution of heat a large number of fires are required, and but little ventilation should be used during the firing. Charcoal is an expensive fuel, the supply is often limited and uncertain, and to care for the large number of fires required is quite a task. Without some better or cheaper method, however, charcoal fires should be freely used for curing cigar tobaccos when the weather is unfavorable.

Most woods give too much smoke for use with cigar types. Recent tests with a system of furnaces or flues for introducing heat, in which wood or coal is used as a fuel, have given promising results in Connecticut, but this system would be rather expensive for the filler districts.

STRIPPING AND ASSORTING.

As soon as possible after the tobacco is cured, the plants should be taken from the laths and the leaves stripped from the stalk. This can not be done, however, until after damp weather has prevailed long enough for the leaf to become pliable, so that it can be handled readily without breaking. Tobacco in this condition is said to be "in case" or "in order," and weather well adapted to bringing it into case is spoken of as a "tobacco storm." Tobacco will not come into order if the temperature is very low, even when wet weather prevails. If the stalks have been frozen, it is well to leave the plants hanging until the dripping stops, so as to avoid staining the leaf.

Usually, as the plants are taken from the laths they are piled in heaps on a floor of poles or boards, the tips all being turned inward and overlapped to prevent the leaves from drying out. The leaves should be stripped from the stalks as soon as possible after the plants have been taken down, so as to avoid the heaps becoming heated. In some of the filler districts, dampening cellars are used in bringing the tobacco into case, and the plants are taken from the cellar to a sorting room for the stripping. The leaves, as stripped from the stalk, are placed in one, two, or three grades, and those of each grade are tied into "hands" of 15 to 30 leaves, using a leaf as a binder. These hands are packed into cases, and the tobacco is then ready for market, or, the hands are first made into neat bundles or bales by means of a form, wrapped with heavy paper, and tied with twine. These bundles usually weigh from 50 to 100 pounds.

Before the leaf is ready for the manufacturer it must undergo a process of fermentation, commonly spoken of as sweating. To carry out this process successfully requires a thoroughly equipped plant, with facilities for controlling ventilation, temperature, and humidity, so that, as a rule, the growers sell their leaf in the bundle to the packers, who make a business of carrying on the fermentation on a large scale.

CURING SHADE-GROWN AND OUTDOOR-PRIMED WRAPPER LEAF.

In recent years the growing of the Cuban and Sumatra types of cigar-wrapper leaf under artificial shade has become an important industry in the Connecticut Valley and in portions of southern Georgia and western Florida. In Florida the Cuban types, and more especially the Sumatra tobacco, when grown under ordinary conditions, are frequently harvested by priming, and recently this method has been extensively practiced with the outdoor types of the Connecticut Valley. The barns used are of the same construction as those

Late Trade Bulletins

The Winsted tobacco factory, at Goldsboro, North Carolina, was destroyed by fire recently. The damage has been estimated at $100,000. The blaze caused two hundred laborers to be thrown out of employment.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by John Cyrus, of New Rochelle, New York, a dealer in tobacco and cigars.

Terry Dickerson, of Lynnville, Tennessee, has started operations in the Rural Tobacco Company plant, which he recently bought.

Levi Bush, of Reading, Pennsylvania, has sold his interest in the Thirteenth Ward cigar store to Theodore Roehrig.

The Diamond Tobacco Company, of New Decatur, Alabama, has been organized and will shortly begin the manufacture of twist and smoking tobacco.

Steve Lies and Herbert Goldsmith have purchased the interest of their partner in a cigar store at Aurora, Illinois. The firm will be known as Goldsmith and Lies, as heretofore.

A new cigar factory will be opened in Jacksonville, Illinois, by J. A. Erickson, who will call his product the "Oleeola." He has had wide experience in manufacturing, having been connected with the L. S. Kent-McCarthy Company, and more recently with Grill Brothers, of Evansville, Indiana.

F. J. Williams, of Elgin, Illinois, has moved his cigar factory into the Joe Smith Building. The factory vacated by Mr. Williams will be used by Fred Zwiger for the same purpose.

Peter Schlicher, cigar manufacturer, of Marietta, Ohio, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His store is closed and will not be reopened until the case is settled.

Louis Roy has opened a factory at Baldwin, Ohio, and expects to manufacture granulated smoking tobacco on a large scale.

C. E. Sears, of Bucyrus, Ohio, recently sold his interest in a cigar store to J. M. Sears, who is now sole proprietor.

James Keeley, of Beloit, Wisconsin, formerly of the firm of Keeley & Higgins, has bought out his partner's interest in their cigar store and will continue the business as sole owner.

The finance committee of the Boston Cigarmakers' Union No. 97, in an annual statement to its members showed an expenditure for 1912 of $42,476.85. Of this amount, $2578.04 was spent to promote union label advertising.

George W. Elsasser, wholesale and retail cigar dealer, of West Twenty-fifth Street and Detroit Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, has sold his business to Attorneys Henry A. Beckerman and J. M. Ulmer. Mr. Elsasser had done business at this location for twenty-one years.

C. A. Smith, of Lynn, Massachusetts, has opened up a cigar store and poolroom. A feature of the place is a smoking room in addition to the poolroom.

Jacob Riedel, of Perry, Illinois, has purchased the Croisant cigar factory.

Sidney Ballard, a newspaper man of Streator, Illinois, has purchased an interest in Brannon's cigar store.

The United States Bankruptcy Court recently appointed Arthur A. Sondheim receiver for Samuel Banard, cigar dealer, of 6 Milk Street, Boston.

W. F. Murphy, of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, has purchased from his partner, Terrence Reilly, his interest in a cigar store, and will now carry on the business alone.

Cleveland

Disastrous Tornado Does Little Damage in City—Shields-Wertheim Co. Puts Out New Quality Cigar, "Saramita Fives"—Stace & Vincent Open Fine Store, Main Feature Being a Balcony for Patrons

CLEVELAND, March 25.

MISERABLE weather conditions have prevailed here for the last few days, which have a tendency to hurt business to no mean extent. Cleveland just escaped the tornado, but is now threatened with high waters caused by the heavy rains of the past few days, which threaten great property loss and possible loss of life.

With these adverse conditions the retailers report only a fair Easter business.

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, has just left for a tour of the Middle West to shake hands with the trade and build his fences for the spring campaign on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." "Saramita Fives" is a new broadleaf wrapped, clear Havana filled nickel cigar just being placed on the market by the Shields-Wertheim Company, and is one of the few quality 5's on the market. They are enjoying immense success with this brand and their only concern is how to fill their orders. J. C. Leverance has just returned from a very successful campaign through the West. The writer has just learned the reason why "Big" Fred Shields carried the smile that won't come off for the past ten days. It's a ten-pound baby boy, and now everybody on Fred's territory is smoking "La Saramitas" on him.

Stace & Vincent have just opened the most beautiful and finest equipped pool and billiard parlors anywhere in the West. It is located at the corner of Euclid Avenue and East 105th Street, in the Alhambra Building. This is one of the busiest corners in the city. The boys have spared no expense in fitting up their room, as is attested to by their $15,000 set of fixtures. They have twenty-one tables, all inlaid, in their main room along with their cigar case, which contains one of the best selections of high-grade goods in the city. Among the many features of this gorgeous establishment is a billiard room for ladies, which is fitted up very daintily and is sure to attract the fair sex and their escorts. Another feature is a balcony, which overlooks Euclid Avenue, and will be fitted out with summer furniture, popular magazines, flowers and ferns, everything tending towards the comfort of their patrons. By the hundreds of well wishers and friends who visited them during their opening their success is almost assured.

George Bassett, the well known down-town retailer, has just opened store No. 2 in the new Atkins Hotel, at 1312 Superior Avenue Northeast. He has one of the finest equipped barber shops and cigar stands in this section. His cigar case shows the well-known brands "La Venga," "Verdad," "Van Dyck," "Duquesne," "Hoyo de Monterey," "Partagas," "Romeo y Julieta," "La Saramita" and "Osmunda," which he features. Mr. Bassett's personality and many friends assures him of success.

Mr. Mendelson, of the E. A. Kline Cigar Company, has just returned from a tour of the West, which has been very successful, as is attested to by the many orders he brought back with him.

Mr. Joe Loveman, of the Loveman Cigar Company, expects to get into his new factory very shortly, where he will be able to supply his increasing demands.

The Marcus Veder Cigar Company are very busy on their various brands.

Aaron Polster, of the Polster Cigar Company, of 10505 Euclid Avenue, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities amounting to $2600 and assets $350. The creditors are mostly local.

Mr. Heine, of the Snyder Cigar Company, reports trade very fair.

Among the visitors in town the past week were Ed Wodiska and Hiram Hammer, of Corral Wodiska y Ca; Manuel Bosberg and Ed Jondorf, of Kaiser & Bosberg, and M. E. Loeb, cigar jobber, of Canton; Charles Gans, of Max Gans & Sons, New York.

The Fred G. Golmar Cigar Company is putting great stress on their windows and are being rewarded by many new customers.

JERRY.

Wm. E. Gatlin, Paris, Tennessee, has purchased the interest of his brother, J. T. Gatlin, in their tobacco manufactory. This firm will now be known as W. E. Gatlin manufactory and will do business on a larger scale.

F. J. McElwain, of De Kalb, Illinois, has sold his cigar store and will retire. The name of the purchaser has not been announced.

A cigar store and billiard parlor called "The Smoker," has been opened in the Hotel Southerland Building, Warren, Arkansas, by Jeff Smith.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York Uses Up Binders As Fast As They Are Put On Market—Prices For Lancaster County Tobacco Drop to Five and Six Cents—Warehouse Season Closes in Connecticut and Wisconsin

NEW YORK.

New York City, March 21.

OUTSIDE of the flurry in binders, which has hit this market the past two weeks, there is not much doing. The binders which are arriving are being taken up rapidly. The force-sweated kinds, which appear to be about the only kind available, both Wisconsin and Connecticut, have been disposed of as soon as they came into the hands of the dealers.

The tobacco sold at the first inscription at Amsterdam of the 1913 Sumatra crop was light and a good binder. Prices ruled high, and Americans were not the heaviest purchasers, taking only 3700 bales. Samples of this tobacco, which arrived on the steamer "Potsdam," are ready for inspection today. At the second inscription, held last Friday, Americans purchased even less than at the first auction, taking only 2250 bales.

There appears to be an increased demand for the first capaduras of Remedios of the 1912 crop. There are not very large amounts of this tobacco on the market as far as can be seen. The ground leaves of the new crop have been tested in Havana and from all reports are all that can be expected in the way of burn and quality.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Lancaster, March 25.

THE prices of the unsold portions of the 1912 tobacco crop are still shading off and during the week sales of good tobacco were reported as low as five and six cents a pound. It is doubtful if any of this country's sound tobacco ever brought such ruinously low prices, and it is little wonder that reports are being received from many growers considering the advisability of substituting potatoes for tobacco.

The Farmers' Association has united in advocating a reduction of the tobacco acreage, so quality may be the main object in growing the new crop, everybody concerned in the industry realizing the necessity of improving the quality.

A good many growers will experiment with Connecticut Havana this year, with a view to raising a tobacco that will command higher prices than the Pennsylvania broadleaf. The design is to produce binder and filler goods, not wrappers.

CONNECTICUT.

Suffield, March 24.

THERE is little doing in a tobacco way in this place at present. The few crops which have not been sold as yet are probably being held for higher prices later in the spring or summer. Farmers are beginning to make preparations for the coming season, but little has been done. Here and there a field can be seen plowed, but not with the intention of doing any planting just yet.

It will be the middle of April before the tobacco men will get busy. They do not appear to be in any hurry to get their plants out early, as experience has proven that late planted tobacco has turned out as well, if not better, than the early transplanted crops.

The growers are now testing the seed which they will use for fertility. Most of the beds are given a coat of fertilizer in the fall and plowed so as to save as much time as possible. It is said that a large number of growers may raise plants under glass this year instead of using cloth for covering, in order to bring the plants along early. Last year the cold wet spring held some plants back and the transplanting was about two weeks late.

The tobacco warehouse of the American Cigar Company, known as the Spencer warehouse, has closed for the season. Under the managership of Matthew Leahy the season proved to be the best since the company has been packing here. Sixteen thousand cases of the Havana variety of tobacco were packed, which represents about 330 acres of the weed. The foreman this year has been James O'Malley, of West Suffield, and he has had two assistants. The average has been over 100 helpers during the past five months, and they were on full time.

The warehouse of P. Lorillard & Company, of New York, in Grand Street, in West Suffield, has also had an excellent season. In the neighborhood of 800 cases of tobacco were packed and about fifty hands have been employed throughout the winter months.

WISCONSIN.

Edgerton, March 21.

ALL indications point towards seeing the tobacco handling season closed at an earlier date this year than for some time past. By April 1 not only will be seen all the early purchases received, but the crop sold out closer in the country than ever before at this date. Only widely scattering lots now remain in growers' hands and the hunt for them must shortly come to an end. There are plenty of buyers standing ready to take over even the last leaf.

The warehouse season, too, is fast drawing to a close. The United Cigar Manufacturers Company have closed all their plants this week with the exception of the one in Edgerton. All the large operators are liable to be disappointed at the close of the season to find the total of their packing short of anticipated figures owing to the lighter yield per acre, with little opportunity of increasing their holdings.

If there was much old leaf for sale in local hands the movement would be satisfactory enough, for there is an excellent demand for everything of a binder nature, but unfortunately there is very little to be had.

Packers will doubtless handle more of the 1912 crop through the warehouses than during any of the recent years. The increasing of storage facilities has permitted them to hold larger stocks of bundled goods and conduct the sorting and packing more leisurely than heretofore. So much of the crop came out of the curing sheds at so early a date and ready for delivery that the work of receiving has progressed much more rapidly than usual. The growers have thus been able to realize upon the product and handle the proceeds in good season, and the four or five million dollars received for it distributed about the growing sections has helped to swell the bank accounts of the thousands of farmers who are making tobacco growing one of the most profitable branches of agriculture. Mighty few growers in Wisconsin will start in another season with any tobacco on hand, and with an excellent prospect in view that the coming crop under normal conditions will be wanted at a good, profitable figure. Under such a showing the intended acreage the coming season might reasonably be increased.—Edgerton Reporter.

KENTUCKY.

Hopkinsville, March 18.

THE activity in the local leaf market was most encouraging to all concerned. The highest prices of the season were realized. The receipts last week were also heavy, last Tuesday breaking the record for the year. The receipts for last week were also the heaviest of the season, and probably a new record was established in this respect.

And the market was active in every department all through the week. In fact it has been a long time since there was such an active period here. The demand for the loose floor tobacco maintained its full strength in the face of the enormous deliveries and prices were full with the advance noted above. Prized tobacco was also moving freely and at good prices, the old remnant of the 1911 crop figuring chiefly in the deals. All the rehandling houses are working overtime trying to catch up with their stocks. The prizing houses of the Planters' Protective Association are running now in full blast and probably 300 hogsheads have been prized and delivered to the association storage houses. As yet none of this tobacco has been offered for sale.

The rush last week was very unexpected, for it was thought the bulk of the crop in this territory had been delivered. The extra amount came chiefly from adjoining counties—Crittenden, Trigg, Lyon, Caldwell, Hopkins, Todd, Logan and Muhlenberg sending large amounts here in addition to those furnished by this county. The farmers were generally well pleased with the prices they obtained and there were very few rejections from the growers.

Carlisle.

The sales of the past few days were light. The season is virtually closed. There is practically no tobacco left in the hands of the farmers of this part of the Burley district.

Wet weather has again interfered and stopped the tobacco growers in their work of preparing for the 1913 crop. There are many tobacco beds to be burned and sown yet and much land to be plowed. Rent on tobacco land, this year, where money rent is paid, is said to be higher than in years as a result of the great demand for the land. That there will be a large increase in the acreage here over last year is now evident.

TENNESSEE.

Clarksville, March 18.

THE rains have furnished a good season for stripping tobacco and the farmers made such good use of it that there is but little now left on the stalk in the barn. Following this the deliveries were begun early Monday morning and continued throughout the week. For three or four nights the livery stables and sheds were filled to their utmost capacity with teams, and the lodging houses were overflowing. It is quite certain that this will be the end of the rush of loose market, and gradually there will be a falling off until only a few weeks will elapse before the crop will all be delivered.

The association houses are turning out a large number of hogsheads each week, and are turning them into the warehouses, where in a short time they will be inspected and sold.

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

The Paul bill, which has been before the Wisconsin legislature, and which aims to regulate the sale of tobacco in that state by the grower to the dealer, has passed the Assembly. This measure is a substitute for the Holmes bill. The whole bill is meant to discourage buying or contracting for tobacco in the field, and if it passes the Senate Judiciary Committee, it will no doubt become a law. Lawyers assert that it will not be recognized by the courts later. According to the Paul bill, the man who contracts for a crop must pay the full contract price after the tobacco is ready for the market, and cannot dock the grower for any deficiencies in the tobacco at that time or later in the curing process. Formerly the growers asserted, the contract was binding on them, but was only an option for the buyer, who could pay what he chose to when he took over the crop.

The Government, on March 17, sent out circulars, as provided by the Cantrill law, which calls upon leaf dealers to make their reports within ten days after April 1. The dealers are expected to report every kind of tobacco on hand except imported tobacco in bonded warehouses. This information will be secured by the Government from the collector of customs at the various ports.

In a large deal closed at Bowling Green, Kentucky, all the pooled tobacco of Logan County, comprising 1200 acres of air-cured and 1700 acres of fire-cured tobacco, totalling 2,000,000 pounds, was sold to G. O. Tuck & Company, of Louisville. News of the sale caused great relief to growers of that section.

The force-sweating of the Wisconsin tobacco to supply the demand for binders has resulted in some pleasant surprises to dealers and manufacturers. Contrary to the expectations of many, the tobacco which was apparently green and immature had come through the sweat in fine shape, being tough and the colorings being good. The black rot which was predicted has not materialized to any extent.

The overproduction of tobacco in Lancaster County of recent years has caused some farmers to turn their attention to the growing of cabbage as a substitute crop. The argument in favor of the new crop is that in the long run it will be more profitable and will be less expensive to produce. It is now well known that at their last meeting the growers' association of that county passed a resolution asking the members to decrease their tobacco acreage 25 per cent. In spite of the fact that some growers are meditating large plantings of cabbage, it is hardly likely that Lancaster's foremost money crop will be displaced to any great extent.

The first month of 1913 shows a very good beginning in the exports of natural leaf tobacco, according to the report of the United States Department of Commerce and Labor. There is a normal foreign demand, also, for tobacco products of all kinds. In the unmanufactured leaf a very material increase is shown over the corresponding month last year. Large cigars and smoking tobacco also show increased exports. The slightly decreasing export of cigarettes was probably caused by a corresponding increased demand at home. Plug tobacco shipments were a trifle lighter than those for January, 1912.

The Henry County Loose-Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company, Pleasantville, Kentucky, is going to erect new modern buildings and open another market next season. The main building will be electrically heated and lighted and contain fine offices, besides having separate sizing and sales floors. It will cover two acres.

The Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company recently declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. on its stock, payable April 15, to stock of record on that date.

A committee of Dayton men acting in the interests of the leaf dealers in that city, who are preparing for the annual convention of the National Association of Cigar Leaf Packers, are now busy outlining the programme. The convention will be held on May 13, 14 and 15. The plans as now contemplated call for a lavish banquet one night, also an entertainment for another. It is expected that several hundred delegates to the convention will attend.

Different Pocesses of Tobacco Curing

employed in curing tobacco on the stalk, except that, since the leaves are picked from the stalk in harvesting, the tier poles are only about 2½ feet apart, vertically. All shade-grown leaf is picked from the stalk in harvesting, to insure the maximum yield of high-grade wrappers. Nearly all shade-grown and much of the outdoor primed tobacco is cured in part with artificial heat. Small charcoal fires are made on the floor of the barn and moderate heat is maintained for two or three days or longer, depending on the weather conditions. But little ventilation is given while the fires are going. Flues also have been used with success in curing primed tobacco. As soon as the brown color develops, the leaf may be allowed to dry out rather rapidly. The leaf proper cures down in a short time, but a much longer period is required for completely drying out the stems. The picked leaves are subject to pole-sweat at the critical stage, the same as when cured on the stalk, but, of course, the danger period is much shorter. Under favorable conditions the curing will be completed in from four to six weeks. The cured leaf is taken down and tied into hands, which are delivered to the packer in either of the ways described above.

Curing Burley Tobacco.

The bulk of the Burley crop is grown in north-central Kentucky and in a few counties of West Virginia, Ohio, and Indiana bordering on the Ohio River. Like cigar tobaccos, Burley is cured without the use of artificial heat, except when there is danger of injury from pole-sweat or house-burn. There are many types of barns in use for curing Burley tobacco, ranging from the small, crude structure to the most approved modern frame building with ample facilities for controlling the ventilation. The modern barns are essentially the same as those used in the cigar-tobacco districts, which have already been discussed.

Management of the Curing.

The method of curing Burley tobacco is the same as for cigar tobaccos, and the changes that take place are of the same kind. When cured, however, the color is a pale yellowish to a reddish brown instead of the characteristic clearer and deeper brown of the cigar leaf. If the weather is very dry, the barn should be kept closed during the day and open at night; otherwise, more ventilation is required. If the weather is very damp during the curing period, the leaf cures down too dark. Some growers use small charcoal fires, or burn coke in stoves to dry out the barn when house burn threatens. From four to six weeks are usually required for completing the curing process.

Assorting and Packing.

When taken down from the poles the leaves are stripped from the stalk and assorted. The usual grades are (1) flyings, (2) trash, (3) lugs, (4) bright leaf, (5) red leaf, and (6) tips. The three first-named grades are used principally for smoking tobaccos, the best lugs and the bright leaf for plug and cigarette wrappers, and the red leaf and tips for plug and twist fillers. These different grades are tied into hands containing 10 to 20 leaves and bulked down. For marketing, the tobacco may be packed into hogsheads, but in recent years it is becoming more and more the practice to sell Burley by the loose-leaf auction system.

Doings in the Foreign Tobacco Centres

Predicts Full Supply of Turkish Tobacco

ONE of the common effects of war is that things cost more afterwards. When the Balkan war broke out those people who have a leaning that way began to cudgel their brains to discover what effect upon prices it might have in this country.

One of the first articles that engaged their attention was Turkish tobacco. Mr. D. B. Muratti, the managing director of Messrs. B. Muratti, Sons & Company, of London, said recently that any number of inquiries reached him as to the possible shortage and consequent increase of prices.

"Let me give you a little information which can be relied upon," he said, "as portraying the true state of affairs, and which should remove the misapprehension and uncertainty which appears to exist.

"I have just returned from my annual visit to Turkey. As the result of a visit to the various tobacco centres, extending over three months, I can state authoritatively that there is no danger of any shortage. I travelled over the most important plantations just before the commencement of the war, and from information since received from my various managers in the Turkish growing districts I do not think any substantial damage has been done to the fields, the military movements have been so rapid.

"This year's crop in Cavalla and Xanthi is from thirty per cent. to thirty-five per cent. less than the previous year's crop it is true, owing to some of the peasants having planted rather late, and also owing to the heavy rains, and the quality, although still passable, is not so good as last year. But as regards Samsoun and Bafra the 1912 crop is about the same amount as the previous year, and, so far as I can see, there are prospects of the quality being good.

"As to the small manufacturers, I do not think they will be so badly off as it is believed in certain quarters. There is plenty of tobacco on the market in London and elsewhere. I do not think there is any likelihood of prices being increased owing to the war. Indeed there is hardly any margin for higher prices, tobacco from Xanthi, Cavalla and Samsoun at the present time fetching double the price it did four years ago. The limit is about reached, and manufacturers cannot pay more in view of the competition they are under."

Tobacco Growing in Ireland

Only a few years ago, when the possibilities of Ireland as a tobacco growing country were under discussion, very few people, apart from experts, considered the matter with any seriousness, and these experts who did interest themselves in the project looked upon it as a harmless experiment and one foredoomed to failure. But experts in every department are sometimes known to err, and the production of a first-class tobacco leaf in Ireland has ceased to exist as a dream of the future, and has become an accomplished fact. Amongst those who firmly believed that the prospects of this new industry were particularly bright were the Right Hon. Lord Barrymore and Col. Sir Nugent Everard, and they were foremost amongst Irish landowners to take up the project. It is interesting now, in view of the gloomy prophesies current at that time, to note how the determination of such men has been rewarded. Not only has it been emphatically proved that the Irish climate and the Irish soil are capable of producing a first-class leaf, but nature herself took a hand against those who refused to believe in the new industry, with the result that the brilliant summer of 1911 produced a crop equal in every respect to the finest leaf from America and other lands. A large portion of the Irish crop gathered during that record year was grown on Lord Barrymore's estate at Cordangan, in County Tipperary. An enterprising firm in the south of Ireland then came to the front, and seeing the undoubted possibilities of this home-grown plant, purchased the crop of the Cordangan estate. This was then taken by men to whom the blending of tobaccos is an art rather than a business. They found out what proportion of the Irish leaf made a perfect blend with the best foreign tobaccos, and produced a new mixture, taking its name "Cordangan" from its Irish birthplace.

Early Tobacco Growing in British Isles

Recent statistics prepared by Robert P. Moncrieff show that England's consumption of tobacco has increased more than fifty-fold since 1689, says the "London Chronicle." Among the treasures of Andrew Steinmetz, an enthusiastic collector of tobacco literature, was the original Parliamentary grant of William and Mary appropriating the duties on tobacco to the states of Holland in return for £600,000 advanced to finance the Revolution of 1688. During 1689, 11,000,000 pounds of tobacco were imported, which paid duty at the rate of 1s. per pound and five per cent. poundage in addition. So the Dutch government did remarkably well over the transaction.

The report that the cultivation of tobacco in England is on the increase reminds us that the only bar to its earlier cultivation was the prohibition of the law. For it was being grown successfully enough in 1684, when an act was passed forbidding its cultivation. And in Ireland it was grown up to as recent a date as 1831, when it was again prohibited and the existing crops bought up and destroyed. The modern movement for its cultivation in England dates from 1886, when permission for experiments was granted by the board of trade.

German Tobacco Growing and Consumption

ACCORDING to recently published official statistics, 42,050 acres of tobacco were planted and harvested in Germany and Luxemburg during the crop year from July 1, 1911, to June 30, 1912, as compared with 38,064 acres during the 1910-11 crop year, the average acreage for the previous ten years being 38,818 acres.

In Germany the planters are usually small farmers who employ their families in the cultivation of tobacco. The large farmers almost without exception are gradually giving up the raising of the plant. Of the total number of planters in 1911-12, namely, 101,831, there were 26,635 who had less than 1 are (0.025 acre) planted in tobacco; 24,298 who planted more than 1 are and up to 10 ares (0.25 acre); 49,287, over 10 ares up to 1 hectare (2.47 acres), and only 1611 who planted over 1 hectare in tobacco.

In 1911-12 a total of 29,181 metric tons of roof-dried, unfermented tobacco were produced, as compared with 28,854 metric tons during the previous campaign year. Although the tonnage was greater in 1911-12, the average production per acre was less than in 1910-11, the figures for the two years being 1532 and 1669 pounds, respectively.

The average amount produced per acre during 1911-12 was the smallest for the past ten years. The quality of the leaves also was not so good as that of the previous year, nor were the prices obtained as favorable as for the three preceding years. The average prices during 1911-12, 1910-11 and 1909-10 for unfermented tobacco without tax per 100 kilos (220.46 pounds) were $14.14, $17.73 and $15.87, respectively.

The principal tobacco-producing sections of Germany are those of the middle Rhine district of the Palatinate; the districts of the lower Oder in Prussia, embracing the counties of Angermunde, Prenzlau and Templin; the Kingdom of Bavaria, and Alsace-Lorraine.

The revenue from tobacco in Germany during the two past campaign years was as follows:

	1910-11.	1911-12.
Customs duties	$26,329,176	$28,402,090
Weight and acreage taxes	2,980,090	2,723,645
Taxes on tobacco substitutes	24,153	22,148
Total	$20,333,419	$31,147,883
Drawback on exported tobacco	219,178	277,255
Net revenue	$29,114,241	$30,870,628

In the following statement is shown the estimated consumption of tobacco in Germany for the past twelve years. The production is expressed on the basis that a ton of roof-dried tobacco is equivalent to four-fifths of a ton of tobacco thoroughly cured ready for manufacturing. For the imports the figures are entirely those of cured tobacco, and for the exports half the tonnage represents roof-dried and half-cured tobacco. Stocks of tobacco are not included in the figures, as, although they vary each year according to the extent of the home crops and the foreign and domestic demands, yet, taking the data for a number of years, the estimated production will not differ greatly from the actual amount consumed and will be interesting for comparison.

	Metric tons.	Metric tons.	Metric tons.	Pounds.
1900	27,832	60,674	88,506	3.44

1911	23,345	76,526	99,871	3.33
Average for 12 years	26,223	68 833	95,056	3.41

According to the official preliminary estimates 38,986 acres were planted in tobacco during the present crop year 1912-13, a decrease of 3064 acres, or 7.3 per cent., from 1911-12. The number of planters was 95,141, against 101,831 in the past crop year. German tobacco is mostly sold to dealers and manufacturers, and very little, comparatively, is consumed by planters.—Consul General A. M. Thackara, Berlin.

TRADE NOTICE.

The brand "Roped Havanas" has been registered by us. The feature of banding each individual cigar with a cord or rope band, is our original idea, for which a patent is pending in the United States Patent Office.

Imitators or infringers will be promptly prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The New Science of Advertising

THE history of the world has been a history of advertising, conscious or unconscious.

This generation of ours is the first that sees advertising as a science or an art.

And even this generation does not realize the importance of advertising, the dignity of the advertising profession, the extraordinary part that advertising is destined to play in the industry, the commerce, and especially, in the economy of the country.

The advertisement is to the industry and business of the nation what the bright electric light is to the big engine producing the power. The little electric bulb tells what the engine is doing. The brilliantly worded advertisement tells what industry, commerce, manufacturers are doing.

In the olden days everything was slow. A man with great difficulty managed to place his little store on a street where many passed. The people could only know what he was doing if they passed his store.

Now a man puts his factory in a distant town, nobody has seen it, nobody knows perhaps where it is. But that man puts his name, his purposes, his accomplishments, in the hands of tens of millions of human beings. He does not wait for the man to pass his door. He goes through the door of the house in which the man lives, and in this monthly, that weekly, or in many dailies, presents to the man the story that he has to tell.

Therein lies the power of advertising. You can work today and tomorrow you can tell the whole world what you have done.

You can have a new idea this week, and next week that idea can be in the minds of fifty millions of human beings.

You are not bound by your location, limited by the strength of your voice. Your voice is the voice of the printing press.

No man need waste a day if he has the right idea and the energy and knows how to talk for publication.

It is important that the public know what advertising means.

Especially important is the fact that plenty of advertising almost invariably means an excellent and honest product.

If you read that a man had invested a million dollars in a factory of brick, stone and iron, you would not need to be told that he would refrain from setting fire to that factory, especially if it were not insured.

There are many business men that have put not one million, but five millions, and ten millions into an advertising reputation.

They have put their millions into words, and have created by them a reputation as solid as any brick or any iron. That reputation is their fortune. That reputation is their lifework. It is not insured, it cannot be insured.

For the man who has put millions into advertising, to lower the quality of his goods, to deceive the public, would be like setting fire to his millions without any insurance.

The man who advertises gives hostages to the public, and proves that it is his intention to succeed by giving value, by living up to that which he has promised.

—Editorial Section, New York American.

Contracts have been awarded by George J. Kuhn, a cigar manufacturer of New Brunswick, New Jersey, for the stores which he intends erecting on the site of 355 George Street, that place.

The wholesale and retail liquor and cigar establishment of Henry Albrecht, Broadway and Collinsville Avenue, East St. Louis, Illinois, was completely destroyed a short time since by a fire which resulted in a loss of approximately $20,000.

Interesting Trade Items

The Payette-Walsh Company, of Detroit, Michigan, is making a heavy campaign on Garcia & Vega cigars in that city, for which they recently became the jobbers.

E. G. Melick has taken over the cigar store of Manson Reiff, in Bluffton, Indiana.

The Cordove Cigar Company, of Denver, Colorado, is making preparations to put a new cigar in that market. It is made by the Seidenberg Company, of New York.

A new cigar factory will shortly be opened in Washington, Iowa, by Johnson & Greenfield, of Fairfield, that state.

The legislature of the state of Missouri recently killed a measure before that body prohibiting treating in saloons or cigar stores.

J. H. Van Wormer has sold his cigar and confectionery business at Aurora, Nebraska, to George Donner.

Fred O. Clapp, for a number of years factory superintendent for Joseph Whitcomb & Company, Springfield, Massachusetts, died at his home, 1477 North Street, that city, recently, at the age of sixty years.

An extra inducement in the way of a bonus is being given to the salesmen of John Hoffman & Sons Company, of Milwaukee, in pushing the "London Court" cigars of Celestino Costello & Company, of York, Pennsylvania.

Vogt, Rybold & Runge are a new leaf house recently incorporated to do business in Milwaukee. They have opened up at 235 East Water Street, and have a capital stock of $20,000. All the members of the firm are well known in that territory.

The Eaton Cigar Company, Limited, has been incorporated at St. Thomas, Ontario, to manufacture cigars. It has a capital of $40,000 and was organized by the following: Arthur Eaton, John Lutz, Harry J. Roberts, H. E. Maxwell, and W. J. Trick.

Few Changes Affecting Tobacco Trade in New Tariff Bill Now Before Congress

To Drop Duty on Scrap, Now at 55 Cents, to 35 Cents Per Pound—Briar Root for Pipes Placed at 10 Per Cent. Instead of 15 Per Cent.—Wrapper Tobacco Defined

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.

As forecast in these columns the Democrats of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives have decided to leave practically unchanged the tariff duties on tobacco. Chairman Underwood introduced the bill in the House on Monday, April 7, accompanying it with a statement that the tobacco schedule had been unchanged with the exception of the duty on scrap, which has been paying 55 cents, whereas the new bill intends to decrease this duty to 35 cents per pound. Heretofore scrap has carried the 55-cent duty in the "basket" clause of the schedule.

The new tariff law has the approval of President Wilson and it is publicly known that it is to be an administrative measure. There are many differences of opinion in the party, especially in the Senate, regarding other features of the bill, but it is not contemplated that the tobacco duties will be altered from what they are in the House bill.

"185. Wrapper tobacco, and filler tobacco when mixed or packed with more than fifteen per centum of wrapper tobacco, and all leaf tobacco the product of two or more countries or dependencies when mixed or packed together, if unstemmed, $1.85 per pound; if stemmed, $2.50 per pound; filler tobacco not specially provided for in this section, if unstemmed, 35 cents per pound; if stemmed, 50 cents per pound.

"186. The term wrapper tobacco as used in this section means that quality of leaf tobacco which has the requisite color, texture, and burn, and is of sufficient size for cigar wrappers, and the term filler tobacco means all other leaf tobacco. Collectors of customs shall not permit entry to be made, except under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, of any leaf tobacco, unless the invoices of the same shall specify in detail the character of such tobacco, whether wrapper or filler, its origin and quality. In the examination for classification of any imported leaf tobacco, at least one bale, box, or package in every ten, and at least one in every invoice, shall be examined by the appraiser or person authorized by law to make such examination, and at least ten hands shall be examined in each examined bale, box or package.

"187. All other tobacco, manufactured or unmanufactured, not specially provided for in this section, 55 cents per pound; scrap tobacco, 35 cents per pound.

"188. Snuff and snuff flour, manufactured of tobacco, ground dry, or damp, and pickled, scented, or otherwise, of all descriptions, 55 cents per pound.

"189. Cigars, cigarettes, cheroots of all kinds, $4.50 per pound and twenty-five per centum ad valorem, and paper cigars and cigarettes, including wrappers, shall be subject to the same duties as are herein imposed upon cigars."

Under the new tariff bill there is no limit to the amount of Philippine tobacco products which may enter this country free of duty. According to the bill, "all articles the growth or product of or manufactured in the Philippine Islands, from materials the product or growth of the Philippine Islands, or of the United States, or of both, or which do not contain foreign materials to the value of more than fifty per cent. of their total value or twenty per cent. in case of manufactures of tobacco, from which no drawback of customs duty has been allowed therein, coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands, shall hereafter be admitted free of duty."

The bill provides for no changes in the Internal Revenue taxes on tobacco products, although the cigar interests of the country appeared to think that there would be changes along this line, and were prepared to protest.

There are also changes in the duties on labels, flaps and cigar bands. Under the new tariff bill, these labels, flaps and bands, if printed entirely in bronze shall pay a duty of

Flooded Section of Ohio and Miami Valleys Slowly Coming Back to Normal Conditions

Loss Estimated at $2,000,000—50,000 Cases of Tobacco Damaged in Dayton; Cigar Dealers Cleaned Out of Stocks—American Cigar Co. a Heavy Loser

CINCINNATI, April 11.

REPORTS are still coming in as to the damage sustained by the owners of cigar factories, warehouse interests and others throughout this section. The total loss, while large, is thought to be much below that first estimated. Cincinnati was fortunate, and outside of the confusion incident to the flood the injury will be slight.

Dayton will lose largely through the cigar dealers in the center of the town, who will lose their stocks and in many cases their fixtures. Three Dayton leaf brokers consulted reported that their loss would amount to about 50,000 cases. These men were Carl Ruge, M. E. Stern and A. Hauma. All the tobacco warehouses in Dayton and Miamisburg were flooded. No means of securing the loss figures can yet be ascertained. The warehouse of Wolf & Lukaswitz in Dayton, while damaged, is still standing, and all the tobacco on the second and third floors is safe and in good condition. That tobacco in the basement and first floor was ruined and it is being hauled away. Their loss amounts to about 2500 cases. They state that they will again be ready for business in about three weeks.

Robert Taggart, the representative of Julius Marqusee in Dayton, estimates their loss at $100,000, and the representative of E. Rosenwald & Brother, of New York, their loss at 1000 cases. The Jaskulek leaf concern loses the same number.

It has been estimated that the damage in Paducah, Kentucky, will come close to costing the tobacco interests in that city $75,000. The heaviest loss there is said to be sustained by the Dickerson Tobacco Company, which may be as much as $50,000. This concern's big building was unroofed and part of it wrecked. Part of the machinery was ruined also. The biggest loss will be in the tobacco which was soaked. Much of it was moved from the building after the place was wrecked.

The loss of the American Cigar Company in Mansfield, Ohio, will come close to $50,000. When asked as to what figure their damage would reach, President Sylvester, of this firm, said: "I do not think that our total loss, counting our five plants in Dayton, will amount to $50,000. Practically all the damage to our interests will be confined to the buildings. Most of our tobacco had been moved to the upper floors of our warehouse in anticipation to receiving the new crop and therefore the damage was slight."

Revenue Pitfalls into Which Tobacconists May Easily Fall

*By L. L. De Bra, in Western Tobacconist

IT was 10 P. M. Mr. Average Cigar Dealer was preparing to close his place of business. After finishing other little duties, he examined his stock of cigars. Then it was that he violated the United States internal revenue laws four times in four minutes.

He found three boxes of Smith's cigars, one half full and the others containing half a dozen cigars each. He removed thecigars from the latter two and placed them in the half full box. Violations one and two. Then he took the two empty boxes, smashed in the lids with his fist, and threw them into the waste box. Violations three and four. If a revenue officer had come in just then it would have caused Mr. Average Cigar Dealer a lot of trouble and would have cost him a fine of possibly one hundred dollars or more.

The following explanation of the revenue regulations will help the honest merchant to keep his place in such condition that he will never have any trouble with the government.

Cigars must not be taken from the stamped box and placed in the showcase or other receptacle. They must be kept in the original stamped box until sold. Nor must they be transferred from one box to another. Revenue officers have many ways of detecting this trick, and it is better not to take chances. If you want to throw out a box that has one cigar left in it, smoke the cigar yourself. Whatever you do, don't put it into another box.

A few manufacturers put up cigars in paper packages of five or ten cigars each. These packages come in long paper cartons. Now, some of these little packages are stamped, and when they are, there is no stamp on the long carton; but many of these little packages are not stamped, and in such cases, there is a regular internal revenue stamp on the carton.

These stamped cartons containing the little unstamped packs cause more trouble than anything else the dealer handles. The first thing he does is to take out all the packs and scatter them around in the show case. Then he throws the empty carton into the waste box.

A revenue officer steps in. Trouble pops up fast. "See here," he says, "what do you mean by having all these cigars outside of the stamped package? Don't you see these little packs have no stamp? This will cost you about fifty dollars." And he proceeds to gather up all the little packs, wraps them up, and writes your name on the outside.

Meanwhile you are digging through the waste box with such frantic speed you have half the contents in the air at once. Finally you get your hands on that empty carton and you hand it to the officer with a triumphant air. He takes the carton, looks it over and smiles broadly.

"Well, here's more trouble. Why didn't you destroy this stamp when you emptied this box?" he says, showing you the stamp which you thought was on each of the little packages. "This will cost you twenty-five dollars more."

That gets your goat. You wilt down so completely that you haven't breath to explain that you just emptied that box. But the revenue officer knows all about such cases anyway, so it wouldn't do you any good to explain. The only thing to do is to pay your fine.

Better go over your stock today and see if you haven't some of these little unstamped packs on your shelves. Remember that the stamped packs can be any place except in another stamped box; but the unstamped packs must remain in the original package until sold.

Immediately on emptying a cigar box or carton, scratch the stamp thoroughly. Then turn the box over and scratch the caution label and the manufacturer's number. This does the work completely, but any less than this isn't safe. And remember that smashing the lid does no good. The stamp, marks, and brands must be destroyed.

The law is practically the same for these as for cigars, but it seems to be impossible to impress this fact on the minds of tobacco merchants. Many of them get into trouble for cutting up plug tobacco and putting it in a candy display jar. Tobacco, like cigars, must be left in the original stamped package until sold.

In opening a tobacco caddy, be careful not to destroy the internal revenue stamp. You may cut away the biggest portion of the box if you wish, but leave the stamp intact. Merchants often do this with cigars also in order to make more room in the case.

When the tobacco caddy is empty, take some sharp instrument and destroy the stamp at once. It is not sufficient to destroy the box unless the stamp is also destroyed. The safest plan is to scratch the stamp thoroughly and then you can do what you please with the box except to use it for tobacco again.

There is one very common practice that gets lots of merchants into trouble. John Jones stops at the store in the morning and says: "Cut up a dollar's worth of chewing and I'll stop for it at noon." The dealer cuts up the tobacco, wraps it in a neat package, and lays it on the shelf to wait for Jones. At ten o'clock, a revenue officer drops into the store and looks things over.

"Uh, huh!" he says, as he picks up the package. "What's this?" But he has felt so many similar packages he doesn't wait for your answer, so while you are trying to explain, with the cold sweat running up and down your back, he writes your name and address on the package, and then rudely interrupts your little speech by telling you that you surely know better than to have tobacco lying around outside of the stamped package. He takes the tobacco with him—and twenty-five dollars you paid as a fine.

So the thing to do is to cut up the tobacco for Jones and then chuck it right back into the stamped box as soon as you can. Then when Jones stops for it, you can wrap it while he is hunting for his dollar. He may complain, but it is better to take a chance with John Jones than with Uncle Sam.

When you have emptied a cigar box or tobacco caddy, and are thinking of destroying the stamp, let this old phrase burn into your memory: "Do it now!" Don't lay the box down to answer the 'phone or even to wait on an old customer. A revenue officer might drop in before you got back to that box and you'd be in a nice mess. Attend to these things promptly.

Regardless of your personal feelings in the matter, the wisest way is to treat the revenue officer just as you would a dear friend who has ten dollars you want to borrow. Assist him in every way to make an examination of your place of business. He is only doing his duty and the more pleasant you make it for him, the more likely he is to overlook your little mistakes. If he finds you have violated the law, urge him to let you off this time. If the violation is of such a nature he can not do this, then make the best possible terms of settlement. No rule can be given for this because the circumstances in each case are different. But a sure rule in any case is that courteous, businesslike treatment of revenue officers goes a long way toward smoothing over matters.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Optimism as a Powerful Force in Business

FEW people realize the force that optimism plays in the business world of today. Our biggest merchants have been optimists of the most rabid type. Often they were called idealists, who should have been poets or writers, men who were in the wrong calling.

Yet the hidden, though none the less powerful, force largely assisted them to realize their ambitions. They took the stand that the outlook on a certain prospect or piece of business was encouraging, even easy, provided they did the matter in the right way; and as a result they went far ahead of the other merchants of their time.

Take, for instance, the stand one of our largest merchants took some years ago. Everything in his establishment was to be marked at a certain price and it sold at that price regardless of who the possible customer should be. He also was the originator of the slogan: "Satisfaction or your money back," and it worked out. Today he is in a position where he can create new methods of doing business, and the fact that he has always made good on his promises vouches for the success of any new plans.

This man was an optimist, an idealist, if you wish to put it that way, and he realized his ambition by placing his standards high and not worrying about the way he was going to work them out. He found out that the quickest way was to get busy, believe that it could be done, and the hardest part of the work was over.

One of the largest merchants of the day said recently that when a man who was in his employ in a big capacity lost his power of optimism, he was close to being a useless factor in the business. Just so must the retail merchant of the day come to a realization of his relation to this hidden force. Don't be like the croaker who, when you go into his store, is either standing at the door and surveying the landscape while his window is full of dust and the stock in poor condition, or when you ask him what trade is like will promptly say, "rotten." And little wonder it is to him. Go to the other man, the bright, up-to-date, optimistic merchant, and put the same query to him. "Quiet," he will say, "but we are getting our share of business—perhaps a little more." The appearance of his store comes pretty near to proving that, too.

You must learn that belief in yourself should come first, and that you must open yourself to the greatest force in business—optimism. To grope around in the darkness of pessimism, wonder and fear, is to fail to reach the door of opportunity, or even reach it, to find the latchstring pulled in.

Some Things a Clerk Should Know

That his employer's success is his success.

That his advancement depends entirely upon his own individual efforts.

That success is never attained without hard work.

That he will never get something for nothing.

That he is not paid merely for his presence, but for his work—and is judged accordingly.

That it is his efforts and not his influence which brings promotion.

That when he starts at the bottom and works up he knows more than the man who starts in the middle—and usually falls down.

Read the Ads. in Your Trade Paper

I WISH I could find out the name of a concern that makes a certain cigar lighter I want to get. I have seen the lighter in several places—Gray has one. I need one the worst way."

The above statement was made a few days ago by a prominent retailer, who would resent a hint from any one that he was not a progressive and up-to-date man. Piled on his desk were some of the best journals in the trade, too; but they had the appearance of having been tossed there after very hasty perusal. Almost any one of those journals held in its advertising pages the information he wanted, and when his attention was called to the fact he found it in a minute. He looked somewhat foolish and made a few excuses—the time-honored, cut-and-dried stuff—about not having the time to read them and so forth.

The best and most wide-awake man in the tobacco trade, as well as any other, reads his trade journals from cover to cover, the advertisements as well as the reading pages. He takes advantage of every opportunity there presented and nothing he can use to advantage gets away from him. If a new brand is being pushed by the use of large space and progressive methods and he gets reports of the large demand through the reading pages of the paper, he stocks it and gets his share of the cream. He knows that if he does not his competitors will.

Get away from the idea that the trade journal is merely a gossip sheet. If you read all of it consistently you will see many a proposition that will increase your trade and mean money for you.

No customer should have to wait more than a minute for attention in a store, for even if they cannot be served at once, some one should speak to them and direct them to where they may be looking up what they want while waiting their turn.

RETAIL KINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Business . . .

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company is distributing among many of their dealers handsome standing frames in which pictures of current events of the day are shown at the rate of two a week. These pictures are sent direct from the New York offices of the firm and are attracting attention.

Feature Interesting Current Events Pictures in Windows

The picture idea has been used by many merchants in getting crowds to look into their windows, and incidentally to seeing just what that firm is displaying at the time. But tobacco dealers have not been using them to any extent. Perhaps the expense entailed was too much for a small store, but this idea can be used in other ways.

Some time ago one of the large dealers and importers in Philadelphia took a trip to Tampa and the Cuban cigar centers. While there he enjoyed some enjoyable, as well as exciting fishing, landing an enormous shark. A picture of the fish was taken, with him and his friends standing by. When he arrived home this picture was displayed in his store and it caught the eye, too. There was a crowd of people before the window the greater part of the day. One of the magazines happened to have a man at the scene of the catch and gave an interesting story of the participants and figures on the size of the fish, saying that this was a case of a big fish story where the fish did not get away. This clipping, which appeared in the magazine was placed in the window with picture and made a very interesting exhibit.

If the ball teams in your town have their pictures taken, get a copy if possible, also of current events wherever possible. These displays get passers-by in the habit of watching your windows. Then when you have a special lot of cigars to get rid of, you will be assured of a number of people seeing them.

Cigar dealers are beginning to realize more and more the benefits of advertizing. It seems curious that in the minds of many of them advertising is synonymous with newspapers. They do not put the window display in the same class with the newspapers, and yet there are many cigar dealers nowadays who, if they had to sacrifice one or the other, would say, "Give me the window."

Windows Superior to Newspapers in Advertising Value

The window display and cards carry a direct message that newspaper advertising never can. A man may often see an "ad" calling his attention to a certain cigar while he is reading his evening paper. It interests him—but how long? When he needs a smoke the next day, the advertisement is usually forgotten. Of course, if a half page or quarter page is used and a cigar, at a cut price, is shown, that is another matter. But how many dealers can use the newspapers consistently on such a basis?

Watch that window of yours closely. If the fixtures are old and badly worn, have them varnished or throw them out and get new ones. See that the wood in the window is finished in an attractive manner. The dark mission effect is especially good. It forms a good background for the display. And trim it regularly. Do not allow cigars to lie there until they are not fit to be smoked.

But, above all things, have it attractive and neat looking. It's a black eye to any store to have a poor window trim.

"Not one smoker out of fifty knows enough about tobacco and cigars to be able to tell the difference between the really good cigar and the mediocre one."

Break into Print and Publish a Booklet.

Have you ever expressed yourself along this line, Mr. Dealer? If you have not used these exact words, it is a pretty safe bet that you said something like it.

And at that, you were not very far from the truth. Too many smokers can be deceived on a poor quality article, and will often balk on a good one for no reason whatever.

One of the reasons is that they need education. You will admit that. How are you going to do it? Advertise your store and educate at the same time. There are very few cigar dealers, especially men of many years' experience, who have not a store of knowledge which should be invaluable to the smoker, as well as to themselves eventually, if the smoker only knew it.

Why not break into print? You may promptly say: "Oh, I can't write. I'm not an author; I'm a cigar merchant." That's very true, but if you put your thoughts on paper—and you surely have a number of good opinions on cigars and tobacco—you can easily get someone to prepare them for you, and have small booklets printed, entitled, "Valuable pointers for the cigar smoker," or something on that order. That may seem stale to you, because you've known it so long, but the smoker who wants to know a few things will not think so.

Pass them out to your customers, particularly to the man who comes to your store for the first time, and you will lose nothing by it. It is safe to assume that when a smoker reads that book and finds out a number of things of which he was ignorant before, he will often put himself in the hands of a dealer, who appears to know something about his business.

An interesting window exhibit which a Baltimore merchant displayed some time ago was a jar of cigar tips. The jar was about two feet high, of the variety often seen in drug stores, and was filled to the top with tips. It carried a sign, "Tips of cigars sold in this store since January first. Is yours among them?"

Save Cigar Bands and Tips For Displays

The same idea was used in a window of the J. Stacey Hill store, in Cincinnati, recently. In the center of the window was displayed a pile of rolled cigar bands. Above them was hung the sign, "A few bands picked from the floor of our store. Is yours here?"

One store in an Eastern city some time ago introduced an unusual novelty to their patrons. Each day for a week, between the hours of eleven and one, some bargain was offered. One day they specialized on smoking tobacco, the next on cigarettes, another day on plug tobacco, winding up a big day's sale of cigars. The neighboring tobacconists wondered how they made any profit, owing to the prices. They were not keen enough to see that nothing was lost on the specials, and the bargains brought a number of smokers in the store who purchased of other goods, on which there was a good profit.

A Romance in The Tobacco Industry

In the dull, work-a-day career of the average business man, there seldom comes a ray of romance to lighten his cares. Facts and figures, strife and competition are his daily routine. But every once in a while, there flashes on his vision some high light of vital human interest which touches his inner side and inspires him to greater deeds.

If the tobacco industry has ever had a business romance, it has one in the story of the Quincy, Florida, shade-grown belt. How the possibilities of this fertile section as a tobacco growing center were discovered, merely through accident; how the industry suddenly developed over night; turned paupers to princes and opened a veritable El Dorado in the South; how a bad year left the fortune hunters penniless; how a group of men believing sincerely in the merits of their proposition, turned failure to success, and in three years achieved the remarkable development of that section, through courage and indefatigable work, is told for the first time elsewhere in the columns of this issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD.

We strongly urge every reader of THE WORLD to peruse and digest every line of this article. The facts were gathered by the managing editor of THE WORLD, upon a recent tour of investigation and study in the Quincy section. The article contains not only vital facts interesting to every cigar and tobacco man, but inspiration to every business man no matter what line he follows.

A Stand Pat Tariff on Tobacco Products

The Underwood tariff bill as far as it affects the cigar and tobacco trade could well be eliminated from the deliberations of that astute body of tariff-tinkers that has assembled at Washington. The Ways and Means Committee, after turning over every argument for and against changes in the tobacco schedules, came to the conclusion that as tobacco is a luxury and one of the main revenue producers which keeps Uncle Sam's pockets always filled, they would assume a "stand pat" policy and make no important changes in the tobacco schedules.

Importers of Havana tobacco had hoped that their recommendation of duty of one dollar per pound, would be adopted, and they were exceedingly disappointed when the Underwood bill was announced. At this stage there seems to be no ray of hope for them.

The eyes of the country are centred on sugar and wool and on these schedules the principal fight will be made by the protectionists.

An analysis of the Underwood bill compared with the Payne-Aldrich bill, reveals that there is a new definition for wrapper tobacco, as follows: "that quality of leaf tobacco which has the requisite color, texture and burn and is of sufficient size for cigar wrappers."

The duty on scrap was reduced from fifty-five to thirty-five cents per pound and the limitation on tax-free Philippine tobacco and cigars is removed.

The pipe manufacturers will be interested to know that they can get their briar root at a ten per cent. duty now instead of fifteen per cent., as under the Payne-Aldrich law.

If the Underwood tariff is passed as originally introduced, it will have little or no effect on the cigar and tobacco business—leaving the situation where it stands today—which is some consolation—when we consider the upset conditions that have already resulted in the sugar and wool industries over the prospects of a radical tariff reduction.

For Good Results Always Submit Clear Pictures

There are a number of pictures now lying in the offices of THE TOBACCO WORLD which for obvious reasons will never be reproduced. We have called attention a number of times to the fact that pictures are sometimes sent to us that are of so poor a quality that if cuts were made for our columns, they would show up very poorly indeed.

We have encouraged the photographing of window displays, groups of salesmen, brand boosters, and interesting snapshots of any incidents relating to the tobacco trade which would be of interest to our readers. These pictures make THE TOBACCO WORLD a more attractive journal and are used whenever possible. But we again caution senders of them to be more careful in securing clearer photographs. If the man who takes a picture of your window does not do it to your satisfaction—if it is not a clear print—tell him to try again and see if he cannot make an improvement.

You will be better satisfied, our readers will be better able to tell what the picture represents, and we can take greater pride in having a well-appearing paper if you keep this point in mind.

The March number of that breezy little publication, "Smoke," printed by the Western Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, came to hand the past two weeks and contains some very interesting matter. We congratulate these dealers on their enterprise and extend to "Smoke" our felicitations.

Elect Delegates For National Cigar Leaf Convention

Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade Also Elects New Trustees—Officers To Be Decided Upon Later—Many Members Absent

AT the annual meeting of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, held at the usual place on Maiden Lane April 8, delegates and alternates for the next convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association were elected. The matter of selecting trustees was also taken up. Vice-President F. M. Dolbeer presided, Carl Wobbe, the president, being absent on a trip to the Ohio flood sections. Owing to the fact that many of the members were either attending the inscriptions in Amsterdam or looking after their interests in Ohio, the meeting was poorly attended. Officers will be elected at a future meeting of the board of trustees. It is the general opinion that all the present officers of the board will be re-elected without opposition.

A resolution was introduced and adopted asking that Atlantic City be selected as the meeting place for the next convention to be held on May 12. This meeting was scheduled for Dayton, Ohio, but business is in such an unsettled state at that point that it was deemed advisable to procure another meeting place.

The board of trustees as now constituted is composed of the following: Max Stern, E. A. Kraussman, John H. Duys, Charles Fox, Benno Neuberger, Ferdinand Cranz, Julius Lichtenstein, W. S. Brill, Joseph Mendelsohn, Moritz Neuberger, F. M. Dolbeer, Joseph Cullman, Sr., F. M. Arguimbau, Fred R. Hoisington and Carl W. Wobbe. The following were selected as delegates to the Cigar Leaf Convention: John H. Duys, Sig. Spingarn, Joseph Mendelsohn, Benno Rosenwald, Joseph F. Cullman, Jr., Milton Samuels, Moritz Neuberger, Henry Fisher, Carl W. Wobbe, F. M. Dolbeer and E. A. Kraussman.

Max Schatz Moves to 82 Maiden Lane

Max Schatz, the popular sales agent for the two leading Havana brands of "Sol," manufactured by Behrens & Company, and the "Elite" cigar, made by F. Rodriguez & Company, of Havana, will remove his New York offices shortly from his present location at 82 Wall Street, to 82 Maiden Lane, in the new building erecting at that number.

Mr. Schatz only returned from Havana, about a fortnight since, and while in that city he sorted up some very interesting sizes in both of the standard brands he handles, which will be on display at the new quarters. Incidentally, the latter part of his visit to Havana was marred by the illness of Mr. Behrens, who is now happily recovered.

Max Schatz has secured the cigar privileges for the new Hotel Severin in Indianapolis. He will place in the stands a most complete line of cigars and will feature a brand of cigars called "Hotel Severin."

The Borgfeldt Stripping Machine Company has instituted a suit against the American Exchange Cigar Company claiming infringement of their patent rights.

Cigar Manufacturers' Association Elects New Officers

Fred Hirschhorn Succeeds Jacob Wertheim as President, Who Is Given Vote of Thanks For His Work in Behalf of Body

AT the annual meeting of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America, held at Delmonico's on Tuesday, April 8, Jacob Wertheim, formally retired as president, and Fred Hirschhorn was elected to take his place. Otto Eisenlohr, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, was elected vice-president; S. K. Lichtenstein, secretary, and J. B. Wertheim, of E. M. Schwarz & Company, treasurer. Before adjourning the association gave a vote of thanks to Jacob Wertheim for his zealous endeavors on behalf of the association for many years.

The "Free Smoker" law, which allows the manufacturer to give cigarmakers twenty-one cigars a week each without paying any internal revenue tax, came up for much discussion. It was contended by some that the laws in certain states conflicted with this measure, in that in some places, like New York State, smoking was not allowed in factory buildings unless they were of fireproof construction, and the "Free Smoker" law specifically states that these free cigars must be consumed on the premises.

After the several committees had made their reports the meeting adjourned.

Output of Cigars For March in New York Increases

The production of cigars in the three New York districts for the month of March, as compiled from the Internal Revenue figures, shows that cigars have more than held their own, as compared with the same month last year, but that every other line shows decreases.

The output was as follows:

	March.
	1912.	1913	Increase.
Cigars	63,732,420	66,964,960	3,232,540
Little Cigars	6,124,840	4,531,000	*1,593,840
Cigarettes	543,334,126	485,011,360	*58,322,766
Cigarettes at $3.60 ...	1,265,100	1,242,650	*22,450

E. P. Oakes, who was taken seriously ill a short time ago with a stroke of paralysis, is again calling among the New York dealers who handle the "Kings Club" cigars. His many friends were much relieved to see that he was again improved in health after his recent attack.

At the annual dinner of the Manufacturers' Perfumers' Association of America, which is slated to take place at Delmonico's on April 24, "Castaneda" cigars have been selected as the leading smokes. This was one of Dave Echemendia's clever deals.

New York City Items

Harry Fisher, head of the Brooklyn Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, has opened a store at 334 Fulton Street. This is said to be the first of a chain of stands to be opened by Mr. Fisher.

D. J. Sweeney, of Schenectady, New York, a representative in that section for the "Fifth Avenue" cigarettes, made by I. B. Krinsky, Brooklyn, reports that this brand has been making excellent headway in that market.

Robert E. Lane, the United States representative for the "Partagas" cigar, is again with us after six weeks' tour through the West and Pacific Northwest. Mr. Lane states that those fields are opening up nicely for the "Partagas" and that he has had a most enjoyable trip. He came home by way of Canada.

At a fire at the five-story factory of the American Exchange Cigar Company, 1059-61 Third Avenue, more than $10,000 worth of cigars were destroyed. The stock on the ground floor tobacco shop of Henry Ottenberg was entirely destroyed. The cause of the fire was not learned.

E. G. Perez & Company, formerly of 67 Front Street, have announced that they are now located in more convenient offices in the Maritime Building, 8-10 Bridge Street. Their telephone number remains the same, Broad 3069.

Offices have been opened at 135-37 Front Street, this city, by the Connecticut Tobacco Corporation of Tariffville, Connecticut. The office will be in charge of Max Herzog.

The "Blue Peter" Cigarette Company, recently organized in this city, has leased offices at 72 and 74 Beaver Street.

W. B. Moore, a former Philadelphia dealer, who now covers the South for the V. Guerra & Diaz Company, has been in Tampa for the past fortnight. Harry Robare, who exploits "La Megas" along the Pacific Coast, is making things "hum" in Seattle and Portland, and H. C. Culbreath has been recently reported from Salt Lake City. Frank R. Diaz, of this firm, will be in Havana this month for a brief purchasing trip.

A handsome device for advertising their "Lord Macaulay" cigar is being shown to their trade by E. Kleiner & Company. This consists of a placque which is centered in the middle of a stand. There is room for five boxes of cigars and the whole arrangement should be most attractive for window display work.

John W. Merriam, of "Bull Dog" fame, left New York recently for a trip of several weeks' duration to Middle Western points. When last heard from Mr. Merriam was enjoying himself playing golf at French Lick, Indiana. "It's a bully place and you ought to come out here," said Mr. Merriam, writing to a friend in the East.

Charles Nelson, who has owned the cigar stand on the ground floor of the Drexel Building at Broad and Wall Streets, occupied by J. P. Morgan & Company, will be compelled to remove with the other tenants by May 1, when a new building will be erected on the site. Since Mr. Nelson is said to have secured this stand, at the favor of Mr. Morgan, it is believed that he will be provided for in the new building.

Sumatra Purchases of H. Duys & Co. Total 3000 Bales

Late Lot of 325 Bales, Picked Out by John H. Duys, Consists of Choice Tobacco of Light Greenish Cast—Considered Most Superior Goods

JOHN H. DUYS, who has been in Amsterdam attending the inscriptions for H. Duys & Company, 170 Water Street, New York, has made the most careful study of the offerings that he ever has in his life and has found the goods of such desirable character, that they have up to date purchased over 3000 bales. Last week, Mr. Duys spied a special lot of Holl. Deli Company, D. M. Deli, amounting to 325 bales, which was especially choice, and he purchased this out of hand. These goods are of light greenish cast tobacco and considered a gem lot.

John H. Duys sails on the "Mauretania" from Liverpool on April 12, after the fourth inscription of the day before, and will reach New York about the eighteenth. Henry M. Duys, of the firm, will sail from New York on the twenty-second of this month to complete the purchases of this house at the remaining inscriptions. He stated to the representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD, that the record of their tobaccos for years past, warranted him in making the assertion, that the present purchases will yield from $5.00 to $5.50 per thousand, and this puts the Sumatra wrapper absolutely in reach of nickel cigarmakers, who want to turn out a superior article.

At the Sumatra inscription, held in Amsterdam on April 11, H. Duys & Company were purchasers to the extent of 5000 bales, making their purchases up to date 3200 bales.

Americans Take 3500 Bales At April 11 Inscription

At the Sumatra inscription held in Amsterdam on April 11, Americans were purchasers to the amount of 3500 bales. The market advanced decidedly in prices since the last sale and particularly for fine goods.

Among the New York firms which made purchases are the following: S. Rossin Sons, 700 bales; E. Rosenwald & Brother, 600 bales; H. Duys & Company, 500 bales; Joseph Hirsch & Son, 275 bales, and A. Cohn & Company, 500 bales.

April 4th Inscription

At the Sumatra tobacco inscriptions held in Amsterdam on Friday, April 4, Americans purchased about 4500 bales. Prices ruled about the same as at the last two auctions, although especially fine tobacco brought better figures. The crop is considered a fine one in every way and will mean that Sumatra will be used more than ever this year. The foreign Sumatra purchasers did not figure heavily in this sale.

Among the larger purchasers were the following: E. Rosenwald & Brother, 930 bales; H. Duys & Company, 796 bales and 200 additional out of hand; A. Cohn & Company, 700 bales; E. Spingarn & Company, 673 bales; L. Schmid & Company, 500 bales; American Cigar Company, 400 bales; W. K. Gresh & Sons, 240 bales; Hinsdale, Smith & Company, 250 bales; Louis P. Sutter & Brother, 11 bales; F. & E. Cranz, 106 bales.

Macy & Jenkins are showing a new clear Havana cigar, the "Rosa Moro," to their customers. This cigar comes in fifteen sizes and is packed in a most attractive manner.

PHILADELPHIA.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

THE next month or so is going to develop some interesting changes in cigar selling in the centre of the city if Dame Rumor comes fairly close to hitting the mark this time. The Riker-Hegeman drug store will shortly be opened at 1332 Chestnut Street. As is known, this concern deals heavily in cigars and usually sells them at cut-prices. It is said that the Rexall drug chain will probably add another link to their system of stands and will shortly open up on Market Street. If there is anything to this rumor, between the cigar dealers in that section, the Evans drug stores and the two other drug stores, there will be a lively cut-price war on cigars. If the competition grows any keener in the central section of the city, it would not be surprising if a number of cigar dealers dropped out of the race before long. The writer knows of at least four stands, the proprietors of which have stated that they are barely paying expenses. At another stand the owner is losing $30 per week, but as he leased the place principally as an office for himself in the centre of the city, he is not worrying any.

The retail trade was quiet last week. This can be accounted for to a great extent by the rainy weather. There were few stores that were not below normal in sales.

March was a good month for the cigar manufacturers. The output of cigars was 63,279,900, almost two millions ahead of the same period last year. There has only been one better March in the history of the local trade, that of 1911, which was 64,189,650. The factories are now fairly busy, but from present indications April productions will take a drop. The latter part of the month may nevertheless show an improvement over the earlier period. The flood in Ohio may have an effect, but this is problematical. Several of the factories have been sending shipments to their dealers in that section by express. In many cases stocks were completely wiped out.

The Third Grand Annual Ball of the A. S. Valentine & Son's Employees' Beneficial Association was held in Eagles' Temple, Broad and Spring Garden Streets, on Monday, April 7. Every one reported having a most enjoyable time.

Wm. Dohan, of Dohan & Taitt, is expected back from the Bermudas the early part of the week. Mr. Dohan has been on a vacation for several weeks and is much improved in health. His many friends were much pleased to hear his illness was not of a serious nature.

Bobrow Bros. Celebrate Their Fifth Anniversary

THIS month, Bobrow Brothers, manufacturers of the "Bold" cigar, celebrate their fifth anniversary. On the eighteenth of April, it will have been just five years since they first placed their goods before the dealers of this city. They started with one cigarmaker and at the present writing the force in the factory at 114 South Second Street numbers in the neighborhood of three hundred and fifty.

Their progress has been almost phenomenal, in view of the close competition in this city among the manufacturers. And the "Bold" is known in outside places almost as well as in the Quaker City. The first year that this brand was turned out the sales amounted to 90,000 cigars. The next year it was just ten times this, 900,000, and from April, 1912, to April, 1913, the sales jumped to more than 13,000,000.

Preparations are now under way for a number of dinners and theatre parties by the members of the firm and the sales force. These plans have not as yet been completed.

Theobald & Oppenheimer Contribute to Flood Relief Fund

Immediately upon hearing of the widespread effects of the flood throughout Ohio and the Middle West, Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, the local cigar manufacturing firm, wired to their distributors in Mansfield, Ohio, the J. A. Rigby Cigar Company, as follows: "We authorize you in our name to contribute $500 for the flood sufferers and leave it to your best judgment as to the channel to which same should be placed. Please charge same to our account."

The J. A. Rigby Cigar Company turned this money over to the Relief Commission appointed and it was used for securing food and other necessaries for the victims of the disaster. This was much appreciated by MacLee Wilson, treasurer of the Ohio Flood Relief Commission, who wired to Theobald & Oppenheimer as follows: "Accept the thanks of Governor Cox and the people of Ohio for your generous contribution of five hundred dollars, which came through the Rigby Cigar Company on April first."

There is a "To Rent" sign on the old A. T. Augustiniz cigar store on Thirteenth Street, below Filbert. It is understood that this is due to the fact that rents are jumping in that locality and many of the stores in the section will probably look for other locations. The Evening Bulletin, it is understood, will shortly build the second half to their building, and with the completion of the new Vendig Hotel, this locality should become a most desirable one for the cigar dealer.

Revenue Figures for March Encouraging to Manufacturers

THE Internal Revenue figures of the First Pennsylvania District for the month of March, proves that the tobacco industry in this section is in a most healthy state. The output in every line shows increases over the same month last year, with the exception of cigarettes, which is slightly below that of 1912.

The production figures, as compiled from the revenue receipts, show the largest increase in cigars. This is encouraging, but it cannot be overlooked that though the figures show up well, compared with March of last year, which month was a poor one, they are slightly below those of 1911. Yet the figures for March, 1911, show that the month was extraordinarily good. That was the first time the output ever went above the 60,000,000 mark. Small cigars also show an increase, over last year, but not over March of 1911.

The complete figures for the month, and as compared with the same period in 1912 and 1911 are as follows:

	March			Increase in 1913 over
	1913	1912	1911	1912
Cigars	63,279,900	59,818,500	64,189,650	2,461,400
Small cigars	17,037,000	13,320,000	25,400,000	3,717,000
Cigarettes	8,398,864	8,406,440	9,015,800	*7,576
Cigarettes, at $3.60	16,300	16,000	19,000	300
Manufactured tobacco, pounds	92,240	91,789	91,371	451

*Decrease.

Quaker City Notes

M. C. Vanaman, who operates two cigar stores in this city, one at 102 North Fifteenth Street and another at 9 North Juniper Street, will shortly open another on Thirteenth Street, above Filbert Street.

At a recent meeting of the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, a committee was appointed to work with the new manufacturers' association, when it is formed. It consists of John R. Young, Sam Weinberg and L. G. Haussermann.

Hubert J. McConnell is in charge of the new stand of Yahn & McDonnell in the Stock Exchange, which was opened last week, after a number of delays due to the failure to install the fixtures as planned originally.

Jack Fowler, the hustling representative of the United States Tobacco Company in this vicinity, has been concentrating his efforts on "Hugh Campbell's Shag" tobacco with good results. He will shortly place a new product on the market in this city which will be a novelty in many ways.

Jack Frechie, who operates a retail cigar store at 508 Arch Street, and is the Philadelphia representative of the Luis Martinez Cigar Company, of New York and Key West, reports good progress in placing this brand with the better class dealers. Since Mr. Frechie took over the stand at the above address, he has taken on a number of well-known cigars and all the better grades of cigarettes. He lately employed two sales persons to take charge of the stand, one a man and the other a lady, the latter being one of the few young women who preside in this capacity in this city.

Arthur Holt, the energetic manager of the cigar department of Theodore Netter, 1215 Market Street, wholesale liquor dealer, has just made a large purchase of the "All-Alike" brand of the Juan Portuondo factory. He is going to push them by means of a big window display. The "Gato" cigar, of the E. H. Gato Company, Key West, is a recent addition to their line. Mr. Holt's progressive policy has greatly built up the Netter cigar trade.

Excellent progress is being made on the Coast by the jobbers of the "Counsellor" cigar. An extensive campaign is now going on in San Francisco, where the cigar has been widely placed.

Morris Burke, of Los Angeles, California, who is representing Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of this city, on their "Reynaldo" and "Luxello" cigars, is making preparations for pushing them heavily in Los Angeles and Southern California. Mr. Burke was a visitor to Philadelphia a short time ago and called upon a number of cigar manufacturers. He has been representing several cigar factories in that section of California for three years, and has been in the cigar game in California for about fifteen years.

Mr. Willard Goldsmith, of Dusel, Goodloe & Company, reports a booming business this spring, which statement is ably supported by the general air of bustle and activity about the place. They have recently added to their delivery facilities a Ford car, which is attracting much favorable attention among the trade. Business is especially good on "El Principe de Gales" and the "La Preferencia," which are being featured about town in window displays by many retailers. They have lately taken on a new five-cent piece of goods, "Golden," which has an imported Java wrapper, and is strictly hand made. This house is placing on the market the famous "Cubanola" brand, now featured at the offices of the firm in a big window display.

Campaign on "Havana Ribbons" in New England

NEW ENGLAND STATES are proving very fertile fields for Bayuk Brothers Company. M. M. Wilson, who represents the "Havana Ribbon" there, is meeting with gratifying success. Mr. Wilson, working in co-operation with Mr. McFetridge from the advertising department, has just concluded a vigorous campaign in the interest of the Comstock-Willett Company, of Bridgeport, and from there intends proceeding to New Haven, Connecticut, where the Stoddard & Gilbert Company have the distribution.

McGreenery & Manning, of Boston, have recently received control for that territory and anticipate a large distribution in the Hub district. Jos. E. Lange, representative for Indiana, and Robert I. Gressitt, of Ohio, report that conditions in both states are rapidly resuming normal conditions, and both men anticipate a big year's business irrespective of disastrous floods experienced recently.

QUINCY—QUEEN OF SHADE-GROWN PRODUCTION

Romance of a New Industry That Has Arisen in Tobacco Trade---How Scientific and Efficient Management Have Turned Failure to Success*

QUINCY, Florida, a few years ago was a district of romance. The inhabitants thereof had discovered the talisman which changed clay into gold. Shade-grown tobacco was making paupers into profligates overnight; farmers who had never seen five hundred dollars were handling tens of thousands; physicians were quitting their hospitals; plumbers, their smelting pots, and mechanics their benches, all to engage in the growing of Florida shade-grown tobacco in the wonderful district in the middle northwestern part of Florida and extreme southern part of Georgia.

The little state bank in Quincy, Florida, in the year 1906, with a capital of only $60,000, earned over $70,000 as one year's profits and was handling nearly two million dollars of deposits. The section was tobacco mad, and the frenzy had the inevitable result. With unskilled farmers able to sell their tobacco crops in the ground at a price which reached as high as $1.25 per pound, it is almost needless to state that thousands of bales of Florida shade-grown tobacco were thrown upon the market, improperly grown, improperly cured, wretchedly packed, and the result was an upset which threatened almost the entire annihilation of a wonderful industry, such as is solidly established there today.

Julius Lichtenstein, President and General Manager of American Sumatra Tobacco Co.

The editor of THE TOBACCO WORLD visited Quincy and the shade-grown districts a few days ago, and learned of conditions which would challenge the pen of a Victor Hugo to properly describe.

Quincy is today a section of scientific reality, and fortunate, indeed, is the most casual student of economic affairs who can visit the district and have an opportunity of studying how a few able brave men faced a panic and brought back a stricken industry from oblivion and disgrace to a commanding position in the tobacco trade and the commercial world.

As is well known, the peculiar soil in northern Florida around Quincy has produced tobacco for generations, and many tobacco merchants owned small farms there for years, growing a fair quality of sun-cured tobacco, which played a trifling part in the production of the country at large

Start Due to Odd Discovery.

The birth of the shade-grown industry was due to an accident. In 1895, the late A. Schroeder, of New York, while visiting his farm at Quincy, noticed that a seedling tobacco plant had been dropped close to a tree, and that shielded by the branches of the tree from the direct rays of the sun, the plant showed a vigor in growth and a fineness of texture entirely different from any of the other tobacco growing thereabouts. With this thought in his mind, Mr. Schroeder arranged with D. A. Shan, a skilled grower, and his plantation manager, at that time to lay out in 1896, a quarter of an acre of seedlings under shade. The crop was an instantaneous success and the year following one hundred acres of tobacco were grown under shade, and in 1898, the industry showed five hundred acres under shade around Quincy.

*Written by Mr. J. Lawton Kendrick, Managing Editor of "The Tobacco World," from facts gathered on a recent visit to Quincy, Florida. Mr. Kendrick had the honor of being the first tobacco trade journal man who ever made a special trip to Quincy to study the conditions there, and the facts which he sets forth should prove of vital interest to everyone in the tobacco trade.

By this time, the new method of tobacco culture was attracting world-wide attention and the crops of each year were being carefully examined as to their availability for cigar manufacture. It was quickly seen that Florida shade-grown tobacco was providing at a medium cost the much-desired smooth, light-colored wrappers, which were growing more in demand each year.

As the industry grew around Quincy, outside capital became interested, and a number of prominent tobacco dealers in New York and elsewhere began to investigate the proposition, and plan to purchase farms, build packing houses and put the business on a sound basis. Prominent among these were the houses of A. Cohn & Company, of New York; Schroeder & Arguimbau, and Julius Lichtenstein & Company, who were all largely interested in other sections of tobacco growing as well. These concerns invested millions of dollars in Quincy and vicinity during the five years preceding the fateful year of 1907, and this earnestness of belief on their part acted like a rush to a new gold mining camp.

Leonard A. Cohn, Treasurer of American Sumatra Tobacco Co.

The firms mentioned built substantial modern packing houses, planted their tobacco with the utmost care, and handled their crops with scientific provision. But the work of the ex-butchers, ex-bakers and ex-candlestick makers posing as tobacco growers nullified all the efforts of the firms named as well as the scores of other intelligent and capable men who were endeavoring to properly foster the industry, and brought on the catastrophe of 1907.

A Black Year and Its Lessons.

That year will never be forgotten in Quincy. The overnight wealth of scores of growers was dissipated like the wind. The inferior tobacco which had been grown became a by-word in the trade and a drug upon the market and the name of Quincy disgraced. Those were dark days indeed. But the practical men, who had invested heavy capital in Quincy and vicinity, carefully studied the conditions existing and knew that with patient work and proper supervision, the industry could be redeemed, and they determined to do it at any cost. Leading spirits in this movement were Julius Lichtenstein and F. M. Arguimbau, of New York City, both of whom had large investments.

These gentlemen decided that the wisest measure to be adopted was for a number of the leading concerns interested in Quincy to pool their interests into one company, and with the large resources afforded by this amalgamation to go right on with the work of growing and packing Florida shade-grown tobacco and prove to the tobacco world at large just what a splendid product could be grown.

Birth of the Merger.

Their plans met with instant opposition in Quincy on the part of the unthinking, but with rare tact the organization was completed and commenced business in February, 1910, just about three years ago. It is known down there as the "merger," and on every side the writer heard the kindest and most appreciative remarks concerning the splendid work which the American Sumatra Tobacco Company has done for the community at large. The prosperity of one means the prosperity of all, including the farmer, the packer and the company officials, and the ten thousand hands which they employ and the high character and beautiful tobacco which they are shipping from Quincy has absolutely provided a market for the independent packers of the district, as well.

The following firms united their interests under the "merger" arrangement. A. Cohn & Company, Lichtenstein Florida Tobacco Company, Schroeder & Arguimbau, Florida Tobacco Company, Taussig & Company, Kraus, McFarlane & Company, Wedeles Brothers, and the A. Wilson Tobacco Company, these representing probably the control of two-thirds of the tobacco acreage in the district. The American Sumatra Tobacco Company is organized under the laws of the state of Georgia, with a capital of eight million dollars. The first board of officers included A. Cohn as president; D. A. Shaw, vice-president; Leonard A. Cohn, secretary, and Frank R. M. Arguimbau, as treasurer and general manager.

Mr. Arguimbau served as general manager of the company for about a year when he found the duties were too arduous for his health, and at the reorganization of the board, Julius Lichtenstein was elected president, and Leonard Cohn, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Lichtenstein's Remarkable Achievement.

From Mr. Lichtenstein's incumbency as president and general manager of the corporation, the work of the company in the South gained impetus with remarkable force. Mr. Lichtenstein inaugurated a system in the handling of the company's plantations, which has proven tremendously effective in every way. The fifty-three plantations controlled by the company were divided into four divisions, i. e., the Quincy division, the Hinson division, the Havana division, and the Amsterdam division. The latter division, however, really comprises twenty-one plantations, counted as a unit, so that all told the company has sixty-nine plantations.

The Quincy, and Hinson division, are directed by C. H. Curry as general superintendent, and the Amsterdam division is controlled by D. A. Shaw. The company owns all told sixty thousand acres of land. They have planted today over thirty acres of seed beds, which seedlings are grown under cheesecloth shade, and they have over twenty-three hundred and fifty-three acres of shade for the actual growing of the tobacco plant, which is under slats. Each of these acres is figured to produce more than a thousand pounds each, and the annual production of the company easily reaches two million five hundred pounds of tobacco.

The matured plants reach an average height of eight feet, and the picking is done at three intervals, possibly a week or ten days apart, the larger leaves at the bottom of the plant being gathered first. The seed beds of the company are today laid out in a number undreamed of a few years ago. Each seedling farm is equipped with an irrigation plant, so that every bed can be properly watered, the water being furnished from the company's own pumping stations. Each seed bed is also subjected to a sterilizing process, which eliminates the native grass almost completely, and tends toward the hardiness of the plant in a most efficacious manner.

The company import their own potash from Europe, bring special fertilizing material from Chicago, New Orleans and St. Louis, and mix their own fertilizer under private formulae, which after much experiment, they have learned is the best fertilizer to be used. Mr. Lichtenstein believes that much of the prepared fertilizer is not at all adapted for use in tobacco culture. The tobacco when it has reached its maturity, is handled in sixteen splendid modern packing houses, which are under the general direction of A. J. Stein, who is superintendent of packing. In former years the sweating process, which the tobacco had to undergo, was a dire failure, in a large majority of cases, and this system has been entirely revolutionized and is today conducted under the most scientific conditions.

Cash Prizes for Best Crops.

Each individual plantation is under the control of the plantation farmer, and the company has inaugurated a system of cash prizes, which are awarded each season to the farmer who produces the largest and best quality crop on his "shade" at the minimum of expense. This system of award is so arranged that a careful audit is made of all expenditures for permanent improvement, so there is a full chance for every one of the farmers interested. These prizes have stimulated the keenest interest on the part of those interested and the result should be most beneficial to all concerned.

Every phase of the company's business is now organized on the broadest scale possible. In the New Amsterdam district, which is somewhat remote, they have their own drug store, dispensary and company physician, who is available for consultation by their employees.

Each packing house is splendidly ventilated, well lighted and constructed with a view to the health and comfort to the thousands of hands employed.

The company have their own smithy, their own lath-making machines, their own automobiles for the use of superintendents in the inspection of plantations, and are considering the introduction of auto trucks, for the handling of the output.

Gustav Falk Dies After Short Illness

Gustav Falk, of the old-established New York leaf firm of Gustav Falk & Company, died in that city last Wednesday after but a few days' illness. Mr. Falk was born in Germany, coming to this country in 1857. He first entered the cigar manufacturing industry at a time when the fine grade product was comparatively unknown. Later he entered the leaf tobacco business and built it up to a point until now the present house of Gustav Falk & Brother is known as one of the largest importers of Sumatra and Havana tobacco, also packers of Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Onondaga leaf tobacco in the country.

Mr. Falk was credited with introducing the first Sumatra tobacco in the United States. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Consolidated Stock Exchange, Metropolitan Museum of Art, Museum of Natural History and New York Zoological Society.

He is survived by a widow and three sons—Kaufman S., now attending the inscriptions in Amsterdam with his family; Jesse M. and Milton; also two daughters, Mrs. Maurice L. Gerschel, wife of a New York leaf dealer, and Mrs. D. M. Frank, wife of the well known New York cigar manufacturer.

Harry W. Watson

Harry W. Watson, president of the Harry W. Watson Cigar Company, operating both in Detroit and Flint, Michigan, died at his home in the latter city, April 7. Whether Mr. Watson's death will affect the present status of the company, which does an extensive wholesale business in addition to having a number of retail stands, cannot be predicted at this time, but it is not thought that there will be any radical changes for a few weeks at least.

A widow, one son and two daughters survive. One of his sons, Eugene Watson, was associated with the deceased in business in the capacity of general manager, and it is expected that the business will be continued largely under his direction.

The late Mr. Watson was one of the best known distributors of cigars in the state of Michigan, having been a big factor in the distribution of a number of brands, both through his stands and the retail trade which he sold.

He was well known in the East, being a frequent visitor to the Philadelphia and New York markets, where he had many friends who will mourn his loss.

Henry Feltman, Sr.

Henry Feltman, Sr., of Covington, Kentucky, a director of the Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company, died at his home in Covington, Kentucky, April 7, aged eighty-two years. Mr. Feltman has been instrumental in making Cincinnati one of the leading leaf tobacco markets of this country, and was one of the most important figures in the leaf tobacco trade. He had not taken any active part in tobacco affairs since 1910. At a meeting of the Cincinnati Exchange on April 9 resolutions of regard for the memory of this popular tobacco man were passed.

Victor Ursus Sutter, of the leaf tobacco house of Louis P. Sutter & Brother, of New York, Chicago and St. Louis, died at his home in Chicago on March 27. He was born in Alsace-Larraine in 1843, served through the Civil War and since 1866 has been engaged in the cigar and tobacco business.

William Hammond, owner of the Lyric Cigar Store at Saratoga, New York, died at his home in that city recently, aged forty-eight years. He is survived by a widow and one son.

Richard Schaub, who had been in the leaf business in Pittsburgh since the death of his father, A. Schaub, a short time ago, died there recently. The business was taken over by the firm of Herman Harowitz & Company, of that city.

Adolph Mayer, well known among the Cincinnati trade as a cigar manufacturer, died in that city recently after a long illness. He was eighty-two years of age and is survived by a widow and four children.

Judge Tracy, of the Kenton Circuit Court, of Kentucky, in the recent suit of the stockholders against the present management, ordered that a special election be held on the second Tuesday of October of this year to elect officers, which he states is provided for in the constitution.

Joseph T. Snyder, the Buffalo cigar dealer and operator of a chain of cigar stores, has closed a lease in Cleveland whereby he will have a room twenty by twenty feet in the Ellington Building, Superior Avenue near East Ninth Street. After the place has been renovated and fixtures installed, it will be opend as another Snyder store.

Successor to Roy Cabell Appointed

William H. Osborne, of Greensboro, North Carolina, has been appointed Collector of the Internal Revenue by President Wilson to succeed Roy Cabell.

To Manufacture Tobacco In Cincinnati

A five-year lease has been taken on the property at 810-12 Broadway, Cincinnati, by the Krummel Tobacco Company of that city, who, after installing machinery, will manufacture scrap, chewing and smoking tobacco. This concern was organized with a capital stock of $50,000, and is composed of the following: John C. Krummel and Carlton W. Bates, formerly of Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company, and Louis F. Bapst, well known throughout the Middle West as a traveling salesman.

Few Changes in Tariff Bill

fifteen per cent. ad valorem; if printed otherwise in bronze printing, but not whole or in part metal leaf, twenty-five per cent. ad valorem. If printed in whole or in part metal leaf, thirty per cent. ad valorem.

One of the items in the new bill is the definition of wrapper tobacco. This was a hazy question heretofore in the minds of most tobacco men. Under this clause wrappers are clearly defined as "that quality of leaf tobacco which has the requisite color, texture and burn, and is of sufficient size for cigar wrappers." This will probably eliminate a great part of the power of the customs officers.

San Francisco

Improvement Noted Among Jobbers and Retailers—H. Bercovich Takes Over Interest of His Brother, William Bercovich—Henry W. Peabody & Co. Take on Manila Line, of Valle de Cagayan—News of the Travelers

San Francisco, April 5.

THE cigar trade is looking up a little this week and the local jobbers are feeling more optimistic than for some time past.

Showery weather has prevailed, causing a great improvement in crop conditions in most parts of the state, and a week or two more like the last one will put the country in first-class condition. There has been too much of a scare for immediate recovery, however, and some localities are still a little quiet. Retail trade here in town is fair, and stands in some localities are feeling the effect of the exposition work, which is increasing rapidly, already giving employment to several thousand men.

Tobacco men are still somewhat worried over the prospect of restrictive legislation. In addition to the measures formerly referred to are several industrial bills that would probably hamper local cigar and cigarette factories to a serious extent, while the anti-cigarette bill would drive several important concerns out of business entirely. Both wholesale and retail tobacco interests have been ably represented at Sacramento, and aside from this it seems doubtful whether any great number of the legislators are seriously in favor of the more radical restrictions, but in view of the powerful woman's suffrage influence no assurance will be felt until the matter is definitely settled.

M. C. Eisenschimel, traveling for Henry W. Peabody & Company, Western representatives of a number of Manila factories, was at Omaha during the recent disaster, but was fortunately not in the wrecked area. He is expected back in the city in a few weeks. This company has just taken up the representation of the Valle de Cagayan line, of which the first large shipment is expected soon, and has for some time handled the products of the Intal and Maria Christina factories, these lines being distributed in the local territory by Haas Brothers and Michalitschke Brothers & Company, respectively. Advices from Mr. Eisenschimel indicate a good measure of success in introducing these lines into new territory, though his visit to Omaha was rather ill-timed.

H. Bercovich, of the Bercovich Company, which has for several years operated a chain of retail stores, as well as a jobbing business in San Francisco and vicinity, has taken over the interest of his brother, William Bercovich, who recently returned from a trip East. No change is announced in the plans of the Bercovich Company, and William Bercovich expects to make a new connection in the same line of business very shortly.

Major F. S. Burrows, representative of the Jose Lovera Company, is back at work after being laid up a few days by a fall.

Carl Koenig, traveler for Frankel, Gerdts & Company, is again visiting the trade after a period of illness. Frankel, Gerdts & Company recently enjoyed a visit from Edgar Pollack, the Havana tobacco man, whose brother looks after the company's interests in Cuba.

O. J. Lansing, Coast representative of the Sanchez & Haya Company, is back from a Northern trip, and is now working up a lot of new business in this vicinity. Arthur Meyer, representing Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, is also doing considerable work in the city of late, giving most of his effort to the "Henry the Fourth" brand, which, though but recently introduced here, is making rapid progress.

The Edw. Wolf Company has started a gratis deal on its "La Calida" brand of Manila cigars.

M. F. Pixley is back from the East, where he went in the interest of W. I. Pixley, representative of Dill's tobacco; Krinsky's cigarettes, etc. Mr. Pixley is enlarging the scale of his work, having just secured the services of H. T. Spencer, formerly with the Tobacco Company of California, who is now calling on the Southern trade. Most of Mr. Spencer's time, however, will be spent in Oregon and Washington, where he will keep up the work started by Mr. Pixley last year, giving the latter an opportunity to concentrate this season, as he desires, on the California trade.

J. J. Hoffman, of the Hoffman-Moore Company, has just returned from a trip through Nevada.

Mr. Hubley, of Benson & Hedges, the New York cigarette manufacturers, made a visit last week to Ehrman Brothers & Company, who have been doing a large business in this line. Ehrman Brothers & Company are now also taking up the "Ramado" cigarettes, made by the National Tobacco Products Company, for which they expect to get a wide distribution from the start.

Alexander Herbert, of Philip Morris & Company, is expected here in a few days. J. E. DeVitt, Coast representative of this line, is now introducing the company's new brand, the "Unis." Mr. DeVitt returned the first of the week from the North, leaving C. Newman, formerly with M. A. Gunst & Company, in charge of that district.

Milo Adams, of the Surbrug Company, is putting in several weeks of effective work for his cigarette lines in San Francisco and the bay towns.

The main offices in Quincy, Florida, are located in warehouse number nine, where I. Gardner is the resident office manager. The visitor is impressed at once, upon stepping into their counting rooms, to observe the most excellent furnishing and air of solidarity, which pervades the establishment.

But this would all avail nothing, if the product were not right, and President Julius Lichtenstein is the living embodiment of this fact. He personally visits in the district every few weeks, and no detail, however small, in the growing, handling or packing of the Florida shade-grown tobacco, produced by the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, seems to escape his attention. Those derelict in their duty in the smallest degree, wince to see him land in Quincy, for they know that they are sure to be jacked up. But all the others welcome him gladly, for they know that he has a kindly word of commendation for good work accomplished, and a thoughtful suggestion as to greater results to be obtained to offer to the most important official, or even to the humblest worker.

In riding around the various plantations, Mr. Lichtenstein's eyes sparkled when he came to the various seedling beds, beautiful in their character as a result of nature's bounty, and the scientific aid of thoughtful men, and his many expressions to the writer of unflagging interest and undying determination to make this district the greatest wrapper-producing center of the world, led me to understand more clearly what was meant a night later, when a lifelong resident of Quincy, an independent grower, and chairman of county commissioners, threw his arm about Mr. Lichtenstein, and said: "We call him the Prince of Florida Shade-grown down here."

Impetus to Independent Growers.

And what of the independent grower, is asked? The work thus far accomplished by the American Sumatra Tobacco Company has been a most vigorous stimulus to the growers and packers who did not enter the "merger" originally. These firms have carefully watched the experiments made by the "merger" and in numerous instances have adopted ideas, which have all tended toward the general betterment of the product from the locality.

As far as the writer could ascertain, all the business of the vicinity is in a more healthy and prosperous condition than it ever was before. William M. Corry, president of the Florida Tobacco Commission Company, and also Corry-Barlow Company, informed me that he had entirely disposed of his output for the present season, and that the popularity of Florida shade-grown was growing each month. Such firms as the J. & O. Altschults Tobacco Company, Max Wedeles Tobacco Company, Seminole Tobacco Company, Quincy Florida Tobacco Company, and others, have each a splendid business, which has been assisted and strengthened both by the tobacco, which they have grown individually, and by the high standard maintained in the output of the district as a whole.

M. A. Gunst & Company are keeping their pipe department in good shape, and report an unusually active business in this line for this time of year.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Company, got back this week from an automobile trip in northern California and southern Oregon, where he found rather hard going on account of the recent snows.

J. M. Moos, the Chicago cigar jobber, called on some of the local dealers a few days ago.

W. W. Linn, in charge of the "Bull Durham" business of the American Tobacco Company, and W. T. Harris, head of the Tobacco Company of California, returned recently from a visit to Honolulu. Mr. Linn is now on his way East. The Tobacco Company of California is now making a special offer of "Bull Durham" in connection with "Mascot" pipe tobacco.

Notwithstanding the dissatisfaction of growers with the results of last year's tobacco crop in the vicinity of Fresno, California, some planting is being done this year, and the Chamber of Commerce at Dinuba, California, is supplied with a lot of Turkish seed for free distribution to farmers who may wish to experiment.

A. A. Alvarez, formerly of Los Angeles, is starting a cigar factory at Ventura, California.

all that's new with JOBBERS and DISTRIBUTORS

New Rochester, N. Y., Jobber to Handle "Flor de Moss"

THE newly organized jobbing house of Rochester, New York, the Foley-Wolfe-Kinney Company, is now open for business in their store at 179 South Avenue. This concern has started up in earnest fashion and state that they are after all the trade they can get.

With this end in view they have taken on a number of well-known cigars for Rochester and vicinity, for which they will be the exclusive distributors. Among them are the "Flor de Moss," "Moss Kids," "Royal Circle," "Quaker Girl" and "Say-So" cigars of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania. These brands have a national distribution and should be among the best sellers in that territory among high-grade goods.

This concern will also handle a full line of cheaper cigars as well as Havana goods, and state that they will be able to supply the wants of every cigar dealer, no matter to what class of trade he caters. The officers of the firm are Thomas F. Foley, president; Frank Wolfe, vice-president, and William F. Kinney, secretary, all of whom are members of the concern.

Smith Bros. Co. Take on "Royal Lancers"

The "Royal Lancer" cigar, of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, of Philadelphia, has been taken on recently by the Smith Brothers Company, of New Orleans, and will be pushed heavily with the assistance of J. M. Landfield, who placed the cigar with the jobbing house. The New Orleans firm has been securing satisfactory results on the "Charles the Great" cigar of Salvador Rodriguez, and the "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Brothers Company.

"Jose Vila" For Rosenfeld-Rovig Co.

The "Jose Vila" cigar, of Berriman Brothers, of Tampa, has been taken on by the Rosenfeld-Rovig Company, a recently organized wholesale concern in Seattle, and will be placed more widely among the leading dealers. The deal was carried through by M. W. Berriman, of the manufacturing concern.

Jobbers in Flood Section Need Goods Badly

Owing to the demand from the flooded sections of the Middle West, the cigar and tobacco jobbers of Cincinnati have been hard put to fill orders. Many dealers in the flood district were cleaned out of stocks, and wired to factories as soon as possible after they were again able to get into their stores. Many shipments were sent from the Eastern cigar factories by express, but as it was some time before the railroads were operating as usual, the delay was of several days' duration.

The jobbing firm of Lipschutz & Sault, which has been doing business in Newark, New Jersey, for some time and was organized to push the "44" cigar in that state, has gone out of business. This brand will hereafter be jobbed by the L. Singer Candy Company, of Newark.

Pushing "Beechwood" in New England

THE "Beechwood" five-cent cigar, manufactured by the Union-American Cigar Company, at their Newark, New Jersey, factories, is making excellent headway in Boston, where it is distributed by McGreenery & Manning, who have control of this cigar for the New England States.

McGreenery & Manning are very much enthused over the high quality of the brand, and in order to get them properly displayed with their trade they had made up an attractive dispenser which holds one box of "Beechwood" cigars and is placed on top of the show cases.

The dispenser is the property of McGreenery & Manning and is loaned to their customers for displaying the "Beechwood" cigars. McGreenery & Manning sold in the city of Boston in four days recently 100,000 "Beechwood" cigars, and after working the city thoroughly will feature the brand over their entire territory.

O. Schrader & Co. to Wholesale Exclusively

The wholesale and retail firm of O. Schrader & Company, of Chicago, have sold their retail store at 26 East Randolph Street, that city, to the United Cigar Stores Company, and will hereafter devote their time exclusively to the jobbing business. The site for a new location has not yet been decided upon.

Lang, Jones & Company, of Portland, Oregon, recently removed to their new store in that city at 25 Fifth Street. They are the wholesalers in that city for the "La Famosa" cigar of E. Kleiner & Company, of New York.

C. B. Jordan, who had been connected with the cigar department of W. B. & W. G. Jordan, Minneapolis, for more than a year, has retired from that house to go with George R. Newell & Company, of that city.

The "Havana Ribbon" cigar, which was formerly wholesaled in the city of Toledo, Ohio, by Berdan & Company, is now handled by the Walding, Kinnan & Marvin Company.

The J. B. Moos Company, of 240 East Fifth Street, Cincinnati, recently moved into their new place in that city at 513-515 Sycamore Street. This concern opened a branch in Louisville, Kentucky, a short time ago.

The "El Wadora" and "Rey Oma" brands of Sig C. Mayer & Company, are receiving excellent distribution through the Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of St. Louis.

The Alkire-Naylor Cigar Company, a comparatively new jobbing house of Salt Lake City, Utah, has purchased a large auto wagon, which will be used by them in delivering orders.

The "Flor de la Isabela," a Manila cigar, has received some excellent distribution recently through Mason, Ehrman & Company, of Portland, Oregon.

Jobbing Trade Notes

Louis Engelman, one of the live dealers at McKeesport, Pennsylvania, has just placed through the Stallings Company, one of the largest orders he ever bought. It includes six different sizes of "La Samaritas," made by the Shields-Wertheim Company, of Cleveland, Ohio.

David Herman, who had been operating a retail cigar store at 415 Jackson Street, Milwaukee, has given up the stand and announced that he will devote his time to the wholesale business. For this purpose he has taken an office in that city at 417 Jackson Street, and sold the retail stand.

Vincent Brothers, retail and wholesale cigar dealers, of Rochester, New York, who were formerly located at 42 State Street, have removed to their new location, 70 North Street, which allows them more commodious quarters.

The "Tadema" cigar, a well-known piece of goods made by the firm of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother, of New York and Tampa, has been taken on for distribution by the Rothenberg & Schloss Cigar Company, of Denver, Colorado. The Denver wholesale house announces that no pains will be spared to place the cigar with every large dealer in the city.

The wholesale and retail tobacco and cigar business of George W. Elsasser, the Cleveland cigar man, of Detroit Avenue and West Twenty-fifth Street, has been sold by him to Henry A. Beckerman and J. M. Ulmer.

John A. McGee, wholesaler and retailer, at 238-240 West Fourth Street, Williamsport, moved into his new store and bowling alley on April 7. The splendid store front and interior equipment make it the finest stand in the city. He is the distributor of the "Leda," T. H. Hart Company, and the "Saboroso," Vetterlein Brothers, in this section.

The Badger Tobacco Company, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, has been distributing coupons to smokers in that city which allow the recipients to secure a free "Havana Ribbon" cigar. These coupons have been widely circulated in that city and have helped to increase the sales on the brand.

C. E. Faber, jobber and wholesaler, 117 West Fourth Street, Williamsport, who distributes the "Bold" cigar, Bobrow Brothers, reports a strongly increasing demand for this cigar in that section.

The "Rose-O-Cuba" cigar, made by the Fleck Cigar Company, of Reading, Pennsylvania, has been taken on by J. Baum, a large retailer of Jersey City, New Jersey, who will act as the jobber for the cigar in that city.

The "Savarona" cigar was taken on recently by the Hart Cigar Company, of Portland, Oregon. This brand was formerly handled in that city by Lang & Company. The "Savarona," which is manufactured by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, is one of the leading high-class Porto Rico brands.

March Production in Ninth Pennsylvania District Increases

The production of cigars for the month of March in the Ninth Pennsylvania Internal Revenue District, totalled 68,896,880 cigars, an amount far in excess of any ever recorded in this district for this month. The production of cigars for the Ninth District during February was 68,597,263.

Chicago

Adolph H. Seckbach Retires from F. Bolano & Co.—La Kurba Cigar Co. Incorporates—Number of New Cigar Stores Opened—Dealers Seek Privileges in Old Montgomery Ward Bldg.

CHICAGO, April 12.

THERE is a fair trade reported in tobacco lines. While business is nothing to brag about, yet all dealers report a seasonable increase and they all feel optimistic in regard to the future.

Adolph M. Seckbach has sold out his interest in the firm of F. Bolano & Company, of San Francisco. This was a great surprise to the local trade. Mr. Seckbach has not announced his plans as to the future.

La Kurba Cigar Company is the name of a new company which has been incorporated under the state laws of Illinois. This company is incorporated for $20,000. Hyman Soboroff, Samuel Rosenblatt and Irwin P. Lewis are the incorporators.

Matt Wengler, of Wengler & Mandell, owners of the "Tom Palmer" factory, has returned from an extended trip through the West. He visited Portland, Seattle, Victoria, British Columbia; San Francisco and Los Angeles. He returns very much improved in health.

The Kadison Cigar Company is having a new storage vault put in at their salesroom in the Ashland Building. This will permit them of carrying a larger stock and enable them to fill up orders for quick shipment. The vault will have a storage capacity of 250,000 cigars.

Fred L. Wells has opened his new store at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Jackson Boulevard. This store will be one of the handsomest in that locality.

A new cigar store has been opened on the south side by Max Zimmerman, of the Zimmerman Cigar Company, at 1235 East Forty-seventh Street. The Zimmerman Cigar Company have a factory at Franklin near Washington Streets, where they manufacture the "King Phillip" cigar.

Albert Billep, manager of the cigar department of Morrison, Plummer & Company, of Chicago, was a visitor in Tampa. Mr. Billep was on a business trip and after a thorough examination he purchased the rights to the "Don Luis" brand of Gonzalez, Fisher & Company. Twenty-seven salesmen carrying samples of "Don Luis" will soon be on the road out of Chicago.

The Silversmith Cigar Company has been incorporated under the state laws of Illinois with a capitalization of $4500. The incorporators are Sidney Lyon, Maurice Gevirtz and Thomas Mathieson.

The present session of the Illinois Legislature will take up the bulk sales law, which is designed by credit men's associations to prevent fraudulent debtors from disposing of their stocks of merchandise without due notice to their creditors. This law would be a great boon in the retail cigar business, where credits are so loosely extended.

The corner store of the old Montgomery Ward Building on Michigan Avenue, which is to be remodeled into an office building, is being eagerly sought after by cigar dealers. The successful bidder for the place has not been disclosed.

John J. Dolan added another store to his already big string when he secured a lease for a store in the new building to be erected on the southeast corner of Quincy and Fifth Avenues. The lease runs for ten years at an annual rental of $7200.

C. E. Case, of Chicago, has accepted the agency in this market for Arnold Tietig & Sons, of Cincinnati, high-grade makers of five and ten-cent cigars.

Best & Russell Company have opened their new store in the Westminster Building. While the store is not a large one, it is a cozy place. The usual Best & Russell lines are on sale. Business so far has been flourishing.

A chain of cigar stores to be operated in the outlying districts and suburbs of Chicago is the project of some of the local promoters. The idea of ignoring the loop seems to be a wise one, as competition is sharp, but they will also find difficulty in promoting business in the outlying districts.

George W. Smith, formerly district manager of M. Melanchrino & Company, with headquarters at Chicago, has been promoted to the position of general representative of the company.

The Nestor Gianaclis Company is making an effort to secure suitable quarters in the Ceylon Building. This building will house most of the cigarette concerns which have become a part of the Tobacco Products Company.

Post "C," of the Travelers' Protective Association, held its annual election of officers and a smoker at the Great Northern Hotel. A good many of the cigar and leaf men are members of this post. E. Landfield, the well known cigar man, was elected president; H. N. Marks, first vice-president; Henry H. Maier, second vice-president; L. Friedlander, third vice-president, and T. W. H. Clarke was re-elected secretary. The board of directors are: E. G. Ahern, of J. & B. Moos; M. Forster, Charles Nelson, Mr. Cusick and Mr. Clinton. Delegates to the national convention to be held at Richmond, Virginia, June 9, are Thad. H. Howe, Charles Nelson, Mr. Weilch, T. Edgar Harvey, J. P. Ball and Mr. Grossfeldt.

"Little Minister" cigars are being pushed aggressively by Many, Blanc & Company. Drug stores have been supplied with attractive window display signs.

Detroit

Herman Lieberman, New General Manager of Central Cigar Co.—Soper Cigar Co. Opens Up With Fine Line of Goods—Cigar Dealers of Grand Rapids Listen to Premium Advertising Proposition

DETROIT, April 8.

"SANDY" STUART, of the Superior Cigar Company, reports: "We are very busy and have shown an increase this year up to the present writing of over one hundred per cent. as compared with the same period of a year ago. We will soon be in a position to increase our production, as the new factory is nearly completed and will be ready for occupancy on or about May 1. It will be one of the best equipped cigar factories in the United States, and it will only be a short time before we are making as many cigars as any factory in the First District of Michigan."

Herman Lieberman, for the past seventeen years connected with the city ticket office of the Pere Marquette Railroad, has resigned and becomes general manager of the Central Cigar Company and its various stores. The Central Cigar Company is a Detroit company, whose officers are Charles Coombs, president; Julius Robinson, vice-president; Herbert Weil, secretary and treasurer, and Herman Lieberman, general manager. The main office is at 508 Woodward Avenue, corner Erskine Street, which is the fifth store to be added and which was opened to the public for the first time on April 5. The location is a splendid one and is situated in a district that heretofore has been residential, but which is rapidly becoming an important commercial center.

Arthur West has opened a cigar store in Ionia.

LaFond & Company, of Detroit, are gradually building up a nice trade on confectionery. They have the exclusive Detroit agency for Park & Tilford candy and make a feature of this department at both their Woodward Avenue stores, as well as the one on Grand River Avenue.

A. J. Fleury, of Marquette, who recently started in business in the Bittner block, will put in a line of cigars and tobacco.

It is rumored that the Lichtig Cigar Company, of Mt. Clemens, are negotiating for the sale of their business and will engage in the theatre business. Harry Lichtig is changing over the cigar store formerly on Gratiot Avenue into a theatre, and will devote much of his time to it when completed.

The Soper Cigar Company in the Dime Bank Building, corner Fort and Griswold Streets, opened for business April 1; it was strictly informal, although announcements were made in all of the daily newspapers the previous day, which also contained photographs of both Mr. Soper and Mr. Mannheim, who will conduct the store. In spite of the "free" smokes given friends, the actual cigars sold on the opening day ran considerably higher than either Mr. Soper or Mr. Mannheim had looked for; there was a constant stream of people from eight o'clock in the morning until late at night. While all of the stock ordered was not in for the opening, a glance in the cases showed the line to be a very complete one. Some of the leaders are: "Statesman," "Royal Peer," "El Planco," "Corina," "Lozano," "Lucius," "Solace," "Charles the Great," "King Henry," "Webster," "Castaneda," "Romeo and Juliet," "Stratford," "Partagas," "La Carolina," "Hoyo de Monterrey," "First Consul" and "Norma."

E. G. Waymuth, "Fatima" department of Liggett & Meyers, was a recent visitor to Detroit. Paul Lindner, who has charge of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio for P. Lorillard Company, left after being here for more than two weeks. He is much pleased with the showing being made on "Nebo-20," attributing its big success to the large flag that goes with each package.

Theodore D. Becker, of Stradley & Becker, wholesalers and jobbers, has sold out to Mr. Stradley, who will continue the business.

Wayne Cigar Company on St. Aubin Avenue are making still further alterations to their present building. Their business is growing and they need more room.

C. S. Sarluy, who returned to Detroit this week from the Ohio flooded district, tells appalling news of the great disaster. He himself was in Cincinnati at the time and was bound for Dayton when the sad news came of the breaking of the levee in Dayton.

All the cigar manufacturers were contributors to the Dayton fund, and collections were even taken up among the employes.

Edwin N. Ackerman, Western sales manager for the "Webster" cigars, was in Detroit the first of the month, and spent a few days in our midst. Mr. Lutts, one of his salesmen, has been working Detroit and some of the larger cities for the past two weeks. He left Michigan to work in Wisconsin for a while.

The officers and executive committee of the newly organized Grand Rapids Cigar Dealers' Association held a meeting recently at which they were addressed by T. F. Driscoll, of New York, on a matter pertaining to premium advertising; the idea is to give away gold certificates with each purchase, which are redeemable for premiums. The matter will be taken up by the members of the association at their next meeting.

George H. Woolley, manager of the Ponchartrain Hotel, is back from his Coast trip and is looking splendidly. He announces that the "Mi Hogar" brand, made by E. P. Cordero & Company, will be added to the cigar stand.

Detroit is now awaiting the opening of the regular convention which usually starts about the first of May. According to Secretary Carmichael, of the Detroit Convention and Tourists Bureau, Detroit will entertain something like one hundred and seventy-five national and state conventions during the summer and fall of 1913. This means a lot of money to be spent in Detroit, a good portion of which goes for cigars, cigarettes and tobacco.

The new representative in this territory for the Melachrino Company is R. G. Casey, who for the past year has been in Texas for the firm. Previous to that time he was for a while in Detroit, and is well known among the local trade.

L. B. McKitrick, vice-president of the Melachrino Company, and also its general manager, was here on Tuesday, the eighth, looking into local conditions.

A cigar department is a new feature of the new confectionery store of Harry and Peter Capitan, on West Main Street, Owosso, which was recently opened for the first time. The store, perfectly appointed and beautifully finished, is one of the most up-to-date establishments of its kind in the state.

Detroit is anxiously awaiting the opening of Joseph Snyder's new store on Woodward Avenue. Mr. Snyder has the reputation of being a live-wire, and the probable effect of his new store on the business of the other five stores on the same street seems to be the current topic of the day. While it has not been substantiated, it is reported that should the United Hotels Company take the new hotel, which is said to be in preparation for the corner of Washington and Grand Circus Park, the cigar privilege will go to Mr. Snyder, who is a personal friend of the officers of the company.

C. S. Bergen, of the American Cigar Company, who was in Detroit at the time of the Dayton flood, is now a most happy man since he has learned of the safety of his family.

On March 27 William Lichtig, manager of the Porter Street branch of the Lillies Cigar Company, celebrated his fifty-first birthday. Many of his friends surprised him by calling at his home and celebrating the event.

The Harry W. Watson Company has added the "Marcellus" cigar to its various retail stores.

Late visitors were: P. Verplanck, of P. Verplanck & Company; Mr. Plues, of Starlite Brothers; R. M. Holmes and Nate Hubert, of Butler & Butler; N. J. Rice, of the little cigar department of the American Cigar Company; N. R. Treble, of E. A. Kline & Company, of Cleveland, and Frederick Metzler, of the American Tobacco Company.

Committee to Investigate Foreign Purchase of Leaf on April 17

A meeting of the committee, which was appointed to investigate the purchase of American-grown tobacco by foreign governments, has been called for April 17 in Washington. At that meeting it is expected that plans will be prepared for holding hearings before which the commission will invite a number of people connected with the tobacco trade to testify.

The commission is composed of Senators Martin, of Virginia; Henry C. Lodge, of Massachusetts; Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Representatives Flood, of Virginia; Stedman, of North Carolina, and McKinley, of Illinois.

Growers in some parts of the country, but particularly the South, claim that the foreign governments are in a conspiracy to keep the price of tobacco below the market and by means of unfair methods have in many cases secured their tobacco at prices which were ruinous to the growers.

Flood Affects First Ohio District Output

Had it not been for the setback caused by the flood the latter part of March, it is possible that the First Ohio District would have broken a few records in the way of production. The Revenue Office at Cincinnati was not able to give complete figures owing to the flood, but verified some compiled by the "Cincinnati Enquirer," which are as follows:

March Production.

Number cigars	13,648,387	14,584,330
Number cigarettes	12,000	.....
Snuff, lbs.	9	5
Tobacco, lbs.	1,999,742	2,518,259

A. Haas, Cuban Tobacco Grower, Predicts Fine Crop

A. Haas, the well-known grower and packer of Cuban tobacco, writing from Vueltas, Cuba, reports an encouraging outlook for the new crop. In writing to THE TOBACCO WORLD he states: "Things look pretty good up this way and the 'North' will find the tobacco better than in many years. I look for the crop to be almost the same in quantity as last year, with fully twenty to twenty-five per cent. more of first and second capaduras. Prices will be in some instances fifty per cent. more than last year."

Mr. Haas is an experienced tobacco man and knows the Havana leaf as few men do. A prediction coming from him should be a good estimate of the crop and conditions there.

Cleveland

Cigar Dealer Lived on Roof For Two Days—Exciting Experience of a Hamilton, Ohio, Man During Flood—Latest Trade News

CLEVELAND, April 12.

CLEVELAND is slowly recovering from the shock of one of the worst disasters that ever struck this vicinity. The state-wide floods have spread out their tentacles to every corner of the state. A great many of our leaf tobacco dealers who had tobacco stored in the flooded district suffered considerable loss, as did many of the cigar manufacturers who had cigars in transit, but all have forgotten the financial loss and rallied nobly to the far greater cry of the homeless and starving multitudes.

Charles Dryfoos, of Dryfoos Brothers, cigar jobbers, of Hamilton, Ohio, who was in town the past week, reported sixteen feet of water in his store, which caused a total loss of stock and fixtures. He is here replenishing his stock and will open again about May 1. Mr. Dryfoos was forced to the roof of his establishment by the high waters, where he was marooned for two days and nights and subsisted on grape juice and candy which they fished out of the sweeping waters. They were finally taken off by a life-saving crew.

Leo Mendelsohn, of the E. A. Kline Cigar Company, reports trade very brisk and the only fault they have to find is that labor is so scarce. They are having trouble in filling their many orders. They have just added Berdan & Company, of Toledo, to their long list of jobbers and are making them a cigar called "Berdan's Opinion."

Mr. I. Teitelbaum, of the I. Teitelbaum Cigar Company, reports trade extremely good. They have just acquired two new jobbing accounts on the Pacific Coast in the Rosenfeld-Rovig Company, of Seattle, Washington, and the Rosenfeld-Smith Company, of Portland, Oregon. They are making them the "El Sallago" cigar. V. B. Fischer gained these accounts for the house and is doing some very effective work in the western country. They are putting on an advertising campaign in the local market on their "Sarzeda" cigar with very good results.

Mr. Trenhoft, of the Marcus Feder Cigar Company, reports an ever-increasing business on the well-known brands of "Moses Cleaveland" and "London Whiffs."

The Fred G. Golmar Company have just acquired store number three, located at the Superior entrance of the old Arcade. This gives them two stores in one of the best thoroughfares in the city, as their other stand, "The Den," is located at the Euclid Avenue entrance of the Arcade. This stand was formerly owned by the Stranahan Company and is one of the best locations in the down-town section. This stand should be made to show a steady increase, in as much as the boys are widely known and are entirely familiar with the wants of the trade. Among the well known brands displayed by them are "La Lita," of Corral y Wodiska Ca.; "Somella," of Andrew Diaz; "La Saramita," of The Shields-Wertheim Company.

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, has just returned from a very successful trip through the Middle West and has placed "La Saramita" with the well known jobbing house of Oppenheimer Company, of Battle Creek, Saginaw and Bay City, Michigan. Mr. Shields reports "La Saramita" and "Saramita Fives" as selling far beyond their fondest expectations throughout the entire country.

Little Change Among Local Cigar Factories—E. H. Gato Cigar Co. Increases Forces—Trujillo & Co. Well Supplied With Orders—Lovato & Diaz Apply For Manufacturer's License

KEY WEST, April 10.

AMONG the local cigar factories there is but little change in business from my last report. While some of the minor factories have experienced a very slight decrease, some of the major ones are enjoying a healthy increase, therefore business conditions remain about the same.

There has been some increase in force on the floors of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company and orders are coming in more briskly. As yet Mr. E. H. Gato, Jr., has not returned from Havana, Cuba, and for this reason the departure of Mr. Thomas Gato for the New York headquarters has been postponed indefinitely. It is expected, however, that he will return within a week or so, and as soon as he reaches here Mr. Thomas Gato will leave for New York.

Rapid progress is being made in the erection of the addition to the Key West Box Company building, and it is expected to be completed within forty or fifty days, when they will immediately commence operation, enabling them to nearly double their output.

The Ferdinand Hirsch Cigar Company closed on the 5th inst. for the purpose of taking inventory, after which they will immediately resume work.

Mr. Ernest Berger, secretary and general manager of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, arrived in the city on the 7th inst. for a short business visit. Mr. Berger was accompanied by Mrs. Berger.

Among the callers on the local trade was Mr. Nussbaum, of Nussbaum & Bower (the New York leaf dealers), who after having completed his calls left for Havana, Cuba.

Both immediate and future delivery orders are coming in steady at the factory of Trujillo & Company, especially telegraphic calls for immediate shipment for "Polonius." This brand is showing a slight increase over the last fifteen days.

The manager of the M. Perez Company said: We are enjoying a healthy business, orders are coming in at a good pace and we are kept busy as usual; we are making large shipments of our "Pinzon" cigar.

Business with George W. Nichols & Company is quoted fair and steady; no material change has been noticed since the last report.

Lovato & Diaz have made application for a cigar manufacturer's license, factory number to be assigned.

Mr. James H. Fort, manager of the picking department of the Cortez Cigar Company, who had been enjoying a vacation in the North for several weeks, returned to the city yesterday. Mr. Fort was accompanied by Mrs. Fort.

Leaf importation for the fifteen days show a gain of thirty-nine per cent. over the last fifteen days. Withdrawals from bond also show a noticeable increase of approximately five per cent. over the last period.

The Cuban Market

From Our

HAVANA, April 8.

OUR market during the past two weeks has been very dull, owing to the absence of buyers from the United States. There is no longer any selection of the old crop, nor has there sufficient arrived from this year's growth to attract buyers, as the great bulk is consisting principally of libre de pie styles. Our cigar manufacturers do not require this class of leaf, as the majority is still well supplied with light fillers from the last crop. The worst drawback to enliven our market is, however, the blight that has been cast over the whole tobacco industry by the uncertainty of the Schedule F in the approaching tariff regulation by the Congress and Senate of the United States. The false rumor of a certain trade paper was denied by the same journal in its next edition, but nevertheless there remains a belief that the present duties may be raised to such a point that would seriously interfere with the sale of our leaf tobacco, and perhaps cigars also. Until we shall know definitely what the Committee of Ways and Means is going to propose to Congress, the chances of the acceptance, and what the Senate may have to say in this matter, business is bound to be more or less paralyzed for a while, as nobody would be willing to speculate upon an uncertainty in this matter.

Of course there remains the hope for us that, even if the duties on leaf tobacco and cigars should be raised, that our reciprocity treaty should be denounced, that we might obtain greater concessions in a new reciprocity treaty between the United States and Cuba. As the making of such a treaty, however, generally consumes much loss of time before a final agreement is reached, we cannot look forward to a good business season this year, if the duties on leaf tobacco and cigars should be seriously raised in the new tariff schedule. Our vegueros would be the first to feel the consequences of the uncertainty, as our leaf dealers might be very cautious in taking the risk of paying the prices that they would consider as a safe intrinsic investment of their money under ordinary business conditions. On the other hand, if our farmers could not get the cost prices for their product of the soil they would naturally reduce the growing of crops that would leave them no profit. In the end our market would adjust itself to the changed conditions, and prices that might be momentarily depressed would rebound to perhaps a higher level during the coming year. In the interest of all it would be best to know even the worst quickly, although of course we still hope that the good common sense of the majority of the legislators will have profited by the experience of other nations, and not raise the duties to a figure which would have a bad effect. In order to increase the revenue on a certain article the existing duty should be lowered, and not be increased. Germany, England and France have not benefited by the raising of duties on tobacco and cigars, as the former country is only importing half the quantity of cigars that she did before the duties were raised. The importation of leaf tobacco last year cannot be cited in this case, as the relatively low figures and the exceptional good quality of the leaf just suited her needs. The second country, England, has been greatly dissatisfied with the raise of duty, her imports have decreased, her manufacturers have made no money, and the government has not obtained the financial result that she had calculated upon. France has also seen a shrinkage in her imports of cigars and leaf tobacco, although as tobacco in its various forms is a government monopoly, what it might lose in a shrinkage of her income through duties, she could offset by her profits in the management of her monopoly. Therefore the mass of the consumers are the principal and only losers.

However, it does not do much good to speculate at length upon what is going to happen in the future, as for the present we have to continue upon the anxious seat, and when the agony is over, and the worst is known, it will be time enough for our two powerful societies, "The Association of Leaf Dealers, Packers and Growers of Tobacco of the Island of Cuba" and "The Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba" to take the necessary steps to defend the interests which they represent.

The growing season of tobacco has come to an end, and dry weather in the country is interfering with the opening of escogidas all over the country, as the few sporadic showers do not create the required biandura (humidity) to handle the dry leaves, particularly as the rains are immediately followed by dry northerly, or northeasterly winds, that evaporate the moisture at once. Under these circumstances it will be May before we can hope to see more life in the country, and provided that by that time the tariff question should have taken a more favorable aspect for us.

A few venturesome packers of Remedios tobacco are reported to have paid very high prices to the farmers in the country, which in view of a large crop for the United States seems rather uncalled for.

Sales during the past two weeks only totaled 1733 bales, consisting of; Vuelta Abajo, 1165; Partido, 496, and Remedios, 72 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 750; exporters to South America, 328, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 655 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from March 17 to March 31 were: To all ports of the United States, 9571; to Bremen, 10; to Hamburg, 1; to Buenos Ayres, 961, and to Arica, 49; thus making a total of 10,583 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

	From March 14 to March 28, 1913.		Since January 1, 1913.

For London, England: Robert Middlemas.

Cigars.

The exports of cigars from the port of Havana during the month of March are not very satisfactory, as they show a decline again with those of the same month of the previous year, but as the Easter holidays intervened this year it is possible that the month of April may return an increase again. We now beg to submit the following figures, viz.:

From March 1 to March 31, 1913,	13,331,495 cigars
From March 1 to March 31, 1912,	15,011,982 "
Decrease in March, 1913,	1,680,487 "
From January 1, 1913, to March 31, 1913,	40,924,755 "
Increase during the first three months of 1913	2,010,126 "

The following six countries show an increase in our exports during the month of March, 1913, as compared with 1912:

Spain, 263,516 cigars; British Africa, 46,620 cigars; Brazil, 25,052 cigars; British West Indies, 22,050 cigars; Chile, 13,473 cigars; Great Britain and Ireland, 8448 cigars.

On the other hand the following eleven countries show a decrease in our exports during the month of March this year as compared with last year:

The United States, 836,960 cigars; Australia, 290,375 cigars; Austria, 164,725 cigars; Germany, 161,909 cigars; French Republic, 145,250 cigars; Argentine Republic, 143,193 cigars; Uruguay, 107,104 cigars; Italy, 71,000 cigars; Portugal, 66,950 cigars; United States of Colombia, 66,600 cigars; Canada, 3675 cigars.

According to the above figures it can be seen that the United States has been our poorest customer during March of this year, which might be explained that the importers, owing to the uncertainty of the revision in the tariff, were not disposed to carry any stocks on hand, and preferred to order only from hand to mouth. Besides the glowing accounts of the crop this year might have had some influence in checking the demand temporarily, although as the new leaf may not be workable perhaps for four months to come, it is rather a long time off to have already any influence at present.

H. Upmann & Company state that they are still well provided with orders.

Partagas also has been receiving orders right along, and continues to be busy.

Romeo y Julieta has enough calls on hand to work with the same forces for the next two months to come. It has still some orders pending since last November.

The principal factories of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Limited, are working strong.

Sol, Luis Marx and La Devesa de Murias continue to receive very satisfactory orders from the chief consuming countries.

Flor de P. A. Estanillo has no complaint to make, as orders are arriving freely.

Other factories that are working satisfactorily to their owners are: Por Larrañaga, Eden, Flor de José Otero, C. E. Beck & Company, Allones, Limited; La Escepcion and Punch.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Camejo & La Paz were sellers of 355 bales of Vuelta Abajo during the past two weeks, partly of new libra de pie styles.

Leslie Pantin, even if he has no customers in town, is not resting quietly on his oars, but on the contrary manages to forward samples of suitable lots to his customers all the time, and in this manner he received cable orders to close several transactions, which amounted to 450 bales of different kinds of tobacco.

Aixala & Company disposed of 329 bales of leaf, partly consisting of new Artemisa tobacco, which they had received from their packing by carts.

Maximilian Stern secured some 200 bales for his customers during the past fortnight.

Cardenas & Company sold 200 bales of their choice holdings of 1912 Vuelta Abajo to one of their customers.

Carlos Arnoldson & Company closed out their holdings of last year's growth, amounting to 136 bales of various kinds of leaf, and have discontinued their warehouse at 55 Estrella Street.

José Menendez sold 120 bales of old Vuelta Abajo and Partido leaf.

Bernhard Lichtenstein was disgusted with his stay here, as he was unable to find the kind of goods that he had come to look for, but nevertheless he managed to pick up a few small lots.

August Biedermann arrived here in the German excursion steamer "Grosser Kurfürst" en route for Panama and Jamaica. He called upon a few of his friends while the ship was in our harbor, but abstained from purchasing this time.

The British armored cruiser "Cumberland," which is used as a schoolship, was in our port last week for three days and had on board the second son of his majesty, King George V, Prince Albert, who is a cadet on board of her. The British Minister and the British colony here intended to fete the prince, but as the latter is only seventeen years of age, and no distinction is made between him and the other ordinary mortals on the ship as cadets, he was not even allowed to be in the city after 6 P. M. However, the captain and officers on leave of duty were given a couple of dinners by the minister and the colony, besides the prince participated at a lunch given by the minister, and later on visited the Romeo y Julieta factory, accompanied by Mr. Leslie Pantin. Don Ramon Argüelles did the honors as host, explaining the workings of the factory, and treating them royally to the choicest cigars.

An intimate friend of Don Pepin Rodriguez, who styles him the Cuban Carnegie, told us of another beautiful charity on the part of Don Pepin, as he had donated to a school of the Vedado for poor children $212 from his private pocket.

J. F. Berndes & Company were the first shippers of new tobacco to Bremen this year, having exported 10 bales as samples of our new crop during the past fortnight.

The principal shippers from the port of Havana during the last fortnight above 300 bales were: Maximilian Stern, 3428; Mark A. Pollack, 754; Leslie Pantin, 706; Menendez & Company, 477; Miguel V. Perez, 630; Diego Montero, 606; H. H. Strater, 499; Rodriguez, Menendez & Company, 453, and M. A. Suarez & Company, 301 bales.

George McHie Head of McHie-Scotten Tobacco Co.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN, April 8.

George E. McHie, one time representative of the plug department of the American Tobacco Company, with headquarters in St. Paul, but in later years connected with the organization at 111 Fifth Avenue, New York City, now appears on the scene as head of the McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company, of Detroit.

The following announcement has been sent to the trade: "The McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company, of Detroit, begs to announce that it has purchased the merchandise, leaf tobacco and brands of the Scotten Tobacco Company, but has no other connection with its business and has assumed none of its liabilities." The new company, it is understood, has purchased the merchandise, brands, plant and machinery of the Scotten Tobacco Company. The latter company will liquidate and go out of business. The McHie-Scotten is capitalized at $300,000.

It will retain most of the employees of the former company, and will also continue to manufacture the old brands and add new ones. Mr. McHie, who is well known in the Northwest, began his career in the tobacco trade with the P. J. Sorg Tobacco Company in 1881, and in the intervening years has become a master of the selling end of the business.

Horner Tobacco Co. Headquarters in Gettysburg, O.

The Horner Tobacco Company, of Dayton and Gettysburg, Ohio, announce that their Dayton office is temporarily out of business, owing to the flood. All firms doing business with them are asked to mail copies of all letters sent to them on or before March 22. They are asked to address them to Horner Tobacco Company, Gettysburg, Darke County, Ohio, and in future to send all mail to that address, until notified to the contrary. The Horner Tobacco Company are filling orders from their warehouses at Gettysburg, and all orders by letter or wire will receive prompt attention.

J. N. Taub & Sons to Open Fine Houston Stand

J. N. Taub & Sons, Houston, Texas; have closed a deal with the Rice Hotel Association, that city, whereby they gain possession of the corner room in the Rice Hotel, opening on Main Street and Texas Avenue, which they intend to occupy as a first-class cigar store about May 1.

The lease covers a period of ten years and calls for a monthly rental of $825 for the first five years, and $925 per month for the remainder of the term specified. It is reported that the rental of the store room, which has a frontage of nineteen feet on Main Street and a depth of seventy-four feet on Texas Avenue, is the highest ever paid in Houston for a space of similar size.

New Plant For Roby Cigar Co.

The Roby Cigar Company, of Barnesville, Ohio, are preparing to move into their new factory in that city. The new plant is sixty feet square and is three stories in height. The output of the present plant is about 130,000 stogies a week, which will be doubled when the company enters their new factory. The main brands of this concern are the "Roby Stogies" and "Three Queens," the latter packed three to a pouch.

Louis Klein Cigar Stores Ask For Extension

The Louis Klein Cigar Stores Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, has asked for an extension of time, which has been granted by its creditors. It is thought that the difficulty will be adjusted in good order as this concern has always borne a good reputation. According to the terms, twenty-five per cent. will first be paid and the balance in instalments. The liabilities amount to about $50,000.

Late Trade Bulletins

The Keller Cigar Company, of Paterson, New Jersey, composed of Edward M. Keller and Martin Keller, lately filed a petition in bankruptcy with reported liabilities of $8000, and assets amounting to $50.

E. Schurman, of Holyrood, Kansas, expects to have his cigar factory at McPherson, Kansas, ready for operation about the middle of April. The building will be located west of the Allison Exchange store.

A tobacco store will be opened by E. C. Emanuel & Company, Quincy, Massachusetts, in the premises on Hancock Street, formerly occupied by H. Sarkin.

L. C. Oakley, a well-known cigar dealer, of Moline, Illinois, is now occupying his new store at 503 Fifteenth Street, where he has practically twice the space utilized in his old quarters on Third Street. Mr. Oakley carries a full line of domestic and imported cigars, in addition to tobaccos, pipes, etc.

J. W. Minnich, cigar manufacturer, York, Pennsylvania, whose factory is located on East Main Street, is erecting a warehouse in the rear of that building.

William De Lany, of Lavier & De Lany, who conduct a cigar store at Jamestown, New York, recently filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. In his deposition he states that his partner refused to join in the petition. Liabilities are reported as $3392.10 and assets $2000, with unsecured claims totaling $1026.25.

Thomas Scott is now in possession of the cigar store which he lately purchased from Mr. McElwain, DeKalb, Illinois.

Konz & Kitzman, who conduct a cigar factory at 19 South Main Street, Fon du Lac, Wisconsin, have admitted Jacob Tautges into the firm, and hereafter the business will be carried on under the title of the Frank F. Konz Cigar Factory. The "White Elephant" and "Little King" are numbered among the leading brands of this firm.

A cigar factory was recently opened at Washington, Iowa, by Johnson & Greenfield, formerly of Fairfield, Iowa.

Milwaukee

Reichert Leaf Tobacco Co. Incorporates—Keeley & Higgins Dissolve in Beloit—"The Cave", New Cigar Store in Schulte Building—Many Changes Among Retail Stands At Nearby Points

MILWAUKEE, April 11.

BUSINESS locally seems to be holding up fairly well and indications are that the month will finish well.

Steve Surman, of the Cuba Rica store, makes no complaint. He has an attractive window, featuring the "Ruy Lopez" in various sizes.

The Wright Drug Company continue to enjoy a good business on all lines jobbed by them. The "Jose Vila" is featured with a window display. At the annual meeting and banquet of Post B, Wisconsin Division of the Travelers' Protective Association of America, Mr. Sol A. Eckstein, president of the Wright Drug Company, was elected president of the association to succeed Frank W. Peske. The state convention of the association will be held in this city April 25 and 26. The post now has over 1300 members.

Fay Lewis & Brother Company report business good. The Pabst Building store is making an attractive display of the "Savarona," Cayey, Caguas Tobacco Company, and "Webster," Y. Pendas & Alvarez, cigars in all sizes. The pipe repair department recently started by the firm is doing a bigger business every week and is now the largest in the Northwest.

The American Tobacco Company of Jersey City, New Jersey, filed their annual statement with the Secretary of State, showing their capital to be $93,788,700, of which $238,826.65 is represented in Wisconsin. F. M. Keats is named as representative.

The Reichert Leaf Tobacco Company has been incorporated to do business in Milwaukee with a capital stock of $150,000. The incorporators are Conrad C. Reichert, Harry C. Reichert and E. R. Lange.

A. S. Goodrich Company report sales on the "Cinco" very gratifying. Business with the company has been good on all lines.

A new cigar company has been formed in this city under the name of the Foster & Hays Company. The capital stock is $10,000. Incorporators are E. E. Foster, Frank S. Hays and Max Stroud.

Otto Krolm, who was in charge of the pipe repair department, has moved to Duluth, Minnesota, with the intention of opening a pipe hospital there.

At Beloit, Wisconsin, the firm of Keeley & Higgins, who for fourteen years conducted a cigar store on State Street, dissolved partnership. Mr. Higgins sold his interest in the business to James Keeley, who continues at the old stand.

At Columbus, Wisconsin, W. F. Eisele leased a building and opened a cigar factory. A retail store is also conducted in connection.

F. Schoenwetter sold his cigar store at North Freedom, Wisconsin, to George Meacham.

J. J. Brooks resigned as manager of "Burlys" cigar store at Stevens Point, Wisconsin, which is a branch of the A. E. Burlingame Company, of Eau Claire, Wisconsin. Emil Seidler, who succeeds as manager, is popular with the trade and should do well.

A. F. Raab, who recently purchased a cigar and news business at Manitowoc, Wisconsin, which he operated as a branch of his Sheboygan business, has disposed of same to Ed. Phillips & Son.

Charles Stork, Jr., and Charles A. Tofson, both well known young men, have opened a cigar store and billiard hall in the basement of the Schulte Building. "The Cave," as they named the place, is attractively fitted and a nice line of popular brands are carried.

Tim Higgins, who for fourteen years was associated with James Keeley at Beloit, could not stand the idle life and recently bought the cigar and pool hall of H. L. Wilson at Beloit, Wisconsin. His new location is but a few doors from the old stand.

O. A. KROMPAS.

Jesse T. Burke, of the C. Burke Cigar and Tobacco Company, of Alabama, has announced that he will shortly open two additional stores in that city. This will make three stands for the concern. The first and present one is at Royal and Dauphin Streets; the other two are to be on Dauphin Street, west of Conception and at Royal and Government Streets.

Roger G. Sullivan, proprietor of the "7-20-4" cigar factory, in Manchester, New Hampshire, has purchased the land and buildings in that city, known as the old public market, on Franklin Street. It is his intention to erect a large brick cigar factory on the site. The present occupant of the building holds a lease which has yet a year to run, and Mr. Sullivan cannot do anything before that time. The present capacity of the Sullivan factory is taxed to the utmost and the new site will allow for a building covering 20,000 square feet.

Incorporations and Changes in the Tobacco Trade

Storm, Fisher & Company, Incorporated, of Manhattan, New York, to manufacture cigars. Capital, $21,000. Incorporators: Samuel Fisher, Henry Marks, Julius Lehmann, 921 Trinity Avenue, Bronx.

Kentucky Burley Hand Tobacco Company, Frankfort, Kentucky. Capital, $1000. Incorporators: H. C. Turner, William Waites, A. W. Nazor, L. D. Harrod, Grant L. Roberts, George L. Barnes, Crawford Lee, Herbert Smith and H. D. Wood.

Pomperin Cigar Company, La Crosse, Wisconsin. Capital, $25,000. Incorporators: Louis A. Pomperin, Paul M. Pomperin, Arthur Amunson.

John O. Frye & Company, Frankfort, Indiana. To do a wholesale and retail tobacco business. Capital, $10,000. Incorporators: John O. Frye, F. E. Leseure and L. M. Leseure.

The Wynne Wholesale Grocery Company, Wynne, Arkansas. Capital, $25,000. Incorporators: C. S. Lemons, J. W. Williams and T. Martin.

The J. D. Baldridge Company, Shelby County, Nashville, Tennessee. Capital, $1000. To buy, handle and resell tobacco. Incorporators: E. A. Hail, M. R. Cotton, J. D. Baldridge, J. R. Ramsey and W. J. Looney.

Jose Molina, Brooklyn, New York. Capital, $5000. Incorporators: Jose Molina, Maurice F. Miller, Joner Levy and Leonora Shacer.

The Beuhler Leaf Tobacco Company, Detroit, Michigan. Capital, $15,000.

The Logan-Elliott Grocery Company, Drumwright, Oklahoma. Capital, $3000. Incorporators: S. B. Logan, C. Elliott, B. H. Elliott and B. Watson.

H. K. Goldberg, North Yakima, Washington. Capital, $12,000. To do a cigar business.

The E. M. Schnaible Drug Company, LaFayette, Indiana. Capital, $25,000. Incorporators: Emil M. Schnaible, Fred Ebershoff and others.

The Smith Grocery Company, Rockdale, Texas. Capital, $10,000. Incorporators: M. L. Smith, B. T. Cantrell and W. B. Smith.

The Dakota Wholesale Grocery Company, Aberdeen, South Dakota. Capital, $500,000. Incorporators: Harry W. Bedford and others.

Patterson Brothers Tobacco Co. Merge With Another Firm

Consolidate With Gordon Cigar and Cheroot Co., of Richmond, Va.—Organized With Capital of $250,000

THE Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company, of Richmond, Virginia, which was organized a short time ago in that city, with a capital stock of $250,000, and with M. C. Patterson, the former head of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company, as president, has merged with the Gordon Cigar and Cheroot Company, of Richmond.

The Gordon Company has sent a circular to the trade, stating that they will shortly move into their new factory, with ample facilities for manufacturing their "Green Turtle" cigar and other brands. They state that in future the Gordon Company will be operated under the firm name of Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company.

The officers of the company are: M. C. Patterson, president, formerly president of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company and formerly vice-president of the American Tobacco Company; Captain John Landstreet, vice-president, formerly vice-president of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company; J. T. Patterson, vice-president, formerly of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company; J. Stanford Hutchinson, vice-president, formerly president of the Gordon Cigar and Cheroot Company, who, with Henry Fairfax, compose the board of directors.

The charter was issued some time ago and is placed at $250,000. In a circular letter issued today the Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company announces that it will be in a better position to fill orders, that it proposes soon to enter the markets with brands of goods which will, because of merit, make a name and a place for themselves on the counters of the leading establishments.

It is understood that the new concern has acquired the old tobacco factory for years known as the Cullingworth factory, in East Main Street, Richmond, a mammoth establishment, which will furnish ample room for handling a very large output of manufactured tobaccos. This factory is nearly a block in length, is four or five stories in height, and is close to the labor supply.

It is understood that the company will have all departments of the business—cigars and cheroots, granulated and cut-plug smoking, chewing, cigarettes—and will produce goods of such quality that they will not be long in making way for a demand that will, it is believed, test the capacity of the enlarged establishment.

The Wolfe-Kinney Corporation, Union Hill, New York. To manufacture and deal in cigars and tobacco. Capital, $7500. Incorporators: Thomas F. Foley, Frank Wolfe and William Kinney.

The Reichert Leaf Tobacco Company, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Capital, $150,000. Incorporators: Conrad C. Reichert, Harry C. Reichert and E. R. Lange.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, has filed with the New Jersey Secretary of State a certificate increasing its capital from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, the increase being in preferred stock of the concern.

An amendment to the charter of the R. M. Rose Company, of Jacksonville, Florida, has been filed in that state. By the change the company's capitalization will be $600,000. The charter is also changed so that the company can manufacture, buy and sell cigars, cigarettes and tobacco and all other articles of merchandise, both wholesale and retail.

The Different Processes of Tobacco Curing

Department of Agriculture Publishes Interesting Bulletin Compiled by W. W. Garner, Expert in Charge of Tobacco Investigation

FLUE CURING.

The distinctive feature of flue curing is that the barn is provided with a system of large pipes which carry off the fuel gases throughout the curing period. The smoke does not come into contact with the tobacco and the cure is completed within a few days. One of the principal factors controlling the value of the leaf cured by this method is the color, and the two prime conditions for success in this respect are the right kind of soil and the proper control of the curing. Nearly all of the flue-cured tobacco, frequently spoken of as yellow tobacco, is produced in southern Virginia, North Carolina and eastern South Carolina.

CHANGES IN THE COMPOSITION AND PROPERTIES OF THE LEAF.

In the flue-curing method, just as in the air-curing process, the principal changes in composition must be brought about before the leaf is killed, and the nature of the changes in the two methods is the same. The principal difference lies in the extent or completeness of these changes. The typical bright-yellow tobacco at the time of harvesting is riper than most tobaccos cured without the use of heat. Partly on this account and also because of the character of the soil on which it is grown, this type of leaf is richer in starchy matter and poorer in coloring. Flue curing really consists of hastening and shortening the first stage in air curing, while the second stage of air curing, in which the brown or red color develops, is not allowed to take place at all.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE BARN.

The type of barn used in curing yellow tobacco is comparatively simple in construction and of small size. These barns are generally, but not always, built square and vary from 16 to 24 feet in width, inside measurement. It is necessary that the inside width of the barn be some multiple of 4 feet, since this is the distance between the tier poles, which extend across the barn lengthwise and receive the sticks on which the tobacco is hung. The first set of tier poles is placed 8 or 9 feet above the ground and each succeeding set 2¼ to 3 feet higher. The smaller sized barns are usually built 17 feet high to the eaves and contain four sets of tier poles, while the larger ones are frequently built 20 feet high and contain five or six sets of tier poles. Additional tiers may be placed in the peak.

Flue-curing barns are generally built of logs, but many frame structures have been erected in some sections in recent years, owing to the increasing scarcity of timber. When logs are used the cracks are either chinked with mud or closed with lime mortar. If frame barns are built all cracks should be battened with thin strips of boards or the walls made of two thicknesses of boards with paper between. Ventilation is usually secured by leaving openings around the bottom of the barn and by cutting small windows in the gable ends near the roof, which can be opened when desired. Many barns contain so many cracks and crevices, especially about the roof, that they require no special ventilators, but such barns are poorly adapted to flue curing. The heating system consists of a series of sheet-iron flues leading from small furnaces placed at one end of the barn. The arrangement of the flues is comparatively simple, but is variously modified in different sections of the flue-curing belt.

CONDITIONS AFFECTING THE RATE OF CURE.

There are a number of formulas or rules which are in use in curing yellow tobacco, any of which will give satisfactory results in certain cases. This is due partly to differences in the tobacco when harvested and partly to the fact that all of these formulas are based simply on the temperature in the barn, with scarcely any reference to the humidity, which is really the more important factor in the curing. The principal use of the artificial heat is to regulate the humidity, and evidently this is affected by the amount of water in the tobacco and the prevailing weather conditions.

MANAGEMENT OF FLUE CURING.

It is desirable that the barn be completely filled with tobacco in one day. A thermometer is hung on the lower tier, near the center of the barn. Small fires are started in the furnaces and a moderate temperature maintained until the leaf is thoroughly yellowed, requiring from 24 to 36 hours. The yellowing may be accomplished at any temperature between 80 degrees and 100 degrees Fahrenheit. It is well to start at 80 degrees or 90 degrees Fahrenheit, and gradually raise the temperature up to 110 degrees or 120 degrees Fahrenheit at the completion of the process. The change from a green to a yellow color, along with other necessary changes, takes place chiefly while the leaf is still living, and at temperatures above 120 degrees Fahrenheit the leaf is rapidly killed, so that this limit must not be exceeded during the yellowing process. Care must be taken to avoid drying the leaf too rapidly at the beginning, but as it begins to yellow, the humidity in the barn must be decreased by slowly raising the temperature and gradually increasing the ventilation.

The completion of the yellowing process ends the first stage of the curing, and then begins the critical period, commonly spoken of as "fixing the color." The object at this stage is to remove the moisture as fast as it is given off by the leaf, and plenty of ventilation is essential to success. If the leaf still contains very much moisture when the yellowing has been completed, splotches of red or brown will soon begin to appear on the surface. This trouble, caused by insufficient ventilation toward the end of the yellowing, is known as "sponging." It is often too late to correct the trouble at this stage, but more ventilation may prove beneficial. If the heat is increased too rapidly while the leaf is still full of sap, a greenish black color will develop, which is known as "scalding" or "blistering." The best results are obtained when the temperature is gradually increased throughout this phase of the curing until 130 degrees to 135 degrees Fahrenheit is reached. Some growers follow the practice of raising the temperature rapidly to 125 degrees Fahrenheit or more and then quickly lowering the temperature and opening the door and ventilators, which process is repeated several times. This method is simply another way of removing the excessive moisture, and is unnecessary if the barn is properly provided with ventilators. The temperature should be maintained at from 130 degrees to 140 degrees Fahrenheit until the leaf is completely dried out, which will require from 10 to 18 hours after the completion of the yellowing process.

When the tobacco is to be taken down, the barn is left open during the preceding night, and the floor may be sprinkled, if necessary, so that the leaf may absorb sufficient moisture to bring it into condition for handling. If the leaf can be folded in the hand without breaking the stem it is in proper condition to be taken down without injury.

ASSORTING AND HANDLING.

When taken down, the tobacco is placed in bulks in shingle fashion without removal from the stocks. In order to avoid injury from mold, the bulks should be torn down at the end of a week or 10 days and rebuilt with all the butts pointing outward and the tips overlapping in the center. This treatment greatly improves the color of the leaf and especially assists in bleaching out the green remaining after the curing. It frequently happens that the contents of a barn showing a decided greenish cast will come from the bulk with a clear lemon-yellow color, provided the green has not been set by drying out the leaf too rapidly in the first stage of the curing.

When the bleaching process has been completed the leaves are carefully assorted into from 6 to 10 grades, based mainly on color and freedom from holes or spots. Yellow tobacco is classified on the market into (1) wrappers, consisting of the most nearly perfect leaves; (2) cutters, being leaves deficient in body and inferior to wrappers; (3) smokers, consisting of bottom or sand leaves and others bruised or torn and lighter in body than cutters; and (4) fillers, being all tobacco not included in wrappers, cutters, or smokers. Each of these four classes is subdivided into two or more grades. The finest grade of wrappers is bright lemon yellow in color and composed of leaves free from imperfections and possessing sufficient toughness and elasticity. The next best grade is orange yellow in color, and then comes the light reddish brown grade, known as mahogany wrappers.

Market prices are greatly influenced by the care and skill used in grading yellow tobacco, and this work requires experience and the ability on the part of the assorter to classify colors accurately. Each grade is tied into small bunches, or hands, and the leaf is then ready for market. In recent years much of the tobacco in the eastern section has been sold as loose leaf, without grading

FIRE CURING.

The use of open fires in curing is confined mostly to those sections growing the export types. The principal areas producing these types are embraced in something over 20 counties of central Virginia, the Clarksville and Hopkinsville district, the Henderson district, and the Paducah district, the last three districts all being included in that portion of Kentucky and northern Tennessee west of the dark air-cured manufacturing districts of these states. Fire-cured export tobacco is also produced in four or five counties of eastern Ohio near the West Virginia line.

The old type of barn used for curing export tobacco is built of logs, the cracks being daubed with mud. These barns are of small size, but are generally built high enough to contain five sets of tier poles. In recent years the log barns have been partly replaced by more modern frame buildings of much larger size, which are provided with large doors opening into passageways leading through the building, thus allowing a loaded wagon to be drawn directly beneath the tier poles. These poles are arranged at intervals of about 3 feet 10 inches horizontally and 3 feet vertically, the first set of poles being 8 or 9 feet above the ground.

MANAGEMENT OF THE CURING.

Usually no heat is required during the first stages of yellowing, for if applied at this stage the leaf would dry out too rapidly. It is important to avoid this drying out of the leaf before the proper colors have been developed and other important changes brought about. From three to five days after harvesting, slow fires are started on the floor of the barn and the temperature maintained at 90 degrees to 95 degrees Fahrenheit until the yellowing of the leaf has been completed. As soon as this is accomplished the temperature may be slowly increased until 125 degrees or 130 degrees Fahrenheit is reached and held at this point till the leaf tissue is pretty well dried out. Altogether, the fires are

Much of Lancaster 1912 Tobacco Crop Still Unsold

LANCASTER, April 7.

THE majority of the cigar plants are running along in fair shape. To say that they are rushed with orders, though, might be putting it a bit strong. The larger factories are in this class, but the smaller ones say that the output for March has been far below their expectations, and was below those of January and February.

The leaf situation is a curious one. The prices for the 1912 crop have been poor and a number of farmers have not as yet sold their crops. The manufacturers are not buying any Pennsylvania tobacco of any account, and as the dealers claim they are carrying all the Pennsylvania they can stand, it looks as if the planter is going to have a time in getting rid of his goods, even at a lowered price. The old goods have been selling fairly well, 1909 particularly, as this seems to improve with age. But there has not been much doing in 1911 lately. It is expected that the floods in the Ohio Valley will create a heavier demand for Pennsylvania tobacco.

From present indications the acreage this year will be about the same. Some farmers are going to cut down on tobacco, and others knowing this, will probably increase theirs. This has always been the case.

Jacob F. King, the cigar manufacturer, went out of business last week. His property was sold to a large firm. The goods were sold also.

The Moss factory is working along in the same steady fashion as characterizes this plant throughout the year. Although their goods are well known in the Ohio Valley, they did not lose anything by the flood. Their business is of such a national scope that a situation such as this does not seriously inconvenience them. The "Flor de Moss" is showing gains in all parts of the country, particularly Southern California.

The new Steinfeldt store near the Pennsylvania Station on Queen Street, just across from the old stand, will allow more room than was enjoyed in the former location. Mr. Steinfeldt, who is the distributor for the "Bold" cigar in this vicinity, is having a large sign made which will be placed in a prominent point on the front of the store. It will carry the words "The Home of the Bold."

Late Doings in the Reading Trade

READING, April 4.

THE cigar manufacturing industry is fairly good for this time of year, although some of the factories had a bad slump in production during the month of March, as compared with January and February. Yet they look for a good year's business and the pessimist is not so evident as at this time last year.

The retail trade is quiet and will probably remain so for a time. In the renovations which the American House is undergoing, the cigar stand in the lobby will be considerably improved. Interior fixtures will be installed of a good type, and a first-class humidor will also be put in place. This stand carries a most complete line of cigars and smokers' articles of all kinds, and when it is completed will be one of the best stores in the city.

The Moore cigar stand at Fifth and Penn Streets is showing a windowful of "American Empire" cigars, made by the Spatz factory. The brand is shown in all shapes, sizes and prices.

Yocum Brothers are operating their newly opened Lebanon factory with a force of fifty-two hands. They will add more cigarmakers from time to time. It was first predicted that they could not secure the hands in that city, but this trouble was soon overcome. Upon assurance of steady employment they were able to get hands from Schafferstown and nearby points. The Reading factory is running full time. Their Far West trade is in a most promising condition. The "Y. B." and "Spana Cuba" are being pushed in the Dakotas at this writing with good results.

The cigar manufacturers of this city were represented at Harrisburg some time ago when the new labor and minimum wage bills came up. Certain clauses in these bills, it was claimed, were injurious to their interests and they wished to file their protests.

A visit to the factory of Charles Y. Yetter on the outskirts of the city found the owner of the aforesaid plant in a most optimistic mood as to the business outlook for his factory.

The Fleck factory was compelled to send out several shipments of "Rose-O-Cubas" in a hurry this week to the Middle West. One of their jobbers was badly crippled by the flood and one shipment of a case had to be sent by express, which surely proved that he wanted the brand badly. They have the brand well placed in Dayton, where the loss was heaviest.

The Heymann factory is holding its own with the other plants in town. They look forward to a good year's business. Mr. Shirk has been on a Southern trip recently, where he found conditions promising.

The Breneiser store at Seventh and Penn Streets is featuring the "Webster" cigar, made by Y. Pendas & Alvarez, of Tampa, in their front window this week.

York Holds Its Own in Cigar Production

YORK, April 5.

DESPITE poor reports from other sections this part of the Ninth District is more than holding its own in a cigar way.

The past month will be one of the largest in point of production that York County has ever known during March. The receipts for the month were $98,212.85, an increase over the same month last year of $11,370.45, and an increase over last February of $1,963.45.

The revenue office is the authority for the prediction that the cigar manufacturers all through the district are as busy as they can expect. Of course, the smaller manufacturers are complaining as usual. The majority of the larger York factories are running to full capacity and have a good supply of orders on hand. Several plants have advertised for cigarmakers. Only two factories were opened during March, that of William H. Innerest at Red Lion, and Frances Sprenkel at Craley. They will both employ two hands each. The new quarters of the internal revenue office in the Federal Building are being visited by many people from York and nearby towns. The rooms are large and are located on the second floor of the building.

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company are making preparations to operate their plant overtime next week. They have lately appointed two representatives, one man to cover New York City and the New England States, and the other Philadelphia, New Jersey and Delaware, north of Wilmington. They report that they have been doing an unusually good trade for this time of the year. Their Washington business has been much above the average. With the expanding of their business, following the appointment of two additional representatives, they expect to largely increase their manufacturing facilities.

S. R. Kocher, of Wrightsville, the cigar manufacturer, who returned from a trip to Florida recently, has been slightly ill since returning. Mr. Kocher attributes it to the sudden change of climate.

S. E. Seachrist, the Dallastown cigar and stogie manufacturer, reports a nice run of orders. He manufactures the stogies for the Gallagher Cigar Company, of Columbus, Ohio, who take his output almost as fast as he can turn them out. He also has a good distribution in Harrisburg. He was sending a shipment of 120,000 stogies and cigars last week at the time the writer called upon him and stated at the time that he expected to increase this next week.

Different Processes of Tobacco Curing

kept up for from three to five days. Formerly it was the general practice to stop the fires when the leaf had begun to dry and allow it to soften by the flow of sap from the stem and by absorbing moisture from the air. The fires were then started again and the process of alternate drying and softening continued until the curing was complete. This practice is not so common now as formerly. The smoke from the open fires imparts a characteristic odor and taste to the tobacco and improves its keeping qualities.

In the northern portion of the Virginia fire-cured district, which is known as the olive-green stemming district, the method of curing is modified, as tighter barns are used and high heat is applied from the outset, the curing being completed in about two days. The object is to obtain a dark-green or almost black color without allowing the leaf to yellow. This type is strongly smoked during the curing.

STRIPPING AND ASSORTING.

When the thoroughly cured tobacco has become pliable by the absorption of moisture during a damp season, the plants are removed from the sticks and the leaves stripped off. Three principal grades are usually made, known as trash, lugs, and leaf. The leaf grade is further subdivided into several grades based on size of leaf and color. The several grades are tied into neat bundles containing six to eight or more leaves. In the Virginia fire-cured district the tobacco is sold loose by the auction system, and this method of marketing has recently gained ground in the western districts where formerly it was the general practice to pack or "prize" the leaf in hogsheads. Tobacco packed in hogsheads is sold by sample, so that careful assorting and packing are necessary if the highest market prices are to be obtained. Tobacco in condition for winter handling will not keep through the spring, but will mold when warm weather sets in unless it is reordered by again hanging it up to dry out. It is then ready for taking down and packing in favorable weather and will keep indefinitely.

On the first receiving day of the York County Tobacco Packing Association, between forty and fifty thousand pounds of tobacco was received at the Meads' warehouse. Rain held down the receipts for the first day, one hundred and forty thousand pounds being expected the second. Certificates were issued at from four to seven cents a pound and one to four cents for hail-cut tobacco.

New York Loses Heavily in Flood—Western Flood Probably Will Create Demand For Pennsylvania Tobacco—Connecticut Farmers Prepare For Another Season—Wisconsin Growers Virtually Sold Out

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, April 8.

THE topic which interests the local dealers at present more than any other is the flood conditions in the Ohio Valley as affecting their holdings in that region. It will undoubtedly have a tendency to cause a rise in price of the Ohio leaf, as the loss will run into thousands of dollars. The different houses are on the lookout for that kind of leaf and manufacturers are also put in the same position, contracting for tobacco whenever possible.

Without doubt it will have the effect of turning their attention to Pennsylvania tobacco, which has been neglected of late. This tobacco has been of a poor quality as far as burn was concerned and manufacturers were using Ohio in preference.

There has been a healthy demand for the new Sumatra, which appears to give general satisfaction. That tobacco already here is of splendid texture and color. The lightness of the leaf is what has hit the eye of the manufacturers who have been on the lookout for just such wrappers. Yet in spite of this the Florida and Georgia wrappers have also been selling well. This leaf has been uniformly good and quite a bit of it has changed hands recently.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.

ACCORDING to Julius Vetterlein, president of the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, the destruction by the flood of the warehoused crop of tobacco in the Dayton district will bring an advance in the price of Pennsylvania tobacco, which a few weeks ago could not be sold at any price. Some growers in the York and Lancaster belt offered their 1912 crops at as low a figure as five cents a pound.

Manufacturers of five-cent cigars are the hardest hit. Local factories make more five-cent cigars than any other city in the United States, and owing to the poor quality of tobacco grown in the state during the last few years, the manufacturers have been purchasing in other markets. If the reports be true that the flood in the Dayton warehouse district, which takes in three or four Ohio counties, has destroyed even one-fourth the warehoused crop, manufacturers will be compelled to make their purchases nearer home, as they are now several million cigars behind with their Western orders.

Many local manufacturers have been substituting Ohio tobacco for Pennsylvania for some time, owing to the poor quality of the latter.

LANCASTER, April 8.

The most interesting development of the past week in the Lancaster leaf tobacco market was the call for 1909 goods, which have for so long been a drug in the dealer's hands. For several weeks a number of dealers have had orders for small lots, but now this tobacco is going off on heavier orders, doubtless because it is the cheapest filler goods to be had. There is good reason to believe it is improving with age, and it unquestionably improves with resweating. The manufacturers who are using it also subject it to formulas which improve its burning qualities. A little 1911 goods are selling, too, but being a higher priced article it is not selling as its merits deserve. The seed planting time is at hand, but until the beds are made it will not be possible to form anything like a reliable estimate of this season's acreage. While a number of growers who suffered from last year's hailstorms and others who have not yet sold their 1912 crops will try potatoes instead of tobacco, or contract their tobacco acreage for other crops, other growers, in view of this, are expected to increase their acreage, which is expected to give a total of about 16,000 acres, as usual.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, April 8.

THE opening of another tobacco season has been started. While it is a little early for planting tobacco beds, many of the growers have the beds already made, and they are now going through the sterilization process so as to be ready for the seeds at the proper time. All the growers of tobacco are beginning to realize the importance of sterilization of the beds in order to insure healthy plants, and a number are using scientific means to promote it. Steaming of the soil has been generally substituted for the crude system of heating the soil by the burning of brush over the soil, as the latter was found to remove most of the humus from the soil. The former kills all injurious bacteria, yet does not destroy the fertility of the soil.

Trade in cigar leaf tobacco in New England is practically at a standstill and it has been so for some weeks. Nearly all of the good crops have been picked up by dealers and only a few are being held by farmers for higher figures. These people believe that by the middle of the summer quotations may be higher. The last sales made in New England were at a slightly lower figure than was paid or contracted for last summer and fall.

The rain and hail storm, accompanied by a fierce wind of tornado force which passed over this city and neighboring towns last week, caused damage to property to the extent of $15,000 or $20,000 by blowing down tobacco barns in West Hatfield and North Hadley and demolishing a large new barn costing several thousand dollars on the farm of Charles Hager in that part of this city known as North Farms. Several horses in the barn were so badly injured that it was necessary to kill them. A dwelling house was badly damaged.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, April 4.

APRIL 1 finds the tobacco growers of Wisconsin practically relieved of their holdings of leaf of every description. There are a few scattering crops yet to be delivered and now and then one not yet sold, but as a general proposition the state was never so completely bared at this date.

The warehouse season is also drawing to a close. Another week or so will see most of the packings completed, though warehouse handling with a few firms will continue for some time yet. There is no news in the local markets of old leaf.

The present early indications of spring will start preparations for the plant beds of another crop, though it is hardly advisable to sow sprouted seed at too early a date.

S. E. Barnard, of Evansville, was a visitor in this market Monday.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company closed their season's packing in Edgerton yesterday.

Mr. L. Hiller, of the Chicago leaf firm of Hiller & Kollenberg, was a visitor in this market Tuesday.

Mr. Lichtenstein, with the I. Lewis Company, Newark, New Jersey, manufacturers, who has been in the state for several weeks, has returned to his home.

STOUGHTON.

While some misunderstanding has occurred between buyer and grower as to cutting of prices below the contract, the general opinion prevails that the crop last year brought good returns, beyond that of any other crop produced in Wisconsin, and that more acreage will be planted this year in consequence. Tobacco selling above ten cents a pound is well worth while, so say the farmers of Dane County. No corn, no grain, no sugar beet crops can compare with tobacco as a source of profit.—Edgerton Reporter.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, April 7.

THE storms did not spare tobacco sections. Re-seeding with the consequent delay and uncertainty as to results will be necessary in many cases. Tobacco land that has been plowed was greatly damaged by puddling and erosion, creating a condition that will preclude best results.

Lexington, Kentucky, is easily the leader of all the loose leaf markets with a total sale of more than 40,000,000 pounds. Maysville is next with some 30,000,000 pounds. This was by far the most important year of the loose leaf business, the same exceeding for the first time the business transacted on the hogshead markets.

The two great hogshead tobacco markets of Cincinnati and Louisville will from now on be the only points at which sales of any considerable moment will be held. During the past week the former sold 364 hogshead old (1911 and previous years) and 242 hogshead new tobacco. The average price of old was $6.64 per hundredweight as compared with $7.57 the previous week and $10.49 the corresponding week last year. New tobacco averaged $7.98 as compared with $8.55 the previous week and $10.17 the corresponding week last year. While the average price was lower, this was largely on account of lower grade of offerings.

KENTUCKY.

PADUCAH, April 4.

TOBACCO growers are handicapped in delivering the weed to local warehouses on account of swollen creeks and bad roads.

The heavy rains that have caused washouts on some of the roads will keep down the tobacco movement until good weather comes. A local tobacco man said today that tobacco is coming in now slowly, but that he expects a big rush of deliveries as soon as the weather opens.

Reports have been received here recently, coming from Henderson, that tobacco beds which had been sown in tobacco were raked deep and sown with grass by unknown parties.

The plant beds thus tampered with are said to belong to C. O. Denton, Bob O'Daniels, Chester Denton and C. M. Denton. Two of the men are said not to belong to the association, and it is not certain whether the others do or not. The plant beds affected are located near Corydon.

Newsy Paragraphs From Leading Leaf Tobacco Centres

The tobacco growers of Wisconsin appear to be well satisfied with the new Paul bill, which is aimed at the practice of buying tobacco in the field. It is said that it will save the seller a good deal of bother. The buying interests, as far as can be ascertained, are as much in favor of the bill as the growers are, for it puts all of them on the same buying basis. Many firms disliked the practice as much as the farmers did, but were compelled to follow the lead of others in order to secure the right quality of leaf. Where tobacco is in demand as much as it has been in Wisconsin and Connecticut the past season the bickering and disagreements, with the consequent docking, are bound to follow the old practice of scrambling for the crops. This was not noticeable in Pennsylvania this year because there was no demand for the leaf.

The last remnants of the Connecticut crop are being taken up in that section. The binder situation has been an acute one and it is reported that a number of sales have been made the past two weeks which packers would not have made under any consideration a short time ago. There has been a great deal of disappointment at the small percentage of light wrappers. To this is due in part the scouring of that section for more tobacco, which the buyer knows is not of the best quality.

The Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington recently approved an application filed by the Southern Railway Company, to put in effect a reduced rate of seventy-seven cents per one hundred pounds on smoking tobacco (including cut plug smoking tobacco) in packages, from Winston-Salem, Durham, Highpoint, and other North Carolina points to New Orleans and Mobile, without making proportionate reductions to other points. This is done so as to allow the North Carolina manufacturers to compete with manufacturers nearer New Orleans.

Many Lancaster County growers recently received a communication, purporting to come from the "United Cigar Leaf Company," which offered to supply a tobacco seed to the recipients upon their agreement to sell their crops to the concern furnishing it. The seed was to be of the "Havana Seed" variety. Many persons in touch with the growing of tobacco in that section stated that if the growers were to put the proper amount of time, using the right kind of fertilizer in growing this tobacco, it would find a ready sale. They assert that they are growing too much for weight and in addition, are using the wrong fertilizers, securing a heavy leaf of inferior burn. Many manufacturers claim that this is one of the reasons. they are not using as much Pennsylvania as in former years.

The Florida and Georgia tobacco interests have served notice that they will promptly fight any move toward reduction in the present tariff on imported tobacco. They have had an idea that the new tariff bill would provide for a one-dollar duty.

A third tobacco warehouse is being planned for Greensboro, North Carolina. Already $5000 of a total amount of $18,000 necessary, has been subscribed. It is intended to have it ready for the 1913 fall season.

With the opening of the tobacco season in Rocky Mount, North Carolina, a new leaf tobacco concern will begin operations there. It will be known as the W. E. Fenner Tobacco Company. R. Phil. Holt, will be the manager of the concern.

It is a hard matter to estimate the damage caused by the flood in the Miami Valley, in Ohio, but the earlier figures, which were close to two million dollars, were greatly exaggerated. Several million pounds of leaf were stored in warehouses there, in addition to the new crop. In many places the new tobacco was stored on the lower floors and the old in the upper floors. As the water did not rise to the second story at many points, there will probably be more old tobacco on hand than was at first expected.

The old adage, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good" will probably be proven in the flood which devastated the Ohio Valley. From all reports a great part of the new crop of Ohio tobacco has been destroyed. Since many cigar manufacturers have been using Ohio tobacco in the past few years in preference to Pennsylvania, claiming that the latter leaf was deteriorating in quality, it looks now as if they would be compelled to use this leaf whether they wished to or not. There has been a bad slump in Pennsylvania tobacco in the past year or two and this situation is not going to hurt the Pennsylvania growers by any means. They were selling their tobacco recently as low as five and six cents.

One of the largest tobacco warehouses in the South is nearing completion. It is located in Lake City, South Carolina, and covers an entire city block. It will be opened about June 15, and is owned by J. D. King.

The Baltimore Leaf Tobacco Association, at a recent meeting, elected Henry Kraus, of the cigar firm of Kraus & Company, of that city, and John Dellevie, of the leaf firm of Liebman & Dellevie, as delegates to the convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, at Dayton in May. A. Fader, the cigar manufacturer, was elected as an alternate.

The Ideal Store As Seen By a Customer

I LIKE to go into a warm store—not steam-heated, particularly, but heart-heated—a store where the proprietor is cordial, obliging and cheerful, where the clerks act as if they are glad to see me.

I like to go into a store where I feel welcome. In some stores I have felt like an intruder breaking into a private home.

I like to enter a store by being invited in by attractive window displays. I generally choose a store by the windows and I very seldom find that they misrepresent the quality of the store.

I like to deal with a store where I know the clerks work together pleasantly, where they receive proper credit for what they do, and where the proprietor treats them well.

When I go into a store, I like to have the clerk take my complete order, and then collect the articles, wrapping them in as few parcels as possible.

I like a store where the clerks know where to find what I want without unnecessary delay.

I like to go into a store where there is plenty of light, both in the daytime and evening, and where there is good ventilation.

I like a store where the shelves are clean and where they do not show dusty packages and cans. I always patronize the cleanest store I can find.

I like to go into a store where the clerks are anxious to wait on me, where they are desirous of showing me goods, even though I may not make a purchase.

The ideal store is the one that has these good qualities—and more.

Trade Jottings

More than one hundred small manufacturers in the First Ohio District have consolidated during the past few months. Smaller manufacturers in that district are feeling the pressure of this widespread movement.

Fred Gray, Freeport, Illinois, has purchased the retail cigar business of Wilbur Reitzel and John Martin, at Grand Rapids, Iowa.

Best & Russel, the well-known wholesale cigar house of Chicago, have purchased the lease on a cigar store at Council Bluffs, Iowa, held by Peregoy Moore.

A cigar store will be opened on Monmouth Street, Red Bank, New Jersey, by William Antonides.

Ed. Kauffman, a well-known St. Louis cigar dealer, has been the successful bidder for the cigar privileges in the Railway Exchange Building, now nearing completion in that city.

The Hoff & Mayland cigar factory, at Brooking, South Dakota, has been purchased by J. C. Miles.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1, 1913
TO THE TRADE:

Cigars packed in "CEDAR PAPER" covered cans were first manufactured and placed before the trade by us.

Our first effort was to produce cigars of incomparable high quality.

Our next step was to protect our product against imitation by a unique style of packing never used before—

"THE CEDAR PAPER COVERED CAN"

Our great success has resulted in various manufacturers offering to the trade similar styles of packings in Cedar Paper covered cans, to procure business on the popularity achieved by our cigars.

We propose to protect the reputation established on the quality of our cigars, by prompt legal action for infringement on our original style of packing in—

City Club

The 20th Century Wonder in Smoking Tobacco

It's Better

Expert judges of smoking tobacco have said that CITY CLUB is worth 20 cents a can compared to imitations.

Why?

The Answer: We own the land. We grow the tobacco. CITY CLUB is the "cream" of 200,000 acres of the finest Burley tobacco grown in the famous Bluegrass section of Kentucky. The first pipe-full will convince you.

CITY CLUB is only one hundred days old, yet it is duplicating and selling from coast to coast. Ask your jobber. Quality is doing the trick. Dealers are authorized to refund money to any customer not satisfied that CITY CLUB is better.

We Prepay Express on Trial Orders

MR. DEALER: Our national advertising campaign on CITY CLUB will start in a very short time, and you will have calls for CITY CLUB because it's better. Write or wire us, at our expense, and we will ship you a trial order of two dozen 10c. cans and one magnificent Crystaloid window display show card, express prepaid, for $1.92. Give name of your jobber and we will supply him.

Short talks to Dealers

A man may buy a package of cigarettes because the advertising is good, or because the package looks attractive—that is, he may buy the first package that way. The second package he buys because he likes the cigarettes.

FATIMA
TURKISH BLEND
CIGARETTES

Now, Fatima advertising is good—it has made thousands of first sales. And the Fatima package, although inexpensive, is neat and attractive. But better than either of these first package sellers, the cigarettes have that holding quality that makes men come back for the second package.

A cigarette like Fatima, that can make repeat sales on merit alone—that can hold smokers year after year—is a good one to use for a leader—for nothing increases business so well as satisfied customers. More Fatima cigarettes are sold than any other brand in this country.

The big sale of Fatimas among business and professional men is a strong endorsement for them.

Another Anti-Coupon Bill in Congress, Introduced by Representative Stanley, of Kentucky

Measure Provides for a Tax of Two Cents on Each Certificate Issued—If Passed, Would Virtually Legislate the System Out of Existence

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 25.

ANOTHER anti-coupon bill has bobbed up in Congress, the sponsor of which is Representative Stanley, of Kentucky. This measure is slightly different from those introduced heretofore, insofar as it provides for a tax of two cents for every coupon used. It has been referred to the Ways and Means Committee, of which Mr. Stanley is a member, which will probably report it out favorably. The object of the measure, it is stated, is as follows: "To levy a tax upon the issuance of coupons, prize tickets and other devices and on the redemption, payment, purchase, or exchange of coupons, prize tickets, tags, bands or other devices, things or parts of articles, or things that shall have been attached to, packed in, or with, or formed a part of, or encircling or given with any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, cigarette or cigarettes, or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof."

The bill further provides as follows:

That there shall be levied, collected and paid by adhesive stamps a tax of two cents for and upon every coupon, prize ticket, or other device attached to, packed in or with, or forming a part of, or encircling, or given with any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, little cigar or little cigars, cigarette or cigarettes, or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof, if any such coupon, prize ticket, or other device contains any direct or indirect promise, or proposition, or offer to make redemption or payment in cash therefor, or for any number of same, or to exchange property therefor, or for any number of same, whether such redemption, payment, or exchange is made or is to be made by a manufacturer of such tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, or snuff, or any other person, firm, or corporation.

Sec. 2. That on and after the first day of January, nineteen hundren and fourteen, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, by adhesive stamps, a tax of two cents for and upon redemption, payment, purchase, or exchange of any coupon, prize ticket, tag, band, or other article, thing, or part of an article or thing, which before being offered for such redemption or purchase shall have been attached to, packed in or with, or formed a part of, or encircled, or given with any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, little cigar or little cigars, cigarette or cigarettes, or snuff, or stamped package or receptacle thereof.

Sec. 3. That coupons, prize tickets, and other things mentioned in the first section of this act, stamped in accordance with the provisions thereof, notwithstanding anything contained in the section hereof, upon being offered for redemption of sale, shall not be required to pay said tax, but all coupons, prize tickets, and other things mentioned in said first and second sections hereof, not stamped when issued by the manufacturer, or other person, firm or corporation issuing same, shall, if presented for redemption on and after the said first day of January, nineteen hundred and fourteen, be stamped as provided in said section second hereof by the person, firm or corporation presenting same for redemption, purchase or exchange.

Sec. 4. That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall cause to be prepared for the payment of the taxes provided by this act suitable stamps denoting the said tax. Such stamps shall be furnished collectors desiring them.

Sec. 5. That in all cases where an adhesive stamp is used for denoting the tax imposed by this act, the person, firm, or corporation using or affixing same shall write or print thereon the initials of his or its name and the date on which said stamp is attached or used, so that it may not again be used. Any person, firm or corporation who fraudulently makes use of an adhesive stamp to denote any tax imposed by this act without so effectually cancelling and obliterating such stamp shall forfeit the sum of fifty dollars. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is authorized to prescribe such method further for the cancellation of stamps as substitute for or in addition to the method prescribed in this section as he may deem expedient and effectual. And he is directed to make the application of such method imperative.

Sec. 6. That if any person shall forge or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be forged or counterfeited, any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, which shall have been provided or may hereafter be provided, made, or used in pursuance of the provisions of this act or any previous provisions of law on the same subject, or shall forge, counterfeit, or resemble, or cause or procure to be forged, counterfeited, or resemble the impression or any part of the impression of any such stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, as aforesaid, upon any paper, or shall stamp or mark, or cause or procure to be stamped or marked, any paper with such forged or counterfeit stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, or part of any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, as aforesaid, with intent to defraud the United States of any of the taxes hereby imposed or any part thereof, or if any person shall offer or sell or expose to sale any paper, article, or thing having thereon the impression of any such counterfeited stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, or any part of any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, or any such forged, counterfeited, or resembled impression, or any part of any impression, as aforesaid, knowing the same to be forged, counterfeited, or resembled; or if any person shall knowingly use or permit the use of any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument which shall have

Locker & Co., Brooklyn Jobbers, Denied New Trial in Case Against A. T. Co. and Others

Brought Suit Last December, Which Was Decided Against Them by Direction of Judge Mayer, Who Says Present Volume of Business Does Not Bear Out Charges

IN a decision handed down on Saturday, April 26, in the Federal District Court in Manhattan, Judge Mayer denied the motion made by John A. Locker and his wife, retail and wholesale tobacconists, doing business in Brooklyn as Locker & Company, for a new trial of the concern against the American Tobacco Company, the United Cigar Stores Company and the Metropolitan Tobacco Company.

The suit was brought early in last December under the Sherman anti-trust law, the plaintiffs claiming that they were greatly injured in their business by the methods of the defendants. They asked for damages aggregating $300,000. The trial took three weeks to settle. During the trial James B. Duke, formerly president of the American Tobacco Company, was called upon to testify. By direction of Judge Mayer, who presided, the jury brought in a verdict for the defendants.

Counsel for Locker & Company promptly filed a motion for a new trial, with the result given above. During the course of the trial witnesses were called who stated that they had been driven out of business through the close competition in New York City, but the judge decided that there was no proof that this was through any action of the defendants.

In the recent decision Judge Mayer finds that Locker is making enough profit out of his business, and says in part:

"I incline to the view that on the evidence in this case, the transactions complained of did not constitute a violation of the so-called Anti-Trust Act.

"It is the function of the government, through appropriate suits or proceedings, to obtain equitable relief on behalf of the people at large or to institute prosecutions, but a private litigant must show the money damage he has suffered.

"On the evidence in the case, it was clear that damages awarded upon the theory of the plaintiffs, would have been a mere guess, highly speculative and not in accord with any rule or principle of ascertaining money damage where (as distinguished, for instance, from negligence cases), damages must be for actual loss."

Gives the Missionary Man's Side of the Question

Written for the Tobacco World by "One Who Knows"

AN article in the April 1 issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD headed "Is the Missionary Man an Absolute Necessity?" has caused me to give you my view of the question.

I can state, solely from my fifteen years' experience in the tobacco business, twelve of which were spent behind the retail cigar counter, that no new cigar can be introduced successfully in this market (Southern California) without having some one to go around to the trade and push no other cigar but that particular brand. After this cigar is introduced, the jobbers' salesmen will sometimes follow up the good work already established. As is a well-known fact, a salesman working for a jobber has so many items to sell, he cannot give up his valuable time talking the merits of the new cigar.

The manufacturers have no one to blame for the existing condition but themselves. I have seen it illustrated time and time again.

The manufacturer sends his representative to the Coast. To do business with the jobber, he offers him (the jobber) a proposition, such as missionary work, which sometimes takes from three to five months—an unlimited supply of cigars for window displays, which run into thousands and without expense to the jobber who is introducing and taking hold of the new cigar. Sometimes the representative of the manufacturer goes so far as to consign the goods to the jobber. Naturally, the latter having nothing to lose, is glad to take the chance and "let the other fellow do the work."

Therefore, the jobbers on the Pacific Coast do not consider the placing of a new line in their house unless the manufacturers furnish them with a missionary man for a specified length of time.

There are two kinds of missionary men who introduce new cigars or try to introduce them. They are: those that make good, and those that get the manufacturer "in wrong." An example of the latter sort would not be out of place right here.

Recently, an Ohio concern sent their representative to the Coast to introduce their line of cigars. By chance I met this man, and after a short conversation with him, and he was a fluent talker, he asked for my aid in helping him introduce his cigars with the various jobbers of a city. After two days work with him, I finally procured a jobber to take hold of his line.

He made the jobber the following proposition:

Provided the opening order consisted of fifty thousand ten-cent and two for twenty-five cents cigars and one hundred thousand five-cent cigars, he will cover the entire territory, the time allotted for this being four months. He (the missionary man) will pay for all window displays and advertise in all moving picture shows. The jobber will not have to pay for the goods until sold by him (the missionary man). He went so far as to give the jobber a contract to that effect.

The jobber ordered the goods, as there was nothing for him to lose, under the conditions of the contract.

The goods arrived and the representative went to work. After two months time spent in introducing his brand, he had given away a larger amount of cigars than he had sold. The jobber made him stop in his work, as it was injuring his house. He also discovered that goods sold by this representative to the retailer, was but a consignment proposition and the retailer would not pay for the goods until the goods were disposed of. To make good his showing in the eyes of the manufacturer, the representative ordered goods without the knowledge of the jobber, for the purpose of drawing expense money in salary or commission, whichever it happened to be.

The jobber disgustedly stopped selling the cigars and notified the manufacturers and explained how matters stood. The manufacturers sent another man to this territory and to his astonishment he found the conditions as described by the jobber. The jobber insisted that he take back the cigars sold him, and showed him the contract, signed by the first representative. The factory had never heard or seen one word of it. After a week of wrangling, the goods were packed and sent back to the factory, with a loss to the manufacturers of practically $4000. No other jobber has ever since considered taking hold of this cigar after having heard the manner in which the first representative introduced it to the trade. The same representative executed the same grade of "missionary work" in San Francisco and numerous other large cities of the Pacific Coast, and "killed" this cigar forever on the Coast.

I will say this now, that it is hard for any manufacturer to get a good man to do the work and put a good cigar on the market with a certain degree of quality behind it. It does not profit the manufacturer to establish a cigar firmly, with a free deal, and then to deliberately drop the free deal proposition suddenly. It is sure to kill the established trade in no length of time.

I heartily agree with the following statement made by Jas. W. Duke, formerly president of the American Tobacco Company: "You cannot do business with the jobber, and you cannot do business without him." The same statement applies to the missionary man.

INTERESTING SNAPSHOTS TAKEN IN THE OHIO VALLEY FLOOD DISTRICT.

The picture shown above was taken in Dayton at 3.30 P. M., the first day of the flood. The cross shows the Conover Building, in which were located Eisenberger Brothers. At this time the water was within three feet of flood height. The picture to the right depicts the manner in which Dreyfus Brothers, cigar dealers of Hamilton, Ohio, started in business again. "Business was good," wrote Charles Dreyfus to a friend. "I borrowed the cigar case shown in the picture."

"Take Your Proposition to a Young Man"

Written for The Tobacco World by Frank R. Dornheim, Traveling Correspondent

TAKE your proposition to a young man! I'm seventy-eight years old and I'm just about ready to die. It's too late for me to start reading a journal like that. It may contain valuable information, as you say, but I wouldn't know how to use it."

The speaker was the proprietor of a cigar store and pool room in a thriving Middle West city. The rickety sign over the door, creaking to and fro in the smart Spring breeze, called it a "billiard parlor," but there was no sign of a billiard table in the place. It was a forlorn-looking "dump."

He peeed at me near-sightedly over the lenses of a battered pair of steel-rimmed "specs." Between us was a cigar display case so ancient that I gazed at it in wonder. It was simply a glass-door cupboard lying on its side. When a customer called for anything the aged proprietor laboriously unwound about eight inches of twine from the knobs of these doors and then with much effort raised the lid and brought out one cigar from a box, as he seemed to know exactly what the man wanted. He dropped the nickel in a lidless cigar box behind him, and then turned again to me.

Seeing me looking at the age-darkened "fixture," he said: "I made that cigar case myself when I opened this here place in '67,—been usin' it ever since." And he actually was proud of it! He rambled on aimlessly, while I stood over that home-made "coffin," pondering on the possible career of this man. He had started in to retail cigars about forty-five years ago, and instead of keeping abreast of the times and the procession of his trade had slid down the scale and had sunk to this. All those years of experience which could have been improved by constant self-education in retailing all those limitless opportunities of using that ripened experience to expand his business later and widen his commercial horizon had been wasted. What an object lesson for the retailer of today, who is tempted to let up in the constant struggle!

I walked down the street a few squares and crossing the street, was delighted to see one of the brightest-looking retail stores it has been my good fortune to strike. The window display was fresh-looking and certainly had been there only a short time. There was a snappy, neatly-lettered window card pasted to the plate glass extolling the virtues of that day's "special." I stepped inside and asked for the proprietor. A smiling, fresh-faced youngster stepped forward. He did not appear to be more than twenty years old, but the shrewd look in his eye betokened the fact that he was not as young in experience as he appeared to be at first glance. After a few generalities, I launched into my talk. The remark of the old fellow I had seen but a few minutes before sprung into my mind: "Take your proposition to a young fellow!" And I proceeded with renewed fervor, finally reaching my conclusion.

He removed the cigar from his mouth and said: "Jones, my jobber gave me a copy of your journal some time ago. I had been in the business only a few months at that time, and things were going mighty slow and I felt discouraged. I was about as green as they start. He said it was the best thing in the trade and if I expected to run a real cigar stand I ought to subscribe for it and read it. Well, I looked the copy over, with very little interest—at first—until I came to the page which contained your 'Window Bulletin Suggestions.' I looked them over and then the thought struck me: 'Why can't I try a few of these and see if I can't wake the fellows up and get them coming faster?' I got the materials and got one up and posted it. It was somewhat crude, I guess, but I watched its effect. Before the forenoon was half over I counted thirty-two men who stopped and read that card and twenty-three of them came inside and made purchases. I was called away at ten and left the clerk in charge, and when I returned he reported that business had continued brisker than before.

"The next day I tried one of your retailing ideas, published in that number, to get rid of some special stuff I had on hand since Christmas. I cleaned it all out at a neat profit in less than three days. Then Jones took on a nickel cigar that you advertised and that I had heard was going fast further East. I have had it in stock for less than two weeks and it's becoming one of my best sellers. That's why I want you to enter my name as a subscriber to your journal. I only hope all my investments will bring me the dividends I know that dollar will."

The foregoing was an actual experience and was a curious coincidence meeting the "young man" directly after the experience with the old fellow and the immediate application of the remark: "Take your proposition to a young man!"

Now, Mr. Retailer, to which class do you belong? Are you an "old man" or a "young man"?

Says German Stores Are Superior to Ours

S. COLLINS, vice-president of the United Cigar Stores Company, recently returned from Europe, says Germany is far ahead of America in the retailing of tobacco.

"The cigar stores have the choicest positions in the principal streets, and they are finished and burnished with a magnificence that eclipses anything to be found on this side of the Atlantic, or anywhere else, for that matter. Instead of saloons occupying three out of four corners, at a prominent street crossing, as they do in the cities of the United States, three of the corners in the principal German cities will be occupied by cigar stores. They are gotten up regardless of expense, too. The fronts are onyx, marble or bronze, while the signs are the finest examples of the art. No one color is peculiar to the German cigar store. They use black or blue or gold or whatever may suit their fancy; but whatever the combination they make sure that the effect is rich and pleasing.

"The chain store idea is more fully developed there than here. There is no one very large combination, but a great many chains of half a dozen up to fifty or sixty stores. Some chains may include several cities, but for the most part each chain is confined to a single city. In Berlin, for example, Loser & Wolff have a chain of sixty stores, while the Ha-Ci-Fa concern (The Havana Cigar Factory) have about thirty.

"Germans seem to be great cigar smokers. They smoke all the time. They buy cigars a handful at a time, for the retail price is not based on the single cigar, but on lots of ten. The cigars that retail at ten for a mark, or twenty-four cents, are substantially the same as those that retail for a nickel apiece here. They are probably the biggest sellers. Cigars are very cheap over there. They are to be had ten for seventeen cents, and down to ten for twelve cents. Evidently the duty on tobacco is low, for all the cheap cigars are made in Germany. The duty on imported cigars is very high."

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Cigar Fables in Slang--"The Original Wise Guy"

ONCE Upon A Time there lived the Original Wise Guy, who thought he knew every thing from Tipping Off a First Grade Smoke to the Latest Scream in Coffin Nails to the 1914 style of Filling a Hod. Wise Willie had worked in a Cigar Emporium a short time, so when a Doting Dad left him some Loose Change, he decided to put the other cigar dealers Hep to the Right and Only Way of running a Cigar Store.

When the Rest of the World found out that he was going to give them Demonstrations on Catering to the Select, they rushed to his aid with all kinds of Advice—and incidentally—Open Order Books.

Did Willie take to these Tips? Not on your Tintype. What he didn't know about the Cigar Business wasn't worth finding out. In addition, hadn't he belonged to the Ash-making Brigade ever since Hector was a Pup?

When Someone suggested that he read trade papers, to find out Who's Who and Why, he leaned back on his counter and laughed. "Why I rarely read the Daily Sheets, so I guess I'll potter along without the tradè paper," quoth he.

Whenever a Particularly Engaging Salesman happened along (quite a few "happened" along those days), patted Willie on the back, told him what a Nifty Store he had, what a fine young business man he was and took him out to Feed, Bill blinked, shut his eyes and swallowed the bait, hook and all. Within two months he had enough Ropes on hand to supply the Burg and more than enough left over for himself.

"Study the trade papers and watch the other Guys," his friends advised, but Willie's Cranium had swelled to such Proportions by this time, that it required a Double Action Shoe Horn to put on his hat. He was as Chesty as a Poisoned Pup.

In time his Creditors became so Testy that Bill had a Fit every time a Fellow looking like a Bill Collector poked his Knob in the doorway. He knew by this time that it was a Darned Sight easier to buy cigars than to sell them.

One day Bill's Biggest Creditor became Plumb Pernicious. He called upon him and before he left had a whispered conversation with Our Hero. That afternoon Bill had a Quiet Little Party in the Back Room, where the other creditors attended by special invitation.

When they left, Willie looked around. He noticed that the sky wasn't near so blue as it had seemed several days before and that he had a hollow feeling around his Belt Line.

The Original Wise Guy still has his interest in the cigar store, but the Creditors appointed a Manager who is giving Willie Kindergarten Lessons on Operating a Cigar Stand.

Moral: The Cigar Dealer who thinks he "knows it all" will bear watching.

One of the good things about the fellows that go up in the air quickly is in that they can come down with equal facility—and it's not aviators that are meant by this, either.

If you are afraid some other fellow is about to beat you out of your job it may be time to wake up and get to earning your money—or looking for another job.

The Importance of Having a Clean Store

A SALESMAN said recently: "A few days ago I entered the store of one of your prominent retailers. He had a good corner location, but the store was dark and badly ventilated and the air was heavy with the odor of tobacco burned weeks ago. The floor had a very much unswept appearance.

"I saw his shelves were well stocked with good going stuff, but it was dingy looking and bore a thin film of dust. He had a splendid display case that ran almost the entire length of the store, but an application of cleaning cloth and a little elbow grease would have brightened it wonderfully. A merely casual observer could have seen that here was apparently a good business which by neglect was running to seed. Now, why a man like him should not see that allowing his place to get in such a condition would injure his business is more than I can see."

Surely the expense of keeping a store clean, bright and airy is small. Did you ever stop to consider how many gigantic corporations have achieved their success through the honest use of the little word "clean"? You can pick up a magazine and find a dozen of them in the advertising pages inside of a few minutes.

Let us hope that the salesman's words do not apply to many of you, but at the same time it would be well to make a mental resolution that in the future when you open for business in the morning your place shall be so spick and span that even a woman could not pick a flaw in it.

Cigars Made in Bond a Feasible Plan

The enthusiasm with which the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of Tampa indorses the rather unique scheme of petitioning the Government to enact laws permitting them to manufacture their cigars in bond, indicates that the Tampa makers appreciate the importance and necessity of maintaining the high standard of their industry. Manufacturing cigars under bond is perfectly feasible. If whiskey can be bottled in bond and thereby secure the official stamp of Government guarantee as to purity, why not cigars?

The plan as submitted to the association by Manuel Sanchez provides for special Federal laws which would place two revenue men in each factory and enable the cigar manufacturer to pay duty only on the finished cigars and not when the tobacco is landed in the bale. This scheme would enable the manufacturers to anticipate their needs for leaf and buy in large quantities when a good crop comes along without a heavy outlay for import duties until they actually used the tobacco.

Moreover, such a scheme would indisputably fix the type of tobacco that was used in the manufacture of cigars and draw the line between the legitimate clear Havana cigars and the kinds that are fakes. Such a law could not fail to help the manufacturers who are making clear Havana cigars worthy of the name.

The proposition is worthy of thorough discussion from all branches of the tobacco trade to draw out the general effect that it will have on manufacturers, not only in Tampa, but everywhere high-class cigars are made in this country.

Is Tobacco a Luxury, Mr. Underwood?

In arriving at the conclusion to allow the present high duties on cigars and tobacco to remain unchanged, the framers of the Underwood tariff based their reasons on the illogical grounds that tobacco is a luxury, and taxed it accordingly. In the same tariff, the framers classify tea and coffee as necessities and silk as a luxury.

James G. Blaine had it right when he declared that to call tobacco a luxury was nonsense. He said "it is a necessity and ought to be treated so by the Government."

Any user of tobacco could not be persuaded that it is purely a luxury. The more expensive grades of cigars and tobaccos may be luxuries, but the average popular price packages of smoking tobacco and the average nickel cigars, are every-day necessities in the lives of millions of men.

It seems that the tariff framers should begin to make a new classification of the luxuries and necessities.

A telephone is still regarded and taxed as a luxury in many countries. What a rumpus our tariff framers or the internal revenue collectors would start if they proceeded to collect taxes on telephones today!

What "The World" Thinks

¶"Rolled In Bond" will be the new advertising slogan, when cigars are made under the proposed Tampa plan.

¶If "Mecca" is the cigarette that put the "O. K." in "smoke," who is the fellow who put the "fat" in "Fatima"?

¶Cigarette "factories" are springing up so rapidly and so numerously in the East since the big merger that one is led to suggest that the "Mushroom" brand will soon be on every one's lips. Or perchance they'll go up in smoke.

¶Since the Leaf Tobacco Convention is not to be held in Dayton because of the floods, did the committee select Atlantic City because it has gone dry?

¶Retail Wrinkles—Worries of the dealer over the higher cost of cigarettes and the lower profits.

¶Some wise man has said: "If your competitor knocks you, put him on your pay roll." The world has many willing workers who have salaries awaiting them.

¶From curing drunks and "tobacco fiends" to the job of increasing the government's income by collecting revenue from whisky and tobacco is a long step. Nevertheless, Colonel Osborn, the new appointee of President Wilson for United States Internal Revenue Commissioner, seems willing to quit as head of that Keeley Institute to tackle these new duties. Those Southern Democrats are a versatile lot.

The suit of the Hemmeter Cigar Company, of Detroit, against the John McNee Cigar Company, of Windsor, Ontario, will probably recall to the old time cigar manufacturers, as well as to those of the present day, the suits they would have liked to bring against some of their competitors under the same circumstances as prompted the Detroit house to go to law.

But as there were so many manufacturers, who upon some occasion, had done the same thing, when there was a shortage of help, they preferred to grin and bear it when some one tried it on them.

Production of Cigars and Cigarettes Continues to Increase

Country's Output for March, as Compiled from Internal Revenue Receipts, Heavy—Decrease in Manufactured Tobacco

The production of cigars, cigarettes and other tobacco products of the country for the month of March, compiled from the Internal Revenue receipts, compared with the same period last year, is as follows:

	March
	1913	1912	Increase.
Cigars	585,896,833	568,191,946	17,704,887
Little cigars	84,962,080	86,508,840	*1,546,760
Cigarettes at $3.60 ..	1,300,450	1,556,200	*255,750
Cigarettes	1,105,334,288	981,393,664	123,940,624
Snuff of all descriptions	3,015,459	2,723,620	291,839
Tobacco, mfd., of all descriptions	33,070,336	35,739,385	*2,669,049

*Decrease.

In addition to the above, the Government collected $20,400.64 in stamps affixed to cigars from the Philippines; $890.63 from cigarettes, and $196 on manufactured tobacco from the same source.

"Baron" Heine Now With Louis Ash & Co.

Bernhard L. Heine, well known in the local trade as the "Baron," recently made arrangements by which he will travel for Louis Ash & Company, cigar manufacturers. As announced recently this concern was reorganized, S. M. Frechie, formerly of the firm of Barnes-Smith Company, of Binghamton, New York, being the head of the firm. Mr. Frechie is considered an authority on leaf tobacco and cigar manufacturing and has had some valuable experience with the Binghamton house. Mr. Heine expects to shortly make a three months' journey through the West, starting by way of Albany and working through New York State. He goes with the best wishes of his many friends, who have confidence in his ability to make good.

H. Duys & Co. Sales of New Sumatra Over 1,700 Bales

It is expected by H. Duys & Company that the tobacco purchased by them at the fourth inscription will arrive in New York City this week. They are now displaying their tobaccos from the other inscriptions and state that they are doing the heaviest business of their career. Their sales so far have amounted to more than 1700 bales.

"Reynaldos" Making Good in New York

Some good accounts have been recently opened in the Metropolitan district by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb on their splendid "Reynaldo" cigars. Philadelphians who are fond of these goods can now find them at Wallack's Cafe, Broadway and Forty-third Street, the stands of the Hegeman's Drug Company, and on display in the big retail shop of Al Zeiling. Mr. J. Monroe Luchs, the representative for this concern, has been making rapid strides in recent weeks in distributing the "Reynaldo" throughout New York City.

Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade Trustees Elect Officers

A special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade was held in the regular rooms on Maiden Lane, on Friday, April 18, at which time officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Carl Wobbe, president; Joseph Mendelsohn, vice-president; Charles Fox, secretary, and Ferdinand Cranz, treasurer. Owing to the fact that many members of the Board of Trustees were absent from the annual meeting held on April 8, the election of officers was held at a later date. At the former meeting delegates for the leaf tobacco convention, to be held in Atlantic City, were selected.

P. Verplanck to be Preferred Havana Sales Manager

According to the lately completed plans of the Preferred Havana Tobacco Company, P. Verplanck will be the sales manager of the factories operated by the consolidation. This will not interfere in any way with the separate sales organizations of each factory. The representatives for Lopez, Hermanos & Company, are Manuel Lopez, Jr., who will cover the West; Frank Roland, the Eastern territory, and Robert H. Patterson, who will travel the South. Victor Reinach and Theodore Hene will be the Verplanck traveling men. Arthur Meyer will cover the Coast for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz; Stephen Herz, the East and South; A. H. Caro, the Middle West; while Mr. Florcheim will cover the Rocky Mountain States and the Northwest.

New Haven Cigar Manufacturers Lock Out Employees

A disagreement between the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of New Haven, Connecticut, and about five hundred cigarmakers of that city, resulted in the members of the association closing their doors to their employees last week. The trouble arose over the method used in distributing the stock of the cigarmakers. The manufacturers insist on using the individual account of stock plan, while their employees state that the general average plan is the only fair one. Among the factories affected are J. P. Kilfeather, the F. D. Grave Company, A. D. Kafka & Company, James P. Manning, Lewis Osterweis, Charles P. Wirtz and several others. Upon the arrival of the officers of the International Union it is expected that the difficulty will be adjusted.

Sig. Strauss announces that after May first his office and warerooms will be at 45 Jay Street. The telephone number has been changed to 3235 Worth.

The Connecticut delegates selected to attend the leaf convention to be held in Atlantic City, are B. L. Haas, S. Hartman, E. A. Hathaway and G. Hartman. The alternates chosen are A. Newfield, J. Conner, A. A. Olds and Geo. H. Gabb. The Connecticut delegation will be composed of these men, also M. L. Floyd, who will attend as a director of the National Association; F. B. Griffin, who is vice-president, and a number of others interested. They will leave on the Sunday previous to the convention.

New York City Items

The B. & R. Cigar Manufacturing Company, Incorporated, of 177 East Eighty-seventh Street, has made an assignment to Adolph Guttman. The company was incorporated on December 12 last with a capital stock of $1000, and Isaac Rabinowitz is president.

A. Schulte, the chain-store operator, has leased the store and basement in the building to be remodeled at the southeast corner of Fulton and Church Streets, from Samuel K. Jacobs, for twenty-one years at a total rental of about $500,000. Mr. Schulte will occupy the corner store and sublease the six remaining stores. A restaurant will be established in the basement.

An innovation in the way of educating employees was started by A. Schulte last week, who secured the services of Walt. S. Goodwin, who will deliver addresses to the Schulte clerks on "How to Develop Personal Efficiency." These will be given every two weeks at the Schulte headquarters in the "World" building.

The United States and Canadian Agency for Allones, Limited, of Havana, has been taken on by Tom Healey, the well-known cigar broker. The Havana house manufactures the "Ramon Allones" cigar.

Ben Lesser, of F. Lozano, Son & Company, left last week for an extended trip through the West. He will go as far as the Coast. Business so far this year has been extremely good for this house, the Tampa factory running to full capacity.

W. T. Posey, vice-president of the United Cigar Stores Company, sails for Europe on May 13, accompanied by Mrs. Posey and their two children. It is their intention to make a ten-weeks' tour and do nothing but have a most enjoyable time.

E. Rosenwald & Brother, who sustained a considerable loss in the submerging of their warehouses in Dayton, Ohio, during the recent flood, announce that they will not attempt to sell any of their damaged tobacco, but will throw it all out as absolute waste. They state that sooner than run the risk of many of their old-time customers securing tobacco which had become wet, they will throw away the leaf, and that only those goods which were left high and dry during the flood will be sold.

The friends of Louis Martin were not surprised to learn a short time since that he had taken over the Rector Restaurant at Broadway and Sixtieth Street. Ever since Mr. Martin left the corporation which operates Louis Martin's restaurant at Broadway and Forty-second Street, it was expected that he would shortly reopen a restaurant of his own. Mr. Martin stated that he had retired from that concern for the reason that there had been friction in the management. It is understood that he paid $60,000 for his new place of business.

Raymond W. Richards has sold the majority of his interests in the Towne-Fuller Company, of Westfield, Connecticut, to R. K. Fuller, of Springfield, Massachusetts. Mr. Richards retires owing to ill health. He owned a controlling interest in the concern. The Towne-Fuller Company came into existence in Munson about 1861, when Charles Fuller, the father of the present owner of the business, started a factory in that town. At present they employ a hundred hands and have an output of about 5,000,000 cigars a year.

British-American Tobacco Co. Loses in Suit Against Chain Stores

In Injunction Asked for Against British-American Cigar Stores Co. Court Declares Plaintiff Does Not Furnish Sufficient Proof

IN a decision handed down by Justice Davis, in the suit of the British-American Tobacco Company, against the British-American Cigar Stores Company, in an effort to compel the latter to discontinue using its corporate name, the former concern contending that the two names were so similar as to injure its business, the court sustained the Stores Company. The British-American Cigar Stores Company, the president of which is W. W. St. John, the well-known New York retail cigar dealer, asserted that this suit was brought simply to hamper them in their business, and that there would be no confliction whatever, their concern retailing cigars while the British-American Tobacco Company was a manufacturing and wholesaling firm. The British-American Cigar Stores Company is incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000. Counsel for the British-American Tobacco Company state that they will carry the case to a higher court.

The decision handed down by Justice Davis was as follows:

In this action the plaintiff prays for judgment restraining the defendant from using as its corporate name the words "British-American Cigar Stores Company," or any other name containing the words "British-American," or from using the words "British-American" in any manner whatsoever. The question now before the court for its decision is whether the plaintiff should have an injunction pendente lite. The plaintiff and defendant are both foreign corporations, and each is authorized under the laws of New York to do business within this state. Speaking generally, each is now engaged in the sale of tobacco, the plaintiff a wholesaler, the defendant as a retailer.

The plaintiff was organized in 1902 under the laws of Great Britain and the defendant in 1912 under the laws of New Jersey. The plaintiff claims that the defendant's acts amount to unfair business competition resulting in a confusion in the public mind of the business of the defendant with that of the plaintiff. In effect the complaint and affidavits used on this motion allege that the defendant deliberately selected the words "British-American" as a part of its corporate name with bad faith and with the intent to mislead the public and to make it believe that the defendant was connected in business with or identical with the plaintiff, with the ultimate design of selling the defendant's goods as the goods of the plaintiff.

If the plaintiff can establish by satisfactory evidence that its long use of the words "British-American" as a part of its corporate name had given to those words a secondary meaning in the mind of the public, so as peculiarly to connect the business carried on by the plaintiff with the words "British-American," I think it would give the plaintiff a right to enjoin the defendant from using those words in its corporate name, provided it was also established that the use of those words by the defendant was fraudulent and was for the purpose of misleading buyers into the belief that they were buying the goods of the plaintiff (French Republic vs. Saratoga Vichy Co., 191 U. S. 427, 435).

The pleadings in this case seem to me to be sufficient to raise these issues, but the proofs as contained in the affidavits I do not deem sufficient to justify the granting of this motion. The granting of it would substantially determine the action in favor of the plaintiff in advance of the trial. In denying this motion I do not pass upon the merits of the action itself, but simply decide that it is not a case which requires the intervention of a court of equity by its injunction pendente lite. The motion must be denied.

A fine new cigar stand is being opened in the Chamber of Commerce Building, New Haven, Connecticut, by Matoon, Incorporated, who are already operating a store on Chapel Street, that city.

The only private race track in America ever built and directed by a woman was opened on Thursday, April 24, at "Hinata," the Japanese country place and stud farm of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence LeBus, near Lexington, Kentucky. Mr. LeBus, as is well known, is the millionaire president of the Burley Tobacco Society, which manufactures the "City Club" smoking tobacco now being pushed heavily in all parts of the country.

PHILADELPHIA.

Gumpert Bros. Get Larger Factory

GUMPERT BROTHERS, cigar manufacturers, located at 417 Locust Street, this city, have just leased another building at 227 Church Street, into which they expect to move the latter part of May. The new building is a five-story brick structure, well lighted and well ventilated, and ideally adapted to the manufacture of cigars. They are erecting a huge humidor in the cellar, putting in new steam power and improving the elevator service, so as to bring their facilities up to date in every particular.

The securing of larger quarters has been necessitated by the rapid growth in their business, and they expect to be able to seat forty per cent. more cigarmakers in their new factory, thereby increasing their output and enabling them to keep up with their orders. Manager Duisberg states that the demand for their "Full Weight" brand of cigars is overtaxing their facilities and that larger quarters were imperative.

Stephano Bros. Raise Prices of "Rameses"

Stephano Brothers have sent a circular to the trade announcing an increase of from fifty cents to one dollar on some of their brands of cigarettes. This goes into effect on May 1. Hereafter "Rameses" cigarettes, plain tips, sell at $16 per thousand for the 10's and 20's, $15.50 for 50's and $15 per thousand for 100's. The cork tip "Rameses" will sell at $16.50 for 20's. These brands have been advertised heavily in the daily papers and caused quite a bit of comment in view of the fact that this firm had never advertised in any way before, and the manufacturers claimed it was not necessary.

Frishmuth's Now a Union Factory

It has been announced by Anthony McAndrew, who is head of the Tobacco Workers' International Union, that upon a recent trip to this city he came to an agreement with Frishmuth, Brother & Company, Seventeenth and Lehigh Avenue, by which its employees will become a branch of the International Union. All the products of the Frishmuth factory will hereafter bear the Union blue label. Attempts have been made several times to organize this factory as a union plant, but have always failed due to the opposition of the proprietors.

Showell, Fryer & Company, are beginning to remove to their new store on Chestnut Street near Sixteenth. They do a heavy business in cigars.

Notes of the Local Trade

The Speed-Goodloe Cigar Company have taken on a new high-grade Porto Rico cigar, the "El Durbro," manufactured by Durlach Brothers, of New York City.

The new Vanaman cigar and stationery store at North Thirteenth and Cuthbert Streets, was opened on last Monday. As a special they are selling all the best-known nickel Philadelphia cigars at wholesale prices, in box lots.

William Coupe, the Germantown cigar dealer, has been pushing Manila cigars in his two stores on Germantown Avenue near Chelten Avenue, the past week. Mr. Coupe stated recently that his latest store below Chelten Avenue had more than come up to expectations in the volume of business done. It was opened over a year ago.

M. Babayan, the cigarette manufacturer and retail cigar dealer, with a store and manufactory at 213 South Fifty-second Street, has made preparations to open a factory at 1028 Chestnut Street. He has ordered the machinery and as soon as it is installed will begin operations. It is understood that he will occupy the fourth floor, and will give up his retail business in West Philadelphia. He manufactures the "Deran" cigarette.

The "Counsellor" cigar, Allen Cressman's Sons, is making excellent headway on the Pacific Coast, where it has been pushed the past month with great vigor. This brand was introduced in San Francisco for the first time a short time ago and has been placed in many of the best cigar stores in the city.

J. H. Boltz, head of the Boltz, Clymer & Company's factories, who was recently seriously injured by a fall downstairs, has recovered sufficiently to go to the Philadelphia factory several days a week. He is still suffering, however, from the shock, and he plans to take work easy until he has fully recuperated.

L. M. Walters, of Bobrow Brothers, is now on a trip through the Middle West. He will cover the flood district, calling on the "Bold" jobbers there. Among these are Bentley Brothers, of Dayton, Ohio; L. W. Bosart, of Springfield, Ohio, and Vogelle-Dinning, of Toledo and Mansfield, Ohio. All these jobbers have ordered goods heavier than usual, owing to the many dealers in that section having been cleaned out.

Local Hustling Cigar Dealer

THE likeness shown herewith is that of Daniel S. Ostrow, the Seventh and Chestnut cigar dealer, figuring out just how much to the good he stands as a result of one of his special week-end sales. "Dan" specializes on these sales, and you can always tell when he is having one while you are yet a square away from his store by the way the customers are hustling in and out of the place. He doesn't have any ornate entrance to his stand, not any expensive fittings, for the simple reason that space with him is at a premium. But the men who stop in there apparently do not worry about that.

Daniel S. Ostrow

"Dan" carries more brands of cigars than you can shake a stick at. It doesn't matter what your tastes are, he can produce the goods. Among the high-grade cigars he handles are: "Sanchez y Haya," "Webster," "Y Pendas & Alvarez," "Jose Vila," Berriman Brothers; the F. Lozano line; "Hernan Cortez"; "Dakem," G. H. P. Company; "La Verdad," Simon Batt & Company, in addition to the Havana imported cigars like the "Romeo & Juliets" and "La Carolinas." The "Bolds," "Cinco," "Havana Ribbons" and "Roigs" figure in the nickel line, also a special brand made for "Dan" by a Key West firm, the "Granido."

The present store at Seventh and Chestnut Streets was taken over about a year ago and since that time things have been humming around that neighborhood. Besides his Chestnut Street stand "Dan" has been operating a store at Sixteenth and Diamond Streets, where his brother assists him.

Charles Techner, 30 South Seventh Street, will shortly discontinue selling cigars at that point and will move to one of the upper floors at 34 South Seventh Street, where he will do a box trade.

The "El Wadora" cigar of Sig C. Mayer & Company is being pushed in all parts of the country by the manufacturers and jobbers of the brand. It has taken particularly well on the Pacific Coast, where this cigar is among the biggest sellers of its class.

The Manila cigar has been the subject of more attention than usual lately in the centre of the city. A trip to the outlying points of the city also shows window displays and special sales on these goods. Dealers state that there is an increasing demand for the better class of Manilas and that it will be only a question of time when the cheap piece of goods will not sell at any price.

The Juan Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company is distributing some artistic transparencies to their trade on the "Portuondo." They have recently been featuring their "Londres Grandes" and their results along these lines have more than justified the efforts.

Lancaster

Slight Let-up in Cigar Manufacturing Activities—York County Tobacco Growers to Receive State Aid—Pittsburg Stogie Concern Opens Local Factory

LANCASTER, April 24.

THERE has been a lull in cigar manufacturing circles the past two weeks, but this is not as noticeable as in other years. The majority of the factories have a number of orders on hand and state that their spring trade was above normal. The same conditions seem to exist in other Ninth District points.

The leaf tobacco situation is occupying the limelight at present. It is hoped by the leaf tobacco dealers that the flood in the Ohio Valley will create a demand for Pennsylvania tobacco, and if the loss is as large as at first estimated this will probably be the case. Lancaster County has an enormous amount of filler leaf on hand and the time is at hand when the packers hope to realize on it. The 1910 is virtually cleaned up, but from all indications there is more than enough 1911 to go around. Considering how much 1912 tobacco is still to be sold, farmers are wondering what is to become of this year's crop. The major part of last year's crop is in the hands of outside interests, and it is to be hoped that when the 1913 crop is ready for the packers, they will have disposed of a greater part of their other tobacco. It is understood that quite a number of Lancaster County farmers are going to grow Havana seed tobacco this year. Some of them who accepted seed to be used were cautioned about the proper fertilizers. This is a sore point with some cigar manufacturers, who say that the Lancaster County growers are using the wrong kind of fertilizers and are not putting the proper amount of care on their crops.

At the recent meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association an address by Dr. Pickel, a grower and physician of Millersville, caused a lot of comment. Mr. Pickel stated that farmers are losing out on tobacco, and said that this was because the farmers themselves did not take enough interest in their work. The fact that but 200 of the 10,000 planters in this part of the State belonged to the association was pointed to as one example of the lassitude of the growers. He advocated the buying of several warehouses, where the planters could market their tobacco. He ended his talk by saying that the tobacco industry in this county is a "down and out" proposition.

The doctor was doubtless a bit riled about something. The Lancaster County growers are not "down and out" by a great deal, and will be growing tobacco for years to come. One thing which they had better keep in mind, though, is to put more attention to the quality of their goods and not grow so much for weight. The fertilizer question can also be studied to advantage. Then the claim by some cigar manufacturers that Lancaster County tobacco will not burn properly can be laughed at.

The cigar store of the late William Sacks, at Catasauqua, was sold recently at executor's sale. It was bought by deceased's son-in-law, Alvin J. Snyder, of Allentown. The sale of the business realized $2900.

The tobacco growers of York County will receive state and government aid according to D. A. Miller, secretary of the Red Lion Farmers' Club. It is planned to have a number of tobacco growers submit a number of samples of their tobacco to the State College, where it will be examined for burn and other properties. Later a state experiment station will be established in the neighborhood of Red Lion.

Reports from York give it that the cigar manufacturing trade there is in a healthy state. The majority of the factories are doing a fair business, although there has been a noticeable decrease in production as compared with the first three months of the year.

The T. I. Lewis Cigar Company, of Trenton, New Jersey, is reported to have purchased the old Royal cigar box factory in Red Lion, and will shortly engage in the manufacture of cigars at that point. This is probably wrong, the correspondent from York evidently meaning the Lewis Cigar Company, of Newark, New Jersey.

The Dover Cigar Company recently moved into their new factory in that place, which was purchased a short time ago.

A new stogie factory has been opened on East Mifflin Street by the Penn Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The manager now in charge of the place is J. M. Herring. This Pittsburgh firm has a factory in that city, and also had one at Ironton, Ohio, for some time. They were troubled in their operations by lack of labor.

The "Bold" and "Discriminator" cigars, made by Bobrow Brothers, have been placed in the Empire Billiard Room, 21 South Eleventh Street, where they will be carried in a number of sizes. This place has a most up-to-date cigar stand, and has eleven tables for pool and billiards.

A local contractor will shortly begin alterations to the United Cigar Store at Eighth and Chestnut Streets.

Mahlon Shelly, who has been retailing and manufacturing cigars at 3007 North Eighth Street, has removed his establishment to 2919 North Eighth Street.

TAMPA TIPS

Hayes Lewis, New Head of Internal Revenue Department for Florida—L. Cuesta Re-elected President of Cigar Manufacturers' Association—Lay Corner Stone of Centro Asturiano

TAMPA, April 26.

AT a meeting of the Tampa Clear Habana Cigar Manufacturers' Association, L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, was re-elected president; J. Lopez, of Arguelles Lopez & Brother, vice-president; Manuel Sanchez, of Berriman Brothers, treasurer, and George R. Macfarlane, secretary. The directors are: M. Bustillo, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz; M. Alvarez, of A. Santaella & Company; Robert Morgan, of the Morgan Cigar Company, and L. Torre, of E. Regensburg & Sons.

George R. Macfarlane, elected secretary, was for a number of years deputy collector of customs at this port, and is thoroughly familiar with the industry in all its details. I believe no better selection could have been made, as Mr. Macfarlane is a fighter in all things which he thinks are right and fair for the industry he represents.

Hayes Lewis, of Marianna, Florida, succeeds Joseph E. Lee as head of the Internal Revenue Department for the State of Florida, with headquarters at Jacksonville. Joseph Lee (colored) has been at the head of the department for twenty years.

Last Sunday the Centro Asturiano, the largest Spanish organization in America, laid the corner-stone for their new club building, which when completed will be one of the handsomest in the South. The membership of this club is made up of both the cigar manufacturers as well as the cigarmakers, the president of the club being J. Lopez, of Arguelles Lopez & Brother.

A. L. Cuesta is back in town after a few days spent in Atlanta. He reports business as being good.

Sanchez & Haya Company are busy filling orders from the Far West. A. Torre, of the same firm, is on a short trip to the Middle West.

Facundo Arguelles and family are down at Sarasota taking the salt water baths. They expect to be there two or three weeks longer.

Jose Cosio, of Jose Cosio & Company, is back from Cuba after a two weeks' stay looking over the tobacco situation. He will leave shortly for Chicago.

Gus Martinez, of J. M. Martinez Company, is at Hot Springs taking the baths. He expects to be there about a month. Upon his return Mr. Webb, of the same firm, will go there to take the baths.

Corral Wodiska & Company are very busy. Their shipments for this year are still far ahead of 1912.

As yet there is no decision as to who will be the next collector of customs at the port of Tampa. Colonel Calhoun, a life-long Democrat, seems to be the favorite among the Democrats.

been so provided, made, or used as aforesaid with intent to defraud the United States; or if any person shall fraudulently cut, tear, or remove or cause or procure to be cut, torn, or removed the impression of any stamp, die, plate or other instrument which shall have been provided, made or used in pursuance of this act or of any previous provisions of law on the same subject from any paper or any instrument or writing charged or chargeable with any of the taxes imposed by law; or if any person shall fraudulently use, join, fix or place or cause to be used, joined, fixed or placed to, with or upon any paper or any instrument or writing charged or chargeable with any of the taxes hereby imposed any adhesive stamp or the impression of any stamp, die, plate or other instrument which shall have been provided, made, or used in pursuance of law, and which shall have been cut, torn or removed from any other paper or any instrument or writing charged or chargeable with any of the taxes imposed by law; or if any person shall wilfully remove or cause to be removed, alter or cause to be altered, the canceling or defacing marks on any adhesive stamp with the intent to use the stamp, or to cause the use of the same after it shall have been once used, or shall knowingly or wilfully sell or buy such washed or restored stamps, or to offer the same for sale, or to give or expose the same to any person for use, or knowingly use the same, or prepare the same with intent for the further use thereof; or if any person shall knowingly and without lawful excuse, the proof whereof shall lie on the person accused, have in his possession any washed, restored, or altered stamps which have been removed from any article, paper, instrument, or writing, then, and in every case, every person so offending and every person knowingly and wilfully aiding, abetting, or assisting in committing any such offense as aforesaid shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit the said counterfeit, washed, restored, or altered stamps and the articles upon which they are placed, and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1000 or by imprisonment and confinement to hard labor not exceeding five years, or both, at the discretion of the court. And the fact that any adhesive stamp be bought, sold, offered for sale, used, or had in possession as aforesaid has been washed or restored, by removing or altering the canceling or defacing mark thereon, shall be prima facie evidence that the stamp has been once used and removed by the possessor thereof from some paper, instrument, or writing charged or chargeable with taxes imposed by law in violation of the provisions of this section.

Sec. 7. That whenever any person, firm, or corporation violates any of the provisions of section one, section two, section three hereof by the issuance of any coupon, prize ticket, or other device, as provided for in section one, without attaching thereto any adhesive stamp denoting the tax before mentioned, or after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fourteen, presents for redemption, sale, or exchange, or redeems, purchases, or gives property in exchange for any coupon, prize ticket, tag, band, or any other article or thing, as provided in section two hereof, without affixing thereto an adhesive stamp denoting the tax herein provided for, such person, firm, or corporation shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of fifty dollars for every failure to affix such stamp or stamps.

Judge Mayer to Hear Jonas Arguments on May 15

Judge Mayer, in the United States District Court in New York, recently consented to hear on May 15 arguments on demurrers interposed by the American Tobacco Company and the United Cigar Stores Company to the "bill in the nature of review" filed on January 15, 1912, by Otto S. Jonas, the New York tobacco dealer, for himself and other retail tobacco dealers in that city.

In the petition accompanying the "bill of review" Mr. Jonas asked for the setting aside of the Circuit Court's decree on the ground that it was not in accordance with the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States. Mr. Jonas states that due to trade favors extended to his competitors his business was destroyed. He therefore asks the court to award him treble damages under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

The United Cigar Dealers' Company was incorporated in Chicago recently with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators named are Frank A. Lasley, Harry C. Grossman and Louis H. Grossman.

Henry M. Prince, the Seattle and Tacoma, Washington, cigar merchant, a short time ago opened his fourth store, at Eleventh and A Streets, Tacoma.

Tobacco Products Corporation May Work Abroad

A late report from London states that there is a rumor in that city that the Tobacco Products Corporation is negotiating for the control of the retail cigar stores of Albert Baker & Company, Limited, of London. According to this statement this concern has fifty-three stores, the majority of which are in London. It is capitalized at $1,000,000, and last year paid six per cent. in dividends.

Persons who are in a position to know state that the Baker Company had a ten-year contract with the Imperial Tobacco Company, which contract expired recently. It has been said that no attempt has been made to renew this contract and that the Tobacco Products Corporation has begun negotiations which will end in either the actual taking over of the Baker stores or the closing of a contract by which the London concern will handle the products of the Tobacco Products Corporation.

Paul Lecurtz, a retailer of Erie, Pennsylvania, has just taken on the "Comoy," London, line of pipes, and they are already becoming very popular. He has also added the "Favorita de Cuba," of S. H. Furgatch & Company, to his stock.

The B. F. Meyer Cigar Company, Denver, Colorado, will shortly move to their new factory at Seventeenth and Blake Streets. They manufacture a seed and Havana cigar called "The West."

Harry Dalton, who is well known among the wholesale and retail cigar trade of the Pacific Coast as a representative of the Bondy & Lederer line of cigars, has severed his connection with that concern and it is said in the future will confine his efforts to the oil business.

Cleveland

Nate Weisenberg Sells Out — Oscar E. Fairbanks, New Snyder Manager — Richland Co. Opens Two Retail Stores — Weidman Co. to Distribute "San Felice"

CLEVELAND, April 27.

ALL the tobacco lines report a very brisk trade. While the weather conditions are nothing to brag about, as we are getting all the fifty-seven varieties thrown pell mell into one week, the majority of the trade is showing a very nice increase over last year and the outlook in general is more than bright for a splendid spring business.

Nate Weisenberg, owner of the Euclid Arcade cigar store, has just sold out his interest in same to Mr. Everett B. Lawston. Mr. Weisenberg has gone to Nashville, Tennessee, where he expects to locate in the very near future. His many friends here wish him the utmost success in his new ventures in the southland. His success is reasonably assured, as he has many, as well as influential, friends in the Southern States.

Everett B. Lawston, who has just acquired the Euclid Arcade cigar stand, has added this to his chain of stores, including a hat store, restaurant and furnishing store. Mr. Lawston, while he is not a cigar man himself, has surrounded himself by able assistants in Mr. Brockaw and a young lady clerk, Miss Bessie Billings, both of whom are entirely at home in the retail cigar business and are fast making acquaintances with their daily customers.

Oscar E. Fairbanks has been appointed to the management of the Joseph T. Snyder store at 523 Euclid Avenue. He is the youngest member of this organization in the city in point of years, but has had a wide experience in the retail world. He has been with the organization for the past two years, is a local boy and very popular with the trade.

Robert C. Heaney, manager of all the Snyder stores in Cleveland, has been with the concern for the past five years. He came here from Buffalo about three years ago and opened up the first Snyder store in Cleveland. The success this organization has attained in this market is due mainly to Mr. Heaney's unceasing efforts and 'genial personality.

Richland is the name of the new company that has just opened two stores here, one at 515 Euclid Avenue and the other at 17 Public Square. James F. Dunn will be manager of the Euclid stand, assisted by Charles D. Kline, and Hyman B. Makman will be manager of the Public Square stand, assisted by Dalton E. Trick. Mr. E. Bauer will be manager over both stores. They will feature the "Richland" cigars and cigarettes, "Osmondo," "Duquesnes," "Abbeys," "Robert Burns" and "General Arthur" cigars. These are two very good locations and the stores are fitted up in the most up-to-date fixtures and equipment, and a bright future is predicted for the Richland Cigar Company.

Mr. George Scrambling, of the George Scrambling Company, reports trade exceedingly good in both the wholesale and retail end. Messrs. Strauss, Doran and Keller, local salesmen for the aforementioned concern, are doing some very effective work in distributing the numerous brands of their concern. Mr. Scrambling informs the writer that he has just added "Reputation," a five-cent cigar made by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company in their Detroit plant, and from its name it certainly ought to be a winner.

The Bond Street store and the Superior Street store of Morris Glucksman in the New Leader Building, are both doing a very nice business. These stores are rated among the most modern and up-to-date plants in the city, and his humidor system assures one of a fresh cigar at any and all seasons of the year. Mr. Glucksman is featuring "Websters," of Pendaz & Alvarez; "La Saramitas," of Shields-Wertheim Company; "Partagas," of Cifuentes, Fernandez y Ca.; and "Lozanos," of F. Lozano, Sons & Company.

Mr. Allen, of the Pyle & Allen Company, reports a shortage of "Bachelor" cigars. They can not get cigars enough of this popular brand to supply the ever-increasing demand.

Mr. J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, has just left for a tour of the East, where he is putting in some good licks on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." Mr. J. C. Leverance, of the same concern, is on his way through Ohio and West Virginia. His every order for "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" is accompanied by a letter bringing out some new phase of the destruction wrought by the recent terrible floods. He is having a pretty hard time making any progress through these states, as the railroads have only partially relayed their tracks. Mr. L. B. Shields, W. O. Blashke and F. P. Shields are all doing good work in the local market and are doing their utmost to keep the trade supplied with "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." Their efforts have been so pronounced that the factory is away behind in filling their orders.

Among the visitors in town the past week was Mr. Wemmer, of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, who has succeeded in placing the "El Verso" and "San Felice" brands, formerly distributed by the Louis Klein Cigar Company, with the Weideman Company.

Mr. Torre, of the Sanchez & Haya factory; Mr. Higgins, of Park & Tilford; Marcus Fleishman and Fred Singer, of S. Rossin & Sons' leaf tobacco house, of New York; A. Beckman, representing B. Van Leer, leaf tobacco house, also of New York; J. L. Daniels, leaf tobacco grower, of Kealakekua, South Kona, Hawaii; John W. Merriam, of the John W. Merriam Company, New York; Ben Lesser, of H. Lozano Sons' Company, Tampa, Florida, and Joe Gans, of Gans Brothers, New York, called on the trade the past week. JERRY.

Joseph T. Snyder Opens Erie, Pa., Store

Special Pipe Offer the Feature of First Day's Business — Harry Cummings, Local Man, Manager

ERIE, PA., April 19.

A STIR in retail circles was created here today by the opening of a new store in the already large chain owned by Joseph T. Snyder, of Buffalo. Mr. Snyder and his purchasing agent, Mr. Matthias, were present at the launching of the new venture. It was featured by a special pipe offer which caused favorable comment. An expert pipe demonstrator, M. N. C. Campbell, was here during the opening week, giving pointers and advice to Erie pipe smokers.

Harry Cummings, who will manage the store, is a local man and is well known and popular.

The Snyder stores handle many cigar lines, and are at present featuring the "Rey-Oma" of Sig C. Mayer. They are also distributors of "Havana Ribbons," "Roigs" and the Juan Portuondo line.

Some consternation was felt by other retailers prior to the opening of the new branch, but one prominent man said recently: "My trade last week improved twenty-five per cent., and if it was caused by the Snyder opening I wish he had opened a place here long ago."

New York State Jottings

John C. Cohn, retailer and manufacturer, 176 Seneca Street, Buffalo, New York, has purchased exclusive control of the business of Cohn & Company, of the same address. The factory will be enlarged and new fixtures installed in the store. Mr. Cohn makes the "Sentinel," his five-cent leader, and also a ten-cent piece of goods called the "Moneyworth." These cigars have a large local distribution.

Morris & Rau, manufacturers and retailers, of 14 West Eagle Street, Buffalo, have opened a branch at 16 West Chippewa Street. They make the "Imperial" and "Diplomat," clear Havana ten-cent goods, and their five-cent leader, "Surprise," is known to smokers all over town.

The Morris & Rau concern is unique in the fact that the entire output of their plant, which employs twenty-three people, is distributed in these two stores which carry no other brands.

Frank L. Pfennig, who has carried on a retail and wholesale business at 95 Genesee Street, Buffalo, has changed his location to 399 Broadway, that city.

Aug. Peterson, wine merchant and retailer, of Jamestown, New York, reports a good demand for "Rey-Oma," of Sig C. Mayer, and "Flor de Valentine," of A. S. Valentine & Sons. "Rey-Oma" is distributed in that section by the Blakeslee-Snyder Company, of Buffalo, New York.

R. R. Mason, of the Mason News Company, which has three stores in Jamestown, New York, is doing a large business on the "Flor de Portuondo," of the Juan Portuondo Cigar Company. There is a big demand for Portuondo goods in that locality.

Pullman & Carle, wholesalers, Ashtabula, Ohio, are doing a big spring business on Lipschutz's "44" cigar and Cressman's "Counsellor." Their leading ten-cent brands are "El Verso," of Deisel & Wemmer, Lima, Ohio, and the "Flor de Girard," of Roig & Langsdorf. They have exclusive control of these brands in the North Ohio district outside of Cleveland.

Proposed Successor to Roy Cabell, Experienced Tobacco Manufacturer

William H. Osborn, Literally Raised in the Business, His Father Having Operated a Leaf and Plug Tobacco Factory

WILLIAM HENRY OSBORN, President Wilson's choice as the new United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue, was born in Oxford, North Carolina, February 21, 1856. His father was Daniel S. Osborn, one of the largest tobacco manufacturers of his day. Mr. Osborn's early education was secured in the public schools of Oxford. Later he attended college and after graduating went to work for day wages in the leaf and plug tobacco factory operated by his father. In 1876, just before reaching his majority, he determined to strike out for himself. He settled in Durham, North Carolina, where he engaged in the leaf tobacco and warehouse business, later forming a partnership with the Cooper-Blackwell Company. Thus it will be seen that Mr. Osborn was literally reared in the tobacco business, and as he is credited with having a keen insight into all of its branches, from the plant bed to the market, this experience will be an invaluable asset to him in his new position.

William Henry Osborn

Colonel Osborn is known all over the country, as president of the Keeley Institute. This is located in Greensboro and is the largest institution of its kind in the United States. Mr. Osborn became president of this institution in 1892, and his long association with it has been a factor in his making friendships with men from all parts of the country. In 1900 he was a member of the directorate of the State Prison and from 1901 to 1905 was mayor of Greensboro. He is a director of the following corporations: Oxford Buggy Company, Long-Winston Trading Company, Greensboro Home Savings Bank, Keeley Institute of North Caroline and the Cunningham Brick Company.

Mr. Osborn is also interested in philanthropic work. A charity to which he has given both time and money is the North Carolina Children's Home Society. He was one of the most enthusiastic workers during the early days of this institution. In recognition of this service, he was made the first president of the society, serving for six years. He is now a member of its board of directors. In the nine years of its existence this charity has secured homes for more than sixteen hundred homeless boys and girls.

Colonel Osborn was never an office seeker, being deeply wrapped up in his own business enterprises, yet when his name was mentioned for the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, all of the Supreme Court Judges of North Carolina, all of the Superior Court Judges, all the Federal Judges and many state officers, indorsed him for appointment. In addition to these, letters from citizens in every state in the Union were added to the indorsements of the public officials. Congressional delegations from all the states, except a few having candidates of their own for the office, petitioned President Wilson for the appointment.

In entering upon the duties of his new office, Mr. Osborn will do with the best wishes of thousands of his friends throughout the country. He is considered an authority on tobacco and has a deep insight into the business. In addition to this he is considered an authority on whiskey, having been appointed to act as appraiser in a number of cases which came before Judge Boyd of the Federal Circuit Court of North Carolina. With these splendid qualifications the tobacco trade is hoping for a most efficient administration under Mr. Osborn and will await the settlement of a number of arguments now before the Internal Revenue Department, the interpretation of which is rather hazy at the present time.

Universal Tobacco Machine Co. Wins Suit Against Borgfeldt's

In a decision handed down by Judge Hand, of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, on Tuesday, April 22, the Universal Tobacco Machine Company wins its suit for infringement against the Borgfeldt Stripping Machine Company.

The Universal Tobacco Machine Company first brought suit in August, 1912. Their tobacco stripping and booking machine has been manufactured by them for several years. About a year ago the Borgfeldt Company advertised their stripping machine, upon which the Universal Company brought suit, claiming infringement of United States Patent No. 985,984, owned by them.

Francisco Bolano Head of Chicago House

The position of Adolph M. Seckbach, formerly president of Francisco Bolano y Ca, of Chicago, cigar manufacturers, has been filled by the election of Francisco Bolano, who becomes the new president. Mr. Seckbach sold his interests in the firm a short time ago and has retired.

The J. S. Pinkussohn Cigar Company, of Jacksonville, Florida, with stores at 51 and 125 West Bay Street, and in the Duval Hotel, have opened a fourth store at 39 East Bay Street. This concern has been operating stores in Jacksonville for more than ten years. As a convenience to their customers they hold the city agency for the sale of baseball tickets.

American Merchants' Syndicate Admits Bankruptcy

Voluntary Petition Filed, Showing Liabilities of $116,661, Owed to 226 Creditors—May Start up Again

(By Special Correspondent.)

LOS ANGELES, April 20.

ACKNOWLEDGING the claims of 226 unpaid creditors, and total liabilities of $116,661.14, the American Merchants' Syndicate, Tuesday of last week, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in the Federal Court. Judge Wellborn has appointed Lynn Helm referee in bankruptcy, and W. H. Moore, one of his assistants, has taken charge of the assets and liabilities for the government. All business has been suspended, although the offices at 236 South Los Angeles Street are open, so that the other tenants of the building will not be disturbed.

Up to last Friday it was believed that the heads of the American Merchants' Syndicate would fight the attempt of creditors to throw them into bankruptcy, but early this week it was found that too large a number of creditors demanded that the business be liquidated and, rather than fight longer, President J. F. Paulding signed a voluntary petition, asking the government to take charge. In his statement to the court Mr. Paulding says: "The American Merchants' Syndicate owes debts that it is unable to pay in full. It is willing to surrender all of its property for the benefit of its creditors (except such as is exempt by law) and desires to obtain the benefit of the Act of Congress relative to bankruptcy."

Then follows a statement of assets and liabilities, together with a list of known creditors with the amount of their claims. It is doubtful if a schedule has been filed in the local court in recent years, showing as many creditors. The total unsecured is 224 and 2 secured creditors, bring the number to 226. Claims range from $2.65 by the J. R. Newberry Company, up to $10,466.78 by the Max Roth Cigar Company. Following is a partial list of the large local creditors, together with the amounts of their claims:

Adirondack Maple Syrup Company, $1266.32; Albers Brothers, $98.52; American Merchants' Underwriters, $4649.40; American Olive Company, $944.14; Austin Biscuit Company, $1375.32; Blake, Moffit & Towne, $1413.20; Blanke Tea and Coffee Company, $306.25; Bowles Brothers, $403.23; Bryna-Garnier & Brandenburg Company, $137.80; Joseph Burnett Company, $126.31; Burr Creamery Company, $175.95; California Macaroni Company, $276.58; California Truck Company, $866.23; Lawyers (various), $3271; Coos Bay Condensed Milk Company, $1067.50; Emil Frank, $1125.60; Globe Tobacco Company, $6500; Greenwald Cigar Company, $233.34; Retail Grocers' Advocate (S. F.), $187.50; A. M. Gunst, $1957.71; Harris Hillebrand Company, $365.92; Joanes-Splane Company, $3645.28; L. A. Examiner, $403.07; McCarthy & Meyers, retail grocers, $1100; Mercantile Underwriters, $1498.11; Rose L. Paulding, $3786; Pioneer Soap Company, $511.86; Reid, Murdock & Company, $2500; Max Roth Cigar Company, $10,466.78; South California Grocers' Exchange (L. A. Market), $1232.51; St. Elmo Cigar Company, $2768.62; J. H. Stewart Company, $1449.73; Los Angeles "Times," $289.19; Los Angeles "Tribune," $212.95; Wayside "Press," $3439.01.

In addition to local creditors there are more than twenty creditors, with claims ranging from a few dollars to more than $1000.

The claims of $3271 for lawyers' fees cover work done for the American Merchants' Syndicate by two firms of local attorneys in an effort to keep the American Merchants' Syndicate out of bankruptcy. The claim of Rose L. Spaulding, wife of J. F. Spaulding, president, is for money loaned by her to the American Merchants' Syndicate.

McCarthy & Meyers, who appear as creditors to the amount of $1100, are retail grocers of 752-754 South Olive Street, Los Angeles. It is said that this firm purchased large quantities of goods for the American Merchants' Syndicate from jobbers and others who refused to sell the syndicate direct, and that at the time the business went into the hands of a receiver they had not been paid for $1100 worth of merchandise delivered.

Among the smaller creditors are several salesmen and other employes for back salary prior to November 1. Under the bankruptcy law salaries for services rendered more than three months prior to the filing of the application are not preferred claims and therefore these employes will have to take pot-luck with the others. It is doubtful if the unsecured creditors will get more than twenty to thirty cents on the dollar.

The two secured creditors are the American Savings Bank, $14,500, and R. C. Riley, $4000. The bank claim is secured by land at Perris and Rosemont, California, together with $20,000 of subscription contracts. Riley's security is all in subscription contracts.

Cincinnati Jobbers Helping Out Flood Sufferers

CINCINNATI cigar wholesaling houses are doing everything possible to extend credit to retailers throughout Ohio who suffered financial loss in the recent floods. They anticipate a big business now that many dealers are compelled to completely restock their stores. Representatives of cigar firms who stated that they would give this section a wide berth for several months are cautioned to keep in touch with the Cincinnati firms, as money appears to be plenty and the trade is being built up again on a substantial basis.

The Dayton dealers will probably be the heaviest losers. M. J. Schwab lost everything. The current at Third and Main Streets, at which point his Phillips House stand is located, was so strong as to clean out the store of stock and fixtures. He lost $2500 at each of his other two stands. Eisenberger Brothers, at Third and Main Streets, Dayton, large retailers and wholesalers, sustained a loss of $10,000 in stock. Taking these matters into consideration, it would seem advisable that the best things the traveling representatives could do would be to keep in touch with the jobbing concerns in the flooded districts.

Louis Klein Cigar Co. Discontinue Wholesale Business

The Louis Klein Cigar Company, of Cleveland, a well-known retail and jobbing house, have announced that hereafter they will put all their efforts on their retail business and will discontinue the jobbing end. Mr. Klein, of this concern, emphatically denied the recent rumors that the Louis Klein Cigar Company was financially embarrassed.

The "Saboroso" cigar, manufactured by Vetterlein Brothers, of Philadelphia, has been taken on for distribution by the W. H. Harris Grocery Company, of Richmond, Virginia. This deal was carried through by Joseph S. Vetterlein, of the Philadelphia house, at which time he made arrangements for shipping 1,500,000 "Saborosos" to the Richmond house, which will have entire control of the brand for that city and contiguous territory.

George Weislow, factory representative of Rosenthal Brothers, of New York, is pushing the "R. B." cigar through the Yahr & Lange Drug Company, of Milwaukee, who are the distributors of the brand in that section.

Peckarsky Brothers, who recently took on the "44" cigar, 44 Cigar Company, of Philadelphia, lost no time in distributing their first shipment among the dealers in Milwaukee. They have already ordered a second and larger consignment of these goods.

Julian Garrene, formerly connected with the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, of St. Louis, as buyer, and well known to every traveling man in that section of the country, has accepted a position with the Chicago firm of G. W. Faber & Company, Incorporated.

Baltimore

Wertheimers to Occupy New Factory About June 1st—"United" Opens Fifth Stand in Baltimore at 310 East Baltimore St.—Lilly, Dungan & Co. Push "Reynaldos"

BALTIMORE, April 18.

THE cigar trade taken as a whole is slightly above the average for this time of the year. The majority of the Baltimore factories are working to full capacity and the output for the first three months of the year is far ahead of the same period in 1912. The retail stands are doing fairly well, although the bad weather recently had a paralyzing effect on business. The cigar dealers in the neighborhood of 300 East Baltimore Street are watching with interest the opening of the new United store at No. 310.

This was opened today in the usual manner. Free souvenirs were given away. They are reported to have done a good day's work, although this is to be expected on the opening. This store will occupy the front of the building which the McGraw cafe has been occupying for some time, the restaurant being moved to the rear of the building. This latest United stand is the fifth one in Baltimore.

Sam Wertheimer, of Wertheimer Brothers, is home after a long trip through the West. He has charge of the sales force and is kept on the jump the greater part of the time. Unfortunately he is now inconvenienced with a boil and is hoping this affliction will leave him before long. The new "El Dallo" factory will not probably be occupied until the first of June. There has been some delay in installing some of the fixtures and machinery. When the place is finished it should be ideal for cigar manufacturing, as the building is large and adapted for the purposes to which it will be put.

The Boucher store is displaying this week the "Adelina Patti" cigar, a brand made for them by a large Tampa factory. They are the sole distributors for the cigar in this territory. The cigar retails for ten cents and upwards, and is a high grade piece of goods.

Lilly, Dungan & Company are featuring the "Savarona" cigar in their front window at the "Flat Iron" store. This cigar is manufactured by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, of Porto Rico, and is a big seller in Baltimore. Lilly, Dungan & Company have just closed a heavy campaign on the "Reynaldo" cigar, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia. This brand was displayed in all of the seven windows of the store some time ago and attracted considerable attention. It is rare to see a brand pushed in this manner, the jobber using every one of his windows, and especially when he has seven of them. Lilly, Dungan & Company are the distributors of this cigar in Baltimore and vicinity, and do a fine business on it.

Kraus & Company are now pushing their "Havana University" cigar. This brand has been one of their best sellers and is well known in outside places.

Chambers & Owen, who have conducted a wholesale business in cigars and notions in Milton Junction, Wisconsin, for many years, recently incorporated its business under the state laws and will hereafter be known as the Chambers & Owen Company. J. H. Owen, due to poor health, retires from personal activity in the business, although he retains considerable stock in the new concern.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Originators of Cedar Paper Covered Can

Jeitles & Blumenthal, the Philadelphia cigar manufacturers, in their advertisement of page 3 of the current issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD call the attention of the trade to the fact that they are putting out cigars in a cedar, paper-covered metal can, which package was originated by them.

They were the pioneers in introducing their products to cigar dealers throughout the country with this packing and built up a large trade on their goods packed in this way. Recently, they state, their success has caused a number of other manufacturers to copy their can so that it looks identically like the Jeitles & Blumenthal can.

On that account they make the announcement that they will prosecute any infringements as they feel that they are entitled to this distinctive package, and have been advised by counsel that this style of package is their trade-mark, to which they are justly entitled.

Amerian Merchant's Syndicate Admits Bankruptcy

By subscription contracts is meant contracts with merchants and others who bought stock in installments and who have paid only a part down. These creditors, in order to protect themselves, no doubt will undertake to enforce collection against the several hundred small dealers who bought stock, ten per cent. down and ten per cent. a month.

As against the $116,661.14 liabilities the petition lists the following assets:

Real estate	$8,700.00
Stock of merchandise	45,000.00
Vehicles	500.00
Machinery and tools	2,500.00
Other personal property	10,000.00
Debts due on open accounts	35,000.00
Unliquidated claims	75,000.00
Deposits of money in the bank and elsewhere	16.63
Total	$176,716.63

Ten thousand dollars listed as other personal property is the estimated value placed by the president on the "Merchants' Journal," a monthly publication circulated free among the stockholders and members.

The $45,000 of merchandise covers tobacco, groceries, etc., on hand at 236 South Los Angeles Street. The debts due on open accounts are owned by merchants to the American Merchants' Syndicate, and many are disputed. The largest item in the list of unliquidated claims, $75,000, covers balances due on installment subscription contracts, as explained above.

This perhaps is the saddest feature of the American Merchants' Syndicate bankruptcy, for it is evident that the referee and the two secured creditors will be compelled to bring action against all merchants who subscribed for stock and have not paid for it in full. The only method which a merchant could follow in contesting these claims would be to prove to the court that the stock had been sold through misrepresentation or fraud. A concerted effort may be made by these stockholders to prove misrepresentation and thus have the claim cancelled. It has not been charged that malicious attempt was made to misrepresent, but it is believed that a showing could be made that highly exaggerated statements were printed as to the value of the stock and prospects for success.

Plans have already been made by a part of the membership of the American Merchants' Syndicate to start a new buying exchange. Referring to the matter President Paulding said last Thursday: "When the business went into the hands of the receiver in February we raised a trustee fund among our merchant members, and this at all times had been kept entirely separate from the American Merchants' Syndicate. We have in this fund about $5000, and with this money we will begin business anew at once. Arrangements have been made with the referee in bankruptcy to rent a space in this building for carrying on our work and we expect to start by next Monday morning."

For about two years the officers of the American Merchants' Syndicate have conducted two co-operative insurance companies under the names of the American Merchants' Underwriters and the Mercantile Underwriters, but these are separate corporations and have been kept partially separate from the American Merchants' Syndicate. However, the funds received from insurance premiums up to the date of receivership were so much a part of the American Merchants' Syndicate funds that the receiver declared them to be money in the general treasury and this money was used to meet current obligations after receivership.

Since the receivership was appointed in February all the money received for insurance has been deposited in a separate bank and will not figure at all in the bankruptcy proceedings. With this fund made up of insurance premiums since February, the two insurance companies will be continued by the new organization and the effort will be made to build up the business. Of the fire losses incurred at Ocean Park last fall, thirty per cent. has been paid, and President Paulding states that they hope to pay another ten to twenty per cent. in the next few weeks.

M. B.

A charter was recently issued to the Pure Gold Tobacco Company, of Greeneville, Tennessee, with a capital stock of $300,000. The incorporators named are M. R. Armitage, W. H. Armitage, James Armitage, J. E. Spears and Edward Babb.

The Venezuela Development Company was incorporated at Dover, Delaware, about ten days ago with a capital stock of $4,000,000. They will deal in all kinds of tropical fruits, including sugar cane and tobacco. The incorporators are Juan Paris Pijio, Joseph J. Paris, Julian A. Arroyo, all of New York City, and Norman P. Coffin, Herbert E. Latter and Oscar J. Reith, all of Wilmington, Delaware.

Cigar Manufacturers Holding Their Own in Output—Miss Pauline Wardlow, Daughter of John Wardlow, Weds—Francisco Simon & Co. Apply for License

KEY WEST, FLORIDA, April 25.

BUSINESS for the last fifteen days has been nothing to brag about. Conditions at the various factories remain practically unchanged from my last report, and while most of the manufacturers cannot say that there has been any material increase, they are glad to say that no decrease has been apparent.

In an interview at the office of E. H. Gato & Company, it is stated that business is fine and orders coming in at a good pace. Mr. Eduardo H. Gato, Jr., returned from Havana last Saturday, the nineteenth, and Mr. Thomas Gato, accompanied by Mrs. Gato, will leave for Havana tonight; there he will remain for about one month, after which he will leave for the New York headquarters.

The manager of M. Perez & Company said to your correspondent: "Business seems to be picking up a little; we are still making large shipments of our 'Pinzon' cigar on nearly every steamer leaving Key West."

Practically no change in business has been noticed at the factory of Geo. W. Nichols & Company; business is, however, quoted fair and steady.

Business with the Martinez-Havana Company also remains unchanged; they are working quite a large number of cigarmakers and orders are received from every section with occasional telegraphic calls for immediate shipment. Mr. Louis Martinez, president of this company, who is now in Havana, is expected at the Key West office next week.

Two hundred and fifty cigarmakers are being employed at present at the Cortez Cigar Company's floors. Business is quoted fair and steady, but no fluctuation on either side.

The greatest social event this week was the wedding of Miss Pauline Wardlow, daughter of Mr. John Wardlow (president and manager of the Ruy Lopez Ca.), and Mr. Samuel B. Tuell, who for a number of years resided in this city, until recently, when he went to Pawtucket, Rhode Island, to accept a prominent position. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents on the evening of the twenty-first instant, at 6.30 P. M., and immediately after the ceremonies a reception was held for the numerous friends of Mr. and Mrs. Tuell. After a few hours of nuptial festivities had been daintily celebrated, in which all present enjoyed a glorious time, the couple were escorted to the P. & O. Steamship Company's wharf, where they sailed on the "Mascott" for Havana, carrying with them the good wishes of all the friends. After spending a few days in the city of Havana, they will leave for the North and will visit at several points before proceeding for Pawtucket, Rhode Island, where they will make their future home.

Among the visitors in the last fifteen days were Mr. Fred James, construction architect of Cuesta, Rey & Company, who stopped in the city while on his way to Havana. Mr. W. Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, was also a visitor while on his way to Havana. Mr. Emilio Pons, of Emilio Pons & Company, of Tampa, Florida, was also on his way to Havana and stopped in the city for a short visit.

Business at the factory of Trujillo & Company is quoted good. Orders for "Polonius" are coming in a little better, and a still better business is anticipated.

Mr. F. Lederer, vice-president and secretary of the Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company, of New York, who had been in Havana for ten days, was in the city yesterday calling on the trade, and left for Tampa last night, where he will call on the local trade there. During his one day's visit in Key West, he made his headquarters at the office of Aurelio Torres, dealer in leaf tobacco.

Lovato & Diaz, who recently made application for a cigar manufacturer's license, were assigned No. 197.

Francisco Simon & Company, made application for a cigar manufacturer's license, factory number to be assigned.

In spite of the fact that no material increase has been apparent among the local cigar factories for the past fifteen days, it is well to note that the cigar shipments for the fifteen days ending April 24 exceed those of the previous fifteen days by fifty-four cases, or nearly nine and one-half per cent.; that is, six hundred and thirty-four cases, against five hundred and eighty cases; and, therefore, it is evident that the manufactured stock in the various factories is pretty well worked off.

Leaf importations in the past fifteen days have been rather light, with a decrease of twenty-eight per cent. from the previous fifteen days; while the withdrawals show an increase of nearly twenty-two per cent. over the previous fifteen days.

JOS. G. MARUCCI.

Placing "Rocky Ford" Cigar With Dealers—H. M. Schermerhorn Leases Store at South Water and Clark Streets—J. & B. Moos Introducing "Moos Guarantee", a Nickel Cigar

CHICAGO, April 26.

WHILE local dealers are complaining of a lack of opportunity and other things which tend to discourage or tend to stimulate the belief that their business is being conducted just for the love of doing it, a close observation of conditions belie these reports. There is no doubt that at the present time dealers are being offered deals and opportunities in cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos such as have never been heard of in the last twenty-five years.

R. J. Lytle has been placing "Rocky Ford" cigars on the market. These cigars are made by the Union American Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Lytle reports considerable success with this brand, which is duplicating wherever placed.

Harvey Vreeland, of the Surbrug Company, just returned from a trip through Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa, and outside of the immediate cyclone district. Sales in his lines have been good.

The American Tobacco Company has placed a new brand called "Ensign Perfection Cut" crushed plug. The tobacco is packed two dozen cans in a carton, and each can contains a college pennant pin.

W. F. Sander, of 212 Wabash Avenue, has been selling the "Broadwell" cigar, manufactured by A. T. Valentine, of Philadelphia. Mr. Sander reports that sales have been so big that they can hardly keep up with the demand.

H. M. Schermerhorn has leased the store on the southeast corner of South Water and Clark Street, 10 by 17½ feet, for a term of years at a total rental of $21,560.

The "Moos Guarantee" is a new cigar put out by J. & B. Moos. The new cigar has a Java wrapper, which is tougher than the Sumatra, and a combination filler, which makes it an ideal smoke for a nickel. While this cigar has not been advertised at all, sales have been big and reorders have been plentiful, even exceeding the expectations of the manufacturers.

Thorwart & Rochling are featuring the "Jeitles" and the "La Famosa." Both brands are meeting with success.

Rothschild & Company report a good business in leaf tobacco.

T. J. Rubey, of South Chicago, had from $5000 to $6000 worth of leaf tobacco destroyed in the Dayton, Ohio, flood.

The employees of the Havana-American Cigar Company on Washburn Avenue were forced to leave their work recently on account of a fire that occurred in a building located across the street from the company's factory. The fire caused no damage to the cigar company's plant owing to the work of the firemen in preventing the fire from spreading.

George L. Storm, vice-president of the Tobacco Products Company, was a recent visitor in Chicago, stopping off a few days on his return from the Coast. Mr. Storm reports greatly increased sales of "Milo" and "Arab" cigarettes in the Western States.

W. J. Gibbs, of the G. A. Moebs & Company forces, has been very successful in placing the "Ben Hur" cigar in and around Chicago.

Miss Olga Owens has opened a cigar and tobacco store at 1310 East Forty-seventh Street, near Kimbark Avenue, and will cater to a high class of trade.

Mike Rosenfield, the Western agent of S. Rodriguez, has been very successful in placing "Charles the Great." He recently sold a large order to A. Stein, the popular tobacconist, who operates the Bismack House at 100 Canal Street.

San Francisco

First Two Weeks of April, Busy Ones For Cigar Men—M. A. Gunst & Co. Take Over "Solace" Agency—A. C. Roads Moves to New Location—C. W. McCormick Pushing "Websters"

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.

APRIL has been a good month so far in all lines of trade, and the cigar men are getting their full share of the improvement. There is more money being spent for building and for general improvements now than at any time for a number of years, and the man on the street has more to spend at the stores. Along with the improved city business comes a much better feeling in the country, where the late rains have caused smokers to spend much more freely. Here there is a little talk of coming vacations; but as yet nobody has seriously set any dates. Cigar men are content to attend to business for a while and take full advantage of the good business that is now at hand.

At the recent meeting of the retail trades committee of the Chamber of Commerce the matter of hostile legislation now threatened at Sacramento was taken up, and a sentiment was developed to make common action against certain bills. It now looks as though the united front which San Francisco is presenting against what has come to be known as "freak" legislation is beginning to have its effect at the Capital. One or two of these bills, including the one which was intended to make the Panama-Pacific Exposition "dry," have been beaten, and the trade is hopeful that the others will meet a like fate.

There is quite a tendency among the manufacturers' representatives located here as well as among traveling men in general to get out into the country again and take advantage of the better feeling that has come since the fear of a dry spring has dissipated. Among the well-known men in the trade who have just left on short state trips are: Mr. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdts & Company, who is now in Southern California; Arthur Meyer, Coast man for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, who is also in the South; J. J. Hoffman, of the Hoffman-Moore Company, who has just left for a trip up the northern coast; and Charles Kohlberg, representing H. L. Judell & Company, of this city, who is now in the San Joaquin Valley. A number of others have just returned with their order books well filled.

Several new moves indicative of spring have just been announced. One of these is the taking over of the "Solace" agency, by M. A. Gunst & Company. This line of Key West goods from the factory of George W. Nichols & Company will be actively pushed by M. A. Gunst & Company in both a retail and wholesale way. It has already been tried out for a few days at all the Gunst stores in San Francisco and has shown itself to be a good seller.

L. A. Sawyer, San Francisco manager for the Las Dos Naciones Cigar Company, and distributor for the "El Grifo" line of P. San Martin & Company, has returned from a visit to Nevada, where he found much life and a lot of business being done at the new mining camps as well as at the more settled communities. He found cigar dealers in that state well satisfied and looked forward to a good season.

A. C. Rhoads, a dealer in the "Mission" section of this city, moved a few days ago from 1176 Valencia Street to a larger and better location on the other side of the street at 1193 Valencia Street. Mr. Rhoads carries a full line of popular brands, but makes a specialty of "Rhoads Union Record," his own private label.

M. W. Lange, representative of the "La Prueba" factory at Manila, who has been visiting with the Edward Wolf Company in this city, is now on his way back to Manila.

C. W. McCormick, representative in this territory for Y. Pendas & Alvarez, has been spending the last week or two in Southern California, whither he went in company with Mr. Pendas on the latter's return to the East. Mr. Pendas also made a short stop at Los Angeles en route.

H. L. Judell & Company are having a splendid demand for the "Watt" cigar, from the factory of Bondy & Lederer. The factory has recently had some able specialty men working in this territory, and the demand has been stimulated in all the more important towns of California. Emil Judell, who looks after the northern territory for H. L. Judell & Company, is spending a few weeks in the city, but will leave for his territory again in the near future. H. L. Judell, senior member of the house, was given a mark of honor by the United Commercial Travelers' Association at their banquet this week. Mr. Judell is a Past Senior Counselor of the order, and one of the most devoted members; and in recognition of these things he was presented with a handsome jewel.

Ehrman Brothers & Company are having a good run on their cigar lines, particularly on their "Optimo" clear Havana cigar and on "Havana Ribbons." The latter has taken hold of the five-cent trade of this territory in first class shape. The recent remodeling operations at the Ehrman store have left the house with plenty of room for expansion.

Mr. Hubley, representative of Benson & Hedges, manufacturers of cigarettes, has concluded a visit with Ehrman Brothers, his local distributors.

How a Live Baltimore Cigar House Features a Live Brand

Display of "Reynaldo" Cigars Made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, in Baltimore and Liberty Streets Store of Lilly, Dungan & Co.—Seven Windows were used Simultaneously.

AN example of how a cigar distributor, getting behind a certain brand and pushing it aggressively, can bring quick and satisfactory results, is illustrated by the recent achievements of Lilly, Dungan & Company, one of Baltimore, Maryland's, leading cigar firms. When they first took on the "Reynaldo" cigar, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, they were quick to discover that they had a piece of goods that would not only sell, but repeat, so they promptly began to feature it extensively in their main store at Baltimore and Liberty Streets, and also in their other two stands throughout the city.

This firm believes in not doing things by halves; so when they found that they had a brand which pleased local smokers, they laid out a campaign to bring it forcibly to the attention of every smoker in Baltimore. In the accompanying illustration will be seen seven windows of the Lilly, Dungan & Company's main store, situated at the triangular corner of Baltimore and Liberty S reets, devoted exclusively to a simultaneous display of the "Reynaldo" brand.

It is not often that any distributor will turn over seven windows to the featuring of one cigar, but this firm's decision was more than vindicated by the fact, that beginning with this display, the sales on the "Reynaldos" have doubled and the volume of business is steadily increasing.

A keen observer of the cigar field has said that distributors frequently fail, because they scatter their fire and do not concentrate enough on fewer and better brands. The success which Lilly, Dungan & Company have achieved, is ample confirmation of this statement.

The Cuban Market

HAVANA, April 23.

WE are certainly experiencing most remarkable weather for this time of the year, one might almost call it cold, in fact it is or at least appears to be, colder now than when at Christmas time. As far as the inhabitants of Havana are concerned, the weather is most agreeable, but for those interested in the tobacco business, and of which there are a goodly part of the population, either directly or indirectly interested, it would be preferable if the thermometer were higher and rains more frequent, especially in the country. Although quite some tobacco has been bundled, there is yet a large number of "cujes" (poles) still filled with tobacco, hanging, in the drying sheds, and which is crisp, thus making it impossible to handle. What few lots that have been bought and are in the sweating piles, do not heat up as much as they should. Although a few packings are under way in Vuelta Abajo and Partidos, the selecting is being done with difficulty, for the reason, as the different grades are sized out and layed on the floor in piles, if one of the foremen is not constantly gathering them up and putting them away in the boxes (where they are kept until they are made into hands and later on into carrots) they soon lose the moisture and are very easily broken.
